

Ex Convict 3631

Chapter 3631

The voice made Jasper startle, and he immediately looked up at the person who spoke.

It was a slender young man with a pair of gold-rimmed glasses on his nose. He looked refined but also somewhat gloomy.

"Mason!" Jasper was delighted and quickly stood up to walk towards the person. "Why did you come back today?!"

"I'll be studying as an exchange student at Stanford University for six months," Mason said.

"Six months?" Jasper's face lit up with excitement. "Why didn't you tell us earlier? That means we'll be alumni for six months!"

"Yeah," Mason replied with a nod.

Mason was known for being reserved and had little expression on his face, which contrasted sharply with Jasper's excitement.

"By the way, do you like men?" Mason asked Mick, following up on his previous question.

Mick raised his eyebrows and stood up, saying, "What if I said yes?"

"Congratulations," Jasper replied readily.

Mick looked at his younger brother, "Unfortunately, I haven't found anyone yet. Actually, I don't care whether I fall in love with a man or a woman, but... no one has made me feel like I want to spend every moment with them and never get tired of them for the rest of my life."

Although he was never short of women around him, such as when his mother and her friends used to gather and bring along their children.

He was also familiar with the girls from the Stephenson family, the Hart family, and the Weiss family, and he had two younger sisters of his own, so he didn't reject women, but he felt... troublesome.

For example, like Chandler, he had to accompany Tina to chase after stars. Although it seemed like Chandler was in control of Tina, he actually felt like Tina was in control of him.

Tina also hung out with the Weiss family's little girl Trista, as well as Harley and her own little sister Jasmine. The four of them would get together to chase after stars, gossip about celebrities, and sneak off to special bars to broaden their horizons.

Every time they did this, Mick, Chandler, Nelson, and Harley's fiancé Lornell would be at their wits' end, staring at each other in confusion. So in Mick's opinion, women were sometimes just trouble!

"Even if there is someone who makes you want to spend every moment with them, it doesn't necessarily mean you will end up together. The human heart is the most difficult thing to control in this world," Mason said calmly.

Mick was taken aback and raised an eyebrow. "What, did my words just make you think of Veronica?"

Mason looked directly at Mick with his dark eyes and spoke in an indifferent tone, "Why should I think about her? She and I have no relationship anymore."

"Is that so?" Mick asked. "Jasper told me earlier that she saw Veronica at a charity event. It seems like Veronica was having a tough time, being publicly humiliated by having drinks thrown at her, but she didn't dare say a word. Even though the Reed family could have paid for her tuition, she insisted on working hard and being a celebrity assistant. It's really sad that she had to go through that kind of humiliation."

Mick spoke a lot at once, but unfortunately, Mason's reaction disappointed him.

Chapter 3632

"What does it matter?" said the cold voice, "I've been flying for most of the day and I'm tired. I'm going back to my room."

"Hey, Mason, don't you want to say hello to our parents?" Jasper asked.

"It's not too late to say hello after I wake up," Mason replied, then walked up the stairs and headed to his own room.

Jasper and Mick were used to Mason's indifference.

Although outsiders may see Mason as cold, they knew that he was the type of person who spoke little but acted fiercely. If anyone harmed his family, he could probably take down their entire family!

Jasper muttered, "Big brother, do you think Mason really has no feelings left for Veronica?"

"I don't know," Mick shrugged.

"But can emotions really be forgotten so easily? Can someone go from deep love to no feelings at all with just hypnosis?" Jasper asked.

"Who knows, but it seems like not everyone can do this kind of hypnosis. Mason had to put in some effort to find that doctor," Mick replied.

"I heard from Trista that Uncle Weiss also underwent this kind of hypnosis, but it was eventually broken and Uncle Weiss regained all his feelings for Auntie Kyla," Jasper said.

"Uncle Weiss and Auntie Kyla are Martin and Kyla, and Trista is their daughter," she added.

"Sis, do you think Mason will ever regain his feelings for Veronica?" she asked.

