Chapter 4231 If You Still Can't Love...

Chandler looked deeply into Tina's eyes, and after a long time, he finally said, "Alright, I'll do my best to make you fall in love with me again."

This, for him, is also a kind of hope.

Even if Tina can't regain her past memories if she can fall in love with him again...

"Then, can you accompany me to see the child tomorrow?"

Also, I think we should finalize the name for the child," Tina said.

The child still doesn't have a name yet, they usually just call her Sweetie for short.

At the hospital, they only refer to the little one as "Tina's daughter".

Tina does care that the child still doesn't have a name, but every time she thinks about giving the child a name, she always thinks of Kit.

If You Still Can't Love...

Back then, she thought Kit was the person she loved, the father of the child, so when she thinks about the name of the child, she often incorporates Kit's name as well.

But now, it seems like a joke.

"Okay," Chandler agreed.

"Then, tonight, think of some names for the child," Tina said.

When the two returned from the park to the Stephenson family, Lina, and Hadwin joyfully watched as their daughter seemed to slowly accept Chandler.

They even made plans to go to the hospital together tomorrow to see their daughter.

Lina intentionally had Chandler stay for dinner at the Stephenson family before letting him leave.

"Tina, can you tell me what you're thinking?" Lina asked in the evening, entering her daughter's bedroom.

"I want to fall in love with Chandler again," Tina said.

But Lina furrowed her brow with some unease, "Tina, loving someone is not a matter of 'wanting' or 'not wanting'! If emotions could be controlled so simply, then the world wouldn't have people suffering because of love!"

"I know, I just think that if I used to fall in love with Chandler, then maybe falling in love with him again isn't so difficult after all. After all, he is indeed a very good man, someone worth loving," Tina said.

"But what if you still can't love him in the end?" Lina asked.

"If I really can't fall in love with him again and can't regain my memories, then I will divorce him," Tina said.

After all, if she doesn't love him, she can't imagine living with Chandler in the name of husband and wife.

When she mentioned "divorce", it startled Lina.

"You want to divorce Chandler?"

"If I can't love him, then divorcing would be good for both me and him," Tina said. This way, Chandler can find someone who loves him and whom he loves as well!

Lina looked at her daughter, at a loss for words.

She naturally understood her daughter's personality and knew that once her daughter made up her mind, she rarely changed it.

Just like when her daughter wanted to be with Chandler, even when they hadn't graduated from college yet, she insisted on being together and even wanted to get married as soon as possible!

But now, it's divorce.

Chandler has loved Tina for so many years, if they really divorce, can he truly accept it?

Lina didn't dare to think further.

Finally, she could only ask her daughter, "If you divorce Chandler, would you be able to love someone else?"

"I don't know, I should be able to."

"So, do you think he can too?"

"Probably." Tina gently lowered her eyes, "After all, in this world, there is no one who truly cannot live without another!"

Chapter 4232 She Only Likes What She Likes

The next day, Tina and Chandler went to the hospital's newborn ward.

The baby was still in the incubator, but compared to what Tina had seen before, it was much better, and it seemed to have grown a bit, no longer as fragile as before as if it could disappear at any moment.

"Have you thought about the baby's name?" Tina and Chandler entered the room after putting on sterile gowns.

When her hand touched her daughter's tiny hand, an indescribable feeling surged up.

This was her daughter, the little life she had fought so hard to protect.

"I've thought of some names, I've written them down, you can take a look later when we leave," Chandler said.

The nurse took the baby out of the incubator and let Tina try holding the baby.

Chapter 4232 She Only Likes What She Likes 2/5 Chandler seemed worried that Tina still had injuries and might not have the strength to hold the baby.

Tina said, "It's okay, I still have some strength left, I want to hold her."

The nurse carefully placed the baby in Tina's arms.

Tina held the baby, watching her daughter's little hands wave slowly, a smile appeared on her face.

"By the way, do you want to hold her?" Tina said.

Chandler seemed hesitant.

