

Ex Convict 3601

Chapter 3601

Harold and Camelia watched the backs of the two people and looked at each other in confusion.

“That girl just now...she’s Jason and Grace’s daughter, right?”

I remember reading about her in the news before. I think her name is Jasper,” Harold said.

“Yeah, that’s the one,” Camelia replied.

“But what about her and William...” Camelia hesitated to ask.

Harold sighed heavily, “It’s all a tragedy! Such a sin!”

Even in that short moment, he could tell that his grandson was deeply afraid that Jasper would find out about their true identities.

To his grandson, their existence was a sin, a shame!

He remembered reading in the news that his grandson and the girl from the Reed family had grown up together as childhood sweethearts and had a strong bond.

The Atkinson family and the Reed family had become enemies after a failed marriage proposal, who would have thought that their descendants would develop such a strong bond.

All I can say is, life is unpredictable!

At this moment, Jasper and William entered the elevator. Jasper asked in confusion, “Isn’t Building 3 the medical building? Are they here to see a doctor? But why are they carrying water and fruits?”

“Maybe they’re here to thank a doctor for something. It’s not important, don’t think too much about it,” William replied.

Is that really the case? Jasper had a strange feeling that William didn’t want to talk about the two elderly people.

But she quickly pushed that strange feeling aside.

She was probably overthinking it. After all, those two elderly people were just two unrelated old people!

After returning from Deer Capital to Emerald City, JasperGrace continued to attend classes as usual.

The posts on the forum about her and Roger’s rumors have also been deleted, which did not have any impact on her college life.

After all, not many people dared to come to her and point fingers at her!

As for the whispers behind her back, Mason didn't care,

From childhood to adulthood, many people talked behind her back. If she always cared about what others said, she would never be able to live her life.

During the public class that afternoon, Jasper felt that many classmates were looking back at her, and their eyes seemed strange.

She was puzzled. Could it be that the rumors between her and Roger at school had not ended yet? Or was there a new post about her on the school forum?

After class, Meave ran up to her and said, "Jasper, something bad happened. There's a post on the forum about..."

"About me?" Jasper interrupted, "What is it this time? Did someone take a picture of me with a guy and post it on the forum again?"

"No... no!" Meave quickly said, "Of course, it's also related to you a little bit, but mainly it's about William!"

Jasper paused for a moment and asked, "Is it related to William?"

She quickly took out her phone and opened the school forum.

At this moment, the most popular post on the forum is titled "Son of a Criminal: The Prince of Stanford University!"

Chapter 3602

Just the explosive title alone has attracted many people to click on it!

Jasper looked at the displayed number of views, which was already quite high! It seems that there are quite a few people who have read this post!

And when she opened the post, the content inside was even more detailed and explosive than she had imagined!

In this post, it even directly states that William's mother is Lily, a former popular star, and that it was Lily who framed Jasper's mother, causing Grace to be wrongly imprisoned.

Originally, William was just a prisoner's son, and everyone called for his condemnation, but now he has transformed into a wealthy young man on campus, and is even pursued by many girls.

What's even more absurd is that William has become good friends with Jasper, the daughter of the Reed family!

This post maliciously speculates whether William intentionally befriended Jasper as revenge against the Reed family for his mother's arrest and death in prison.

Jasper is furious upon reading this post.

The post is attacking William with the worst intentions, and many uninformed gossipers are agreeing with the post's claims and even imagining a scenario of revenge against the Reed family.

"Jasper, the comments on this post..." Meave whispers.

"It's all nonsense!" Jasper exclaimed and quickly dialed William's phone number.

However, it was indicated that the other party's phone was turned off.

Jasper frowned. Did William's phone run out of battery or did he intentionally turn it off?

Now that she had seen this post, William must have seen it too.

What would he think?

"Meave, can you help me take my textbooks back to the dorm? I won't go back there for now," Jasper said, handing her textbooks to Meave before hurrying away.

"Oh, Jasper!" Meave wanted to say something else, but Jasper had already run far away.

"Is this post talking nonsense?" Meave muttered, but as she looked at it, the post seemed to be quite accurate.

If William's mother really had some grievances with the Reed family, then in Meave's opinion, Jasper should be wary of William.

After all, it's better to be safe than sorry!

...On Jasper's end, she couldn't get through to William's phone, so she decided to call her older brother Mick instead.

On Jasper's end, she couldn't get through to William's phone, so she decided to call her older brother Mick instead.