"You should ask Mason about that!" Mick replied.

"I did ask Mason, but he wouldn't say anything," Jasper wrinkled her nose. She knew that the most likely outcome of asking him was being ignored like air.

"It really depends on whether he wants to or not," a voice suddenly interrupted the siblings' conversation.

Jasper looked up and saw William coming down the stairs.

Jasper looked up and saw William coming down the stairs.

"What do you mean? What do you mean by 'wanting'?" Jasper asked.

"In hypnosis, there is usually a secret phrase to undo the hypnosis, and Mason should know the phrase. If he really wants to restore the relationship, he can use the phrase to undo the hypnosis. But if he doesn't want to, even if he accidentally regains the feelings, he can choose to be hypnotized again,"

William explained.

Jasper blinked and was impressed by her boyfriend's words. She had never thought of it that way.

If that's the case, then it's just a matter of whether Mason wants to or not.

"By the way, how did you guys bring up the topic of Mason?" asked William.

"Mason has returned," Jasper replied. "But he's already gone back to his room to rest. If you want to see him, you'll have to come back tomorrow."

"Okay, I'll come back tomorrow then. It's getting late now, so I'll head back," said William.

"I'll walk you out!" Jasper quickly got up from the couch and said.

The two of them walked out of the Reed family's living room and headed towards the parking area.

"By the way, if we ever have an argument and things go bad, would you do what Mason did to me?" Jasper suddenly asked on the way.

William raised an eyebrow slightly, "Do you mean hypnotizing to forget the emotions?"

"Yeah."

"No way!" He answered with great certainty.

"Why not?" She asked.

"For me, no matter what happens between us in the future, these little moments and feelings we share together are very important to me. So I don't want to forget them. Even if there are regrets and pain, I don't want to forget." If he were to truly forget these feelings, he wouldn't even know what he had left.

Chapter 3633

Jasper suddenly hugged William's waist tightly and rested his head on his chest.

William was a bit caught off guard by this sudden action, but he didn't mind having the beautiful man in his arms. He gently embraced Jasper and asked, "What's wrong?"

"I just suddenly wanted to hug you!" Jasper said, "Our future will definitely have no regrets, and certainly no pain!"

"Yes, I misspoke earlier. Our future will definitely be very, very good!" He will clear all obstacles and make her the happiest person!

Hasn't he been working hard for this all along?

"William, I want to kiss you. What should I do?" Jasper murmured.

His body immediately stiffened. She must know that for a man, a woman saying this is a kind of temptation.

"Can I?" She raised her head, her clear and beautiful almond eyes even revealing her desire for him without any concealment.

"Of course," William said. To be the person she wanted to kiss was a fortunate thing for him.

Jasper immediately wrapped her arms around William's neck, then stood on her tiptoes and pressed her lips against his...

And he bent down slightly, responding to her kiss.

She kissed him with abandon and passion!

As if she was telling him clearly and openly how much she liked him!

William was happy to comply with this, giving her control and following her lead in rhythm.

Everything he had could be subdued by her.

After the kiss finally ended, Jasper's face was flushed and he licked his lips as if he was still wanting more.

So, some things, if you don't start doing them, it's fine. But once you start, you may gradually become addicted.

Especially the feeling of kissing him, it's really nice.

“Um... can we kiss again?” Jasper blinked his bright apricot eyes and asked William.

William smiled slightly, “Sure, but aren’t you afraid of the servants seeing us here in a little while?”

“It doesn’t matter even if they see us. After all, we’re boyfriend and girlfriend, not doing anything wrong,” she replied carelessly.

“Yeah, we’re boyfriend and girlfriend,” he whispered, and this time he took the initiative to press his lips against hers, starting a new kiss.

He hoped that her liking for him would grow more and more, to the point where she could never leave him again!

Mason returned to his room and took off his coat. His gaze fell on a family photo placed on the dresser.

The photo showed a family of six, including Mason.

