

Ex Convict 2501

Chapter 2501

Some love turned out to be so painful and so difficult!

1/3

The next day, Jason took Grace to tMason Swansonty's best maternity hospital for a check-up. Kyla was also admitted to the same hospital for her pregnancy.

"I've been coming to this hospital a lot lately." Grace could not help saying with a sigh. "Let's go visit Kyla later after I'm done."

"Okay," answered Jason.

Grace underwent a series of tests in the hospital and was told that the baby already had a heartbeat when she did the ultrasound.

Grace's eyes reddened instantly. "The baby's heartbeat! That means the baby in my belly truly exists."

After coming out of the ultrasound room, Grace put a hand on her belly, her eyes reddening.

Jason quickly walked forward and said, "What's wrong? Did you just cry?"

Grace sniffed. "The baby already has a heartbeat. It's one baby. The doctor says the baby's statistics are good so far."

Chapter 2501

"Did the doctor say you're in good shape to have a baby?" he quickly asked.

2/3

"The ultrasound is only to check the baby's condition. We need to evaluate all other aspects to know whether I'm capable of carrying the child," said Grace."

She knew he would not have asked such a silly question under normal circumstances. He had just become muddle-headed due to his concern.

The two went to the consultation room again. The doctor in charge of overseeing Grace's case was a highly respected obstetrics and gynecology specialist in Emerald City.

"Judging from the current situation, everything's fine. It's just that your uterus was injured before, and it was also damaged when you were pregnant with your triplets. We don't know whether your body will be able to provide adequate nutrition to the baby yet. We also have to wait until the baby is older to see if the placenta is attached to the C-section's incision. It could be dangerous if it is, and we would recommend you terminate the pregnancy."

The doctor cited two potential risks and said, "We need to see your other test results before making a final decision. Those reports should come out in a week."

Jason was worried as they left the hospital, and Grace asked, "What's wrong? The doctor said we have to wait and see. Besides, the baby hasn't grown its placenta. What if the placenta is alright? Then there's no danger at all."

Chapter 2501

"But if..."

3/3

Her finger was pressed against his lips. "Jay, I promise I won't bet my life on this because I know it's not just my life I'm betting on but yours too!"

"Do you really want this baby?" he murmured.

Her eyes were full of reluctance. "I'm reluctant to give the baby up, so I'll do everything I can to save this little life. But if it comes to the last resort, I..."

It turned out it was difficult to utter some things. It turned out that some things were uncomfortable just thinking about them.

Chapter 2502

1/4

"It all depends on luck, the baby's luck and mine." Her voice choked slightly as she looked down and said to the little baby in her belly whose heartbeat had just developed, "Baby, will you give your best and let me give birth to you? I'm dying to see you."

What answered her was a hug from Jason!

A week. It would take a week for them to confirm if she was physically fit to continue the pregnancy. However, the test results they had received today were not too bad.

Grace told herself to stay happy and take care of her diet now so that the baby could be healthy.

The two walked toward the inpatient department, intending to visit Kyla. However, Kyla's ward was empty when they reached it. Even the bodyguards Jason had assigned to protect Kyla were nowhere to be seen.

Grace quickly asked the nurse at the nurses' station and learned that there was suddenly something wrong with Kyla's condition earlier. The doctor had taken her to the operating room for a C-section after checking on her.

"What? A C-section?" Grace was shocked.

"Yes, the patient wanted to hold on for a few more days before delivering the baby, but the doctor said it'll probably kill both mother and baby if she doesn't have a C-section now," the nurse replied.

Chapter 2502

2/4

Grace's heart instantly sank. Although Kyla was having a C-section and the baby was already seven months old, babies that young had a low survival rate.

She knew that Kyla intended to wait until the baby was eight months old before delivering them.

However, the doctor had urgently brought Kyla over for a C-section. She must be in critical condition.

After asking the nurse for the location of the operating room, Grace and Jason hurried to the waiting area.

Grace saw Mrs. Corbyn and the bodyguards here.

The two bodyguards hurried forward to report the situation, and Mrs. Corbyn looked like she was about to cry. "What do we do? Isn't her C-section supposed to be in a week or two? Why did it suddenly... The doctor sounded pretty serious. Is Kyla going to be okay?"

