

Ex Convict 3151

Chapter 3151

At this moment, a user named "Grace 4+2" suddenly appeared in the live stream and directly called out the accounts of those who had attacked Valda earlier. They said, "Your comments just now have constituted defamation. If Ms. Zhong needs to sue you, I will be her representative lawyer!"

The atmosphere in the live stream suddenly became tense, and many viewers began to discuss the situation in the comments.

Valda thanked "Grace 4+2" for their support and said that she would consider taking legal action if necessary.

After the incident, the live stream continued, but the topic shifted to a discussion of online harassment and the importance of standing up for oneself.

At first, there were people in the live stream room who were mocking.

"Is this Grace 4+2 trying to become famous by currying favor with the prince's fiancée?"

"Or is it that this fiancée brought in her own group of online trolls?"

"Be careful not to overturn the car!"

Someone said, "This account... belongs to Barrister Grace! Oh my god, she is the Reed family's lady, Jason's wife!"

As soon as the name Jason was mentioned, there was an instant silence in the live broadcast room, followed by an explosion of reactions.

"Really? Jason's wife is here too?"

"So, what about Jason? Will Jason come too?"

Next, someone sent a message saying, "I'm here."

Next, many netizens immediately confirmed that the account with the words "here" belonged to Jason's personal account online!

In Emerald City, Mr. Reed is a well-known figure that everyone knows.

Now, the Reed family has come to Valda's live broadcast, and even Mrs. Reed said she wants to become Valda's proxy lawyer. What is going on?!

Moreover, this Mrs. Reed is a famous lawyer in the legal industry, with an impressive record and a very high success rate!

For a while, the live broadcast room was extremely lively.

At this moment, Tracy looked at the screen of Valda's live broadcast on her phone, her face looking unpleasant.

Why did the Reed family also come to join in the fun?!

Originally, Brian was already a big trouble behind Valda, and now with the addition of the Reed family, it's even worse.

Thinking of this, Tracy typed on her newly created account, "A normal person's leg wouldn't just suddenly become lame for no reason. There must be a reason. Moreover, I heard that the prince's fiancée has been missing for a year. Ordinary netizens are just curious!"

Then she instructed a few people she had bribed to create a certain rhythm in the live broadcast room.

So, in the live streaming room, the screen was immediately flooded with requests to know the reason behind Valda's limp and her one-year disappearance.

Some people even maliciously speculate that Valda eloped with someone and then came back to Brian when things got tough outside.

"You mustn't become a white knight, Your Highness!"

"That's right, don't believe any reasons she gives, no matter what she says!"

"Who knows what she has been up to this past year!"

While the netizens were having a good time in Valda's live broadcast, Brian suddenly appeared in the camera's view.

“Brian!” Valda called out softly. She had clearly told him before that she would be doing the live broadcast alone today, no matter what happened, and he could just watch from the side.

At this moment, he suddenly approached like this.

“I have recorded the accounts of those who maliciously slandered my fiancée just now. I will submit them to the police later. It should not be difficult to trace their IP addresses. Whether their comments were normal opinions or malicious slander will be fairly judged by the law!”

When Brian spoke, those accounts that had previously slandered Valda suddenly fell silent.

Brian continued speaking to the camera, “Valda is the woman I love the most in my life. As a man, I will do everything in my power to protect her. To me, she is the person I will spend the rest of my life with. Anyone who speaks ill of her is speaking ill of me!”

Chapter 3152

Valda stared at the man beside her, even though she knew he loved her, hearing him say these things in the live broadcast made her heart beat rapidly.

At this moment, in the live broadcast room, Grace’s username said, “Valda disappeared for a year because she saved my daughter. My daughter had a problem with her leg, and Valda fell into the water after saving her. She hit a hidden reef in the water.

Valda is a friend and a benefactor to me.”

Jason spoke up as well, saying “Regarding the online defamation of Ms. Valda, the Reed Group will assign someone to gather relevant content and submit it to Ms. Valda.”

Grace and Jason’s words clearly show that they are trying to support Valda.

And then, someone spoke up again, “The White Maple Group will also assign someone to collect online comments that defame Ms. Valda and submit them to her.”

So, right after that, some netizens dug up the online account of Hadwin, the chairman of White Maple Group, which was mentioned earlier.