He lifted his hand and opened the photo frame. To his surprise, there was not only the Reed family photo, but also another photo underneath it.

It was a photo of two children, aged 5 and 7, who were Mason and Veronica.

In the photo, 5-year-old Mason was holding 7-year-old Veronica’s hand tightly. At that time, she meant the world to him.

His life revolved around her, and the time he spent with her every day was the happiest for him.

In the photo, she had a sweet smile on her face while he looked dull and uninteresting, creating a sharp contrast.

Chapter 3634

He once thought that he and she would always be together like in the photo, but in the end, it was just his foolish wishful thinking.

But now, he no longer has such foolish thoughts.

And now, he is no longer delusional!

Is her life miserable now?

The Barlow family, who once had the protection of the Reed family, no longer has it. So naturally, her life wouldn’t be very good.

Isn’t this to be expected?

After putting the photo back in place, Mason lay on the bed, trying not to think about anything related to Veronica. Between them, there was nothing left since the day he decided to hypnotize her.

The next morning at breakfast, Jason and Grace finally met their second son.

When Grace learned that her second son would be staying in Emerald City for half a year, she was overjoyed. Among her four children, she had spent the least amount of time with Mason and felt that she owed him the most.

When Mason was taken away by Secretary Wylie, he was just a little boy. During the three years before he joined the Barlow family, he must have suffered unimaginable torment that could have driven even an ordinary person insane.

"Now that you're back, if you need anything, just let Mom know and she'll take care of it for you," Grace said.

"I don't need anything," Mason replied calmly.

Meanwhile, the youngest member of the Reed family, Jasmine, was also wide-eyed, looking at her own Mason. She hasn't spent much time with Mason, and he seems cold and distant, making it difficult to approach him. However, her sister has told her that Mason is actually easy to get along with.

"Hey Mason, can I receive the birthday gift you got for me in person today?" Jasmine asked. After all, Mason had been out of the country for several years, and every year he would send her gifts by mail on her birthday.

As for the gift that Mason gave, it left Jasmine at a loss for words.

Others gave dolls, pretty clothes, accessories, or things that other girls like as gifts, but Mason gave her a watch, a pen, and a piggy bank in the shape of a dinosaur...

And most recently, Mason directly sent her a box of original language books.

Of course, this box of books, according to what she heard from her mom, are all rare and precious books that are hard to come by. It's clear that Mason put a lot of thought into preparing this gift for her.

However, unfortunately, she just couldn't bring herself to like these gifts.

"Right," Mason replied.

"Then... can I specify what gift I want?" Jasmine's eyes sparkled with hope.

Mason looked at his little sister and said, "Sure, what kind of gift do you want?"

"I want you to accompany me to the concert!" Jasmine declared.

As soon as she said this, everyone present had a different expression. Jason looked interested, Grace wanted to suggest that her daughter choose a different gift, but her husband stopped her.

Jasper looked surprised, while Mick looked like he was enjoying the show.

Mason, who usually had no expression on his face, looked embarrassed. "I don't like crowded places," he said.

"That's why I made this a birthday gift!" Jasmine said. She hadn't gone to a concert with Mason yet.

"Mason suggested, 'You can ask your big brother to accompany you.'"

Mick was surprised to find himself involved in the situation and replied, "No, I've already accompanied Jasmine to several concerts. It wouldn't count as a birthday gift."

Jasmine hesitated for a moment, recalling what Jasper had said before. She knew that if she persisted, Mason would eventually agree.

Chapter 3635

So Jasmine put down her fork and leaned towards Mason, trying to coax him, "Mason, can't you just accompany me once? I really want you to come with me to the concert on my birthday. I'm planning..."

Her coquettish behavior was interrupted as two fingers pressed against her forehead. "What time is the concert tonight?" Mason asked.

Jasmine was momentarily confused. "What?" she asked.

"I said, what time does the concert start tonight?" Mason repeated.

"It starts at 8 pm!" Jasmine quickly replied.

