

Ex Convict 4281

Chapter 4281 Let's Not Meet Again

However, the more he spoke gently, the heavier she felt in her heart.

After the doctor bandaged Chandler's hand, they left the hospital.

"Don't let your hand touch water for a week, and remember to apply the ointment on time every day," Tina said.

"Okay," Chandler replied gently.

Tina pursed her lips, feeling this kind of tenderness again.

She didn't know when it started, but his tenderness made her feel a sting.

"Let me drive you back," she said.

"No need, I can go back on my own..."

Before he finished his sentence, she interrupted, "I'll drive you back, and there's something I want to clarify!"

Chandler remained silent, naturally understanding what she wanted to ask.

This time, instead of saying "okay," he silently followed her into the car.

Tina drove back to Chandler's villa.

Chandler smiled bitterly. Some things, even if he wanted to hide them, would eventually be discovered!

"Last night, the curse in my body was triggered. You know, I have a curse from the Hunter family, and the curse flares up periodically, just like what you saw yesterday."

Tina hesitated for a moment. "It's very painful, isn't it?"

"Yes, it's very painful. It can drive a person to lose control, be controlled by the pain, and even engage in harmful behavior," he explained.

"Is there nothing to alleviate the pain? Like taking painkillers?" she asked.

He looked at her intently. "No."

Actually, there was a way. If he held her during the pain, it would gradually disappear. But his desire for her would become stronger.

Perhaps then he wouldn't be able to resist having a Sual relationship with her.

If it were the old Tina who loved him, maybe he would use this method to alleviate the pain.

But not the current Tina. He wouldn't use this method!

Tina bit her lip. "So, you want the Quentin family to help you get rid of the curse?"

"Yes." He understood that she overheard his conversation with Lornell.

"Is this method very dangerous?" There was a trace of worry in her voice.

"It can be a bit dangerous, which is why I asked Lornell's grandfather for help. If he helps, there won't be much danger, at most a little discomfort," Chandler said nonchalantly.

"What kind of discomfort?" Tina asked.

"That's hard to say. After all, among the people of the Hunter family, there are very few who choose to remove the curse, and the results vary for each person," Chandler explained.

"What are the results for those in the Hunter family who remove the curse?" Tina couldn't help but ask.

But this time, Chandler didn't answer. He simply said in an indifferent tone, "We are divorced now, you have no connection to the Hunter family anymore, and this is the Hunter family's privacy."

Tina was stunned. It was the first time she clearly felt Chandler drawing a line between them.

"Alright, do you have any other questions?" Chandler looked at Tina calmly.

"No," Tina said.

"Then you should leave now," Chandler said. "Also, Tina, don't come here anymore in the future. If it's about Quinn, you can contact me by phone. If you need anything, I'll have someone pretend to be good friends after the divorce in front of Tina, we can, but until then, let's try not to meet privately!"

Chapter 4282 Not Understanding Him

When Tina left Chandler's villa, she felt an indescribable exhaustion throughout her body.

Shouldn't they avoid meeting privately until he removes the curse?

Although she was the one who initiated the divorce, why is she the one feeling lost now?

Chandler hasn't told her what happened to the people from the Hunter family who caused the curse, which makes her uneasy.

She feels like things aren't that simple.

In fact, there is a simpler way to remove his curse and relieve his pain.

That is to have another child between them!

As long as they have the umbilical cord blood and placenta from the child, the problem can be solved.

But he rejected this condition that she proposed at the cost of divorce.

He said he didn't need her to have another child because of this.

When he refused this condition, she was relieved at that time.

Can she just let him suffer like this, and let him be tormented by the Quentin family?

When Tina returned to her residence, Lina rushed to greet her. "Did you stay at Chandler's place last night?"

Although she received a call from her daughter last night, saying that something came up and she wouldn't be coming back to sleep, their relationship is not the same as before, so it still worried her for a night.

"Yeah," Tina replied.

"But didn't you two get divorced? Why did you stay at his place. for a night?" Lina asked curiously.

"He got injured, so I... stayed with him," Tina hesitated and gave a reason.

"Injured?!" Lina was shocked. "Where did Chandler get injured? Is it serious?"

"He cut his palm with gla*s, the doctor has treated it, it's just a superficial wound, didn't affect his hand nerves," Tina explained.

"That's good." Lina breathed a sigh of relief, but then she became puzzled.

Just because Chandler injured his hand, her daughter stayed with him for a night?