Tina felt a bit disappointed, "If you don't want to, then forget it."

"No!" he quickly denied, "I'm just not sure how to face her, I do want to hold her!"

So the little baby was handed over to Chandler's arms.

He carefully looked at the tiny baby in his arms.

Different from his previous impression, her skin was not as wrinkled as before, gradually becoming fuller, and faintly showing some resemblance to Tina.

She Only Likes What She Likes

This was his and Tina's daughter!

"I'm sorry, it's Dad's fault for not protecting you and not finding you and your mom earlier," Chandler whispered.

On his handsome face, there was an indescribable sense of guilt and self-reproach.

When visiting time was over, Tina and Chandler left the neonatal ward.

The little one would still have to stay here for some time until she reached the required weight before she could be discharged.

Tina turned to Chandler and said, "Let's go on a date next."

"A date?" Chandler was taken aback.

"Let's just consider it as starting to fall in love again.

Otherwise, how can I fall in love with you all over again?" Tina said.

Instead of waiting for the memories to suddenly come back, it would be more practical to try and see if she could fall in love with him again.

He looked at her tenderly and said, "Alright, let's go on a date then."

"What did we do when we went on dates before?" she asked curiously.

"We would go shopping, eat whatever you wanted, or do whatever you wanted, like going to see a movie, an art exhibition, or a concert if there was something you wanted to see," Chandler said.

Tina frowned. "Why is it always what I want? What about you? When we go on dates, is there nothing that we do that you want to do too?"

"I'm a bit boring, I don't have any particular hobbies,"

Chandler said.

For him, being with her and seeing her happy was already a source of joy.

"Well, you should think about what you like too," Tina said.

These words made Chandler pause for a moment.

The old Tina had said something like this to him before.

"Chandler, you can't always just go along with what I like. I feel like you're indifferent to everything. I know you care about me, and even though this special care makes me happy, don't you think your life would be more interesting if you didn't

Chapter 4233 Her Body Still Remembers Him

What he liked...

Was simply having her company.

But at this moment, he was afraid that saying it like this would only increase her psychological burden, so he smiled and said, "Alright, I'll think about it."

"Then, for now, let's have a date like we usually do. You can take me on a date," Tina said.

Maybe doing some of the things they used to do would help her memories to come back.

After looking at so many old photos and videos of her and Chandler, she felt that if she couldn't remember those things, it would be a kind of regret.

"But can your body handle it?" Chandler was a bit worried.

"Actually, my body is already quite fine. The doctor even suggested that I do more activities," Tina said.

Chapter 4233 Her Body Still Remembers Him 2/4 "Alright then," Chandler said.

The activities Chandler chose for the following plans were relatively low in physical exertion, such as watching a movie or having tea.

Just as the two of them finished their meal and were about to go to the parking lot, Tina caught a glimpse of a wedding photo hanging on a gla*s wall in the mall.

Looking at the happily married couple in the photo, Tina suddenly said, "Did we take wedding photos back then?"

"We did," Chandler's voice was somewhat hoarse.

"I want to see them," Tina turned to look at Chandler. "Can you show me those photos?"

In the Stephenson family, although her mother had given her many photos and videos of her and Chandler's past, she hadn't given her any photos or videos related to her wedding.

So she speculated that it was possible that because of the incident she encountered on her wedding day, there was nothing in her home related to her marriage at all.

"Okay," Chandler agreed.

Driving, Chandler took Tina directly to his place.

Her Body Still Remembers Him

This was also the first time Tina came to Chandler's place after losing her memory.

Strangely, she had a familiar feeling about this place. Even when she was thirsty and wanted to drink water, she would instinctively take out the couple's cup she and Chandler bought together from the cabinet and prepare to pour water.

"Do I come here often?" Tina asked.

"Hmm," he responded.

Tina couldn't help but smile. It seemed that even though she lost her memory, her body still retained some instinctive habits.

Then, Chandler showed her their wedding photos and some videos taken on their wedding day.