"Great, I'll take you there tonight!" Mason said.

Jasmine was pleasantly surprised, but also a bit confused. Did she successfully persuade through persistent efforts?

But the thing is...the time was too short, it was only a few seconds, but Mason agreed just like that!

Is Mason too easy to conquer?

When Jasper went to William's place, he mentioned the matter to him. William was somewhat surprised and said, "Mason accompanied Jasmine to the concert."

"Yeah, it's surprising, right? Didn't expect Jasmine to make such a request, but Mason agreed,” said Jasper.

“That night Jasmine went to a concert, but what about her birthday party? Was it held at noon?” William asked.

At that moment, someone suddenly rushed over and stood in front of Jasper, saying to Harold and Camelia, “That’s enough from you two. I don’t need you to come see me, and I definitely don’t need any fruit from you.”

Jasper stared in surprise at William, who had suddenly appeared. When did William come back?

“William, we just missed you so much, so we...we came to see you,” Camelia explained hurriedly.

“But I don’t want to see you guys!” William said, grabbing Jasper’s hand and leading him not towards the school, but to a car parked nearby. The car quickly drove away, leaving a trail of dust behind.

Camelia couldn’t help but cry, while Harold tried to comfort her.

William smiled. Her idea of not preparing a big event would still be considered a big event for most people.

And if the Reed family intends to hold a grand event, it’s likely to go viral on social media!

“How about accompanying me to pick a birthday gift for Jasmine? I haven’t bought her gift yet,” William suggested. He had taken a few days off from school and had some free time to go gift shopping.

“Sure!” Jasper replied.

In the afternoon, the two went to a shopping mall in the city center to pick out a gift. However, they wore masks and hats to avoid being recognized and causing unnecessary trouble.

As an older sister, Jasper knew exactly what kind of things her younger sister liked. So she brought William to a counter that sold bags.

William raised an eyebrow and asked, “Are you hinting that I should buy you a gift?”

Jasper laughed and said, “No! It’s this brand of bags. There are many that little girls like, and Jasmine also likes this brand. But Mommy said she already has a lot of bags and didn’t buy her the new ones that just came out. So why don’t you buy them and give them to her as a birthday present?”

“Not really!” Jasper laughed, “It’s a brand of bags that many little girls like. Jasmine also likes this brand of bags, but Mommy said she already has many bags and didn’t buy her the latest one. So why don’t you buy it and give it to her as a birthday gift?”

As she spoke, she also pulled William to take a look at the latest item.

William looked at it. It was a rabbit bag that indeed catered to the aesthetic of little girls. However, such a bag cost 30,000 yuan, which was not affordable for ordinary people.

William bought the bag and said to Jasper, "What about you? Is there anything you like? I'll buy it for you."

Jasper shook her head, "I don't need a bag now. Wait until my birthday, and then you can think about what to give me."

The two of them walked out of the mall when suddenly a small boy, dressed in tattered clothes and covered in dirt, approached Jasper.

Chapter 3636

William instinctively took a step forward and shielded the little boy from Jasper.

The little boy shrank back a bit, but still gathered his courage and said, "Big brother, big sister, please, can you give me some money?"

Jasper's expression changed slightly as he looked at the little boy. Judging from his clothes, he didn't seem like a typical beggar. Although his clothes were worn out at the sleeves and knees, they didn't look like they were in tatters. The bowl the boy was holding was also a regular enamel bowl that one would find in an ordinary household, which was different from the bowls used by most beggars.

"What about your mom and dad?" Jasper asked.

"I don't have a mom and dad, only my grandma. She's sick and I want to buy her some good food," the little boy said.

Jasper's eyes flickered as she heard this. She reached into her pocket and handed a few hundred yuan bills to the boy.

The little boy was shocked and clearly didn't expect this lady to give him so much money.

"Keep this money safe, okay? Don't lose it," Jasper said.

The little boy quickly nodded and said, "Thank you...thank you, big sister!"

