

Ex Convict 3381

Chapter 3381

But this silence also makes people's hearts become afraid.

"Do you feel scared?" A young and immature voice suddenly spoke up.

"I'm not afraid," said Lornell. In fact, he had faced death several times since he could remember.

Some of them are even closer to death than they are now.

My father once said that since he is a child of the Quentin family, it is inevitable to face such trials, so there is nothing to be afraid of.

Because regardless of fear, one must go through the experience.

"But I'm afraid," the little one said honestly.

"Are you afraid your parents won't come to save you?"

"Not true!" She immediately retorted, "My mommy and daddy will definitely come to rescue us. They promised that I am their most precious treasure, and if I am ever in danger, they will come find me no matter where they are!"

Even though the surroundings were dim at the moment, he couldn't see her expression clearly, but in his mind, he pictured her looking sulky.

"What are you afraid of?"

"I've been like this, feeling uncomfortable and unable to move... I'm just really scared," she said, unable to describe exactly what she was afraid of.

In reality, she was afraid of the unknown.

"Can you tell me a story? Will you tell me a story?" the little one asked.

"I don't know how," Lornell refused directly. He wasn't one to enjoy listening to stories, let alone telling them to others.

"Well... can I tell you one instead?" the little one asked as a compromise.

“Don’t talk too much. Before long, you’ll get very thirsty and we don’t have any water to drink right now ,” Lornell reminded.

The little one obediently closed their mouth, but hummed a nursery rhyme softly through their nose.

The intermittent humming seemed to dispel the suffocating silence of the moment.

Time passed, and Lornell felt the little one’s humming getting softer and softer until it finally stopped. The little one didn’t speak, but lay quietly on his chest, as if... dead, motionless.

Before, he didn’t feel scared, but at this moment, he suddenly became afraid, afraid that this little one might really die.

“Hey, you...” He hesitated for a moment, and her name just blurted out... “Harley... Harley, what’s wrong with you?”

After a while, her voice finally came intermittently, “I... am so sleepy, want to sleep... Don’t be afraid, I... we are together, I’m afraid my parents... will come to save us...”

As she spoke, she groped around and finally found his hand, and then grabbed it.

Lornell was startled, feeling her soft little hand.

He could shake off her hand!

But at this moment, he didn’t want to shake it off. It was as if being held by her like this could give him a sense of security.

Will they definitely come to save them?!

Does she really trust her parents?!

He thought of that night again, when she rushed up angrily and demanded an apology from the others b

When Lornell woke up in the hospital room, he didn't know how he had passed out. It seemed like it was during Harley's humming of a tune.

"You finally woke up," a familiar voice sounded in his ear.

Lornell looked at the woman by the hospital bed, who was his mother.

"You were lucky this time with the explosion. You didn't suffer any major injuries and you can be discharged from the hospital after a week. I will send some of the people who usually take care of you to stay at the hospital to look after you. If you need anything, you can also ask the people here for help."

The woman spoke in a formulaic tone, and Lornell was already familiar with this way of speaking from women.

"Does Father know about the explosion and my hospitalization?"

Lornell asked.

"He knows. We informed him as soon as it happened, but he's not in Emerald City right now. He's attending a meeting in another city and probably won't be back to see you for another two days," the woman said, looking at Lornell's young and expressionless face.

He was her son, but she couldn't love him completely because he was the heir of the Quentin family.

His existence was a constant reminder that her only purpose was to give birth to this child for the Quentin family.

"Okay, I have to go now. Rest well," she said, her beautiful and noble face showing only indifference.

Lornell didn't say anything, just watched his mother leave the hospital room without any reluctance. In his mind, he recalled the scene of the Hart family of three at the restaurant in the amusement park.

Harley's mother was not as beautiful as his own mother, and she even had a limp, but she exuded a gentle aura, with a warm smile on her face. She would hug and kiss the little one, and gently wipe the corners of his mouth and tidy his hair...