As Tina sat on the sofa, watching the wedding scenes playing on the large screen in the living room, her emotions fluctuated.

She looked beautiful and happy in the video.

Especially when she stood side by side with Chandler and they smiled at each other, anyone could see that they were in love with each other.

Her Body Still Remembers Him 4/4 She loved this man deeply!

And at this moment, she felt a strange affection in her heart.

“Chandler.” Tina suddenly turned around and spoke to him sitting beside her, “Can I hug you?”

He was somewhat surprised but did not object, “Of course you can.”

So she approached him and embraced his waist with both hands, burying her body in his arms.

His embrace was warm, and his breath gave her a sense of reassurance.

If she didn’t resist and chose to slowly accept, she realized that even though her brain had forgotten Chandler, her body remembered him!

Chapter 4234 Getting along better

After a moment, she looked up at the handsome face in front of her, and a certain desire suddenly arose in her heart.

This desire was so familiar as if she had longed for it countless times before!

And at this moment, she didn’t want to suppress this sudden desire.

“Chandler, I want to kiss you,” Tina whispered.

Chandler was taken aback and looked at her with some surprise.

“If you don’t want to, you can refuse,” she added.

He couldn’t help but smile. How could he refuse? Because this was what he longed for!

“I don’t mind, I’m happy,” he responded.

After hearing his answer, Tina’s lips met Chandler’s as she had wished.

A shallow kiss, the touch of their lips, that familiar feeling but

Getting along better still overwhelming.

The desire, instead of being satisfied, makes her want more!

She wants to deepen this kiss, to be more intimate with him...

The kiss, unconsciously, becomes deeper and deeper!

Until she's almost out of breath, she finally stops the kiss.

Blushing, she calms her breathing, "How was that kiss just now?"

"Very good," he replied.

She thinks for a moment and boldly says, "Since you thought it was good, can we kiss more in the future? After all, it might help deepen our connection."

Chandler feels a little happy inside as if Tina has slowly returned to her old self.

Only, in the past, she would demand "more kisses" more confidently.

No, it should be said that she has always been Tina, but now she has temporarily forgotten him.

Tina stays with Chandler until the evening before returning to Getting along better the Stephenson family with his escort.

Lina, concerned, asks her daughter, "How did you get along with Chandler today?"

"Pretty good," Tina says, "We should consider ourselves dating now."

Lina looks a bit strange because legally, they are already married and have a child. So they're only dating now?

"By the way, Mom, we've chosen a name for the child," Tina says, "It's Quinn Hunter."

"Quinn?" Lina pauses.

"Yes, Quinn. It's the name Chandler chose. I picked it from the names he suggested for the child, and I really like it," Tina says.

"That's a lovely name," Lina smiles, "Quinn, it's great!"

"Tomorrow, Chandler and I will go to register the child," Tina says.

They haven't registered the child yet because they haven't chosen a name.

In the following days, after registering the child with Chandler,

Tina, and Chandler would visit the hospital together every day. When Chandler was working, she would rest in his office and take a few photos of him with her phone.

She would also bring some school stuff to his office and look through them.

After all, she has missed too many courses, and when she returns to school, she'll probably have to start from the third year again.

Days go by like this, their interactions becoming more and more natural.

One day, Tina, in the office, looks at Chandler who is reviewing documents, and suddenly asks, "How did our first time making love happen?"

Chapter 4235 Does He Really Love Her?

Chandler's expression becomes somewhat stiff. The pen in his hand, which was signing documents, draws a long line on the paper.

"What did you say?" he looks at her, surprised.

"I say, how did our first time making love happen?" she asked, curious.

Chandler's expression seemed somewhat strange. "Why would you want to know that?"

“Why wouldn’t I want to know? After all, the first time making love is an important thing for anyone,” Tina said.

Chandler’s face showed a conflicted expression.

“What’s wrong? Did our first time happen when I didn’t want it to?” Tina speculated.

“No!” Chandler quickly denied it.