"Brother, can you help me temporarily shut down the Stanford University forum?" Jasper got straight to the point.

"Shut down your school's forum?" Mick was confused. "What happened?"

"There's a post on the forum that talks about our family and William's mother, and it says that William approached me to seek revenge for his mother!" Jasper explained.

Originally, she just wanted her brother to take down the post, but she thought it would be safer to have him shut down.

the entire forum in case similar posts were made in the near future.

Mick was a bit surprised by this revelation. "William has enemies at Stanford University?" he asked.

"I'm not sure, but at least it doesn't seem like it on the surface,"

Jasper said. "Anyway, can you help me hack the forum first? I'll go find William and see if he knows what's going on."

"Okay then," Mick said readily.

Chapter 3603

After ending the call, Jasper thought about the places William might go and began searching for them one by one.

She searched every place on campus that he might go to, but found nothing!

So she went to the school and checked the surveillance footage. She discovered that William had left the school half an hour ago!

That means he left the school after the post was made on the forum.

Jasper called his father's secretary, Terrence, and asked him to check the traffic department's surveillance footage of the roads William would have taken after leaving the school.

William left the school by car, which means he was going somewhere far away.

When she heard from Terrence that William's car had stopped at a certain location, she was stunned. It was a cemetery!

Moreover, she had heard her parents mention it once when she was a child – Lily was buried there!

Could it be that William had gone to his mother's grave?

"Terrence, could you help me find out the specific number of William's mother's grave?" Jasper asked.

In the cemetery, each tomb has a number, which can be used to locate its position!

"I'll check and let you know later," said Terrence.

"Okay!" Jasper replied, and ran out of the school gate, hailed a taxi and immediately gave the address of the cemetery.

The taxi headed towards the cemetery.

Jasper was worried about William's situation and wished the car could go faster.

When the car was halfway there, Terrence called and gave Jasper the grave number for Lily's tomb.

"Thank you, Terrence!" Jasper said.

"Don't mention it, but what's going on between you and William? Did something happen?" Terrence asked.

"Well, there was a little issue and I couldn't reach William for a while, so I was worried. But now that I know where he is, I'll find him soon and everything will be fine," Jasper explained.

"Okay, be careful and just so you know, your father will find out about this today," Terrence warned.

Obviously, this is telling her that he will still report this matter to her father.

"Okay, I understand," Jasper said.

Anyway, she already had bodyguards arranged by her father by her side. Even if Terrence didn't say anything, it's likely that her bodyguards would report to her father later.

Moreover, she also wanted to figure out what this post was all about. After all, these were all old things, and the relevant news on the Internet had long been deleted. Only some of the older generation in Emerald City knew about the grudges involved.

So how did the poster know about it?

And what is the purpose of the other party posting this thread?

Is it aimed at William? Or is it aimed at the Barlow family?

Disistitaimed at the Reed family?

At this moment, Jasper's mind is full of various speculations.

He can finally stop at the entrance of the cemetery. She not but he became in one swift motion and quickly ran into the cemetery!/?

though she knew the number, finding it was more difficult than she had imagined After a long search, Jasper finally managed to locate the general area with the help of a cemetery worker

Chapter 3604

She ran all the way, stepping on each step, panting as she went up.

Finally, a familiar figure caught her eye.

That is William!

Jasper hurried forward, intending to call out to the other person, but he suddenly stopped when he saw the expression on his face.

From her perspective, she could only see his profile.

He stood there quietly, with his head slightly bowed and his gaze fixed on the tombstone. There was a kind of indescribable sadness and mockery on his face.

She had never seen this expression on his face before.

For a moment, she didn't know how to change the subject or what to say.

Suddenly, she didn't know how to change her words or what to say.

She just stared at him blankly, not knowing how much time had passed. It was as if he felt her gaze, slowly turning his body towards her. Their eyes met.

“How did you come here?” His face had a gentle smile, as if they were meeting normally.

In the past, she always felt comfortable seeing him smile like this.

But today, there was a feeling of sadness.

“I... came to find you,” she said, her nose slightly red.

“I’ve never wanted to come here, never wanted to see this woman,” William murmured. “I hate the mistakes she’s made, I hate that her blood runs through my veins, I hate her even in death for never repenting. During the years I spent with her, she never loved me, I was probably just a tool she could use in the future.”

Jasper listened and walked over to William, reaching out to hold his hand.

It was as if this simple gesture could give him strength.