"Alright, go buy some delicious food for your grandmother," Jasper said.

The little boy turned and ran off. William said, "Who knows if what the child said is true or not."

"Even if it's not true, it doesn't matter," Jasper said. "If it's false, I'll only lose a few hundred dollars, but if it's true, then my small help might make this child a little happier."

Her abilities are limited, and there are too many people in this city who need help. She can't help everyone, but since she has encountered this child, she hopes to give him a little warmth.

Did Lawrence also end up on the streets after his parents' accident and disappearance? And during that time, did anyone provide warmth for Lawrence?

"What are you thinking about?" William's voice rang out.

"I'm thinking about the children in the welfare home," Jasper said. "As I told you before, our team organizes volunteer work at the welfare home. We take turns going to the welfare home to play music for the children and use music therapy to provide psychological treatment for them."

After all, many of the children in the welfare home have been abandoned by their parents or have lost both parents, making their psychological problems more prevalent than those of ordinary children. Therefore, we cannot ignore the psychological problems of these children.

Every time she goes to the welfare home to play music for those children, she wonders if Lawrence also ended up in a welfare home after his parents' accident and disappearance. And during that time, did Lawrence have any psychological problems?

Because... his parents were killed in front of him by those thugs who even chased after him!

It's only natural for someone who has gone through such darkness to have psychological issues!

She hopes that he, from back then, can meet people who treat him well during these missing years, so that he can gradually recover from his psychological trauma and live a good life.

"William, I want to buy something and go see the children at the welfare home. It's been a long time since we've seen them," Jasper said.

"Okay," William smiled and replied.

So Jasper bought several big bags of snacks that kids like, and William drove them to the welfare home.

When Jasper arrived at the welfare home, the staff there saw him and greeted him with a smile, saying, "Miss Reed, you're here! Your classmate is here today too, what a coincidence."

"Classmate?" Jasper paused for a moment.

Chapter 3637

"Yeah, he's playing the piano for the kids," the other person said.

When Jasper followed the person to the room where the piano was placed, she saw Roger sitting in front of the piano playing Mozart's 12 Variations on "Ah, vous dirai-je maman", K.265/300c. Many children were sitting around him, humming along to his music.

"12 Variations on 'Ah, vous dirai-je maman' is a well-known piece that even people who haven't studied piano much can play along with the score. However, Roger's performance had a certain infectious quality to it.

Often, what a piano performance needs most is this infectious quality, which makes the listener unconsciously affected by the performer's notes and emotions.

Jasper stood there, listening attentively, while William, standing next to her, looked at her focused expression and then turned his gaze to Roger.

If he hadn't personally taken the other person's blood sample to the lab for testing, he might have even thought that Roger was Lawrence.

The DNA test shows that Roger is not the same person, but why did he have contact with Harold and Camelia? It's even possible that these two people have some connection to Roger's visit to

What is Roger up to?

In William's heart, there is a lingering sense of unease that Roger might be his biggest threat in the future.

As a piano piece comes to an end, Roger, who was playing in front of the piano, turns his head towards Jasper and William as if sensing something, and looks in their direction.

Then a smile curved his lips as he stood up and walked towards the two of them. "What a coincidence, I didn't expect to run into you guys here today."

"It's quite a coincidence. Do you often come here to see these children?" Jasper asked. She had met Roger here last time.

"The children in the welfare home are all orphans. This world owes them already. If I can bring them some happiness, why not?" Roger replied.

Jasper was a little surprised by his words.

"Speaking of which, congratulations to you two. I didn't expect that you would start dating in such a situation. These days, you haven't been at school, and almost everyone is talking about you," Roger hinted. "They're all saying that Barlow is lucky to have turned the tables against the odds. Did Barlow plan for this kind of luck?"

William looked back at Roger. "I am indeed lucky. As for whether I planned for it, I don't understand what you mean."

William looked back at Roger and said, "I am indeed lucky. As for what you just said, I don't quite understand its meaning."