“So it did happen when you didn’t want it to?” Tina guessed again.

“No, it’s not that!” This time, the answer was slower than the last.

So Tina understood what was probably going on.

“So, it really did happen when you didn’t want it to?” she said.

“No, don’t overthink it,” he sighed, putting away the pen in his hand.

“Then tell me, how did it really happen?” Tina asked.

“It was because I wasn’t feeling well, and you wanted to help me, so we made love. For me, I didn’t feel unwilling or unwilling, but I just felt that we shouldn’t have rushed into it in that situation.” He felt sorry for her.

If he could, if he could have restrained the pain at that time...

“Because of a physical reason?” Tina pondered, “Were you drugged at that time?”

These past two days, she watched a web series where the male lead was drugged and then made love to the female lead.

Chandler pinched his nose. “It’s really not like what you’re

Does He Really Love Her?

thinking. It was because I wasn’t feeling well, and I wasn’t drugged or anything.”

It was just that the Hunter family curse had flared up, causing excruciating pain in his body.

And the only person who could make his body not hurt was her!

“But if you weren’t feeling well, and I made love to you to help, why does it sound like I’m some kind of beast?” Tina grumbled.

Chandler listened to her increasingly outrageous words and frowned. “Tina, never speak of yourself like that. Do you know how grateful I am to you? How guilty do I feel towards you? Originally, you could have had more choices, but you were confined to me.”

Confusion flashed in Tina’s eyes. “Why do I have trouble understanding what you’re saying?”

“If you can fall in love with me again in the future, then you will understand,” Chandler said.

Tina pursed her lips. In other words, he would only explain the things she didn’t understand, the things she couldn’t understand after she fell in love with him?

“What if I don’t fall in love with you?” she asked again.

Does He Really Love Her?

He smiled faintly. “Then you don’t need to understand the things I just said, right? If you don’t fall in love with me and want to end this marriage, you can do so at any time.”

If she truly couldn’t love him, then he could set her free.

He placed the choice in front of her with those words.

Tina felt a bit dazed for a moment, a wrenching feeling surging up once again.

Why, even though she feels that this man should love her, and everyone around them says that he loves her, why can he so easily give up their marriage?

Does he truly love her, then?

At this moment, Tina suddenly has this doubt!

Chapter 4236 Unexpected News

“Chandler, do you really love me?” Tina thought and asked.

“Hmm, I love you,” he answered without hesitation.

“Then why can you easily let go? Can you easily decide to divorce me? Or do you think that divorcing me doesn’t matter to you, that you’ll only feel a little sad and then move on?” Tina asked, puzzled.

The more she understood this man’s emotions, the more she felt like she couldn’t understand them.

Chandler chuckled self-deprecatingly. How could it be easy?

How could it only be a little sad?

It was just that this time, he didn’t want her to make her choice out of sympathy or a sense of responsibility towards him.

If the previous Tina made that choice because she loved him, then this time, he hoped for the same.

Once a person has experienced something good, they won’t easily accept something slightly worse.

This was also his last bit of pride and self-esteem.

“I’ll be fine. If you don’t love me, but still stay bound to me by age, miserable, and I don’t want to have a wife who doesn’t love me. So if you still can’t love me in the end, let’s get a divorce,” he said.

Tina frowned at Chandler, feeling that something was off, but she couldn’t pinpoint it.

And so, Tina and Chandler spent their days together. It couldn’t be denied that Chandler treated her really well and understood her well.

Even though she had lost her memory, her body’s preferences hadn’t changed.

What she liked to eat, drink, how she liked to dress, and what movies or songs she liked, Chandler knew them well.

The feeling of being with Chandler was comfortable and familiar...

Yes, it was familiar!

It was like a natural blending, a habit formed over a long time at a subconscious level.

For example, he would casually feed her fruits from the fruit bowl, and she would naturally eat them as if they were only natural.

This way of getting along also strengthened her attachment to him unconsciously.

Maybe falling in love with this kind of man really happened quickly.