Because of his current appearance, he looks like a person who is exhausted to the extreme and could collapse at any moment!

“But even so, I think I should be grateful to her, no matter what her reasons were. At least she gave birth to me and gave me life,” William continued.

“William, you are you, and your mother is your mother. Regardless of what happened in the past generation, it has already passed and has nothing to do with us!” Jasper said.

“Is it really irrelevant?” he asked with a bitter smile as he looked at her.

“Well, it’s irrelevant!” she answered firmly.

“You’ve also read that post on the school forum, right?” he suddenly said. “I’m the son of a criminal, so there’s a good chance that I might commit a crime too! Even my friendship with you, getting close to you, might have a purpose – to avenge my mother!”

“I’ve read that post, so I know better than anyone how ridiculous it is!” Jasper said angrily. “Who says that a criminal’s child will definitely become a criminal? And who says that our friendship is just a way for you to seek revenge for your mother? If anyone dares to say that in front of me, I'll definitely give them a piece of my mind!"

He looked at her with a steady gaze, "Do you really think I won't?"

"I know you won't, because you're William, the same William I've known since childhood. I trust you, just like I trust myself!"

she said. "So, no matter who tries to slander you, I won't believe it! Neither will my family!"

"Jasper..." he called out her name hoarsely, suddenly reaching out to embrace her, resting his head on her shoulder.

It's as if, at this moment, only she can support his exhausted body.

Chapter 3605

Jasper raised her hand and hugged William back.

"I'm here," she said softly, "William, no matter what happens, I will always be by your side. So, please don't turn off your phone without saying anything again. Don't make me worry!"

Upon hearing this, he held her tighter and after a while, he slowly uttered one word, "Okay.""

After coming down from the cemetery, Jasper said to William,

"I'm hungry."

"Then let's find a place to eat nearby," William replied.

As this area was near the cemetery and quite remote, and it was already late, there were limited options for places to eat nearby. Eventually, the two of them found a small shop with a simple decoration.

"If you don't want to eat here, we can drive further and find more shops," William suggested.

"No need, this place is fine!" Jasper said.

After they sat down, they ordered their food.

William took out his phone, which he had turned off earlier, and turned it back on. He saw that he had missed several calls and messages.

Jasper alone had called him five times!

"You called five times?" he asked her.

"I was worried about you. You suddenly turned off your phone and I couldn't find you," she explained.

"How did you find your way here later?" he asked.

"I first checked the school's surveillance footage and found that you had left the campus. Then I asked Terrence to help me check the road surveillance, and finally found out that you had come to the cemetery," she said.

He looked apologetic. "I made you go through all that trouble."

"That's why you can't just turn off your phone again next time!" she said.

"I won't do it again in the future," he replied.

At that moment, his phone rang and he glanced at the caller ID, furrowing his brow slightly.

"Dad, what's up?" he answered.

On the other end of the line, Philip said, "Are you okay?"

"You know?" William asked.

"You're my son, of course I know about your situation," Philip replied.

The father and son both understand what they are talking about, even though they haven't mentioned any specific matter.

"Do you want me to help?" Philip asks.

"No, I can handle it myself." If he can't handle even this small matter, how can he take over the Barlow family business in the future?

His identity cannot be changed, and the fact that Lily is his mother cannot be changed either.

If he wants to take over the Barlow family enterprise in the future, he will only face more doubts and challenges.

In the future, if he were to take over the Barlow family business, he would only face more scrutiny!

“Okay, then you handle it yourself. Just remember, the Barlow family is your support no matter what,” said Philip.

William felt a slight pang in his nose. “I know.”

He was grateful that Philip was his father. Although they didn’t have overly intimate gestures between them, he knew that his father and the Barlow family were truly good to him.

After ending the call, he looked up and saw Jasper’s sparkling eyes looking at him.

“What’s wrong? Why are you looking at me like that?”

“When you were on the phone with Uncle Barlow, you seemed like you were about to cry,” she said.

“Your nose even looked a little red.”

“You must have been mistaken,” he said, feeling a bit uncomfortable.

She propped her chin up with her hand and said, “If you really feel like crying, you can cry on my shoulder. It will always be there for you.”

Chapter 3606

He found her words somewhat amusing, making him laugh and cry at the same time. “Usually, it’s men who say things like that.”

“Women can say it too. There’s no rule that says men can’t cry on a woman’s shoulder,” she replied.

His gaze fell upon her delicate face. Yes, when he was a child, he used to cry on her shoulder!