Roger shrugged and said, "It's just a joke among some people at school. If Barlow doesn't understand, he should ask the people who said those things. I'm just relaying the message."

Two men faced each other in confrontation. The staff who came with Jasper had already gathered the children on the side. When the children saw Jasper, their faces lit up with big smiles and they exclaimed, "Jasper is here!"

Chapter 3638

Jasper smiled and said, "Hello everyone!" Then he introduced the people around him, "This one is William, he's my sister's good friend!"

So the children all shouted in unison, "William is great!"

"Alright, I brought gifts for you all," Jasper said. "Do you want to come with me and get them?"

"Yes!" the children exclaimed excitedly.

So the group walked over to the front hall of the orphanage, where Jasper began to distribute the small gifts she had brought for the children. William stood by her side, helping to hand out the presents.

Roger stood nearby, watching Jasper and William standing together.

The two of them stood together, attracting everyone's attention and looking so perfect together.

It seemed like it had always been this way since they were young. Whenever William appeared, Jasper would always be standing next to him. And he, no matter how hard he tried, was just a lonely backup for Jasper when William wasn't around.

But a backup is always just a backup. Once the main character appears, he can only stand aside.

At this moment, this scene before him made him feel even more uncomfortable.

Roger turned around and went back to the room where he had been playing the piano earlier. The room was now empty, with only him inside.

Just like when he was a child, he often stayed in a room alone.

That feeling of loneliness, as if deeply embedded in his bones and blood, he once thought he could finally be free from it. But in the end, he realized it was just an illusion.

Roger's fingers caressed the piano keys as he once again played Transcendental Etude No. 12 Chasse-neige. It was this very piece that had introduced him to Jasper.

Later on, he practiced this piece the most.

Every note of this piece is etched into his bones and blood, so much so that even in his dreams, he plays this song.

The melodious sound of a piano filled the room as a figure slowly walked in and approached Roger.

"Why are you here, William? Shouldn't you be spending time with Jasper?" Roger asked without even turning his head, as if he had already expected who would walk in.

William stared at Roger with a heavy gaze and asked, "I really want to know, who are you?"

As soon as William spoke, the piano stopped playing. Roger slowly lifted his head and looked at William with his deep and beautiful eyes. He smiled and said, "What's wrong? We're alumni, and you still don't know my name?"

William asked, "Is your name really Roger?"

Roger calmly asked, "If my name isn't Roger, then what should I be called?"

"The answer to that lies within yourself, doesn't it?" William replied. "Your repeated encounters with Jasper weren't just a coincidence, were they?"

"I don't know what you're talking about," Roger said. "If you're suggesting that I intentionally created opportunities to meet Jasper, then you're mistaken. It was actually her who deliberately sought me out, insisting that I was some Lawrence guy. Fortunately, we cleared up that misunderstanding later.

on."

"Did you have any issues with me?" William asked again.

Roger sneered, "I don't understand what you're getting at. I only met you after I got into Stanford University, so how could we have any issues?"

"Why did you run to Deer Capital to meet Harold and Camelia? Don't tell me you don't know who they are!" William squinted.

Chapter 3639

This time, Roger admitted quite readily, "Of course I know they are your grandparents. Is there a law that says I can't see them?"

"Why did you go all the way to Deer Capital to see them? Deer Capital is not close to Emerald City."

"Just curious," Roger answered. "I read the post about you on the school forum and became curious about the incident where your mother sent Mrs. Reed to jail. I found out that Lily's parents should still be alive, so I searched for clues about them online. The internet is very developed now, and I found a post saying that Lily's parents, who were once popular stars, were seen picking up trash on the street in Deer Capital. So I went to Deer Capital and happened to run into them."

"So you're really idle, going all the way to Deer Capital just to meet two scavengers?" William said.