The elderly woman was at a loss.

Grace hurried to comfort Mrs. Corbyn. "I just asked the nurse. Kyla has the best doctors operating on her, and they've been studying Kyla's case. It'll be okay. Kyla will make it through."

What Grace did not mention was that the doctors had said that

Chapter 2502

3/4

Kyla's liver was taking too big of a toll on her. Without a liver transplant after the C-section, Kyla would probably not survive for longer than a year.

However, they had not found the right liver so far. Martin Weiss was the only person who could donate his liver to Kyla, but Martin Weiss...

After calming Mrs. Corbyn down, Grace called Martin Weiss.

The phone rang several times before the call was finally picked up. "What's the matter?" Martin Weiss's deep and cold voice came from the phone.

"Kyla's condition suddenly became critical, and the doctors are now performing an emergency C-section on Kyla in the operating room. I thought as her husband and the father of the baby, you should come over and take a look," she said.

The other end of the line was silent.

Grace's heart was racing as she nervously waited for his reply.

Would Martin Weiss come? If Martin Weiss came, it would at least show that he had feelings for Kyla. If he did not, it meant he intended to get over Kyla.

However, Grace eventually heard the busy signal at the other end of the line.

Chapter 2503

Martin Weiss hung up without saying anything.

Grace's heart sank.

'Is Martin Weiss not coming?'

Jason, who was standing next to Grace, asked, "What's the matter? Is Martin Weiss not coming?"

1/3

She said, "He just hung up. I know I shouldn't guilt-trip him, so I only asked him to come over and didn't say anything else. I thought perhaps Martin Weiss would feel sorry for Kyla and be willing to save her after seeing his own baby!"

Jason said, "He'll come. He'll come if he doesn't want to live in regret for the rest of his life."

Grace listened skeptically.

Time ticked by, but Martin Weiss did not come until the nurse carried the baby out.

The baby needed to be rushed to the neonatal unit. Grace's eyes turned red again as she looked at the baby in the incubator. The baby's skin was red all over. ·

The little human life was intubated. Whether the baby could survive depended on their will and strength.

Chapter 2503

Kyla had risked her life for the baby.

2/3

"It's a girl. 1.3 kg," the nurse said the sex and weight of the baby.

The weight shocked Grace. Even Jasper weighed more than this baby girl when the triplets were born.

The lower the weight, the lower the survival rate!

Being a family member, Mrs. Corbyn followed the nurse to handle all procedures to save the baby.

Grace and Jason continued waiting outside the operating room.

Grace knew they needed to observe the patient's condition for about half an hour after a C-section to make sure nothing was wrong with the mother before wheeling her out of the operating room.

However, Kyla was not wheeled out of the operating room even half an hour later. Grace immediately wondered aloud, "What's the matter? Is Kyla having some adverse reaction after surgery, so the doctor is now rescuing her?"

She surmised that the possibility was not out of the question due to Kyla's current state of health.

Jason pondered for a moment before making a phone call. Moments later, he said to Grace after ending the call, "Martin Weiss is here."

Chapter 2503

3/3

"What?" Grace was taken aback. "Martin Weiss is here? Where is he? Why didn't I see him?"

"He's in the operating room," said Jason.

Grace was even more confused. Under normal circumstances, no one was allowed in the operating room unless they were the medical staff. Besides, she and Jay had been here all throughout. They had never seen Martin Weiss enter the operating room.

Jason explained, "He entered the operating room through a different passage. Besides, he didn't go to Kyla's operating room. He's in the operating room next to Kyla's, ready to have his liver cut."

Grace's eyes widened in shock. "Is Martin Weiss going to donate his liver to Kyla again?"

Chapter 2503

Martin Weiss hung up without saying anything.

Grace's heart sank.

'Is Martin Weiss not coming?'

Jason, who was standing next to Grace, asked, "What's the matter? Is Martin Weiss not coming?"

1/3

She said, "He just hung up. I know I shouldn't guilt-trip him, so I only asked him to come over and didn't say anything else. I thought perhaps Martin Weiss would feel sorry for Kyla and be willing to save her after seeing his own baby!"

Jason said, "He'll come. He'll come if he doesn't want to live in regret for the rest of his life."