The current Tina is not the same as the past Tina who deeply loved Chandler! Why would she stay with him? Did something happen?

But since her daughter didn't say anything, Lina chose not to ask.

After all, she will be a solid support for her daughter when she needs it.

As for Chandler's situation, Tina couldn't let it go, so she made an appointment with Harley.

"Tina, why did you suddenly ask me out for dinner?" Harley asked strangely.

After all, since Tina lost her memories, they only met at some family gatherings and would talk about some past events.

But they never met privately.

"Do you know about the Quentin family since you and Lornell are engaged?" Tina asked openly.

"Not really," Harley answered truthfully.

Tina paused for a moment. "I heard you and Lornell have been engaged for many years."

"Yeah," Harley said. "The engagement was arranged when I was 3 years old."

She smiled sweetly as she spoke, saying that it was Lornell who insisted on saving her, which is why she survived.

Otherwise, she might not be in this world right now.

he Quentin family is a member of the Crypt families. I only know that the Quentin family is highly skilled in medicine, but I'm not sure to what extent. I only know that when I was three years old, many doctors said I couldn't be saved, but when the Quentin family came to save me, I was saved!" Harley said.

Chapter 4283 Encounter

After hearing what she said, Tina didn't know whether she should feel fortunate or not. The Quentin family's medical skills sounded really high.

But the art of using Gu worms is already elusive. Can the Quentin family really help Chandler successfully?

"Tina, why are you suddenly asking about the Quentin family? Are you thinking of asking the Quentin family to help you regain your memories?" Harley asked.

"Huh?" Tina was taken aback. "Can the Quentin family help me regain my memories?"

"I don't know. I just said it without thinking. But the Quentin family has rules. If they are to save someone outside of their family, that person must be able to provide conditions that satisfy the Quentin family!" Harley said..

The reason why they were willing to save her back then was all thanks to Lornell.

It was because Lornell was willing to engage with her, making her half a member of the Quentin family. That's why the Quentin family was willing to save her!

Conditions that satisfy them? Tina hesitated.

regain her memories, would she be able to remember everything about loving Chandler back then? Would she no longer have this conflicting and torn feeling?

Or would she be completely disappointed in Chandler because she would know that all his kindness was just a disguise, all with a purpose?

"Tina, what are you thinking?" Harley's voice rose.

"Nothing," Tina said, lowering her gaze gently.

If it really was with a purpose, a disguise, then why did he voluntarily say during the divorce that he didn't need her to have another child for him?

Isn't that contradictory?

Tina was thinking about her own affairs and didn't notice that Harley suddenly fell silent, looking towards the entrance of the restaurant.

At this moment, a group of people entered through the restaurant entrance, both men and women, and the most eye-catching among them was Lornell.

"Lornell, you're really amazing. The surgery you demonstrated today is textbook level. Even the professors praised you!"

"No wonder so many girls in our medical school chase after Lornell. I'm even thinking of chasing after him!" a guy said.

"You give up on that. I think Miss Bird is the most suitable for our medical school. Miss Bird is the school flower of our medical school, after all!"

"Stop making fun of me!" Eva said shyly, but her eyes clearly glanced at Lornell.

Anyone could tell that she liked Lornell.

And yet, Lornell didn't say anything. Although he didn't agree, he didn't refute either, as if he silently accepted it.

This made those people tease even more.

Harley lowered her head, no longer looking at that scene. She felt a bit uncomfortable seeing it.

All along, although she and Lornell had an engagement, only the close friends and relatives of the Hart family knew about it, and it was never publicly announced. Lornell also never introduced her to those friends who didn't belong to the Crypt families.

Sometimes, she even wondered if there would be nothing between them if they didn't have the engagement.

"Hey, isn't that Lornell?" Tina's voice rose.

Harley was startled and saw Tina looking towards Lornell.

"Hmm, I think he and his classmates from the medical school came here to eat," Harley said.

"Do you want to go and say hello?" Tina asked.

Chapter 4284 Pretending Not to Know

"No, it's fine," Harley awkwardly smiled.

Lornell actually didn't want his friends to know about her existence. In all these years, besides a few from the Crypt families, she hadn't met anyone else.

He never introduced her to his friends.

"Tina, I'm almost done eating. I'm going to leave," Harley said uncomfortably.

Tina glanced at the food on the table, thinking, "Hasn't he eaten much? He's almost done?"

However, before Tina could react, Harley had already hurriedly stood up and left.