Continuing on, Martin from Weiss Group, Barlow Group and Philip from Deer Capital, and George from Gregory Group all appeared in the live stream room.

The words spoken and unspoken both indicate support for Valda.

The live stream chat exploded once again. What's going on? Why are so many heavyweights from the business world coming to Valda's live stream room?

Is it to save face for Brian?

Next, someone revealed that Valda and the chairman's wife of Reed Group, Grace, have close relationships with Kyla, the chairman's wife of Weiss Group, Lina, the chairman's wife of White Maple Group, and also with Simon, the heir of Gregory Group from Deer Capital. The reason why Philip, the chairman of Barlow Group, is standing on Valda's side is because the Barlow family has a good relationship with the Reed family.

Suddenly, many onlookers were stunned.

So it turns out these people are speaking up not because of Brian's connections, but because of Valda!

This powerful network of relationships is enough to make Valda successful even without Brian's support. Moreover, the Reed family has publicly declared Valda as their benefactor, which further strengthens her position.

At this moment, as Tracy watched the scene in the live broadcast, panic finally appeared on her face!

She did investigate, and found out that Valda is just an ordinary comic artist. How could she possibly have any connections with so many big shots?

Especially...Valda's disappearance and her leg injury are both related to the Reed family!

It's to save the child of the Reed family!

Even Valda is a benefactor of the Reed family.

This is bad. Valda has completely cleared her name, but what about her? Not only did she offend Brian, but now she has also offended the Reed family behind Valda, as well as others who support Valda.

So, what about her future...

Tracy can't even imagine what will happen next.

The parents of the Barlow family also watched the live broadcast.

The old Mrs. Barlow exclaimed anxiously, "Why is this happening?

If... if Valda was trying to save the Reed family's child from the beginning, why didn't she say so earlier?!"

"Do you think that the wealthy and powerful would speak of such matters lightly?" Old Mr. Barlow seemed to have been mentally prepared for this and knew that with his daughter causing such a commotion, there was no chance of salvaging the situation.

"So...so what should we do?" urgently asked Mrs. Barlow.

"We can only go abroad to avoid the situation for now, and then figure out a solution," said the elderly Mr. Barlow. Fortunately, he had already transferred some money overseas beforehand.

"The entire Barlow family's business is here in Emerald City!" said the elderly Mrs. Barlow. If they were to go abroad, they wouldn't have the same lifestyle as they do now!"

"Now we can only do this. The company is being investigated, and with Tracy causing a scene, it's likely that the relevant departments will investigate even more thoroughly. We might not even be able to leave even if we wanted to!"

Chapter 3154

Despite knowing how others would attack, they did not avoid it.

This courage is admirable.

Perhaps it takes this kind of courage to stand by Brian in the future!

To Valda, Amber sends sincere blessings.

A few women talked about partying during Valda's latest live stream. They ultimately decided to congratulate her on her new home once it's decorated.

After the video call ended, Valda received a call from Camille.

“Sis, you were amazing today! There are posts online about you, and in your circle of friends, there are a bunch of big shots’ wives protecting you. No one will dare to mess with you in the future!”

Valda found Camille’s words amusing, “But luckily, today went pretty smoothly, so this matter should slowly settle down.”

“Your side is fine, but Tracy’s side may not be as easy. She has been heavily criticized online and someone has even released her past scandals. In short, she’s completely finished this time!” said Camille.

Valda listened and felt no sympathy towards Tracy.

“By the way, my new home will be ready soon. Grace and the others said they want to come together to celebrate my housewarming. Will you come and join us?” Valda asked.

“Come on, of course you should come!” Camille quickly said, “When you say Grace, do you mean Jason’s wife Grace?”

“Well, in addition, there are those big shots’ wives you mentioned, and also the future big shots’ mommies...” Valda joked.

Camille chuckled, “From now on, I bet no one will dare to criticize you online. Before they do, they’ll have to think about the group of wives behind you!”

The two of them chatted for a while before ending the call.

Valda put down her phone and raised her hand to rub her forehead.

“Feeling tired?” A voice sounded in her ear.

“Yeah, a little bit.” She nodded. Although today’s events went more smoothly than expected, she had been tense every day for the past few days. Finally relaxing today, the exhaustion that had been accumulating for days suddenly surged up.

Brian pulled Valda into his arms and said to her, “Close your eyes, I’ll give you a massage.”