Grace listened skeptically.

Time ticked by, but Martin Weiss did not come until the nurse carried the baby out.

The baby needed to be rushed to the neonatal unit. Grace's eyes turned red again as she looked at the baby in the incubator. The baby's skin was red all over. ·

The little human life was intubated. Whether the baby could survive depended on their will and strength.

Chapter 2503

Kyla had risked her life for the baby.

2/3

"It's a girl. 1.3 kg," the nurse said the sex and weight of the baby.

The weight shocked Grace. Even Jasper weighed more than this baby girl when the triplets were born.

The lower the weight, the lower the survival rate!

Being a family member, Mrs. Corbyn followed the nurse to handle all procedures to save the baby.

Grace and Jason continued waiting outside the operating room.

Grace knew they needed to observe the patient's condition for about half an hour after a C-section to make sure nothing was wrong with the mother before wheeling her out of the operating room.

However, Kyla was not wheeled out of the operating room even half an hour later. Grace immediately wondered aloud, "What's the matter? Is Kyla having some adverse reaction after surgery, so the doctor is now rescuing her?"

She surmised that the possibility was not out of the question due to Kyla's current state of health.

Jason pondered for a moment before making a phone call. Moments later, he said to Grace after ending the call, "Martin Weiss is here."

Chapter 2503

3/3

"What?" Grace was taken aback. "Martin Weiss is here? Where is he? Why didn't I see him?"

"He's in the operating room," said Jason.

Grace was even more confused. Under normal circumstances, no one was allowed in the operating room unless they were the medical staff. Besides, she and Jay had been here all throughout. They had never seen Martin Weiss enter the operating room.

Jason explained, "He entered the operating room through a different passage. Besides, he didn't go to Kyla's operating room. He's in the operating room next to Kyla's, ready to have his liver cut."

Grace's eyes widened in shock. "Is Martin Weiss going to donate his liver to Kyla again?"

Chapter 2504

"Yes, he intends to save Kyla-even at the risk of his own life," said Jason.

Grace suddenly felt the urge to cry. It was like what Jay had said before. Martin Weiss would not stand idly by if Kyla was dying.

However, she did not expect Martin Weiss to resolutely lie on the operating room table at such a time.

Even if some love was forgotten due to hypnosis, a lot of it would have already been etched in the bones and blood. It was why Martin Weiss chose to save Kyla.

Grace and Jason waited outside the operating room. As time went by, Grace became increasingly nervous.

'Will the operation be a success? Is Martin Weiss and Kyla going to be okay?

'If Kyla is rescued but something happens to Martin Weiss, Kyla will probably be unhappy in the future. After all, Kyla's greatest wish is for Martin Weiss to live a good life.'

Sometime later, even Mrs. Corbyn had returned to the waiting area outside the operating room door. The operating room door finally opened, and the doctor walked out from inside..

"Doctor, how's my daughter?" Mrs. Corbyn hurried forward and asked. After she returned, Grace had told her that Kyla was having a liver transplant.

Chapter 2504

2/3

The two operations were done together because the sooner the liver transplant was performed, the lower the risk of the other organs in Kyla's body being affected.

"Although the operation is successful, we need to continue observation after the patient wakes up," the doctor replied.

Mrs. Corbyn was finally relieved.

Grace asked, "What about Martin Weiss? How is he?"

"He's healthy, but having a liver transplant twice will cause some damage to his body. He'll need a long time to recuperate his body. He should be fine as long as he makes it past the critical 24 hours," the doctor said.

Grace heaved a sigh of relief, hoping Martin Weiss could survive the 24-hour crisis.

"Oh, by the way..." The doctor paused. "Mr. Weiss said he hopes you won't tell Miss Corbyn that he donated his liver to her. He doesn't want her to know, so he hopes those in the know can keep it a secret."

Mrs. Corbyn and Grace looked at each other, not expecting Martin Weiss to not let Kyla know after risking his life for her.

Kyla and Martin Weiss were soon wheeled into the isolation wards. Kyla required 72 hours of observation, while Martin

Chapter 2504

Weiss required only 24 hours.

The two were in different wards but were only separated by a wall.