These were things he had never felt from his own mother.

She and he were like two completely different worlds!

And he had already become accustomed to his mother's cold treatment, so there was nothing to worry about.

However, what about the little one? How is she doing? Lornell's brow furrowed involuntarily. Although he didn't want to admit it, he understood that he cared about Harley's life and death.

Since he can still live well, that little guy must also be alive!

At that moment, there was a light knock on the door of the hospital room, and then someone came in.

The people who came in, besides the doctors and nurses, were those who had been with him since he was born and stayed by his side.

In the Quentin family, once a servant pledges loyalty to their master, they will serve that master for their entire life, unless the master passes away. Only then can the servant choose a new master.

And as long as he doesn't die young, these people who follow him will only have him as their master for their entire lives.

So, the servants of the Quentin family are also particularly loyal to their masters.

After the doctor finished examining Lornell and gave some instructions, he left the room. The ones who stayed behind to take care of Lornell were his usual followers who often accompanied him.

Chapter 3383

"How long have I been sleeping?" Lornell asked.

"Young master was rescued six hours after the explosion and has been unconscious for a day," the subordinate replied.

“Then...” He hesitated for a moment, but couldn’t help asking,
“What about the little girl who was rescued with me? How is she?”

Harley was lying on top of him at the time, so she should have been rescued with him.

“Young master is referring to Miss Hart from the Hart family, right?” the subordinate asked.

“Yes, her.”

“Miss Hart was sent to the hospital by the Hart family when she was rescued. I don’t know any other details,” the subordinate said.

Lornell breathed a sigh of relief. Since she was rescued and sent to the hospital by the Hart family, she should be okay.

He could visit her after he was discharged from the hospital, and if she still wanted to know his name, he could tell her!

However, what Lornell didn’t know was that Harley was currently lying in the ICU with a tube in her nose, unconscious.

Valda and Brian stood outside the IUC ward, separated by a transparent glass wall. Apart from anxiety, worry, and pain, there seemed to be no other expression on their faces.

Since the incident, Valda has been crying constantly. When the explosion occurred, both she and Brian were relatively lucky. Although they were affected by the blast, they only suffered minor injuries and were not seriously hurt. However, their daughter was directly buried by the building in the restaurant.

At that time, she was almost in despair and ran towards her daughter’s location, hoping to find her.

But... there are so many stones and pillars that she doesn’t even know about, and they cannot be moved by human strength.

It’s possible that incorrect handling could actually cause harm to the person trapped inside!

At that time, every minute and every second was a torment for her. Time passed slowly, making each day feel like a year. That’s just how it was.

In the end, it was the vague humming of a tune by their daughter that led them to find her!

I thought that although my daughter had bled a little, her external injuries didn’t seem serious, so maybe the situation was still okay. But now, the child is in a coma, and the doctor said that if she doesn't wake up within 72 hours, the situation will become dangerous.

"It's all my fault, it's all because of me. I shouldn't have agreed to let Harley go to the amusement park!" Valda blamed herself, tears streaming down her face.

"It's not your fault, Valda. Nobody could have predicted something like this," Brian comforted. "If you insist on blaming yourself, then isn't it my fault even more? I promised to protect you and Harley, but I didn't do a good job of it!"

Valda looked at her husband with teary eyes and asked, "Brian, can Harley wake up? If she doesn't wake up within 72 hours, what will happen to her?"

She couldn't bring herself to say the words "vegetative state" out loud, afraid that by doing so, it would become a reality.

She couldn't even imagine what would happen if Harley, who was so lively, could never open her eyes again, never call out for her mother, and could only lie in bed like this forever.

"Don't worry, she is our child. Even if she doesn't wake up within 72 hours, I will definitely find the best doctor to treat her," Brian reassured Valda as he hugged her.

Chapter 3384

He knows how devastated his wife is right now, and he cannot let Valda lose all hope under any circumstances!