"I guess it's because I find it interesting," Roger replied. "To ordinary people, you and Jasper should be mortal enemies, but you two have been childhood sweethearts and now you're even boyfriend and girlfriend. So I became curious about your mother's family, who were also involved in helping the tyrant and causing Mrs. Reed to be imprisoned."

“Interesting? Do you think this is a very interesting thing?” William’s voice was cold. For him, this was the source of his pain, but in the eyes of the person in front of him, it became something amusing.

“Isn’t it?” Roger asked back. “With life experiences like yours, full of ups and downs, there are probably not many people like you in this world. You seem to have been lucky all along, even though your mother is a criminal, you were able to find your biological father, became the heir of the Barlow family, and have such a close relationship with the Reed family, who should have been your enemies. I just don’t know how long your luck can last.”

“No matter what you’re planning, I can tell you that you won’t get what you want in the end!” William stepped forward and grabbed the other person’s collar.

“Is that so? Well, I’m looking forward to it,” Roger lazily replied.

The tension between the two was palpable.

Just then, Jasper’s voice rang out, “What are you guys doing?”

The two turned their heads and saw Jasper walking towards them. William let go and said, “Nothing, just chatting casually.”

Jasper looked at the two of them suspiciously, then turned to William and said, “The gifts have been sorted out and it’s getting late. Let’s go back.”

“Okay,” William responded.

Just as the two were about to turn and leave, Roger suddenly spoke up from behind them, “William, aren’t you planning to go to the hospital to see your grandfather-in-law? His illness is not light, and you might not be able to see him again in the future.”

William paused in his steps and coldly uttered, “To me, he’s just Harold.”

Chapter 3640

From childhood to adulthood, he had never lived with the other person, so he never regarded that person as his own family.

“Is that so? But sometimes, people are strange. Even if you hate them, you might miss them when they’re not around...” Roger said, leaning against the wall behind him, as if reminiscing about something.

Jasper turned to glance at Roger. At this moment, Roger seemed to be surrounded by a sense of loneliness, as if the whole world had left only him alone.

Suddenly, Jasper didn't know what was happening, he only felt a pain in his chest, which gradually spread throughout his body.

"Let's go," urged William's voice beside him.

Jasper finally lifted his feet and followed William as he left.

Back in the car parked outside the welfare institution, Jasper still had a feeling of tightness in his chest.

What's wrong with her? Why did she feel sad when she saw Roger earlier? Was it because of his appearance, which resembled what she imagined Lawrence would look like when he grew up?

So the scene just now gave her a kind of illusion, as if she saw

"Your complexion doesn't look good. Is everything really okay?" William asked with concern.

"I'm just a little tired. I'll rest my eyes for a bit and be fine," Jasper replied, fastening his seatbelt and closing his eyes to doze off.

As William looked at Jasper in this state, his eyes flickered slightly. There were some things he kept hidden in his heart and didn't ask about.

When she looked at Roger just now, it seemed like she was shocked, but also like she was heartbroken.

Was she really looking at Lawrence through Roger?

If one day Lawrence really appeared in front of her, how would she react?

In the orphanage, Roger leaned against the wall and looked up at the white clouds floating in the sky.

For him, he used to hate his parents too. He hated his mother for being so greedy in gambling and his father for being useless.

But when they both disappeared from his world, he realized that this hatred was so insignificant compared to their disappearance from this world.

"It seems like it's really a bit troublesome," murmured Roger to

He had originally thought of revenge, but now it seems like he's slowly getting himself trapped...

...For William, he had no emotional attachment to Harold and Camelia as if they were his own family.

However, when he heard Roger say that Harold's condition was not light this time, and that he could pass away at any moment, his heart couldn't help but stir.

After nightfall, William still came to the hospital and walked to Harold's ward.

For him, it wasn't difficult to find out where Harold's ward was.

Harold's hospital room is a very ordinary three-person room, but it seems that due to previous online reports about them, the hospital was afraid that the elderly man would be harassed by others. Therefore, only Harold is staying in this three-person room, while Camelia is resting and sleeping in the bed next to him.