Perhaps a year, or even half a year or a few months, was enough.

Tina thought this way.

After having a good meal with Chandler at a restaurant, Tina went to the restroom.

Her body was gradually recovering, and there was also good news from the hospital. In a few more days, Quinn would be able to be discharged.

Thinking of her daughter, Tina felt her heart surge with strong emotions. In her most difficult days, it was this child who accompanied her.

When she had always been trying to protect her child, it was also this child who supported her, allowing her to have some kind of belief in her heart even when she lost all her memories, without giving up on herself.

If it weren't for this child, she wouldn't have made up her mind to escape from the village.

And she wouldn't have been saved by Kit...

Kit...

When this name flashed through Tina's mind, a pain still struck her heart, just as intense as before.

"By the way, have you seen the news? It says Kit seems to be disabled."

"I saw a former idol star, who used to be so glamorous, but I never expected that he would become disabled after retiring. It's really sad."

The conversation between the two women reached Tina's ears.

Chapter 4237 Absent-minded

Tina suddenly froze.

The name Kit, she had been deliberately trying not to think about it during this time.

Because every time she thought about it, it would cause her immense pain.

It made her feel torn apart.

She used to see Kit as the only person she could rely on, but in the end, she discovered that it was a huge lie!

However, his kindness towards her was genuine.

He rescued her from the village, cared for her, and even saved her during the car accident!

But his deception made it difficult for her to let go.

1/4

If the accident hadn't happened, would she have lived her whole life under that lie as long as she didn't recover her memory, not even knowing that her parents were still alive?

She wouldn't know who the true father of her child in her belly was.

Her entire early life had been woven by Kit's lies.

time.

thany ade away with

These days, she had indeed been trying to do that.

But she never expected to hear news about him here.

Disabled?

He, who was once an idol star shining on the stage, had become disabled?

Was it because of that car accident?

Was it because he saved her that he became disabled?

Tina's mind was a mess.

As she walked out of the restroom and returned to her seat in the restaurant, Tina's mind was still occupied with thoughts of Kit.

"What's wrong with you? Your face looks so awful. Are you feeling unwell?" Chandler asked with concern.

Tina replied reluctantly, "I suddenly feel a bit tired and want to go home and rest."

"Alright, I'll take you back after dinner. Your body is still in the recovery period, so you really shouldn't overexert yourself," Chandler said.

Tina nodded absentmindedly, lowered her head, and continued eating her food, unaware that Chandler's gaze toward her had changed.

After finishing their meal, Chandler accompanied Tina back to the Stephenson family's house. When Tina was about to enter the front door, Chandler suddenly hugged her. "No matter what troubles you have, you can confide in me. I'll do everything I can to help you solve them."

"Why are you suddenly saying this?" Tina said uncomfortably.

"I just don't want you to have any worries," he said.

Tina paused for a moment, her head resting against his chest, feeling enveloped in warmth.

"Thank you," she whispered softly.

However, her troubles were something he couldn't solve!

After saying goodbye to Chandler, Tina went back to her bedroom and opened her phone, searching for news about Kit.

Sure enough, in no time, news about Kit's disability caught her eye.

It was said that Kit now lived alone in an apartment he had bought in Stasas, with one hand disabled and weak muscles.

Some people had seen pictures of Kit going to the hospital for rehabilitation.

Although the person in the pictures was wearing a fisherman's hat and a mask, covering themselves up completely.

But Tina could still recognize Kit at a glance in the pictures!

move,

There were several pictures where one of his hands could but the other hand just hung by his side, unless a healthcare professional helped him lift his arm, it would just hang there.

Did his hand really become disabled?

Tina stared blankly at the pictures on her phone, a pain that was hard to put into words surged up.

Chapter 4238 No Regrets

It was like sharp needles constantly pricking at her.

It turns out that Kit, this person, still caused her pain!

The online discussion about Kit's disability became a hot topic, but it only lasted half a day before people started to cool down the topic. Some speculated that it was Kit or his fans who intentionally cooled down the topic.