"Alright, you go rest for a bit. If you don't take a good rest, how can you stay strong until Harley wakes up?" Brian said as he wiped away Valda's tears.

Valda shook her head and said, "I can't rest at all. Every time I close my eyes, I see that explosion."

The sound of the explosion lingers in my ears.

Brian lowered his gaze and held the person in his arms tighter. "Valda, no matter what difficulties we may face in the future, we will face them together, okay? You must never leave me behind, do you understand?"

Valda's body stiffened slightly, sensing that Brian's body was trembling at the moment.

She closed her eyes, and the tears that had stopped started to flow again.

She knew what he was worried about. This man loves her so much that he worries a lot. He worries not only about their daughter but also about her!

He knows how devastated his wife is right now, and he cannot let Valda lose all hope under any circumstances!

She closed her eyes, and the tears that had stopped started to flow again.

She knew what he was worried about. This man loves her so much that he worries a lot. He worries not only about their daughter but also about her!

For her, this explosion was unbearable pain. But for him, it was no different.

Valda raised her hand and slowly wrapped it around Brian, reciprocating the love of this man who loved her deeply. “Brian, I will never abandon you! No matter what happens!”

She will persevere not just for Harley, but also for Brian!

Harley’s incident has become widely known among the major families in Emerald City, including the Reed, Stephenson, Weiss, Barlow, and Gregory families, who are all trying to find ways to help him.

The current situation calls for waiting, we must wait for 72 hours to see how things develop.

Tina was crying uncontrollably because this amusement park was the one she had mentioned to Harley before!

The four children of the Reed family, Veronica, Nelson, and Trista, have all visited Harley in the hospital. However, the adults have not told them that the first 72 hours are crucial in determining whether Harley will wake up or not.

So the children all thought that Harley would eventually wake up.

Chandler, who accompanied Tina, learned that if Harley does not wake up within 72 hours, the chances of becoming a vegetable will greatly increase.

Maybe I'll never wake up in this lifetime.

However, he didn't dare to mention a word of it to Tina.

Now Tina is already feeling enough self-blame. If she were to find out the truth, who knows what would happen!

At this moment, even Chandler who usually doesn't like to meddle in other people's affairs, is desperately hoping that Harley can wake up.

If Harley doesn't wake up, Tina might feel guilty for the rest of her life!

However... the situation with Harley is indeed tricky!

Upon this realization, after leaving the hospital, Chandler did not accompany Tina back to the Stephenso n family. Instead, he rode in a car and arrived at another hospital.

This hospital may not have a prominent reputation, but those who are able to enter it are all elites in the medical field.

But only a very small number of people know that the owner behind this hospital is the Quentin family!

At this moment, Lornell is boredly watching the news on the hospital TV screen while lying in his sickbed.

There is also news about the amusement park explosion.

The person responsible for causing the explosion was an employee of the amusement park. They had a grudge against the park due to a salary dispute, which led them to intentionally cause the explosion.

“How boring!” Lornell thought to himself. The explosion almost killed him, but it turned out to be just a revenge attack over a wage dispute, not an assassination attempt against the Quentin family. Of course, actually, before the news was broadcasted on TV, Lornell had already learned the truth about the explosion from the Quentin family’s side!

Chapter 3385

At that moment, suddenly, there was a noise coming from outside the ward.

Lornell’s expression changed. It’s so late, who could be coming here?

At least, he knew they wouldn’t be his own parents.

If the two of them want to come see him, they will probably inform him in advance as a matter of routine, and then choose a time that is visible to others to come here.

For them, he is just the heir of the Quentin family, and that is essential!

But apart from this, there is nothing else, right?

One of the subordinates walked in and reported, “Young master, Mr. Hunter wishes to see you.”

“Mr. Hunter?” Lornell furrowed, “Chandler?”

“Yes.”

“Let him come in,” said Lornell.