3/3

Grace stood in the hallway and watched Kyla and Martin Weiss through the transparent glass window. The two loved each other but were now... so far apart!

"What's on your mind?" Jason looked down and asked Grace.

"Why was Martin Weiss willing to donate his liver to save Kyla?" Grace murmured.

"Because he loves Kyla," said Jason.

"But wasn't he hypnotized? How deep can his feelings for Kyla be even if he later developed feelings for her again?" she asked.

"Even if some feelings are hypnotized, your body will still remember them. There'll be joy, heartache, reluctance to see them in pain, fear of losing them... Martin Weiss doesn't want Kyla to leave this world, so he could only gamble his life to save Kyla," Jason murmured.

Grace was silent. Martin Weiss's love might be deeper than she imagined.

Chapter 2505

When Martin Weiss woke up on the third day, Grace and Jason went into the isolation ward wearing isolation gowns.

"Your and Kyla's operations were successful. You can transfer to the regular ward in 24 hours. Kyla will take longer. She needs 72 hours," said Grace.

"Has she woken up?" Martin Weiss asked hoarsely.

"Not yet, but the doctor said she'll wake up today," said Grace.

"Don't tell her that the liver in her body... is mine," reminded Martin Weiss.

"Since you saved Kyla, why won't you tell her?" Grace asked in confusion.

"Because I want a clean break-up with her," said Martin Weiss.

"But how can you have a clean break-up now that you have two children together?" asked Grace.

Martin Weiss closed his eyes a little tiredly. "Then we'll have a clean break-up... except for the children..."

He had struggled in this hopeless relationship for years. He did not want to continue struggling in this relationship.

Chapter 2505

He wanted to break up while he could!

2/3

After Kyla woke up, no one mentioned the liver transplant to her. They only told her that the doctor gave her a minor liver surgery to keep her liver condition under control.

The second day after Kyla was transferred to a regular ward, Martin Weiss was discharged from the hospital.

By the time Grace knew, Martin Weiss had been escorted out of Emerald City by car.

“Martin Weiss... left Emerald City just like that. He didn’t even say goodbye to Kyla,” Grace said emotionally.

“Maybe he’ll be reluctant to leave if he saw her,” said Jason.

“Nevertheless, Kyla finally managed to survive. It would be a shame for her and Martin Weiss to miss out on each other like this,” Grace said regretfully.

“So, what are you going to do?” Jason asked.

“I think I’ll tell Kyla the truth when she recovers in two months. Kyla rejected Martin Weiss back then because she was worried about her health. She was afraid that Martin Weiss wouldn’t be able to stand it and would die with her if she was no longer around. But if the transplant is successful, she can live much longer.”

Chapter 2505

“Do you think Kyla will choose to be with Martin Weiss if she knows the truth?” Jason asked in reply.

3/3

“Kyla will do that as long as she loves Martin Weiss,” said Grace.

Martin Weiss covered all of Kyla’s and the newborn’s hospitalization expenses. He even topped up enough money in their account.

Kyla was getting better every day. Her sallow skin had also gradually restored to its normal complexion. The baby was still in the neonatal intensive care unit, but doctors brought them good news every day.

If all went well, the child would be able to leave the intensive care unit and return to Kyla’s side in another month.

Every day, Mrs. Corbyn would take photos of the little one and show them to her daughter in the ward.

Chapter 2506

Nelson Corbyn often flipped through the photos of his sister on his grandmother’s phone and spoke like a little adult, wanting to take good care of his sister.

After Lina found out that Kyla had given birth, she hurried to the hospital to visit Kyla. She said with a chuckle, “Thank God you gave birth smoothly. I’m going to be a godmother again. We have more children in our ‘kindergarten’ now!”

Kyla could not help laughing at Lina’s words, but her only regret was that Martin Weiss was not here.

She learned from Grace that Martin Weiss had left Emerald City and returned to L City. Maybe that was the end of their relationship.

Amber Mitchell made a video call to congratulate Kyla after learning she had given birth safely and passed the crisis.

“Congratulations on giving birth to a daughter,” said Amber Mitchell.

“Thank you. I’ll let you meet my two children when you come to Emerald City or when I go to Deer City,” said Kyla.

“Okay. I envy you. You have a son and a daughter now. If only I...” Amber Mitchell stopped short.

