

Ex Convict 4011

Chapter 4011~

William hugged Jasper tightly. "Don't blame yourself anymore. You are also a victim. If you want to blame someone, blame Irene!"

"I'm so scared!" Jasper buried her face deeply in William's arms and choked, "I'm afraid we won't find Nancy. I'm afraid my big brother will collapse. He... loves Nancy. He told me himself that he loves Nancy!"

William's heart skipped a beat. Although he had guessed the possibility when he saw Mick almost sleepless in order to find Nancy, hearing Jasper say it out loud still shocked him.

For a moment, he didn't know what to say.

"William, will my big brother be like my grandfather? I'm so scared, really scared that my big brother will make the same choice as my grandfather." Jasper trembled as she spoke.

She was really scared, and the fear was so strong!

"No, he won't. Your big brother has you and your siblings, parents who love him. He's not like your grandfather back then."

William also knew something about Jasper's grandfather.

"Jasper, no matter what, promise me that we'll face it together!" William hugged Jasper tightly and comforted her.

Jasper just continued to bury herself in William's arms, crying in pain.

She didn't even know how to face her big brother's pain.

Because of this pain, she caused it!

Nancy felt like she had just had a long and painful dream.

In the dream, it felt like all of her bones were being crushed, and she was constantly in pain, making her almost collapse.

But every time she felt like she couldn't hold on any longer, it was as if there was a voice constantly calling her name.

"Nancy! Nancy!"

Who could it be? It sounded like Mick's voice.

Mick and Jasper had a good relationship. She dragged Irene down with her into the sea, so Jasper was saved!

Would Mick be happy?

Jasper could live well, so Mick must be very happy.

Perhaps he would forgive her for some of the mistakes she had made in the past!

If he could really forgive her, it would be great. Even if she died, she would die with a clear conscience!

It felt like sunshine was pouring into the darkness.

Nancy opened her heavy eyelids and gradually saw the scene in front of her.

A white ceiling, a white hospital bed, and medical staff in white coats. Was she...in the hospital?

“Wake up, the patient in bed 32 has woken up.” The shocking voice rang in her ear!

And several hours later, Nancy finally figured out what the situation was.

This is a small town clinic.

The town is far from Emerald City.

It is said that she drifted to a fishing village holding onto a piece of driftwood.

At that time, many people thought she was dead, but an old childless woman in the fishing village saw her finger move, so she dragged her back home and tried to save her.

Later, although she was alive, she was like a vegetable, without waking up.

When a college student returned to the village and learned about her situation, he quickly sent her to the county clinic.

Because Nancy had no identification documents, the clinic only provided the simplest life-sustaining measures for her.

But even these basic care and intravenous fluids cost all the savings of the childless old woman.

And more importantly, her belly was getting bigger day by day.

She was... pregnant!

Chapter 4012

It has been five months since she fell into a coma, and the baby in her belly is about the size of a 25-week-old fetus!

In her vegetative state, this baby miraculously survived.

Even the doctors were amazed by this miracle. After all, Nancy was seriously injured, but in this situation, not only did she survive, but her child also survived.

Nancy also learned that because she didn't have any identification documents, the old lady who brought her to the clinic claimed that she was her daughter. It was just that when she was born, no identification was processed, so the clinic accepted her.

Nancy was very grateful to the old lady.

In the following days, Nancy worked hard to recover her body. She fell into the sea, suffered multiple fractures, and even injured her lungs.

In such a small clinic, there were no good medical conditions. If she wanted better treatment, she had to go to a big hospital.

When the old lady came to see her, Nancy proposed the idea of reapplying for her identification and phone card.

After all, with her current physical condition, she couldn't make it back to Emerald City.

Moreover, all her luggage was left in the rented room. But that day was also the day to move out.

It had been five months, and her luggage should now be kept by the landlord, or... thrown away as garbage.

Unfortunately, her phone was lost when she was kidnapped by Irene.

Now, she couldn't even call the landlord to inquire about her luggage because she didn't remember the landlord's phone number.

Therefore, only by reapplying for her identification and phone card here, could she repay the old lady for the medical expenses she had paid for her, and then use the remaining money for treatment and childbirth!

When she fell into the sea, she was already prepared for death.