“Okay.” She obediently closed her eyes, and his fingers began to massage her forehead.

It felt very comfortable!

His movements were gentle, and his breath filled her nose, giving her a strong sense of security.

It was as if she didn't have to worry about anything with him by her side.

Valda completely relaxed, leaning against Brian's arms. She faintly heard his voice murmuring, "Valda, I won't let anyone hurt you..."

That was his way of protecting her...

Valda fell asleep, and Brian looked at her sleeping face in his arms. His eyes deepened, and after a moment, he picked her up and walked back to the bedroom.

He carefully placed her on the bed, afraid of waking her up.

Chapter 3155

After a while, he walked out of the bedroom and came to the study. The secretary was already waiting there. As soon as he saw Brian, he stood up and said, "Mr. Hart, this is about the current situation of the Tracy family. They have transferred a sum of money overseas. They are probably going to flee the country before the trouble with the company is exposed. Although there is no direct evidence of Tracy's involvement in the Barlow family's affairs, it has been found that the people who slandered Miss Theller online were all bought by Tracy."

As the secretary spoke, he handed over the information.

Brian looked through the information in his hand and said, "It won't be so easy for the Tracy family to escape overseas. We need to stop them."

Those who hurt Valda must pay the price, and he will not let them off lightly!

"Yes, sir," the secretary replied.

"Also, besides Tracy, the two people who were with her that day and bullied Valda should also be handed over to the police," he added. He would not let those two go either.

"I understand what to do," the secretary replied before leaving the Brian returned to the bedroom and looked at the person lying on the bed with endless tenderness in his heart.

"Valda..." he murmured, leaning down and placing a kiss on her forehead with deep affection and sincerity.

Tracy's situation is still being discussed online, and the negative information that she previously suppressed with her connections and money is now being voluntarily exposed by others.

Nowadays, there is a lot of criticism online, and many people even think that banning her was too late. People like her should have been banned earlier!

At this moment, Tracy naturally has no time to worry about online comments and gossip!

Now, the Barlow family of three is preparing to go abroad.

Tracy carried her luggage and followed her parents into the airport, wearing a baseball cap, sunglasses, and a mask. They hurriedly walked inside.

Once she goes abroad, she won't have to worry about domestic affairs anymore. Plus, she'll have the chance to make a comeback!

When she gets back on her feet in the future, she will make sure that all those who have wronged her will pay the price.

Especially Valda, she will definitely make things difficult for Valda!

Just as she was thinking, suddenly a group of plainclothes people blocked their way. Someone directly pulled out a police officer's badge and announced the names of the Barlow family of three.

"Please come with us to the police station. If you have anything to say, you can say it there!"

"We have something urgent to catch a flight. Right now, we are still free and not restricted from entering or leaving the country!" said Mr. Barlow senior. "If there is anything, you can wait for us to come back and then come to the police station."

"You are now restricted from entering or leaving the country, so even if you have urgent matters abroad, it seems that you won't be able to leave," said the police.

"How is that possible!" exclaimed the Barlow family, all three of them wearing shocked expressions.

"Okay, let's go. If you refuse, then according to the relevant laws, we have the right to take compulsory action!" said the police.

The Barlow family looked pale and exchanged worried glances with each other.

How could this happen?!

Tracy was almost grinding her teeth to pieces. All her plans and thoughts of getting revenge on Valda and making a comeback in the future were now impossible to achieve.

So, the Barlow family of three were taken to the police station, and shortly after, news of their detention spread across various media platforms.

There are even rumors suggesting that Tracy instructed several internet celebrities to spread various rumors and defame Valda, based on the evidence obtained by the police.

Chapter 3156

In addition, the funds that the Barlow family transferred abroad this time were raised from private individuals. Such behavior constitutes fraud, and therefore the Barlow family will definitely face severe legal sanctions.

In short, everyone understands that the Barlow family is finished! Valda looked at the news with little emotion, only feeling a sense of resignation towards the unpredictability of life.

If Tracy had known that one incident would lead to such consequences, I wonder if she would have made the same choice.

Tracy wanted to control public opinion to turn the tables, but ended up being destroyed by her own actions.

In the following days, Valda didn't return to her own small apartment but continued to stay at Brian's villa.

After all, if she moves back to the small apartment, Brian will probably have to sleep on the couch again.