"Harley!" Tina couldn't help but shout.

Her shout caught the attention of Lornell, who was originally sitting at another table.

Lornell looked up and glanced in Tina's direction. Then, his gaze followed the hurried figure that was leaving, and his eyebrows unconsciously furrowed.

"Nothing," Lornell replied, retracting his gaze as if he hadn't seen anything.

"So, what do you think of Eva?" another classmate teased.

The atmosphere suddenly became lively.

Tina watched the lively scene at Lornell's table and suddenly understood why Harley had left.

Even though they were engaged, Lornell didn't seem to have any intention of getting up after seeing Harley leave. Moreover, the people around Lornell were clearly trying to match him with another girl.

It was as if those people didn't even know that Lornell had a fiancée!

Or maybe Lornell simply didn't take this engagement seriously, so he never mentioned it to the people around him.

And naturally, those people didn't know.

The engagement of the Crypt families?

Tina suddenly thought of her own engagement with Chandler.

If Chandler had originally agreed to the engagement because of the curse of the insects...

Harley?

Was it just to save her life?

But this answer, only Lornell himself understood.

Tina lost her appetite and glanced at Lornell's table before leaving.

After finishing her afternoon classes, Harley was about to go to a nearby bookstore when she saw a gathering of people at the school gate, apparently discussing something.

"This car is a limited edition. Not many people in Emerald City can afford it!"

"Who are the people inside? What kind of department are they from? Hopefully, it's a handsome guy!"

The discussions of the people around intrigued Harley, and she looked towards the center of the crowd.

However, with just one glance, her footsteps suddenly stopped.

It was because the limited edition car that everyone was talking about was a car she was very familiar with.

It was Lornell's car!

Is Lornell in the car right now?

Thinking about the scene in the restaurant earlier, Harley's hand couldn't help but tighten around the strap of her backpack.

it's best to pretend they don't know each

T!

With that in mind, Harley turned away and walked in the opposite direction, no longer looking at the car.

Just then, she suddenly heard a familiar voice behind her: "Why, no greeting for me?"

Chapter 4285 Looking for Her

Harley paused, turning around in surprise when she saw Lornell coming out of the car and walking towards her.

"How did you..." she was a bit confused.

Weren't they supposed to pretend they didn't know each other? Why was he taking the initiative to greet her?

"I came here today specifically to find you. Are you planning to ignore me and leave?" Lornell walked up to Harley and said.

"You're looking for me?" she blinked, not quite understanding. what was going on.

He looked at her bewildered expression, furrowing his brow slightly, and grabbed her wrist. "Get in the car, let's leave this place."

After all, he didn't have time to explain here and be watched by the people around.

Harley was led into the car by Lornell, and the car quickly left the school gate, leaving behind a crowd of onlookers still marveling at the scene that just happened.

After all, Harley was known as the princess of the school's entertainment circle.

of the national film and television industry, and her father, Brian Hart, could almost be called the emperor of the entertainment industry.

There were rumors that because Harley liked a star when she was a child, that star received resources that would be almost impossible to obtain in this lifetime. Just because of her words, he got famous nationwide.

One could imagine the position the Hart family held in the entertainment industry. Therefore, many stars wanted to get to know this little princess of the Hart family.

After all, if they were lucky enough to be noticed by the little princess, they would have a smooth sailing-career in the entertainment industry, gaining both fame and fortune.

"Could that person just now be some kind of celebrity?" someone speculated.

"Unlikely, most celebrities can't afford such a car." someone else said.

"Could it be an heir of some wealthy family?"

"But if a wealthy heir like that is so handsome, they would have been trending already."

Various discussions were going on, while Harley sat in Lornell's car, trying to guess why he suddenly came to her school today.

"Did you see me in the restaurant at lunch today?" Lornell asked.

"Yes," Harley replied.

"Why didn't you say hello?" he asked.

"Your classmates were there, it wouldn't have been appropriate for me to approach and greet you," Harley explained.

"What's inappropriate about it?" he countered.

She hesitated for a moment, then bit her lip lightly. "Alright, I understand. Next time I see you, I'll come and say hello."

If she didn't mention their engagement and just introduced herself as his friend, she should be able to greet him. He probably meant that too.

"By the way, how did you end up with Tina?" Lornell asked again.

"What's so strange about me being with Tina?" Harley retorted.

"She lost her memory, so you shouldn't have any connection with her. Isn't it strange that you had a meal with her at the restaurant?" Lornell said.