Chapter 2506

2/3

The baby who died after she gave birth to them had always been a sharp thorn in her heart. In all these years, she dared not think too much about the baby and neither was she willing to.

“Amber Mitchell, you can find happiness again after the matter with the Mitchell family is over. I think you’ll have a child of your own someday!” said Kyla.

Amber Mitchell smiled nonchalantly. “I’ve never thought about it. As for finding happiness... I found it, but I didn’t realize it until Herman died. I didn’t know he loved me that much. I would’ve been so happy if I had chosen him.”

However, the wrong choice ruined her life.

Maybe she would never be happy again. However, she would seek justice and the truth for herself and Herman no matter what!

Hearing this, Kyla did not want to remind Amber Mitchell of her sad past, so she asked, “How is it going with the Mitchell family?”

Amber Mitchell said, “The trial will be held in half a month, and all the preparations are currently in place. Grace’s lawyer friends in Deer City are also helping me with this. There’s enough evidence to convict the three of them!”

“You’re finally getting what you want,” said Kyla. Thinking of how her best friend had suffered in the mental hospital, her heart could not help but ache.

Chapter 2506

It would take a lot of willpower not to get tortured into becoming a lunatic in that environment!

3/3

“Yes, finally...” Amber Mitchell said emotionally. She would go all out for her goal!

After ending the phone call, Amber Mitchell picked up the documents nearby and looked through them. They were the Moss family’s investigation reports of the accident, including detailed data of the car at the time, its condition, the road they drove on that day, the restaurant where she and Herman Moss were, and the people in the restaurant...

S

These reports probably contained more information than the reports the police had.

Amber Mitchell's beautiful eyes narrowed as she caught sight of one of the photos tucked away in the file. She seemed to recall something...

Louise Mitchell finally met George Gregory at the detention center.

She had been waiting for almost a month, and he finally came to see her.

Chapter 2507

1/3

"So you finally came to see me. I thought my husband was going to leave me here to die," Louise Mitchell said sarcastically.

"Simon is sick and needs a blood transfusion. He underwent a transfusion with the same blood type from the blood bank, but it didn't work out so well. The doctor said it'll be better for his biological parents to provide the blood," said George Gregory with intense fatigue in his eyes.

Simon suddenly fell ill. Simon had type-B blood, while he had type-A blood. There was no way he could donate his blood to Simon. The only possibility was to have Louise Mitchell donate her blood.

However, Louise Mitchell replied, "What's the matter? You only came looking for me because you want my blood? Would you never have come if this hadn't happened?"

George Gregory did not answer but looked at her indifferently.

Louise Mitchell suddenly sneered. "George Gregory, that's enough. Don't you want something from me? Won't you even tell me a lie?"

"You're Simon's mother," he only spoke indifferently.

It was as if he was reminding her of her status as a mother and telling her that she had to donate blood to treat the child.

Chapter 2507

She would save Simon if he were her child.

However, Simon was Amber Mitchell's child! She was stuck in the detention center because of Amber Mitchell. She was reluctant to use her blood to save Amber Mitchell's child!

2/3

"I'll file a request for temporary Stephenson! so that you can go to Simon's hospital and donate blood to him. We can't delay his treatment. The longer we delay it, the more dangerous it'll be for him," George Gregory said as he got up to leave.

It was as if he was only informing Louise Mitchell. She did not even need to make the decision.

"I can donate blood to Simon, but I won't do it if I'm not acquitted!" Louise Mitchell said suddenly.

George Gregory paused and looked at Louise Mitchell in disbelief. "You're going to kill him!"

Louise Mitchell sarcastically countered, "Why aren't you saying that you're killing me? George Gregory, you stood by and refused to help the Mitchell family. Why didn't you think about what would happen to me?"

"You're Simon's mother!" He reminded again.

"But you're my husband, aren't you? The kid will blame you if he ever pursues the matter. You neglected me first, so it's not your place to accuse me of neglecting the child!" Louise Mitchell snapped.

Chapter 2507

3/3

Looking at George Gregory's ghastly expression, she suddenly felt a sense of pleasure after getting revenge.

George Gregory did not care about her, but he cared about his only son!