However, living in Brian's villa, even though they have separate rooms, every night Brian still goes into her bedroom and cuddles with her while they sleep.

"I feel like I can only be at peace when I'm holding you like this while sleeping," he whispered.

"At peace?" She blinked slightly.

"Well, I'm afraid that if I'm not careful, you'll disappear again," he said, holding her tighter.

She seemed to understand his fear and hugged him back, saying,

"Brian, I won't disappear."

"Yes, you won't...disappear again..." he murmured. "Okay, go to sleep. You said you're going to pick out soft furnishings for the new house tomorrow. You'll have a lot to do starting tomorrow."

"Okay, I'll go to sleep," she replied, closing her eyes.

He looked at her and couldn't help but smile. Holding her like this was happiness to him.

The next day, Valda started running to the home decor store to pick out soft furnishings. Brian even sent a driver to follow her to prevent her from getting too tired.

Originally, Brian wanted all the bodyguards and servants to follow

Valda, but she refused, saying that she was just going to a home decor store and it would be too much to have so many people with her. She was afraid of being stared at like a "panda" again.

So, Brian had to instruct the driver to keep a closer eye on Valda.

Valda picked out some furniture and household items, especially those suitable for the elderly, hoping that her godmother would be comfortable when she came to visit.

Every day that follows is busy for Valda.

Every day, she has to buy new furniture for her newly purchased house, make some renovations in certain areas, and go to the hospital for leg rehabilitation. At the same time, her work as a comic artist has also slowly resumed.

Fortunately, the online buzz about her has gradually died down, allowing her to feel a bit more at ease.

Chapter 3157

“Are you planning to resume the serialization of the manga that you previously interrupted?” asked Camille.

“Okay,” said Valda, “I don’t want that story to just end like that. I hope it can be a story with a proper beginning and end.”

“But if we want to resume the serialization, it will be difficult. After all, unless it’s a highly popular work, other works with average popularity that resume serialization will only have a rushed ending,” said Camille. “Although you are Brian’s fiancée now, the CEO will still want to save face to some extent, but he won’t do a losing business deal just for you!”

After all, businessmen ultimately value profits the most!

“I understand that if the work doesn’t work out after reopening, I will wrap it up,” Valda said. “But it’s a story that I really like. It’s a serialized comic story that I started with Brian after we met. So I hope that this story can have a good ending too.”

“Okay, I’ll help you prepare. Your story had a good response when it was serialized before you disappeared. We even planned to publish it as a book, but it didn’t happen because of your disappearance. Maybe if you start the serialization again, it will have a good outcome!” Camille smiled and stood up, saying, “I’ll go back to the magazine first.”

“By the way, don’t forget to come over to my new house tonight for a get-together,” Valda reminded.

Camille smiled and said, "I can't forget it. So many important people are going today. This kind of gathering is rare, and I can't miss it."

In the evening, Valda hosted a small gathering in her newly purchased house, with a self-service buffet-style setup.

Of course, Brian also brought over some of the cooks and servants from the villa to make it easier to prepare food for gatherings and to clean up.

The first to arrive was Amber, and Simon also came. The little guy even prepared a small gift, a homemade congratulatory card. "Don't you dare look down on this card. Although it's not worth any money, as the teacher said, it's the thought that counts!"

The little one seemed to be afraid that Valda would dislike him, so he spoke first.

Valda smiled and said, "Why would I dislike it? I really like the card you made, and I will keep it safe!"

Upon hearing her say this, the little one finally showed a satisfied expression.

Subsequently, others arrived one after another. Grace came with her triplets and Veronica Barlow. Grace's youngest daughter was not brought along due to her young age. Kyla and Martin also brought Nelson. Hadwin and Lina came alone. It seemed like the three families had an unspoken agreement to not bring their youngest children.

However, despite that, there is already a full house of people in this room. With six children and a bunch of adults, Valda feels that the living room, which was originally spacious, now seems crowded.

Fortunately, the house is on the ground floor and has a fairly large yard. The children are all playing in the yard, so they are not crowded in the living room.

Camille looked at the people in the room and could only sigh.

If a photo was taken and posted online, it would surely cause a sensation.

She had only seen people like Jason, Martin, and Hadwin in the news before, but now she had the chance to see them in person.

At the moment, a few women are gathered together chatting about their children and discussing Valda and Brian's upcoming wedding.