But now, God has given her a great gift.

Although the father of the child never expected this child, this child... is the only relative she has in this life. No matter what, she wants to give birth to this child and have this child accompany her in the future.

"Baby, you also want to live, right? That's why, even in such a difficult situation, you're still staying in mommy's belly. Let's...work hard together to survive!"

Nancy gently stroked her already swollen belly, murmuring to herself.

As soon as she opened her eyes, her belly was already very noticeable.

This made her feel even more keenly aware of her pregnancy.

Getting a new ID card went smoothly, as there were already records in the system. It was just that Nancy was lying in the hospital and couldn't move, so the staff came to the clinic to help her with the special circumstances.

They took some photos on the spot and had some conversations to ask some questions.

After the staff left, Nancy looked at Miss Fowler who was accompanying her, "Auntie, thank you!"

"What are you thanking me for? Don't pay me back for that money in the future. Take good care of yourself. I'm just one person and can't spend much money. I can still work now." Miss Fowler said.

"Auntie..." Nancy's eyes were moist.

Miss Fowler had no reason to help her, but she was able to survive because of Miss Fowler's compassion.

Otherwise, she and the baby in her belly would not have survived until today.

"Auntie, from now on, you can treat me as your child. I have no parents or other relatives. The three of us, you, me, and the baby in my belly, can rely on each other, okay?" Nancy said.

Miss Fowler was surprised.

"When I recover and give birth to the baby, we will both be filial to you!" Nancy said. "Besides, you have the surname Fowler, and I also have the surname Fowler. Maybe we were destined to meet."

Miss Fowler's eyes also began to moisten. "If you don't mind this useless old lady..."

"You saved both me and my baby's lives, so please don't look down on me now that I'm just lying in a hospital bed," Nancy said.

"If I had a granddaughter, she would be around your age. If you're willing, you can be my granddaughter from now on," Miss Fowler said.

"Grandma!" Nancy exclaimed.

The estranged family relationship seemed to be reconciled at this moment.

Nancy thought that her days would just pass by like this.

She planned to use her savings to slowly treat her illness after giving birth. Although her savings were not much, around a hundred thousand, it should be enough for the cheapest treatment until the baby was born and for the first year of expenses.

In the future, she could find a way to work again.

Although her body was already broken, she would persevere for the sake of her child and Miss Fowler.

However, she did not expect that a group of people would rush into her hospital room the next day, reminding her of the difficulties she might face in the future.

These people included doctors and nurses from the hospital, as well as leaders from the hospital, but they just stood by and watched.

The person they surrounded was the mayor of this small city!

Nancy was dumbfounded. Why would the mayor come to her hospital room? Was there some kind of condolence activity in the city?

However, she did not see anyone holding a camera or a video camera around.

"Miss Nancy, we're sorry that we only found out about you now. We will immediately arrange for the best hospital to admit you and the best doctors from the county to treat you. Other professional medical teams from other places will also come for consultation later. If you need anything, please feel free to let us know, the mayor said.

Nancy listened to all of this, feeling confused and unsure of what was happening.

Was she still dreaming? She couldn't quite understand what the mayor was saying.

Even if it was just a visit from the city, it seemed a bit too much.

"Um, I...I don't have a lot of money, I just need some simple treatment for now," Nancy stuttered.

"Don't worry about the money, if there's nothing else, we can transfer you to another hospital this afternoon," the mayor said warmly.

Sure enough, in the afternoon, Nancy was transferred to a county hospital belonging to the city, where several doctors consulted on her case.

This made Miss Fowler a bit nervous, not understanding what was going on.

"Don't worry Bay"ra jail busting

"Don't worry, they're just treating me," Nancy said

"But how can it be free of charge for no reason Miss Fowler sechetical

Nancy was silent for a moment "Maybe someone thinks to pity and want to hate me rendime someone who knows me suddenly comes to find me, don't be priced are my grandmother, my fiendly When I'm better, I'll take care of you"

Chapter 4013

"Don't talk about taking care of me. First, take care of your health. You still have a little one in your belly. If you're not healthy, how can you give birth to this little one?" Miss Fowler worried.

Although she didn't have much education, she understood some of the things the doctors said during their rounds.