But Kit no longer cared about how others discussed him.

One arm was useless, he couldn't even perform simple lifting movements, and his fingers couldn't even grip anything.

Originally, all he had left was this body, and at least his body was still relatively healthy. But now, even this body had flaws!

Fortunately, when he met Tina, his body was still fine, at least letting Tina see the good side of him.

He was doing rehabilitation at the hospital's rehabilitation center. The doctors said that with rehabilitation, his arm and fingers might regain some functionality, at least being able to lift a little and grip simple objects.

Now, he only had his left arm intact!

But he had no regrets about his hand becoming like this to save

As long as Tina was safe and sound...

When Kit returned to the apartment, he saw his father sitting on the sofa.

This was normal, his father also had a key to the apartment. After he came back, he didn't change the locks, so naturally his father could come in.

"How pathetic!" Edmond mocked as soon as he saw Kit.

Kit remained indifferent. He had long been used to his father's ridicule.

However, he didn't expect his father to suddenly appear in front of him again. "Do you need something?" he asked.

"Do you regret it?" Edmond continued, "For a woman, you gave up your career, searched everywhere for her, and now you've become disabled. Do you regret it?"

"There's nothing to regret. It was my own choice," Kit said with a faint smile.

Yes, he never regretted it in his heart!

"You're still being stubborn?" Edmond frowned displeased. "Do you think your savings are enough for your rehabilitation treatment and future livelihood? As a disabled person, how will you earn a living?"

"That's my own business, you don't need to worry about it!" Kit said.

He was well aware that his father had no fatherly affection for him, only exploitation.

"If I weren't your father, do you think I would want to interfere in your affairs?" Edmond said angrily. "I can offer you a way out now. If you just listen to me and behave, you can live a good life."

As Edmond spoke, he placed a contract in front of Kit.

"This is a contract I drafted for you. There's a widow who owns a business, living alone now that her children are grown. She's looking for someone obedient and willing to be by her side. She saw you before and found you attractive, despite your disability. If you're willing to accompany her for three years, she'll give you 50 million dollars after that. With that kind of money, your future can be very promising."

Edmond pretended to have Kit's best interests at heart.

But Kit found it laughable. "So what do you gain from all this, dad?"

"What are you saying?" Edmond responded angrily.

"If there's no benefit for you, you wouldn't have come to me," Kit said coldly, staring at his father.

Chapter 4239 Rely on

Edmond didn't pay much attention to Kit's attitude.

"You're my son, don't you think I want you to live well? The way you are now, someone is interested in you. You should be grateful. If you serve that woman well, it will benefit both of us. Isn't that a good deal?" Edmond said without a trace of guilt.

"Serve her?" Kit suddenly laughed. "Unfortunately, I don't want to serve anyone anymore."

Once, he had sacrificed his pride and dignity to climb up the social ladder. He thought that as long as he could earn enough money, he wouldn't have to fear anything and wouldn't have to worry about returning to a life of nothing.

Now, he had some money, a house to live in, and could eat well every day. Compared to his days in the orphanage, life was much better.

But ironically, he still felt like he had nothing.

There was a void in his heart, a terrifying emptiness. He didn't even know why he continued living every day.

"You don't want to serve anyone anymore? Are you still thinking about that woman from the Stephenson family?" Edmond mocked. "Unfortunately, no matter how well you serve her, what good does it do? She still abandoned you, and now what have ing well, while you're disabled."

"That's my own business, and it's none of your concern!" Kit responded.

"Alright, it's none of my concern, huh? Well, I've said everything I wanted to say today. You better serve that woman obediently, or else you never know when your other hand might end up like your right hand," Edmond threatened.

Kit knew his father was trying to intimidate him. Perhaps for both him and his father, serving that woman would maximize their interests and make them wealthier in the future.

But he didn't want to live like he did before.

"We don't need to discuss this anymore. I also hope to never see you again," Kit coldly refused.