"By the way, you're living with Brian now. If you get pregnant, will you have to move up your wedding date?" Lina asked.

She tends to speak in a straightforward and unreserved manner, without much pretense.

Valda's face turned red, "Um... I don't think so."

"Do you use contraception?" Lina asked.

Valda's face turned even redder. Most of the time, she does remember to do it, but occasionally, in moments of impulsiveness, she forgets.

But how can she say these words?

"This kind of thing, there's really no telling, it often comes unexpectedly. You think it'll come, but sometimes it doesn't, and when you don't expect it, it comes." Lina said.

Chapter 3158

The others nodded in agreement.

As for Camille, who was unmarried, she had no experience in this matter and therefore couldn't speak on it.

"Anyway, you should still have Brian prepare for both possibilities. If you get pregnant early, you'll have to have the wedding earlier." Grace said.

The others agreed.

"But speaking of which, your child with Brian...should be very cute, right? Maybe we can just keep it within the group." Lina muttered.

"Keep it within the group?" Valda was confused.

"Yeah, you see all those kids in the yard, and we still have some at home. Keeping it within the group would be great! Childhood sweethearts...ah, my dream." Lina muttered.

Grace joked, "If Hadwin knew about this dream of yours, do you think he wouldn't find all your childhood sweethearts?"

Lina trembled and said, "Let's just forget I said anything."

Amber watched this scene and stood up, walked to the side to get a glass of champagne, and started drinking it on her own. Kyla walked over to her and asked, "What's wrong?"

"It's nothing, I just thought of Herman," Amber whispered.

Kyla was taken aback, then realized that Herman was also Amber's childhood sweetheart, but now they were worlds apart.

"Are you planning to be alone for the rest of your life?" Kyla asked.

"I think so," Amber replied. "After experiencing that kind of love, how can I love someone else again?"

Kyla also sighed. After experiencing such a tragic love, what kind of love could enter their hearts again?

"What about George? Do you really have no feelings left for him?"

Kyla asked.

Amber gave a bitter smile. "If there are any feelings left, it's probably just disgust. Disgust that I once loved someone like him."

Hearing this, Kyla knew that George really had no chance.

"Kyla, there's no possibility between George and me anymore. I envy the warmth between you and Martin, so you should cherish it," sighed Amber. "Relationships need to be maintained. In this world, no relationship is taken for granted."

Upon hearing this, Kyla couldn't help but look up in Martin's direction, and their gazes met directly.

He was also looking at her!

His gaze, in an instant, made her feel bewildered.

These days, they share the same bed, and to others it may seem warm and peaceful, but only she knows the distance between them.

His past relationship with her, Grace, was under hypnosis and she has not yet been released from it.

And now, she didn't ask about what kind of feelings he had towards her.

Asking too many questions may ultimately only cause unnecessary worry.

Chapter 3159

Kyla instinctively avoided Martin's gaze and smiled at Amber, "I'll have a drink with you."

On the other side, Brian patted Martin's shoulder and said, "Do you know what your expression just now looked like?"

"What?" said Martin.

"Students who are filling out their college applications are unsure of what the best choices are," said Brian. "Did something happen between you and Kyla?"

"There was nothing, absolutely nothing happened, it was very calm," said Martin.

Because of this calmness, it makes him even more anxious.

Sometimes, the more peaceful things are, the more it can make a person feel uneasy.

"So why are you still showing such a conflicted expression? Are you not getting along well now?" Brian asked.

"No, we get along very well," Martin replied calmly and warmly.

His relationship with Nelson was also improving, and sometimes he felt that this was the life he wanted.

However...deep down inside, Grace has a growing sense of unease.

It's because of the unresolved emotions from the past.

The hypnotized emotions are still there.

Although the hypnosis has not been lifted yet, he can't help but think that if one day the hypnosis is accidentally lifted, the emotions that were accumulated before will be restored.

Once, he refused to break the hypnosis and restore those emotions because he was afraid of falling in love with her again.

But now, he is unwilling to break the hypnosis because he is afraid that if those emotions truly resurface, he will hate her.

Even though he remembers every single thing that happened between them, that feeling has been hypnotized and he feels like an observer watching a movie, rather than truly immersing himself in the plot.

And once the hypnosis is lifted and he truly becomes the character in the play, how will his emotions be affected?