They said that Nancy had too many injuries and it would be difficult to give birth to the child.

But because of her current condition, it would also be difficult to have an abortion. One wrong move could lead to various complications.

So that's why she kept delaying going to the clinic.

"I will cooperate with the treatment and do everything I can to recover as soon as possible," Nancy promised.~

After Miss Fowler left the ward, Nancy lowered her eyes and looked at her swollen belly.

When she was transferred to this hospital with such fanfare and seen by so many top doctors in the county. she had a suspicion.

The only ones who could give her this kind of treatment in this unfamiliar city were the Reed family.

Did the Reed family know she was here and knew about her situation, so they offered to help?

In a few days, perhaps the police in Emerald City would come here to ask her about her involvement in the case.

By then, would the Reed family know about her pregnancy? Would Mick know?

Thinking of this, Nancy couldn't help but think of the time when Mick handed her birth control pills, his dark eyes full of indifference.

At that time, he made her take the birth control pills in front of him, just so he wouldn't have anything to do with her again.

This child was never what he hoped for!

If he knew about her pregnancy, would he force her to have an abortion?

Her child...was her only blood relative in this world, and she wanted to keep this child no matter what!

Mick...

Every time she thought of him, her heart still ached.

How much longer will it take to ease this pain? She closed her eyes and fell asleep unknowingly.

In her sleep, she seemed to hear rapid breathing, and then... felt a cold and trembling hand touching her face.

2/2

Who was touching her? Whose hand was it?

She slowly opened her eyes, and moonlight streamed into the room through the window.

What she saw was the familiar handsome face.

It was Mick.

However, he was different from the Mick she remembered. At this moment, there was a strange emotion on his face, as if he cared, as if he was concerned, and more like he had found hope in despair.

His hand was trembling, gently stroking her face, as if he was afraid that a little more force would break her.

His lips were also trembling, whispering her name, "Nancy... Nancy..."

He kept calling her name over and over again.

Was she dreaming?

This was a Mick she had never seen before.

It must be a dream, otherwise how could it be so unreal?

"Mick..." Nancy murmured, struggling to lift her arm.

For her, even lifting her arm was extremely difficult at the moment.

But she still wanted to touch him, even if it was only in her dreams!

Chapter 4014-

When her fingers finally touched his face, a cold sensation was transmitted through her fingertips.

His face was so cold!

"It's so good to see you in my dreams," she said. "If this is a dream, I hope it can last a little longer."

"It's not a dream...this isn't a dream, it's me, I found you, I finally found you!" Mick said, gently pressing Nancy's hand back and rubbing his cheek in her palm.

"Nancy, I finally found you...you're alive, it's good that you're alive, it's good that you're alive..." A choked voice came from his throat.

Two clear tears fell from the corners of his eyes, wetting her hand.

Nancy was stunned, staring blankly at the person who was so close.

The sensation in her palm was so real.

Is this really not a dream? Is it...reality?!

1/2

Nancy originally thought that even if someone from Emerald City came looking for her, it would most likely be the police or someone from the Reed family.

But she didn't expect Mick to come in person, and even...cry in front of her!

This kind of Mick was beyond her previous imagination.

The next day, Nancy was still in shock as she looked at the Reed family who appeared in her hospital room.

Not only Mick, but also Mick's parents, Jasper, and William came to visit her.

Jasper was particularly emotional and tearful. "Nancy, it's great that you're alive. You have no idea how hard we've been looking for you for the past five months!"

Nancy didn't know if she should be amazed or not.

From last night until now, she had already seen two members of the Reed family cry!

This situation was not something that many people could have predicted.

"I'm sorry, I was unconscious before and didn't know you were looking for me," Nancy said.

2/2

"Don't apologize, I should be the one apologizing!" Jasper said. "If it weren't for me being so useless, you wouldn't have had to jump like that. You jumped to save me!"

Jasper said seriously, "Nancy, from now on, no matter what happens, I will stand by your side. If you have any difficulties, I will help you solve them!"

"No...there's no need for that. Anyway, Irene didn't plan to let me go that day. I just didn't want to let her off the hook!" Nancy quickly said.

Jasper's promise was too precious and not something she could accept.

