

Ex Convict 2581

Chapter 2581

What... What she wanted was him, the Martin Weiss who loved her deeply!

However, maybe she would never see Martin Weiss again.

"Is he... Is Martin Weiss okay?" Kyla could not help asking.

The lawyer hesitated slightly before saying, "Mr. Weiss's doing okay and is still busy with his work as before." It was not the case. However, Mr. Weiss had told them to say that everything was fine if Kyla did ask about him.

"Really?" Kyla murmured and looked at the divorce papers before finally saying, "I'd like to amend the divorce papers."

"Yes, go ahead," the lawyer replied quickly.

"I accept the shares and child support he wishes to give the children, but I don't need any alimony. He doesn't need to give me any properties either. As for the matter of child support, open two bank accounts and deposit the money there. I'll only withdraw what I need every month. The children can manage the extra money themselves in the future."

The lawyer froze, not expecting Kyla to make such suggestions. 'She's simply rejecting the money! What normal person would do that?'

"The alimony and the properties are Mr. Weiss's generosity. You don't have to reject them," the lawyer said.

"I married Martin Weiss. He owes me nothing, so there's no need to give me these. I have no reason to take the alimony and properties. Please convey that to him for me. I have no opinion on the rest," said Kyla.

"A-Alright then. Hold on," the lawyer said before turning around to enter another room. They called Martin Weiss and told him about Kyla's requests.

The person on the other end of the line was silent for a long time before saying, "If she thinks it's a good idea, let's do it her way."

“Okay, Mr. Weiss,” replied the lawyer before returning to Kyla and saying, “Miss Corbyn, Mr. Weiss said the agreement can be revised according to your wishes.”

Kyla took a deep breath and said, “Okay, revise the contract, then.”

When Kyla walked out of the law firm, she seemed to be in a

Chapter 2581

She looked down blankly at her hands.

How did that happen? The agreement had been amended as she wanted, but she still hesitated when the lawyer asked her to sign it. Her hand that held the pen would not land on the paper.

Finally, she could only say to the lawyer, “I... want to go back and think about it. I’ll contact you after thinking it through.”

“Okay, you can think about it. I’m sure Mr. Weiss will do his best to satisfy whatever requests you have,” the lawyer said respectfully.

However, the statement did not make her happy at all.

Once she signed the divorce papers, she would have nothing to do with Martin Weiss anymore.

They would no longer be husband and wife. Even if they have two children together, they probably would not see much of each other.

Kyla felt nothing but an intense tightness in her chest at the thought of it. It was as if something was stirring in her chest, making it throb with pain.

Just then, a car suddenly pulled up beside her. Grace anxiously ran out of it. “Did you sign the divorce papers?”

“Grace?” Kyla froze and looked at her in surprise.

“Have you signed the divorce papers?” Grace urgently asked. She was afraid that she was too late. If Kyla had signed them, she could only intercept the lawyers at the firm!

Kyla said, “Not yet. But how did you know I came here to sign the divorce papers?”

“I went to your house to look for you, but Aunt told me you came to this law firm to sign the divorce papers, so I hurriedly came over. Fortunately, you haven’t signed them yet,” Grace said as she let out a sigh of relief.

“There’s nothing fortunate about it. I should’ve signed the divorce papers. It’s just that... I’m afraid something’s missing from the agreement, so I want to think it over,” Kyla made an excuse and said.

“You’re reluctant.” Grace went to the point and said, making Kyla’s excuse seem weak instantly.

Kyla turned pale slightly. She did not know how to refute her for a moment.

“Kyla, I have something to say to you. Let’s find a place to talk. Get in the car first,” Grace said as she opened the car door and signaled for Kyla to get on board.

“Grace, if you’re still trying to talk me out of the divorce, don’t. Martin Weiss and I were destined for divorce from the beginning,” said Kyla.

“Kyla, I hope we can find a place to talk no matter what.

I won’t stand in your way if you still decide to divorce him. afterward. I only want you to make a decision that you won’t regret,” said Grace.

Kyla sighed before finally getting into the car.

Chapter 2582

Grace got in the driver’s seat and drove. She turned the steering wheel and drove the other way.

When Grace's car pulled into a hospital parking lot, Kyla froze.

It was the hospital where she gave birth. "Why did you bring me here?"

"Because there are things I wish to have you see and words I wish for you to hear. Kyla, come with me. If you don't want to be kept in the dark about some things, come with me," said

Grace.