Will he hate Kyla more or love her more?

Will there still be such calm and warmth between them in the future?

"Since we get along well, are you not satisfied?" Brian asked.

"Not satisfied?" Martin sighed softly, "It's not so much about being unsatisfied as it is about being too satisfied, which is why there's a fear of losing it."

This statement made Brian feel a sense of sorrow, as he could relate to it. After all, he had experienced the same thing. Because he had lost Valda before, even if she returned to him now, sometimes he and Grace would feel scared, and he would even wake up in the middle of the night from a bad dream.

And at that time, only holding her could calm the unease in his heart.

"If you're afraid of losing, then try your best not to lose," said Brian. "Everything I'm doing now is to avoid losing Valda again, because the days without her were too painful."

Martin pursed his thin lips, don't you want to keep it?

But the instructions he gave under hypnosis for contact hypnosis were... As he thought about this, his heart couldn't help but beat strongly again.

The party is still going on with a few women who have been drinking. Some, like Amber, are not yet drunk, while others, like Lina, are on the verge of losing control and publicly stripping Hadwin.

"I'm telling you guys... hiccup my husband has a really great physique..." Lina said while burping and praising her husband. She kept grabbing at Hadwin's clothes with her hands, "Especially his abs, they look so good. Every time I see them, I drool..."

Hadwin looked helpless. Some people just insist on drinking even though they know they can't handle it – like his wife!

And after getting drunk, their alcohol tolerance isn't very good either!

Chapter 3160

"Don't stop me... It's better to have fun together than alone," Lina shouted.

"Zhong Le Le? Who does she want to have fun with?!" Hadwin rolled his eyes at Lina, but she remained oblivious.

"Lina got drunk, so I took her back first," said Hadwin.

Valda quickly responded, "Be careful on your way."

Lina continued, "Valda, next time you come to my house, I'll show you the collection of handsome guys posters I have. They are my hidden treasures that I haven't even shown Tingxin."

Hadwin was speechless. Now, not only did he know about her secret treasure, but also everyone present at the scene knew about it!

He will go back and search for her hidden treasures, to see whose posters she has collected.

"By the way... Valda, Kyla, Grace... Next time Valda gets married, we should have a few guys dance together in a group performance. It will definitely be a lot of fun. I'll go back and see if I can find a suitable dance track."

Lina kept talking about it, and the other men were getting a headache from listening. If they were asked to do a group dance, it would be unimaginably difficult!

So a few men gave Hadwin a look and urged him to quickly take his wife and leave.

Hadwin didn't plan to stay any longer, "Alright, Lina, let's go..."

"Okay...let's go, let's go..." Lina muttered, then turned back to Camille and said, "Camille, I'll see if there's a suitable match for you. I'll help you find someone."

Camille quickly thanked her and checked the time. She then said to Valda, "Valda, I'm going to leave now."

"Okay," Valda replied.

Then, one by one, the others left with their children. Amber was the last to leave, as her apartment was upstairs.

As Simon and Valda said goodbye, Simon curiously looked at Brian and asked, "Uncle Brian, will you really dance a group dance with Auntie Valda when you get married?"

Simon was still very interested in this group dance.

Brian's expression changed slightly, and he gave the little guy two words, "No, but if you want to see a group dance performance, I can find professional dancers to perform."

Simon looked disappointed and said, "But I still want to see you dance, Uncle Brian."

"..." "Brian was speechless.

The two of them, one big and one small, stared at each other.

"Okay, let's go back now," said Amber as she held her son's hand and left.

Valda glanced at Brian beside her and asked, "Are you really not planning to dance?"

Brian raised his eyebrows slightly and asked, "So, do you really want to see me dance?"

"I do want to," she nodded honestly. "I haven't seen you dance before, so I wonder what it would be like when you dance."

Her face showed some curiosity, and at this moment, she was slightly tipsy due to the drinks she had earlier.

She raised her hands and stood on her tiptoes, wrapping her arms around Brian's neck. "Brian, can you dance for me? I really want to see you dance."

The vague voice, accompanied by the coquettish tone, made him feel a bit helpless.

"I'm not really good at dancing," he said with a hint of embarrassment.

"That's okay, I'm not good at it either! If... at our wedding, you don't want to dance, how about you show me now? Just dance for me alone, okay?" She murmured, continuing to act coquettish.