"Even if Irene didn't plan to let you go, the fact is that you saved Jasper from danger," Jason said. "The Reed family owes you a great debt of gratitude and we will naturally repay you."

Nancy bit her lip. "You've already done so much for me by letting me stay in this great hospital and having expert doctors diagnose me. I'm very grateful, and I don't need anything else."

"Is that so?" Jason said. "You can ask for a lot, even if you want a share of the Reed family's stocks."

"No, no!" Nancy quickly refused. "I...I just want to get better and be able to leave the hospital smoothly...that's all."

Jason said, "Once your health improves, we will arrange for you to receive better treatment in Emerald City."

Plus, it will be easier for Mick to take care of you there."

"Go back to Emerald City?" Nancy was taken aback. After a moment of silence, she said, "Thank you for your kindness, but I don't plan on going back to Emerald City."

Chapter 4015

"How can you not go back to Emerald City? You're pregnant with your elder brother's child, so of course you have to go back to Emerald City!" Jasper blurted out.

After all, Nancy's bulging belly made it obvious to anyone that she was pregnant.

And before they came here, they had already learned all about Nancy's situation in the past few months.

They knew that she had been discovered and had been in a coma for five months, during which time she was found to be 25 weeks pregnant.

Nancy's body suddenly stiffened. "No, the child is not Mick's!" This was almost without thinking, instinctively coming out of her mouth.

Suddenly, the atmosphere in the room became awkward, as if it had suddenly fallen silent.

Jasper opened his mouth, wanting to say something, but for a moment he didn't know what to say.

It was Mick who spoke, "You guys go out first, I'll talk to Nancy alone."

The people in the ward filed out.

Only Mick and Nancy were left.

Mick stared at Nancy. "Why did you say the child isn't mine?"

"Because... the child really isn't yours," Nancy said.

"The child is 25 weeks old now. Counting the days, it should be the time we had sex!" Mick said.

"Mr. Reed shouldn't think that one time is enough to get pregnant, and besides, you saw me take birth control pills with your own eyes," Nancy said.

In any case, she couldn't let Mick think that the child was his!

She wants to keep this child, her only family.

"If it's not mine, then whose is it?" Mick asked.

"You don't need to know that. Mr. Reed, have you forgotten that we agreed to be strangers with no relationship in the future?" Nancy tried to remain calm.

Her words made Mick's heart skip a beat.

"Are you blaming me for how I treated you back then? I can apologize, I'm sorry, I shouldn't have..."
Mick

tried to say.

"No!" Nancy interrupted Mick.

His humble attitude towards her at this moment made her uncomfortable.

2/2

"I'm not blaming you. I'm the one who should apologize to you. You were kind to me back then. I just want to say..." She took a deep breath. "The child is not yours, it has nothing to do with you."

"Then who is the child's father? Tell me!" Mick said. He didn't believe there was another man when they were together.

Besides, he knew that when they had sex, it was her first time.

"Just a stranger, I don't know him. After we separated, I had a relationship with that person because of an accident, and that's how I got pregnant." She made up a story.

Making up a non-existent person would make it impossible to prove otherwise.

"Anyway this child is mine, and I will raise him/her well. The child only has a relationship with me!"

Nancy

said.

Mick stared at Nancy and suddenly said, "If you want to know if the child is mine, it's easy to do a DNA test after the child is born."

His tone sounded like he was sure the child was his.

"You—" Nancy stared at Mick, momentarily speechless.

If they really did a DNA test, then everyone would know who the child's biological father is.

"This is my child, you have no right to do this!" she protested, feeling guilty.

But this only proved who the child belonged to!

Chapter 4016

"Nancy, I know I've done some wrong things, and it may be difficult for you to forgive me, but...I beg you, don't cut ties with me like this," Mick knelt down in front of her hospital bed and pleaded.

His voice was low and filled with indescribable pain.

At this moment, Nancy suddenly felt a sense of absurdity, as if their roles had been reversed.

Before, she had begged him for forgiveness, but now, he was begging her.

"Is it because you think I jumped off the cliff and saved Jasper that you're doing this?" Nancy whispered, looking at him. "Mick, you don't have to do this. Regardless of whether I jumped or not, we would have both fallen off the cliff in the end. The only difference is whether I did it voluntarily or not."