"Tina asked me out for a meal today and asked me some questions about your family," Harley said.

"My family?" Lornell raised an eyebrow.

ty, and I just mentioned some things that everyone knows. But later on, we talked about recovering her memory. Oh, by the way, can the Quentin family help Tina recover her memory?"

Lornell pondered for a moment and said, "If there is a forceful stimulation, perhaps it will be possible."

Chapter 4286

Fiancée

ing the

"So, Tina's memory..." Harley was very excited.

“However, if there is forceful stimulation, there are risks and potential damage to the brain’s nerves. So, it’s not a very good method,” Lornell said.

Harley’s eyes dimmed. “Even if someone from the Quentin. family intervenes, there would still be risks?”

“Even if the Quentin family’s medical skills are excellent, it doesn’t mean there is no risk. Medicine is never a hundred percent certain,” Lornell replied.

“I just hope Tina can regain her memory. If she does, maybe there’s still hope for her marriage with Chandler,” Harley said.

“When did you become so close to Tina?” Lornell asked.

Because Tina and Harley had a 5-year age difference, they didn’t often play together when they were younger.

Although they frequently had family gatherings due to the close relationships between their families, Harley mostly played with Trista, who was closer in age, and Jasmine.

“But I have a good relationship with Tina too. Plus, if it wasn’t Engagement to Chandler, which piqued your curiosity, we wouldn’t have gotten engaged,” Harley said.

This matter was something she accidentally overheard adults discussing when she grew up.

However, after hearing it, she felt a sense of relief.

Yeah, otherwise why would he have proposed to her?

At that time, she was just a 7-year-old child, and he was only 3. Their first meeting couldn’t even be called harmonious.

But he voluntarily proposed to her, partly out of compa*sion, wanting to save her, and partly out of curiosity about what it feels like to be engaged to someone.

It was just a child’s curiosity that bound the fate of the two of them together.

Lornell didn’t deny it, which made Harley feel uncomfortable. She then gave a bitter smile. Wasn’t this already clear?

Even though they had been engaged and spent so many years together, he actually didn’t have any feelings for her.

“By the way, where are we going?” Harley asked curiously.

“Since we didn’t make plans for lunch, let’s say hello in the evening,” Lornell said.

It wasn’t until half an hour later that Harley finally understood whal Lornell meant by that.

Looking at the medical students in front of her, Harley felt very embarra*sed and unsure of what to do.

On the other hand, Lornell confidently introduced everyone,

“This is my fiancée, Harley. These people are my classmates from medical school.”

Lornell began to introduce each of those classmates.

The group of classmates stared at Harley in astonishment. After a while, someone asked, “Lornell, you have a fiancée?”

“Yes,” Lornell replied flatly.

“When did that happen?” someone else asked.

“It’s something from our childhood, our engagement, it was decided when we were young,” said Lornell.

“So, it’s like an arranged marriage by parents? What era is this? How can they casually arrange an engagement like that?” a voice rang out, it was the school beauty that Harley saw being teased at noon.

Eva was the one most affected by Lornell’s words just now.

Chapter 4287 The Reason for the Introduction

Because she’s beautiful, she has always been adored by everyone.

And because she comes from a good family, her standards are naturally high. There are not many men in school who can catch her eye.

Lornell is one of them.

Although she doesn’t know much about Lornell’s family background, from his clothing brands, the car he drives, and his daily spending habits, she can naturally guess that he must come from a wealthy family.

Someone who comes from a good family has exceptional medical skills, and is praised by many professors naturally makes her heart flutter. And most importantly, Lornell’s appearance is undeniably attractive, his face alone has won the hearts of many women in the medical school, even without any other additional conditions!

Someone even created a ranking of the most heartthrob male students in the school.

And Lornell is in first place.

1, She naturally likes the best one!

Therefore, when the classmates teased, she didn’t refute, but instead hoped to take the opportunity to establish a relationship with Lornell.

But she didn’t expect Lornell to suddenly bring a fiancée.

At this moment, when Eva said this, those who usually had a good relationship with Eva began to agree.

“Eva is right, this is an arranged marriage by parents!”

“Is this just a joke between the two families? Isn’t it supposed to be about freedom in love now?”

“Lornell, you didn’t actually take this engagement seriously, did you?”

These words made Harley feel inexplicably ironic.

Especially that girl named Eva, her gaze towards her made her feel extremely uncomfortable.