With that said, Grace led the way.

Kyla looked at Grace's back hesitantly. She seemed to have a premonition that whatever Grace wanted to tell her was something shocking.

'Is it about Martin Weiss?

'If so, what do I not know?'

Chapter 2583

She felt a sudden surge of frustration mingled with uneasiness. It was a feeling she could not describe. However, she instinctively walked to keep up with Grace.

It was as if her subconscious was deciding for her.

She did not want to be kept in the dark. If there was something she was supposed to know, she wanted to know!

Grace took Kyla to the floor the inpatient hepatobiliary and pancreatic surgery department was on.

"Why did you bring me here?" Kyla asked in surprise.

"You'll find out in a moment," Grace said as she walked to the attending doctor's office. As soon as the doctor saw Grace, they immediately came forward and said, "Mrs. Reed, you're here."

"Yeah, As I told you the last time, I hope you can tell her the whole story of her labor," said Grace.

Kyla recognized the doctor as well. He was a leading specialist in hepatobiliary. There was too much burden on her liver when she was pregnant, so she had a specialist consultation.

Chapter 2583

The doctor was, of course, one of the specialists she consulted.

"But..." the doctor said, looking troubled.

"If you're worried about Martin Weiss, you don't have to. I know he told you not to tell her, but I'm the one who told her.

The reason why I want you to describe the events truthfully is that I think it'll be more objective. Besides, you're the most relevant witness," said Grace.

The doctor hesitated slightly before saying, "Alright. I think Miss Corbyn needs to know too."

"What... is it that I need to know?" Kyla asked as her lips quivered.

She had a feeling that what the doctor was about to say would be a big deal.

"Well, Miss Corbyn, you did more than just give birth. You also had a second liver transplant," the doctor said slowly. Their voice was calm, but it was like a thunderbolt to Kyla.

Kyla's pupils constricted instantly. 'A second liver transplant? What does that mean? Does that mean I have a different liver now? But I have a special blood type, so whose liver is it?'

Chapter 2583

3/4

A figure flashed across her mind. Then, her breathing became heavy. She could hear the doctor's voice going on...

"After your C-section, we found that your liver was already in poor condition. If you didn't get a second liver transplant and continued using the original liver, you might not live longer than a year. Mr. Martin Weiss volunteered to donate his liver.

He was also prepared for the surgery as he was on an empty stomach. He had also completed all the preoperative tests, so we immediately performed a second liver transplant on you."

Kyla listened to everything in a daze. She almost could not believe it. She thought she only did a C-section but did not expect to have done a liver transplant too. Martin Weiss... donated his liver to her a second time. How big of a burden would it be for him?

"What... What about Martin Weiss? Is... Is he alright?" Kyla asked in a panic.

"The operation was successful, but there's bound to be some strain on his body as he has donated his liver twice. It'll also affect his life. His health will worsen, and he needs to check his liver regularly every six months. But we've told Mr. Weiss about these consequences before. He was well aware of them and had mentally prepared for them," the doctor said.

Chapter 2584

Kyla's eyes were teary. Then, her tears could not help rolling down from her eyes.

"How did this happen... How did this happen..."

"Mr. Weiss asked us not to tell you about the second liver transplant before the operation. We agreed after considering your condition." After all, it was her husband's request, and the hospital could not refuse him.

Kyla closed her eyes as she cried harder.

'Did Martin Weiss not let the doctor tell me because he was afraid I would be psychologically burdened? Was he afraid that I wouldn't agree to the operation?

'The man has forgotten his feelings for me. Why did he endanger himself like that? If the operation had failed, he might have died on the operating table!

'What's more, even though the operation was successful, his health will plummet. His quality of life will never be the same!

'Why... Why would he do that?' Kyla opened her eyes and looked at Grace beside her with tears on her face. "Grace,

Chapter 2584

why didn't you tell me earlier?"

Grace said, "Like what the doctor said, you weren't in good health at that time, and Trista was in the neonatal care unit. If we told you about Martin Weiss then, we were afraid you'd get too emotional and it wouldn't be good for your recovery."

After a pause, Grace said, "I saw that your body has almost recovered and Trista is like a normal child now, so I wanted to tell you soon. I didn't expect Martin Weiss to get a lawyer to begin the divorce procedures."

Kyla asked with a sob, "Do you know how Martin is doing? Is he... okay?"

Although the lawyer Martin Weiss had entrusted said Martin

Weiss was doing okay, Kyla could not believe the lawyer now.