His face suddenly changed. "Do you really think I wouldn't have chosen you?"

She smiled bitterly. "In that situation, anyone would have chosen Jasper. Even Irene had already chosen Jasper. Only when Jasper was taken hostage did she have a chance of safety. If Jasper fell into the sea, Irene would have had no cards left to play."

Because she was just an insignificant little person, she had seen this clearly from the beginning.

"So you jumped into the sea by yourself? Have you ever thought about what this means for me...?"

"I did it for the Reed family, for you," Nancy said. If Mick were to make the choice, he would inevitably feel guilty and self-blame towards her.

She had tasted this feeling before and didn't want him to experience it too.

"Do you think this is good?" Mick said harshly. "Is this what you call repayment? I never needed you to repay me in this way!"

Nancy's eyes dimmed. Even if she wanted to repay Mick with her life, it was unnecessary for him.

It was all just her own wishful thinking.

"I'm sorry, I was being presumptuous," she said softly.

A sense of inexplicable annoyance enveloped him. "Damn it, I don't want you to apologize. I just don't want to see you not valuing your life, Nancy, your life is important! Please don't make me worry and be afraid again, okay?"

Chapter 4016

Even during this time, he would often dream of her resolutely jumping down at midnight.

Then he would wake up in a cold sweat, unable to tell if it was sweat or tears on his face!

Nancy looked at Mick in surprise. "I...I don't understand what you mean."

She understood every word, but the combination of words made her feel like she didn't understand.

It couldn't be what she thought it was. Maybe it was just Mick's gratitude for her pulling frene and saving Jasper.

Or maybe it was because he felt guilty for her injury?

Or maybe there was another meaning?

"Don't understand? Then let me make it clearer," he raised his hand and gently held hers. "Nancy, I love you.

I don't need you to repay me, I just want you to be safe and live well! Do you understand?"

She was completely stunned.

Falling in love... Mick fell in love with her?!

How is that possible?!

He used to despise her so much!

Chapter 4017

"I don't understand, how could you fall in love with me?" Nancy asked. "Is it because I helped Jasper and you mistook gratitude for love?"

"Nancy, I'm not a child. I know the difference between gratitude and love," Mick replied.

"Then I don't understand even more. You used to hate me, didn't you? You even hated me so much that you didn't want to see me!" Nancy said.

"Yes, I did hate you," Mick murmured. "Because I had truly invested my feelings in a woman for the first time, only to be used. That's why I hated you and didn't want to see you. Every time I saw you, the feelings in my body kept reminding me of how much I missed you."

Mick paused for a moment before continuing. "But at that time, I couldn't accept it. I couldn't accept that I still had feelings for you, so I kept denying it. But when you jumped off the cliff, I was overwhelmed by fear.

My mind went blank, and my first reaction was to jump after you and save you!"

If it weren't for the Reed family's bodyguard catching him, he might have really jumped!

Nancy listened to Mick's confession in a daze, unable to react.

"In the days I spent searching for you, I finally realized that I love you. That's why I risked my life to find you after you fell into the sea. That's why I dreamt of you every night and kept thinking about our past. And every night, I had to hold onto your luggage to fall asleep!" Mick said.

"What?" Nancy was stunned. Was her luggage still with Mick in Emerald City?

"Nancy, I love you. You should never doubt that," Mick said with such seriousness and solemnity.

At that moment, his expression was so sincere and solemn!

And his lips deeply kissed the palm of her hand.

As if he was making a vow to her!

Mick's love for her was something Nancy had never expected.

Her mind was in chaos, and all she could say to Mick was, "I think... I need to rest and be alone for a while."

offer

After meeting so many people and receiving so much information today, she felt exhausted.

“Okay,” Mick said. “Rest well.”

After speaking, he stood up, tucked in Nancy’s blanket, and left the hospital room.

As soon as he stepped out of the room, Jasper hurried over. “Big brother, how’s Nancy doing?”

“She’s a bit tired and wants to rest,” Mick said.

“What about the baby in her belly...”

“It’s mine,” Mick said.

His unquestionable tone told his family not to doubt who the father of the child was.

Jasper breathed a sigh of relief.