However, he would never know that Amber Mitchell was the mother of his son. The child was now seriously ill. It seemed that George Gregory would get her out no matter what for the sake of the child.

Amber Mitchell probably did not expect her own son to be the one to save Louise Mitchell!

The wind at night was cold. Amber Mitchell came out of the Moss family's house. She had gotten the information she wanted from the Moss family and made up her mind.

Chapter 2508

It was just that it was going to take some time to find that person after so many years. Besides, there was probably not enough evidence for a conviction!

While she was deep in thought, a car suddenly stopped in front of Amber Mitchell, and George Gregory appeared in front of her.

Amber Mitchell looked warily at George Gregory and stepped back.

George Gregory's dark eyes narrowed slightly. "Are you afraid of me?"

"I'm not afraid but disgusted," answered Amber Mitchell. When one was disgusted with someone, one would not want to get close to them. One would subconsciously keep one's distance. Even looking at them could make one feel uncomfortable.

George Gregory's expression instantly turned ghastly as soon as she said that.

'Disgusted...' It sounded so harsh when she uttered that word.

She had once said to him in her sweet melodious voice, "George, I'll probably never hate you."

However, she now said she was disgusted with him!

Chapter 2508

"You're disgusted with me?" He moved close to her.

2/3

She sneered. "Shouldn't I hate you? If possible, I hope you never appear in front of me because I don't want to see you at all!"

He felt a surge of fury that he did not understand. It had been many years since he had been this furious. It seemed he had not gotten so angry since he avoided hearing about her when she was first sent to the mental hospital.

The fury exploded in his chest so quickly that he shocked himself!

"Amber Mitchell, you'd better not tell me that again!" he warned coldly.

"George Gregory, who do you think you are? I don't need to listen to you. If you don't show up in front of me, I wouldn't have to listen to you either!" She walked straight past him as she spoke, intending to head to the nearby subway station.

However, he grabbed her wrist before she could take two steps. The next moment, George Gregory dragged her toward his car.

"George Gregory, what are you doing? Let go of me!" She yelled, resisting with all her strength.

However, her resistance seemed to not affect him.

A moment later, he dragged her into the car. The car drove away as soon as the door slammed shut as he had indifferently commanded, "Drive."

Chapter 2508

3/3

Amber Mitchell suddenly stopped struggling. Now that she was in the car, it was no use to struggle. The first thing she should do was figure out what he wanted.

"George Gregory, what do you want? Why don't you just tell me and save me from guessing?" Amber Mitchell asked calmly.

He stared at her. "I thought you'd be screaming for me to let you out now."

"Will that work? If it won't, why waste the effort?" she said indifferently.

"You weren't like this before. You'd always give things a try even if it didn't work."

"That's because I was never locked up in a mental hospital back then. If you went through that experience, you'd know that doing something that doesn't work will only end up hurting you more," she said sarcastically.

Chapter 2509

His expression changed slightly.

She twisted her wrist to free her hand from his fingers.

However, his fingers gripped her so tightly that she could not get them off.

“Didn’t you say you wouldn’t bother wasting your effort? Why are you reacting like this now?” he asked derisively.

“Because it’s unbearable.” She gave him her answer. “I find it unbearable when you hold me like this.” It was as if every cell in her body was screaming for him to leave and were disgusted by him!

He frowned and grabbed her hand a little tighter. “Then keep putting up with it. It’s no use struggling if I don’t want to let go of you.”

She only felt spasms of pain from being gripped by him, but she was stubborn and unwilling to cry out in pain.

She turned to look out the car window. The streets of Deer City were still bright and dazzling at night.

With George Gregory holding her hand so tightly, one would have thought they were being intimate. Only she knew how much strength she needed to control the trembling and suppress Chapter 2509 her nausea.

When the car finally stopped, she found that George Gregory had taken her to the entrance of the Mitchell family’s house.

The driver in the front got out, leaving Amber Mitchell and George Gregory alone in the car.

Amber Mitchell looked at the entrance of the Mitchell family’s house. The entrance of the Mitchell family’s house used to be crowded with reporters. However, the reporters gradually decreased over time and finally disappeared after the three members of the Mitchell family were detained.

2/4

The entrance of the Mitchell family house was deserted, and the mansion was dark as far as the eye could see.