“I did take it seriously,” Lornell said calmly, “this engagement was decided by our two families, both families have already approved it, is it still a joke?”

Everyone was stunned, they didn’t expect Lornell to take this matter seriously.

“But even if you’re engaged, you’re still being forced,” Eva said

Violate your wishes and arrange an engagement for you?”

“Who said I was being forced?” Lornell said, “This engagement was my decision, it was me who decided to get engaged to Harley, that’s why our families arranged the engagement!”

These words once again left everyone stunned.

Lornell decided?

And Eva looked even more incredulous.

“Alright, let’s end the introduction here,” Lornell asked Harley to sit down and handed her cutlery, “eat whatever you want, if there’s nothing you want, then let’s order some dishes you like.”

“No need!” Harley said, “I’ll just eat what’s already been ordered.”

She said that and proactively started eating the food in front of her.

Lornell didn’t say anything else.

After the meal, Harley could hardly remember what she ate, she only remembered that Lornell helped her cut the steak and poured her a drink.

At this moment, her mind was filled with the fact that he introduced her to his cla*smates.

He directly told his cla*smates that he has a fiancée!”

The feeling of joy flows through her veins like a stream, spreading throughout her body.

After finishing their meal, Lornell accompanied Harley back home.

On the way back, Harley asked, “Why did you suddenly introduce me to your cla*smates today?”

"You're my fiancée, it's convenient to use you as a shield against their gossip," Lornell casually replied. "Otherwise, they would constantly try to match me with someone else!"

Chapter 4288 She Was the Only

One in Love

Harley suddenly felt a sense of disappointment. His words were like a bucket of cold water, extinguishing the excitement she had felt.

It turned out that he didn't really want to introduce her to his classmates. Her existence was just a shield.

"Do you not like that girl named Eva?" She bit her lip and asked.

Lornell smirked and replied, "No, I don't like her."

"In that case..." She paused, gathering all her courage, "Do you have someone you like?"

"No," his answer was expected, but it still hurt when she heard it.

What was she hoping for? Did she expect him to say that he liked her?

Their engagement was never based on his feelings for her.

She fell silent for a moment and suddenly said, "If one day, you meet someone you like, we can dissolve the engagement."

Lornell raised an eyebrow, and a hint of surprise flashed in his and she thought you would ask me to like you. Are you trying to dissolve the engagement?"

Harley self-deprecatingly replied, "We've known each other for so many years. If you were going to like me, you would have already. Since you haven't, it's unlikely you will in the future. So, the only way I can repay you is by dissolving the engagement when you find someone you like,"

"Do you think dissolving the engagement is a repayment for me?" he asked.

"If you want any other form of repayment, just tell me. You saved my life, and if it's within my abilities, I will repay you. If it's beyond my abilities, I will find a way!" she earnestly declared.

However, her serious attitude made him feel somewhat displeased in his heart.

She looks like she could abandon their engagement at any moment.

"Have you thought about the consequences of breaking the engagement with the Quentin family?" he asked.

If the engagement was so easily made and broken, he wouldn't have made it with her all those years ago, when he wanted to save her life.

Because it's the Crypt families, certain rules must be followed.

Was the Only One in Love

Rules must not be broken! It's the Quentin family's principle.

"I know, the Quentin family's rule is to take back what they have given!" Harley replied.

"So when we made the engagement all those years ago to save you, are you planning to compensate the Quentin family with a life if you want to break the engagement now?" Lornell stared at her.

"It doesn't have to be a life, it can be a compensation similar to what you did to save me back then," Harley said.

"Then what do you think would be a similar compensation?" Lornell asked.

Harley remained silent, not saying anything.

Lornell said, "Since this engagement was made between you and me all those years ago, let's just continue like this. After all, I don't have anyone I like, and the Hart family matches the Quentin family's status, so marrying you won't be a problem."

"Even if you don't love me, is it okay to marry me?" Harley said.

"It's okay, you love me, don't you?" he smiled.

She felt a bitter taste spreading in her throat. Yes, she liked him... he always knew.

In this engagement, she was the only one who liked him.

He Haver felt the kind of liking for her, he just thought she was suitable, that's all.

But if she wasn't the daughter of the Hart family if she didn't have the surname Hart, would he even spare her a second glance?

Chapter 4289 Not Going to Be Happy

Harley also smiled, "So if I don't like you anymore, you won't uphold this engagement, right?"