If this child wasn’t his brother’s, there would probably be another storm.

After hearing his son’s words, Jason did not show a relaxed expression, but instead said, “Let’s first listen to what the doctor has to say.”

“What’s wrong? Is there another problem?” Jasper felt the seriousness in his father’s tone.

After hearing the doctor’s analysis, Jasper understood why his father had spoken with such a serious tone.

Chapter 4018

According to the doctor’s analysis, Nancy’s body had suffered too much trauma. Although the development of the fetus was currently stable, if she were to give birth, it would be like risking her life.

Her current physical condition is not enough to give birth to this child.

Although a miscarriage at this stage would also be a heavy burden on her body, it would be safer than giving birth.

After hearing the doctor’s analysis, Jasper felt heavy-hearted.

As a woman who had never given birth, she understood the significance of a child to a woman.

Thinking that Nancy had barely survived and the child was growing safely in her womb, but now she had to have a miscarriage in this situation, Jasper felt sad.

“Miscarriage? Will Nancy agree?” Grace murmured, thinking back to when she was pregnant with triplets and the doctor had advised her to have an abortion as it was not suitable for her to give birth to three children.

But at that time, she had resolutely chosen to keep her life and refused to have an abortion.

Nancy now reminded Grace of herself back then.

Jason obviously guessed what his wife was thinking and gently hugged her, saying, "Don't think too much. Having a miscarriage is also for her to live a healthier life. If you really want a child, there will be plenty of opportunities in the future."

"But even if we have another child, it won't be this one." Grace said, feeling emotional about this.

"But we all know that if she insists on giving birth to this child, she may very well die on the operating table," Jason said. "As long as we persuade her well, she will understand."

Is it really that simple? Grace wondered.

From the fact that Nancy could drag Irene to jump off a cliff, she understood that this child had a courage that ordinary people could not match.

A courage to risk everything.

Such a person can be ruthless to others, and even more ruthless to themselves!

Chapter 4018

"I'll go talk to her!" Mick spoke up. "I will make her agree to have an abortion!"

After Mick finished speaking, he left the conference room.

Jasper looked at the back of his elder brother, biting his lip in sadness. He thought he had found Nancy and finally turned the corner.

But why did another obstacle arise?

Grace was full of worry, with a bad premonition in her heart.

When Mick returned to Nancy's ward, she was already asleep.

He sat by the bed, quietly watching her sleep.

There were many wounds on her body. Even though she was wearing a hospital gown, he could see many bandages wrapped around her collar and ankles.

The shocking reports of her injuries in her medical records made him wish he could take her place and suffer this pain for her.

How did this woman have the courage to jump down?

Even though he treated her that way, why did she still choose to sacrifice herself for him in this way?

The child...

When he found out she was pregnant, he was overjoyed.

He found her and they had a child together, so she would be more willing to be with him again, right?

But her attitude towards the child was a slap in the face for him.

She didn't want this child to have anything to do with him!

She cared about the child!

But she no longer cared about him!

-To her, she had already “repaid” him, so she didn’t feel guilty towards him anymore. But at the same time, did she have any feelings of care or love towards him?

Love... Did she ever love him?

On this point, Mick had no confidence at all.

Chapter 4019

After all, in the beginning, she only said she loved him because she wanted to use him.

Ironically, now it seems that he doesn’t even have the chance to be used by her anymore.

What would be her reaction if he asked her to have an abortion? Would she agree?

Mick was anxious.

But then he thought to himself that even if she didn’t want to, he would make her have an abortion!

Because he didn’t dare to gamble with her life!

He had almost lost her, and he couldn’t afford to lose her again!

When Nancy opened her eyes again, she saw Mick’s face.

She blinked her eyes, as if she had been seeing him every time she opened her eyes since last night.

“Are you awake? Are you hungry?” he asked.

She nodded, feeling hungry now.

“I had someone bring some food,” Mick said, walking out of the ward and giving instructions to someone outside.

After a while, someone brought in a bowl of hot porridge.

Because Nancy had been in a coma for five months, she had only been able to eat liquid food during this time.

“Let me feed you. Your hands and arms are injured,” Mick said, holding the porridge and blowing on it gently until it cooled down a bit, then holding the spoon to Nancy’s lips.