2/4

He doesn't have a particularly close relationship with Chandler, but they're not on bad terms either. Plus, Chandler is getting close with Tina, so maybe he knows something about Harley's situation.

Although, if he really wants to know about Harley's situation, it's simple for him to just give orders to his subordinates.

But he didn't want anyone to know that he cared about little Harley!

After a moment, Chandler walked into the hospital room.

"Why are you here?" Lornell asked. Although he was only 7 years old, the Quentin family's education and environment had made his way of thinking, acting, and speaking more mature than ordinary children his age.

"Just checking on how you're doing," Chandler said. "You don't seem to have any major issues."

"I don't," Lornell replied.

"Well, I was wondering if you could help me save someone," Chandler said.

"Save someone?" Lornell looked at him in confusion. It was rare for Chandler to ask for help, so it must be related to Tina, the person Chandler was destined to be with, as many people in the Crypt families knew.

"Not Tina, it's Harley," Chandler said.

The Quentin family's medical skills were one of the reasons why they had a high status in the Crypt families.

To Lornell, Chandler asking for his help must be related to Tina, but it turned out to be about Harley.

Lornell's expression changed suddenly. He had been looking extremely bored, but now he looked shocked. "Harley? What happened to her?"

"She hasn't woken up yet," Chandler said. "The doctor said that if she doesn't wake up within 72 hours, it's very likely that she'll become a vegetable. It's already been 48 hours."

If Harley doesn't wake up, Tina will feel guilty for the rest of her life.

And he, unwilling to let this happen, so he came to find Lornell.

Although Lornell is young, he is the heir of the Quentin family. Therefore, if Lornell is willing, he should be able to command the old monsters of the Quentin family to save Harley.

Lornell never imagined that Harley's situation would be so severe.

Why is it that even though both of them were together at the time, one can wake up after being unconscious for a day, but Harley may become a vegetable?

“How is that possible?” he asked.

“Do you think I would joke about something like this with you?”

Chandler asked in response.

Chapter 3386

Lornell remained silent and his expression became unpleasant.

He always thought that if he was okay, then Harley should be okay too. But now, Chandler has told him that Harley will become a vegetable.

Being a member of the Quentin family, he has been exposed to a lot of medical knowledge since childhood, so he certainly knows what a vegetable represents.

“Where is she now?” asked Lornell.

“In the ICU ward of the First Hospital,” said Chandler.

Lornell suddenly shifted his body, trying to get off the bed.

Chandler hurried forward and asked, “What are you trying to do?”

“I want to go to First Hospital,” Lornell said. She wanted to see how the little one was doing.

“You’re going?” Chandler was surprised. He had only come over hoping that Lornell could make a phone call to the old monsters of the Quentin family and see if any of them could come and help save Harley.

But unexpectedly, Lornell volunteered to go to tMason Swansonty.

“Mhm,” Lornell nodded.

“But your current condition...”

“I’m fine,” Lornell said with unwavering determination.

After half an hour, Chandler brought Lornell to the entrance of tMason Swansonty hospital. Due to his injuries, Lornell was not fit to walk, so his men had arranged for a wheelchair to be brought. They pushed Lornell towards the ICU ward.

Chandler accompanied him, occasionally glancing at Lornell.

Hunter had a relationship with the Quentin family for a long time.

He had known Lornell since he was born and was familiar with his character.

Lornell had never cared about other people's affairs, let alone

Harley, with whom he had conflicts before. But now, he suddenly came to see Harley in person, even... when the doctor advised against walking and traveling.

What was going on between Lornell and Harley? Did something happen during the time they were together during the explosion?

Chandler wondered in his heart.

Soon, Chandler and Lornell arrived at the ICU ward in the pediatric department.

Valda and Brian were still in front of the ward, not leaving, but looking at their daughter lying inside through the glass wall.

For them now, every minute and second is a race against time, hoping their daughter can wake up soon.