"Alright then, so you won't listen to me at all, huh? Well, don't think I can't control you anymore," Edmond said, raising his hand as if to strike Kit's face.

Instinctively, Kit closed his eyes, prepared to endure the blow.

He was already accustomed to this kind of thing.

As long as he endured, his father would eventually leave after venting his anger.

However, the expected slap never came.

Kil heard his father gasping for breath beside him.

Slowly, he opened his eyes and saw a figure standing in front of him. It was hard for him to believe his eyes.

It was Tina!

Tina had suddenly appeared before him and had even grabbed hold of Edmond's hand, preventing him from striking.

"Miss. Stephenson!" Edmond exclaimed, surprised.

"I never expected Mr. Ingram to show me something like this. To what extent can a father go to harm his own son?" Tina said coldly.

Edmond frowned, with the Stephenson family and the Hunter family behind Tina, he naturally couldn't easily offend them.

Therefore, after thinking for a moment, a smile appeared on Edmond's face: "I think Miss. Stephenson may have misunderstood. I just wanted to find someone for Kit to rely on, considering his disability."

"Is that so?" Tina sneered, "Then Mr. Ingram, you don't have to worry about this. Even if he is disabled, he doesn't have to worry about his livelihood. The Stephenson family can naturally be his support in the future!"

Chapter 4240 Rejection

As soon as Tina said this, both Edmond and Kit were shocked.

Kit, in particular, never expected Tina to say such words.

Rely on? Would the Stephenson family be his support?

He had deceived her so much, the Stephenson family would probably hate him very much, so how could they become his support?

Edmond awkwardly withdrew his hand and forced a smile: "Since Miss. Stephenson cares about our Kit like this, then I naturally have no objections. I have something to do today, so I'll leave now."

After speaking, Edmond left on his own.

In the apartment, only Tina and Kit were left.

Kit greedily looked at Tina. He had thought that he would never see her again, but he didn't expect her to appear in front of him like this.

It felt like an illusion!

Kit unconsciously reached out his hand towards Tina's face, wanting to touch her, wanting to confirm if she was real or if all of this was just his delusion!

However, just as his hand was about to touch her, she suddenly stepped back, instantly sobering him up like a bucket of cold water.

Kit slowly lowered his hand and looked at Tina with bitterness: "Miss. Stephenson, hello."

This "Miss. Stephenson" made Tina feel a difficult-to-describe discomfort in her heart.

In her memory, Kit used to call her "Tina." During their time in the small town, they were so close. She regarded him as her only family, her only love, her only support in this world.

But in the end, what destroyed all her feelings for him was his lies.

"I happened to be at the door just now, and since the door wasn't closed, I came in," Tina said, somewhat uneasily biting her lip.

Kit immediately explained, "I must have forgotten to close the door properly."

"You..." Tina's gaze fell on Kit's right hand.

She knew that his hand was disabled.

As if noticing where her gaze was, he said lightly, "It's just an inconvenience with one hand, but it doesn't pose a big problem in life. The doctor said that as long as I rehabilitate properly, I can still regain some function."

"Are you facing financial difficulties now?" Tina took a deep breath and asked.

Kit smiled bitterly, "Don't worry, I've been working for several years and have some savings. Life isn't difficult for me right now. I won't take up my father's proposal!"

Now, all he had left was just a bit of dignity.

"Did your father treat you like this before?" Tina hesitated and asked.

"Yes, he only saw me as a tool. I spent time in the orphanage until I was 8. If he didn't think I looked decent and could be cultivated, maybe I would still be in the orphanage now," he said.

Silence filled the air.

Kit continued, "I know what you said to my father about the Stephenson family being my support was just to help me. I won't take it seriously, so Miss. Stephenson can rest assured."

After a few seconds of silence, Tina said, "What I said to your father wasn't a joke. You lied to me, which is despicable, but you also saved me twice, once in the village and once during the car accident, so..."

"I refuse," Kit interrupted.

Sed expression.