“Haven’t you always wanted the Mitchell family? As long as you let Louise Mitchell go, I can make Louise Mitchell return the shares that belong to you. Even if you ask for Louise Mitchell’s fingers, I won’t stop you. I can even make the Mitchell family transfer the Mitchell family’s old residence to you. You have nothing to lose!” George Gregory said.

Amber Mitchell finally understood George Gregory’s intention. It was already the second time he asked her to spare Louise Mitchell!

“I thought I told you that there’s no way I’ll spare her. I won’t spare anyone who ruined me and put me in the mental hospital!” She refused.

Chapter 2509

“She’s your sister. Besides, you want control of the Mitchell family, don’t you? I can give it to you now!”

3/4

Amber Mitchell suddenly laughed. "You're giving it to me? You sound like a robber who took everything from the victim and is now telling the victim that you can give them back some of their belongings. You speak as though you're bestowing the greatest gift, but it was the victim's in the first place. Why should I accept your offer to give me my things back as though you're doing me a favor?"

She questioned, and his expression grew more ghastly.

D

"Does that mean you don't want to spare Louise Mitchell?" he asked grimly.

"Yes," she answered without hesitation.

"So, are you going to make me an enemy once and for all?" His eyes looked at her coldly.

"You and I have long been enemies." They were already enemies when he looked on as Louise Mitchell took her shares, when he watched from the sidelines as the Mitchell family put her in the mental hospital, and when did nothing while she was suffering.

"Don't regret it, Amber Mitchell," he said.

She smiled again and looked at him with cold eyes. "George Gregory, what I regret most in my life is being with you and believing in your nonsense."

Chapter 2510

His expression changed as he leaned forward suddenly. His hands were pressed on her wrists, pressing her against the back of the chair. "Nonsense? Do you think everything I said was nonsense?"

"Isn't it? George Gregory, all you see is money. You don't know anything about relationships!" she said.

'Don't know anything about relationships? Why do I have to live so ascetically if I don't know anything about relationships?

'If I don't know anything, why was I filled with regret when I learned that she was normal?

'If I don't know anything, how could I have broken Louise Mitchell's finger in anger after learning the truth about her severed finger?'

"Who knows? Are you going to say that Herman Moss knows more about relationships?" He snapped.

"Yes, Herman does. He knows what relationships are like. He was never greedy for money. He treated others sincerely!" she shouted.

He sneered. "That sounds nice. Would you have married Herman Moss if he were still alive?"

Chapter 2510

She looked at him earnestly. "If Herman were still alive and wanted me, I would marry him!"

Her statement sounded so harsh.

2/3

A pang of jealousy flashed through his heart, and his voice grew colder. "It's a pity he's dead!"

"I want to marry him even if he's dead," murmured Amber Mitchell.

What she said only triggered George Gregory. "You're so infatuated with Herman Moss that you want to marry him even if he's dead. Then why weren't you with Herman Moss when he was still alive and sneaked around?"

Amber Mitchell was silent, not bothering to explain anything to the man in front of her.

She used to repeatedly explain herself, but he would always rather believe the rumors than her.

What was the point of explaining it now?

Besides, she used to explain herself because she did not want him to misunderstand. After all, she loved him. She did not love him anymore, so there was no need to explain it to him now.

However, her silence only reinforced his belief that he was right.

He stared at her and suddenly kissed her forcefully on the lips.

Chapter 2510

3/3

She suddenly froze. Then, she began violently resisting. However, her strength did not make the slightest difference. His kiss was fierce and suffocating, almost taking her breath away.

He kissed her only to vent his jealousy at first. She loved him back then! However, she now said she wanted to marry Herman Moss even if he was dead!

However, as the kiss deepened, he fell into a trance as if he were back in the old days when he loved her and she loved him. Even the air was sweet back then!

His lip suddenly hurt, and it was followed by the taste of blood in his mouth.

She had bitten his lip!

However, he did not stop kissing. He kissed her harder instead.

The smell of blood overtook the kiss.

When the kiss finally ended, Amber Mitchell raised her hand and slapped George Gregory's face.

However, the next moment, he grabbed her hand. "Do you think I'll let you slap me the second time?"