It was Brian who first noticed Chandler's arrival, "Chandler, why are you here again, and with..." Brian's gaze shifted to Lornell sitting in the wheelchair.

"I told Lornell about Harley's situation, so he wanted to come and see for himself," Chandler explained.

At this moment, Lornell's gaze was fixed on the small figure lying behind the glass wall on the hospital bed.

When they were together in that terrible environment before, she would cry, shout, hum songs, and hold his hand tightly with hers. But why now, she could only lie there quietly, motionless, with a tube in her nose.

Lornell watched quietly for a while, then suddenly said, "I... want to see her attending physician!"

Brian and Valda were stunned for a moment. After all, it was strange for a 7-year-old child to make such a request.

It was Chandler who seemed to have vaguely realized something, and immediately said to Brian and Valda, "Let Lornell see Harley's attending physician, it might be helpful."

Chapter 3387

Chandler is now 15 years old, a young man who is usually mature and steady. Although Brian hasn't met him many times, he knows something about Chandler's personality and behavior from Hadwin.

After hearing this, he turned to Lornell and said, "Alright, come with me. I'll take you to Harley's attending physician."

Harley's attending physician was staying at the hospital because Harley was in a critical period these days.

When Brian found him and faced a child like Lornell, he was stunned.

Especially since Lornell wanted to see Harley's medical records.

"This..." The attending physician looked at Brian and Valda, after all, medical records are the patient's privacy, and moreover, the other party is just a child.

"Let him see it," Brian said.

Only then did the attending physician hand over Harley's medical report to Lornell.

Lornell lowered his head and began to read it carefully, turning the pages one by one.

Seeing this, everyone except Chandler and Lornell's subordinates looked surprised. Could this child really understand these data?

Lornell understood!

And precisely because he understood, his inner unease was expanding.

Harley is currently in a dangerous situation. If we follow the treatment plan listed in her medical records, there's a high chance she won't wake up.

Once 72 hours have passed, the chance of her waking up is very low. Even if she does wake up, her brain may have been affected and there could be many lasting effects.

Lornell's lips were tightly pursed. If they wanted to save the little guy, as Chandler had said earlier, they would need the help of those old monsters from the Quentin family.

However... they won't act recklessly, even if he is the young master and heir of the Quentin family. It's not easy to control those people!

Lornell thought for a moment, then had his subordinate hand him a phone. He dialed a number and said, "I need your help to save someone. I'll fax you her medical report."

"Why can Chandler get engaged to Tina, but I can't?" Lornell asked in response.

Here, Chandler was speechless. If it weren't for the inappropriate timing, he probably would have had a good talk with Lornell right then and there!

Did the Hart family agree to it?

"Agreed," Lornell quickly said. "Anyway, you should hurry and try to get here within three hours. Her condition is not good right now!"

Chapter 3388

On the other end of the phone, there was a moment of hesitation before the person said, "Alright, I'll be there within 3 hours!"

After the call ended, Lornell looked at everyone and asked Brian and Valda, who were still in shock, "Anyway, someone from our family will come to save Harley. But if he wakes up, he will have to be engaged to me. Do you agree?"

Brian and Valda looked at each other in silence.

At this moment, Brian could understand Hadwin's helplessness back then.

Chandler added, "If the Quentin family is willing to save Harley, then there is a high chance he will wake up. The Quentin family has always been a famous medical family."

Although the direct line is single, there are many branches.

Each generation of the direct line of the Quentin family has amazing medical skills. Therefore, Hunter's elders even said that sometimes, God is fair. He gave the Quentin family the ability to save lives, but also made their bloodline thin.

It's a trade-off, but it's fair.

"Can your family really wake Harley up?" Valda suddenly asked Lornell. Her voice was choked, and there were still tears on her face. But her eyes were full of hope as she looked at Lornell, as if she was looking at the last bit of hope, something extremely important to her. Looking at Valda like this, Lornell couldn't help but think of his own mother.