She was still as pure and innocent as she was when they were young, as if the filth of the world had never touched her.

At that moment, the waiter brought out their food, and they began to eat.

While eating, Jasper asked, "Have you figured out who posted the thread on the forum?"

William shook his head, "I have no clue at the moment. It could be someone targeting me or the Barlow family. After all, we have had some rivals in the business world over the years. As for me, some people may seem friendly on the surface, but who knows what they are really thinking."

"I see," Jasper replied.

"I will have a computer expert check the IP information of the post on the forum later to see if we can find out who posted it,"

William said.

Suddenly, Jasper looked uneasy and said, "Um, about that... it might not be convenient to access the forum right now."

"What's wrong?" William asked, confused.

She hesitated before admitting, "I asked my older brother to hack the forum."

William was speechless for a moment. He knew Mick's skills well, and hacking a campus forum was child's play for him.

"Alright, I'll have a computer expert contact Mick and see if we can trace the person who posted this," William said.

"Okay," Jasper nodded and then looked a bit embarrassed as she asked, "Do you think I'm meddling too much?"

"I don't know how," he looked at her with gentle eyes, "and besides, I would be happy because you want to protect me."

She looked at his smiling face with a dazed expression, and suddenly felt her heart beating so intensely that it seemed like it might leap out of her throat.

After finishing their meal, the two of them returned to school.

William walked Jasper back to the girls' dormitory, and as they walked side by side, many passing students couldn't help but stare.

Jasper clearly felt that there were more eyes on them today than usual!

And when William escorted her downstairs, they ran into her roommate Meave who had just returned to the dormitory.

Meave looked surprised to see William standing next to Jasper, but then smiled and said, "William, you brought Jasper back."

"Mhmm," William replied.

"You have no idea how worried Jasper was about you. After class today, she saw the post on the forum and went out to look for you," Meave said, realizing she may have said too much.

It seemed like she had just opened a can of worms!

Fortunately, William didn't seem to mind Meave mentioning the post and just smiled at Jasper. "Thank you."

Jasper looked embarrassed. "Why are day higuờng nướ

"Thank you for worrying shogi dhe did dan metiend

"Then you should rest too, she said.

"Okay," he agreed.

Jasper and Meave walked into the dorm room together, while William stood outside. He only turned and left after Jasper's figure disappeared from his sight.

Meave was curious and asked, "How are things between you and William?"

"What do you mean?" Jasper asked.

"I mean what was mentioned in the post today. You guys... um, didn't have a fight, did you?" Meave asked. "Many people in our class are saying that you must have had a fight with him."

"Why should I argue with William? The people in our class are so boring! William and I are actually on good terms," Jasper said.

“So, everything in that post wasn’t true?” Meave asked.

Jasper pursed her lips and after a moment, she said, “I know exactly what kind of person William is. Whoever posted that had bad intentions, but William will definitely find out who it was!”

Jasper was confident about this!

She didn’t believe that someone who posted something like that couldn’t be found out.

She didn’t believe that someone who posted a message couldn’t figure it out.

And only by finding that person can we truly know what their purpose was in posting such a message!

When Jasper returned to the dorm, as expected, his roommates Horea and Nina were also concerned about the matter and asked Jasper about what happened with William.

So, Jasper gave the same answer once again.

“I knew it! Mr. Barlow doesn’t seem like a person with deep scheming thoughts!” Nina exclaimed.

“Yeah, all that talk about revenge and retaliation, the person who posted that must have thought they were writing a novel!” Horea chimed in, “Maybe the person who posted it has some twisted thoughts in their own mind!”

“But is William’s mother really a criminal?” Meave asked.

Horea and Nina also looked at Jasper curiously, clearly wanting to know the truth.

Jasper spoke seriously, “No one can choose their birth. If you still consider me a friend in the future, I hope you won’t ask about this again.”

The three looked at each other for a moment, then Meave said, “Yeah, no one can choose their birth. I shouldn’t have asked about it with my big mouth!”

“Yes, yes, don’t ask, don’t ask.”

“By

the way, can someone lend me their notes from the shared class today? I didn’t take any notes during class!” Nina changed the subject.

“I lend to you,” Jasper said.

The four-person dormitory returned to its usual lively state, as if the little incident just now never happened.

The next day, when Jasper arrived in the classroom, all of her classmates were staring at her in unison.

In the eyes of many, there is sympathy, pity, ridicule, or even schadenfreude!