Grace said, "He's been recuperating in the Weiss family's mansion. He also handles many of the company affairs in the mansion. He rarely goes to the company, but he has professional medical staff taking care of him in the mansion."

This was what she found out from Jay.

Kyla trembled slightly. She knew that Martin Weiss had always been eager to outdo others and was dedicated to his career.

However, he had to stay in the mansion for more than two months to recuperate. She could imagine the state of his

Kyla returned somewhat dazed to the store from the hospital while accompanied by Grace.

Mrs. Corbyn was shocked to see her daughter's face covered with tears. "What... What's come over you? Why are you crying like that? What happened?"

Kyla said bitterly, "Mom, I owe Martin Weiss so much. Martin Weiss donated his liver to me twice, but I only found out now!"

Mrs. Corbyn was shocked.

"Mom, how can I pay him back? How?" Kyla held her mother in her arms and wept.

Mrs. Corbyn gently patted her daughter on the shoulder, soothing her like when she was a child. No matter how old her daughter was, she was still a child to her.

Chapter 2585

"Just do what you think you should. Don't bother with the rest," said Mrs. Corbyn.

Her daughter had minded too many things that she came to hide her misery in her heart and suffered in silence.

She only wanted her daughter to be happy.

Looking at Kyla and Mrs. Corbyn in front of her, Grace could not help the flicker of envy in her eyes.

She was envious that Mrs. Corbyn would always stand by Kyla's side no matter what happened. She did not have many memories of her mother. The photo album her mother left behind was also half-burned!

However, perhaps her mother would be glad for her if she were still alive and learned about her current life.

Grace silently left the store so that Kyla and Mrs. Corbyn could have some time alone. She came to the entrance of the primary school. It was almost time for school to end for the day, so parents had begun to gather at the entrance.

Grace joined the legion of parents and began waiting for lessons to end.

Chapter 2585

2/4

Since she was here today, she might as well pick up Mason, and Veronica after school. She also wanted to talk to Nelson.

When the school bell rang, the first person Grace saw was Nelson.

"aunt Cummins, did you come to pick up Mason and Veronica?" Upon seeing Grace, Nelson Corbyn quickly walked up to her and asked.

"Yeah, but I also wanted to see you," said Grace, who felt emotional when the tiny three-year-old she first met had now become a ten-year-old.

"By the way, have you seen my sister, aunt Cummins? My sister is so cute. I like her so much." After Trista returned home, Nelson Corbyn's greatest joy every day was to look at his sister.

He would also offer to feed her and cuddle her to sleep like a grown-up when she cried. He was saving up his pocket money to buy her toys when she was older.

In short, Nelson Corbyn now looked like he was becoming a brother who doted on his sister excessively.

"I saw Trista today. Here, I want to tell you something." Grace half-crouched and looked sternly at Nelson Corbyn. In her opinion, the child was precocious and sensible. He was only ten years old, but he had a sense of responsibility that children his age rarely had.

Chapter 2585

Nelson Corbyn instantly realized that what Grace had to say to him must be something important, so his little face turned solemn instantly.

Grace said, "Your mommy found out your daddy donated her his liver a second time and is crying while hugging your grandma. I don't know what choice your mommy will make in the end, but I want you to know that one of the reasons your daddy left your mommy to go back to L City is because he doesn't want your mommy to know that he donated his liver again. He doesn't want your mommy to be psychologically burdened."

Nelson Corbyn's eyes widened. "Daddy... donated his liver to Mommy again?"

"Yes, he donated his liver, and it was extremely risky because he has already donated his liver once. He had to cut a piece of his liver for your mommy for the second time. He might have. died on the operating table," said Grace.

She knew Nelson had always been hostile to Martin Weiss.

After all, Martin Weiss had made many mistakes.

Chapter 2586

She was not putting in a good word for Martin Weiss. She only wanted to tell the child the truth and let him be aware.

Even a child as young as ten years old could distinguish facts. by himself!

Nelson listened carefully. He could tell how much his daddy had done for his mommy from Grace's speech.

His mommy had been saying how lucky she was to give birth to his little sister this time. They thought her liver was fine, but... it was in critical condition. His daddy even donated his liver to his mommy again.

He had looked up liver donation online and knew a person could only donate once, but his daddy had donated twice.

He felt a strange sensation in his chest. He used to hate his daddy, but his hatred for his daddy seemed to diminish over the years with everything his daddy did.