Nancy opened her mouth a bit dazedly and ate the porridge that was fed to her.

She felt like everything since last night was like a dream.

Moreover, Mick had previously said that he loved her.

Now, his actions seem like he really does love her.

Can a man like him really love her?

1/3

2/3

As she ate the porridge that was fed to her, Nancy looked at Mick and her mind was filled with the words he had said to her before about loving her.

"What's wrong? Why are you staring at me?" Mick asked.

"I'm sorry," Nancy apologized instinctively, quickly lowering her gaze and avoiding looking at Mick Mick's hand holding the spoon stiffened. "I didn't say there was anything wrong with you looking at me. It's a good thing for me if you want to look at me. You don't need to keep apologizing to me. Even if you did use me before, I don't care anymore!"

What bothered him even more was that she had said sorry to him too many times.

Every time she said sorry, it made him feel like there was an invisible distance growing between them.

"Do...do you forgive me?" Nancy's voice trembled.

"No matter what you did to me, I forgive you. No, I should be the one asking for your forgiveness. It was me who asked my father to adopt Irene into the Reed family. It was me who caused Irene to do such an extreme thing. You suffered because of me!"

If he hadn't asked his father to adopt Irene into the Reed family in the first place.

www

If he had been even harsher on Irene after she drugged him, making her completely lose the ability to plan the kidnapping, then all of this could have been avoided!

Nancy lowered her head and remained silent.

Her silence made him feel uneasy.

"Nancy, would you forgive me?"

Nancy's body trembled slightly, and she seemed to have made a decision. "Can we just forget about the past, no matter who owes who, or who has wronged who?"

Mick looked at the face in front of him firmly and said, "Good!"

"And," she hesitated for a moment, "do you really love me?"

"Yes," he answered without hesitation, "I love you. You are the first person I have ever loved in my life."

-Nancy was stunned, knowing that this was not a lie.

Chapter 4020

His eyes and his tone were telling her that he loved her.

Moreover, a man like him wouldn't bother lying.

If he really loved her, then maybe he would also love the child in her belly.

Now, he should choose to accept this child.

They might be able to be together, and this child of hers... would be their first child.

By then, the child would have a father, a mother, and they would be a happy family!

Nancy didn't say anything else and lowered her head to finish her porridge.

Should she admit that the child was his?

Not long ago, she denied it.

"Um... about the child in my belly, I want to..." she started to speak, but he interrupted her.

"Can we not have the child?" Mick asked.

"What?" Nancy was stunned, clearly not expecting him to say such a thing.

"Can we not have this child? If you like children, we can wait until you're better and have one later,"
Mick

said.

1/2

"Why not? Is it because of what I said before, that the child isn't yours?" Nancy asked anxiously. "That wasn't true, the child is yours."

"No, I never doubted that the child is mine," Mick said.

"Then why? You said you love me, so why not have the child?" Nancy was confused.

"This child is too much of a burden on your body. If you continue the pregnancy, you may not even make it to the day of delivery, your body may collapse before then!" Mick said. "So we don't want this child. The doctor will perform an abortion for you, and after the abortion, with treatment, your body will slowly recover."

"I don't want to!" Nancy immediately rejected. "This is my child, I won't have an abortion!"

"Nancy!" Mick bent down, holding her face in his hands, looking at her calmly, soothing her excited emotions. "This is for your health. Your body is too injured, and every part needs time to recover. There will be another child in the future. How many children you want, I will give you I promise to take good care of you in the future!"

"How many children will you give me?" Nancy suddenly smiled bitterly "How can you say that so lightly? This child and I have survived on the brink of life and death together! Everyone thought I was dead, but Miss Fowler insisted on saving me, so I can talk to you here now?"

She shouted, touching her belly. The little life inside her was so vivid!

She could feel the fetal movement, even though she was lying in bed and couldn't move much due to her injuries. But every fetal movement made her want to live even more strongly.

Because only by living can she take care of this child in the future!

She even felt that the reason she woke up was because of the child in her belly, because she wanted to give birth to it and become a mother!

"Now, I want to keep this child. As long as I am this child's mother, I will protect it!" Even if it's dangerous, wants to take a chance!