A few girlfriends approached Jasper with concern written all over their faces, saying, "Jasper, don't be sad. No one could have predicted this! But luckily, William's scheme has been exposed, and we'll be here for you from now on!"

"Yeah, there are plenty of good guys out there in the world. You'll definitely find someone better!"

"Exactly, why hang yourself up on one tree? We'll help you find someone new!"

The girls spoke eagerly, wishing they could become Jasper's confidantes through this ordeal!

"When did I ever say that I was upset?" Jasper asked with a seemingly amused tone. "And as for William's conspiracy, are you guys just being too imaginative or do you like to believe everything you hear? We are all college students here, we should at least have the basic ability to distinguish fact from fiction. Just because you read something online doesn't mean it's true, right?"

Chapter 3608

Suddenly, the several girls looked embarrassed, with one girl's face turning bright red as she exclaimed, "Jasper, we were just trying to show our concern for you. There's no need to speak so harshly!"

"So I think I don't need this kind of concern," Jasper replied. "Besides, when you care about someone, do you like to arbitrarily accuse them? Do you think you know how things should be without understanding anything? Don't you find it ridiculous?"

"The post was very clear, and besides, if William had nothing to hide, why would he have blackened the forum?" the other party said.

Jasper sneered, "What evidence do you have to prove that he hacked the forum? If you don't have any evidence, then you're just making false accusations. I remember that making false accusations can land you in jail. Do you want to go to court with the Barlow family's lawyers?"

Several girls' faces changed upon hearing this.

One of them quickly said, "We...we were just talking nonsense. We didn't mean anything else. Let's just say we were being nosy." After speaking, she quickly pulled the others back to their seats.

After this incident, the classmates in the class looked at Jasper with a different look.

Jasper didn't care about the strange looks, as she only cared about the people she wanted to care about. As for others, they were simply not important to her!

At noon, Jasper had lunch with William in the school cafeteria as usual.

There were always strange looks and whispers around them, and Jasper knew what they might be talking about.

Thinking about the uncomfortable things her classmates said this morning, Jasper suddenly spoke up, "William, do you want to go out to eat?"

William looked up and his gaze fell on her face. "Do you want to go out to eat?"

"Yeah, the food in the school cafeteria is getting a bit boring.

I want to try something different," she made an excuse, not wanting him to become the subject of gossip and not wanting him to hear any more hurtful words.

"Okay," he replied.

She let out a sigh and the two of them stood up, walking towards the school gate.

Once outside the school, Jasper found a KFC. "It's been a while since I've had this. Let's have it for lunch today."

He seemed lost in thought and nodded in agreement.

The two of them walked into the restaurant and found a seat. "What do you want to eat? I'll go order," William said.

"I'll have a burger combo, non-spicy," said Jasper.

William turned around and ordered two combo meals. After a moment, he returned to their table and placed Jasper's meal in front of her.

Jasper picked up the burger and began to eat.

"The taste of this place hasn't changed much over the years," Jasper said. "When I was a kid, I used to love their food. My mom would bring me here every week."

"But you gradually stopped liking it, didn't you?" William asked.

"But occasionally having it once is not bad!" she said. "By the way, why aren't you eating?"

He brought the food over and now only she was eating!

Chapter 3609

He looked at her, hesitated for a moment and said, "Jasper, I think for the next little while, we shouldn't eat together."

She was taken aback. "Why?"

She was taken aback and asked, "Why?"

"Until I find out who the real poster is, I don't know who is targeting me. If you're with me, there's no telling if there's any danger. What if the person targeting me takes it out on you?" William explained. "Besides, there are a lot of rumors about me at school now. If you continue to be with me, you'll inevitably be criticized by others."

He didn't care how others criticized him, but he didn't want her to suffer the same criticism.

"I don't want to!" Jasper looked directly at him and spoke up. "If there's no other reason, we'll still have lunch and dinner together every day!"

He frowned, "Jasper! What I just said..."

"I understand!" Jasper said. "If they want to blame me for targeting you, I can handle it. And even if I'm criticized, so what? If one day I'm the one being criticized, are you planning to stop eating with me and avoid me to avoid gossip?"

He was speechless. He would naturally protect her if that were the case.

"So let's not say unnecessary things like this in the future," Jasper said. "Besides, I've never been afraid of criticism since I was a child, and I'm even less afraid now!"

William's eyelashes trembled slightly, and his ink-black pupils were filled with the face in front of him.