When he heard that his daddy might have died on the operating table when he donated his liver for the second time, he panicked. He was afraid that his daddy would really die.

Chapter 2586

"How's Daddy doing now?" Nelson Corbyn asked.

2/4

"He's still recovering, but your daddy's health might not be as good as it used to be. Maybe his immunity and digestion will be worse than before," said Grace.

Nelson Corbyn was momentarily silent before saying, "I'll... go home and check on Mommy first."

"Sure, go home first," said Grace as she waved goodbye to her godson.

Nelson Corbyn hurried back to the store, while Grace continued to wait at the school entrance for her second son and Veronica Barlow, the little girl from the He family, to finish school.

After a while, she finally saw the two little ones.

The two children came out hand in hand while carrying their backpacks.

After seeing Grace, Veronica Barlow rushed forward and politely said, "aunt Cummins, what are you doing here?"

"I happened to be at aunt Corbyn's store and thought I'd pick you up from school. What about you? Why are you only finishing school now?" Grace said with a smile.

Chapter 2586

"Today's my turn to be on duty with Mason," said Veronica Barlow.

3/4

Mason followed Veronica Barlow. He did not have much interest in his mother, Grace. He only glanced at Grace before keeping his eyes on Veronica Barlow afterward.

Grace was already used to her second son's behavior.

Jasper was friendly and outgoing, Mick only cared about his family, and Mason only cared about Veronica Barlow.

There was a time when Grace even wondered if her second son was autistic, but the hospital check-up confirmed it was not autism. It was just that what happened to him as a child made it hard for the little one to open up to people.

The only person he opened up to was Veronica Barlow.

She had no idea when Mason would slowly open up and accept others, but whenever it was... she would wait patiently.

"Alright, I'll take you home," said Grace.

Veronica Barlow replied in acknowledgment. She wanted to leave with Grace, but Mason stayed where he was. His little hand held Veronica Barlow's hand tighter, making Veronica Barlow stop.

4/4

Chapter 2586

"Mason, why aren't you moving?" Veronica Barlow asked in

Chapter 2587

"Sis, we can go home without her," said Mason. His expression showed obvious resistance to Grace's offer to send them home.

Grace's eyes dimmed slightly. She was not around when he grew up, so it was natural that he resisted her.

"Mason, I miss you so much. I want to send you home so that I can spend more time with you," said Grace.

Mason was silent, and his beautiful eyes were indifferent.

It was as if how much his mother missed him meant nothing to him.

Veronica Barlow said, "Mason, let's ask aunt Cummins to take us home. I envy you that you have a mommy. My mommy..."

Veronica Barlow's words disappeared in her throat.

She did not want to call her stepmother 'Mommy' because that woman had never treated her sincerely.

She often thought of her mommy, thinking how happy she would be if she were alive. Her mommy could protect her if she got into any trouble.

Chapter 2587

2/4

Therefore, she was envious of Mason for having such a good mommy every time aunt Cummins visited Mason.

“Then you can have my mommy,” said Mason.

“You can’t just give away your mommy casually. You have a mommy, so cherish her, got it?” Veronica Barlow said.

Mason blinked. Although he understood the meaning of the word ‘cherish, he did not understand why he should cherish.

his mommy. All he wanted to cherish was his sis.

However, Mason no longer rejected Grace from sending them back since Veronica Barlow had said so.

Although the school was not far from the He family’s house,

Grace drove the two children to the apartment downstairs.

Watching the two children walk into the apartment building,

Grace smiled. As she was about to turn around and return to the car, she heard Veronica Barlow behind her. “Mason, press the elevator button first. I’ll come over after saying goodbye to aunt Cummins.”

Grace turned around to see Veronica Barlow running toward her in a hurry.

Chapter 2587

“What’s the matter?” Grace asked. She had already said goodbye when she got out of the car.

3/4

“aunt Cummins, I... I want to ask if you will take Mason back to the Reed family's house?" Veronica Barlow looked up and asked cautiously. It was as if she had summoned the courage to ask this question.

Looking at the little girl in front of her, Grace hesitated slightly before saying, "I hope Mason can move back to the Reed family's house, and I'm working hard for it to happen. He has suffered a lot in the past. I hope to make up for it."

"So, you're going to take Mason away, aren't you?" Veronica Barlow's eyes reddened.

Grace patted the girl's head, not wanting to weave white lies to deceive the child.

After all, Mason could not stay with the He family forever.