If the person lying in the ICU ward today was him, would his mother cry for him? And when she learned that someone could save him, would she show such a hopeful expression?

Maybe she would, or maybe she wouldn't. But one thing he knew for sure was that even if his mother did cry, it was only because he was the heir of the Quentin family, not because he was her child. He had known since he was very young that his mother and father got married just to have an heir for the Quentin family.

"Can he be saved?" Lornell said. If those old monsters in the family couldn't wake up Harley, he didn't know who else could.

It was strange that Valda believed this child who made the promise in front of her. But she took a deep breath and turned to Brian beside her. "Brian, I want to make a decision for Harley. I don't know if she will blame me if she wakes up and grows up in the future, but... I hope she can at least wake up first."

As a couple for several years, Brian naturally understood his wife's thoughts. He nodded. "Okay, but this decision is made together by us!"

So if their daughter were to blame them in the future, they would bear it together.

Valda looked at the other person with tears in her eyes, then nodded and turned to Lornell, saying, "Okay, Lornell. Aunt and Uncle promise that if your family can wake up Harley, you and Harley can get engaged."

Lornell nodded his head and remained silent, patiently waiting for his family to arrive.

Chandler was surprised as he looked at Lornell. He never expected that when he asked Lornell for help, Lornell would end up getting engaged to Harley instead.

If this matter were to be spread, it would likely cause a huge uproar within the Crypt families.

After all, the Quentin family's status among the Crypt families was already exceptional.

So if their daughter were to blame them in the future, they would bear it together.

Valda looked at the other person with tears in her eyes, then nodded and turned to Lornell, saying, "Okay, Lornell. Aunt and Uncle promise that if your family can wake up Harley, you and Harley can get engaged."

Lornell nodded his head and remained silent, patiently waiting for his family to arrive.

Chandler was surprised as he looked at Lornell. He never expected that when he asked Lornell for help, Lornell would end up getting engaged to Harley instead.

If this matter were to be spread, it would likely cause a huge uproar within the Crypt families. After all, the Quentin family's status among the Crypt families was already exceptional.

Chapter 3389

As far as he knew, there were several families in the Crypt who hoped to marry into the Quentin family. Some of them had even prepared girls of similar age to Lornell, with the intention of sending them to the Quentin family in the future.

And now, Lornell's actions have undoubtedly disrupted the plans of many families.

Three hours later, Lornell looked at the person who appeared in front of him with a clearly surprised expression on his face.

He thought he was waiting for one of the old monsters of the Quentin family, but he didn't expect to wait for his own father.

"How...did you come here?" he murmured.

"I just got back from a conference in another city and heard that you're engaged to the Hart family's daughter, so I came to see for myself," said Samir. "Do you really want to save her that badly?"

Lornell pursed her lips tightly and stared straight at her father.

After a while, she finally spoke one word, "Want."

Samir Quentin said, "Alright, I'll save them."

"Do you really think you can save her?" Lornell seemed somewhat incredulous. In his memory, his father only saved people who were beneficial to the Quentin family, those who could bring advantages to them. As for those who had no beneficial relationship with the Quentin family, his father wouldn't even spare them a glance.

The person was so sick that they were almost dying, but the father remained indifferent.

But now, the father wants to save Harley?!

“Since you have chosen her, I will save her once,” said Samir. “I have already reviewed all the information you sent earlier. If we want to save her, we must perform the surgery immediately.”

“Surgery?” The attending physician was startled and said to Samir, “But she can’t have surgery now. Harley is only 3 years old and has a blood clot in her brain, but it’s not very large. If we operate on her now, she might not survive the surgery...”

The doctor didn’t finish what he was saying, but everyone understood what he meant.

“In my eyes, there are no ‘ifs’.” said Samir, and this statement was incredibly assertive.

As a doctor, it is rare to say that any surgery is 100% guaranteed because there is always a risk once the patient is on the operating table.