Yes, when he was a child, he was a prisoner and was temporarily adopted by the Reed family. The servants and their children all rejected him, and many children even deliberately hit him. At that time, he was covered in bruises and didn't know what to do.

It was her who approached him without any hesitation, insisting on being friends with him and not letting anyone bully him!

During his moments of insecurity and embarrassment, it was her who gave him great courage and made him realize that being alive is a blessing!

"I will definitely find the person who posted that message as soon as possible, and I won't let you be in danger!" William said.

"Okay," Jasper smiled, believing that he would definitely find that despicable poster!

In the following days, Jasper openly hung out with William at school, eating together, going to the library together, and even practicing piano together in the music room.

In school, there are many people who say that Jasper is completely love-struck, yet he still hangs out with William.

Some people even say that William has put a curse on Jasper.

And there are others who say that William is successfully getting revenge and may even use Jasper to take over the entire Reed family...

In any case, there are all kinds of nasty rumors going around!

Of course, people only say these things behind Jasper's back and no one dares to say it to his face.

After all, the eldest princess of the Reed family is not someone that ordinary people dare to offend easily!

During class that day, Jasper received a call from his father, "I'll have the driver pick you up tonight. I heard that there have been a lot of things happening at your school lately. Don't you want to talk to me about it?"

Jasper bit his lip slightly. Was his father starting to care about this situation now?

That night, Jasper returned to the Reed House and was called directly to the study by his father after dinner.

His mother and older brother were also in the study!

Chapter 3610

"I heard you had your older brother hack the school forum?" Jason spoke up.

Jasper awkwardly smiled, "It happened suddenly, and I didn't think of any other way."

"What did you think about this?" Jason asked again.

"Of course, I wanted to catch the person who posted and give them a good beating! That person was too despicable. It's been so many years, what does he want?" Jasper muttered.

"Perhaps it's aimed at William, or maybe someone wants to stir up trouble between the Reed family and the Barlow family. There are many possibilities," Jason said, his gaze fixed on his daughter.

"What about you? Do you really believe that William has never had any thoughts of revenge against the Reed family or against you all these years?" he asked.

"I do," Jasper replied without hesitation.

"What if I don't believe it?" Jason asked in return. "What if I want you to keep your distance from William now, just in case?"

Even if he may not actually seek revenge against the Reed family, it's better to be safe than sorry, right?"

Jasper was taken aback for a moment, but then he spoke firmly. "Dad, I won't keep my distance from him. For me, there's no need to be cautious. If you're worried that my closeness to William might affect the Reed family and even harm them in the future, I can assure you that I will never join Reed Group, nor will I participate in any business dealings with the Reed family. I won't let my actions affect the Reed family in any way!"

At this moment, her delicate face carried a solemn expression, and the aura emanating from her body even surprised Mick who was standing nearby.

"Alright, don't scare our daughter!" After years of marriage, Grace naturally understood what her husband meant by saying those words.

A hint of admiration flashed in Jason's eyes, "This is the true princess of the Reed family, my daughter, Jason!"

Jasper blinked, "Dad, Mom, what are you talking about?"

"Your dad just wants to see how much you trust William. William is a child we watched grow up, how could we not know what kind of person he is," Grace explained.

If William harbors a grudge, nobody has noticed it in all these years.

It can only be said that the child's scheming is terrifyingly deep, even inhuman!

"Really?" Jasper asked.

"Remember, you are my daughter, and the Reed family is your backing. Whatever choices you make and whatever consequences you face, the Reed family will support you," Jason said to his daughter.

For him, no matter what choices his daughter makes, he will support her and never let her face them alone.

Jasper's eyes became a little moist, and he suddenly hugged his father tightly. "Dad!"

who

Jason enjoyed his daughter's big hug and said, "Okay, I will also send a computer expert to help find the person posted the message."

"Dad," Mick said, "I can find them."

"But you've been searching for days and haven't found anything, right?" Jason bluntly retorted.

"That's because the other person is cunning, but the poster won't be able to escape. I already have a lead," Mick said.

"That's because the other party is cunning, but the poster won't get away. I already have a lead," said Mick.

"Okay, how much more time do you need?" Jason asked.

"Two days. In two days, I'll be able to find out for sure," Mick replied.

"Alright, two days it is. If you still can't figure out who the poster is after that, then I'll have Terrence handle it," Jason said.

Terrence was his personal secretary, and he would call in the computer experts from Reed Group to take over.

“Okay,” Mick readily agreed.