In particular, the He family's house itself was not conducive to the child's growth.

"I won't be taking him away anytime soon. I'll let him get familiar with me, his father, and his siblings first. We'll take him back to the Reed family's house when he's willing to accept us. Even if he returns to the Reed family's house, you'll still be his sister. You can see each other at school every day, and I'll help

Chapter 2588

If Veronica Barlow was willing, Grace would not mind bringing Veronica Barlow to live with the Reed family.

However, that was a story for another day.

Veronica Barlow bit her lip. Grace's answer was neither good nor bad for her. At least she could still live with Mason for now.

"Well... Goodbye, aunt Cummins," said Veronica Barlow before returning to the corridor.

She had only taken a few steps when she suddenly stopped. Mason's tiny figure was standing not far away.

"Why didn't you wait for me at the elevator?" Veronica Barlow asked.

"I won't leave this place. Sis, I'll go wherever you are!"

Mason said expressionlessly, but his eyes flickered with determination.

Veronica Barlow froze. "Did you... hear what I just said to your mommy?"

He nodded.

Chapter 2588

Veronica Barlow became a little embarrassed. "But she's your mommy. You gotta move back home."

"I said no, so I won't," he said. He stretched out his little hand and held Veronica Barlow's hand.

Veronica Barlow felt Mason grabbing her hand. She bit her lip and said, "I don't want you to leave either, but... we're only kids..."

They were only kids, so it was pointless even if they were reluctant, grudging, and unwilling.

It was just like how her mommy had died. She did not want her daddy and stepmother to move into her mommy's old house, but... it was pointless. All she could do was accept it.

Similarly, she wanted to stay with Mason, but what could she do if aunt Cummins wanted to take Mason home?

She was only a kid! There was nothing she could do!

"I won't leave. I won't leave even though I'm a child," said Mason. His childlike voice sounded so confident.

Watching Mason, who was shorter than her, speaking so affirmatively, Veronica Barlow could not help laughing at herself. She was two years older than Mason. Mason was not worried, but she kept feeling worried. She was the elder sister!

Chapter 2588

3/4

"Yeah, we'll try to stay together no matter what. If we do separate, we can get back together when we grow up." In her opinion, they could do many things when they grew up and became adults.

They did not need to rely on adults and could make their own decisions!

"We'll never separate!" Mason corrected her.

"I'm just speaking metaphorically, okay? I'm just saying if that were the case..." Veronica Barlow explained.

"Then don't speak metaphorically. We won't separate," he said stubbornly.

"..." She did not know what to say suddenly. She could only stare at him. After a while, she burst into laughter. "Alright, we won't separate."

In any case, Mason was her most precious brother, and she would be a good sister!

He looked at her smile, and a faint smile appeared on his expressionless face.

He liked to see Sis smile. He felt content to see Sis' smile!

Chapter 2589

1/4

When Grace returned to the Reed family's house, Jason was already at home. When she saw Jason, Grace could not help stepping forward and hugging him. She buried her face in his arms at the same time.

It was as if being enveloped by his scent could make her feel grounded.

"What happened?" Jason looked down and asked.

"I told Kyla about Martin Weiss's second liver donation today," muttered Grace.

"Why did you tell her so soon? Didn't you say you'd wait a few days?" Jason asked in confusion.

"When I went to see Trista today, Mrs. Corbyn said Kyla went to see Martin Weiss's attorney to sign the divorce papers, so hurried over. Fortunately, Kyla hadn't signed it, and I told Kyla about Martin Weiss's liver donation," Grace told Jason in detail about what had happened today.

"I don't know if Kyla will still choose to divorce Martin Weiss, but... she should at least have the right to know. And she should at least know what Martin Weiss has done for her."

Chapter 2589

"Kyla will probably go to L. City to see Martin Weiss," said Jason.

"Do you think she'll go too?" Grace asked.

2/4

"She'll go if she still loves Martin Weiss. By the way, how's the little one in your belly today? Did they cause you any trouble?" said Jason.

"I'm alright. I didn't throw up much today. But Mason still seems unwilling to accept me when I picked him and Veronica up from school and sent them home," said Grace.

She could only say that Mason did not reject her.

"Didn't the psychologist say it's related to the child's childhood experience? In his case, it's difficult for him to truly trust someone. It'll be difficult for him to accept a person too," said Jason.