But now, Samir dares to say such words, causing the attending physician to widen their eyes and look at him in disbelief.

“Get ready for surgery, the patient cannot be moved to the outside hospital, so I will perform the surgery here,” Samir said to the attending physician. “Later, I will have my team come over here. As long as your hospital prepares the operating room for me, it will be fine.”

The attending physician looked at Samir and then at the Hart family, feeling uncertain about what decision to make.

Brian looked at Samir, knowing that Lornell was the heir of the Quentin family. So, is this man in front of him the current head of the Quentin family?

The Quentin family and the Crypt family, even though he had heard of them before, he had never actually met them until now.

“Can you really help my daughter wake up?” Brian asked.

“I believe there is no one I cannot save, as long as that person is still alive!” said Samir with a confident and determined expression on his handsome face.

Chapter 3390

To him, there seems to be no possibility of failure.

“Alright, prepare the operating room,” Brian instructed the attending physician.

“Yes!” The doctor agreed, as the Hart family had given their consent, there was no reason for him to object.

After about an hour, Samir’s team arrived. During this time, Samir had been focused on reviewing Harley’s medical records.

Once the team arrived, they had an intense discussion for an hour. By the time they were ready for surgery, it was already dawn.

“How about taking a break before the surgery?” the attending physician suggested.

This attending physician was also an authoritative figure in the medical field. However, after several hours of conversation with Samir, he was greatly impressed by him. Even some of Samir’s surgical viewpoints left him in awe.

The attending physician raised some questions, and Samir explained each one with his own perspective. Although they differed from traditional medical viewpoints, they helped the attending physician gain new insights.

At this point, the attending physician fully agreed with Samir. He even thought that if Samir couldn’t wake Harley up, it might just be up to Harley’s luck.

However, this luck was too slim and almost impossible.

And now, it’s essentially Harley’s last chance.

“No need to rest, let’s proceed with the surgery,” said Samir.

After the group finished preparing for the surgery, they entered the operating room, and Harley was also wheeled in.

Outside the operating room, Lornell watched as Harley passed by him, feeling an indescribable emotion.

Since his father said he could save her, then he definitely can.

At least, he has never seen his father fail before.

When she wakes up, he can finally tell her his name.

Outside the operating room, Brian and Valda nervously waited.

The surgery would take four hours, but neither of them had any intention of leaving to take a break.

Chandler also stayed with them outside the operating room, and Lornell glanced at Chandler and suddenly asked, "Why did you come to me to save Harley?"

It wasn't until now that Lornell began to think about this question.

After all, Chandler didn't seem like someone who had a good relationship with the little guy.

"Tina," Chandler directly gave the answer, "this amusement park was suggested by Tina to Harley."

"..." Lornell blinked his eyes. So it was for Tina! "Is engagement fun?" he suddenly asked.

Chandler looked at Lornell, "What do you think engagement is?"

"It's finding a girl who can have children with you in the future," that's his understanding.

In Lornell's concept, his own parents were like that.

"Engagement is not just that," Chandler said.

"What else is there?" Lornell asked curiously.

Chandler looked at the 7-year-old Lornell. Even if the other party was mature for his age, there were some things that were far beyond his age.

"You don't need to know now. You'll know when you grow up,"

Chandler said.

www.

"What about the future?" Lornell sneered, "Are we just going to wait until we grow up?"

There are always adults who say things like "you'll understand when you're older," but Chandler never expected to hear those words from him.

"Yep, you'll have to wait until you grow up," said Chandler.

Lornell may have agreed to an engagement with Harley due to their shared experience during the explosion, which created a bond between them, or perhaps out of sympathy as they were both children at the time.

But in the end... he and Harley don't have much of a relationship, and no one knows how long this engagement can last.

Only after growing up can one know whether Lornell will develop feelings for Harley.

"You're not much older than me!" said Lornell.

Chandler smiled rarely, "Maybe you'll understand when you get to my age."