"But Mason accepted Veronica. Veronica is probably the only person Mason trusts. Fortunately, he has Veronica. Without her, I don't know how Mason would've turned out. Maybe no one could get close to him," Grace said emotionally.

Jason's eyes glimmered slightly. 'Fortunately?'

However, it did not seem right to him. If the child trusted only one person, it was dangerous if one looked at it from another angle.

Chapter 2589

3/4

As a child grew, there would be many changes.

Whether Veronica Barlow would be a curse or a blessing for Mason was unconfirmed.

"Take your time. Mason will trust us and accept us one day." Jason comforted his wife.

"Yeah." Grace nodded. Then, she looked down, raised her hand, and caressed her belly. "I'll take good care of the baby and not let them suffer any danger."

"I'm sure you can protect the baby well," Jason said reassuringly.

He would not repeat his mistakes. He would take good care of her and the baby.

At night, Kyla looked at her little daughter, who had fallen asleep once more in her arms. The little one looked smaller than the average full-term baby because she was born prematurel.

She was considered easy to take care of. She basically ate and slept all day. She would wail a little after waking up. Once she fed her, though, she would not make much noise.

Chapter 2589

4/4

Kyla placed the baby carefully in the crib and looked at the daughter she had almost given up her life to give birth to.

She thought she was only risking her life, but... Martin Weiss was the one who risked his life for the baby in the end.

Chapter 2590

Even so, Martin Weiss said nothing and just chose to leave after doing so much.

‘Have I... let him down too many times that he chose to say nothing?’

Her hand slowly touched the place where her liver was. His liver was here. It was the liver he gave her.

She thought she might not have much longer to live, but... he extended her life again.

‘What about me? Am I going to sign the divorce papers as if I don’t know anything? Or...!’

Kyla gently looked down at the thought of it. Her hands also clenched slightly as if she was making up her mind.

She came to her mother’s room and gently knocked on the door. “Are you asleep, Mom?”

Mrs. Corbyn opened the room door and saw that her daughter had something to say, so she said, “Come in.”

Kyla entered the room, took a deep breath, and said, “Mom,

Chapter 2590

2/4

I’d like to make a trip to L. City, but Trista is still young and has just gotten out of the neonatal care unit. She can’t make such a long trip, so I want Trista to stay here. Can you help take care of her? I won’t take her with me.”

Mrs. Corbyn did not seem surprised that her daughter would say that. “Okay, I’ll look after the two children while you go to L City. But you’re going there alone, and you just got a little better. You should take good care of your health. Bring the medicine the doctor prescribed for you and take them on time!”

“It’s too much trouble for you to take care of two kids yourself. I’m thinking of hiring someone else to help with the housework and other things so that you can take it easy too,” said Kyla.

“Hire someone? Why would you waste the money? I can do it all by myself. I’m old, but I’m not too old to do these things. It’s not too much work. At most, I’ll just close the store for a few days,” said Mrs. Corbyn.

After all, the store had to be restocked regularly. If business was busy, she might not be able to look after the baby.

“Let’s close the store until I come back, then. But I still think it’ll be better if we hire someone to do the chores...” said Kyla.

“No thanks. I’ll have my hands tied if there’s a stranger in the house.”

Chapter 2590

“But...”

3/4

As the mother and daughter were arguing, a slightly childish.

voice suddenly rang out. “I can take care of Grandma and Tristas. I’ll do the chores.”

“Nelson, why are you...” Kyla looked at her son in surprise. She thought her son had fallen asleep. She had planned to talk to her son about going to L City after discussing it with her mother.

“Mommy, I’ll do the chores after coming home from school every day. I’ll also help Grandma to take care of Tristas. Don’t worry, I’m not a child anymore. I’m a big brother,” Nelson Corbyn spoke like a little adult.

Kyla looked at her son’s behavior. He was still a child, but he had to carry burdens he should not carry at his age!

She owed the child so much!

“Did you hear what we said?” she asked.

Nelson Corbyn nodded. “I know you’re going to look for Daddy, aunt Cummins told me today that Daddy had donated his liver to Mommy a second time.”

It turned out Nelson already knew. Kyla hesitated slightly and said, "Yes, I'm going to see Daddy. You..." She was worried about her son's reaction. After all, his son had always disliked Martin Weiss.

Chapter 2590

4/4

Although things were better now, she was not sure whether her son accepted Martin Weiss.

"I... don't hate Daddy, and I think Daddy is brave to have donated his liver to you for the second time," said Nelson Corbyn.