"Well, let's talk about it when you don't like me anymore." He said, reaching out to rub her head. "What on earth is going on in that head of yours?"

Harley didn't say anything more, just kept her head down.

What's going on... she's thinking about how to make him like her, thinking that even though they have an engagement, it seems like no matter what she does, she can't bridge the distance between them.

Even if he doesn't like her, he can still fulfill this engagement.

But is this the kind of marriage she really wants?

The marriage she imagines is like her parents' marriage, warm and loving.

With just a glance, they can understand each other's thoughts, and sometimes, even during arguments, there's a sweet atmosphere in the air.

Mother's legs are not good, so father often massages her legs.

Even though the father can be stern and cold outside, when facing the mother, he becomes gentle and takes care of her meticulously.

She envies this kind of love, but deep down she also understands that maybe she will never have this kind of love in her lifetime.

The car arrived at the entrance of the Hart family mansion, and Harley got out of the car. "Goodbye."

"Okay, goodbye," Lornell said casually, bidding her farewell.

The car quickly drove away from the Hart family mansion. Harley entered the house and saw her mother sketching in the living room, while her father casually sat, flipping through books.

They just sat there, but it felt like a warm breeze was surrounding them.

Without even looking at her mother's sketchbook, she knew that her mother must be drawing her father.

She had once curiously asked, "Mom, you always draw Dad, don't you get tired of it?"

And her mother's reply was, "No, not at all. I still feel like I can't capture him enough."

"But painting the same face over and over again, isn't it all the same?" If all the portraits her mother had done of her father were stacked up, they could probably fill a warehouse.

"If you truly love someone, you will never feel it's enough," her mother said with a smile. "And I love your father very, very much."

How envious she was...

At this moment, Harley once again sighed with such emotion in her heart.

"Harley, you're back. Have you had dinner?" Valda looked up at her daughter.

"Yeah, I've eaten," Harley replied.

"Did you eat with your classmates?" Brian asked.

"I ate with Lornell," Harley said.

Brian looked at his daughter and suddenly asked, "Did something unhappy happen to you?"

Harley was startled. "No, nothing happened."

"If there's something unhappy, just tell your parents. Even if you have an engagement with the Quentin family, there is still room for remorse," Brian said.

Harley understood her father's meaning: "Dad, it's always said that love is between two people, but can a marriage last if only one person loves?"

Her sudden question surprised Valda.

Brian, however, seemed unsurprised as he said, "Maybe it can, maybe it can't. After all, there are so many people in this world, and each person's marriage is different. But I think the person who loves will never feel happy. Even if such a marriage lasts until old age, it will never truly be happy."

Chapter 4290 Plan

Harley smiled and said, "Mom, Dad, you two are lucky. At least you love each other. I envy you guys. Well, I'll go upstairs first! I've been in class all day today, so tired."

Harley pretended to be relaxed and went upstairs.

Valda looked at her husband and suddenly asked, "Do you intend to cancel the engagement with the Quentin family?"

After all these years of marriage, they could already guess a little from each other's words.

"I do have that intention if Harley is willing," Brian said.

After all, everyone could see how much their daughter liked Lornell.

It was just a pity that Lornell never had much affection for Harley, always showing indifference.

Brian once thought that Lornell, at such a young age, was willing to use an engagement to save Harley, which must mean he had some liking for her. But later he realized that Lornell was just curious about what it would feel like to have a fiancée.

Even so, Brian never regretted allowing the two children to make the engagement. After all, if they hadn't arranged the engagement, the Quentin family wouldn't have saved Harley.

Maybe Harley

"Why did you suddenly think of breaking the engagement?" Valda asked curiously.

"I thought it through. I should say it's because I saw Tina and Chandler get divorced," Brian replied.

The Hunter family was also a member of the Crypt families. They saved the lives of Lina and Tina, and that was how the engagement was established. But in the end, Tina and Chandler ended up divorcing.

"That's because Tina lost her memory!" Valda said.

"But apparently, she doesn't love Chandler anymore. So even if Chandler still loves Tina, they will still be separated," Brian said. "And now, Lornell doesn't love Harley either. So in the future, they will separate inevitably. Instead of waiting to get married. and then divorced, it's better to end this engagement early."

"But you know the rules of the Quentin family!" Valda said.

“Yes, if you take something, you have to give something in return. The Quentin family saved Harley’s life, so in the future, repaying the Quentin family with an equivalent favor would be enough,” Brian said.

“But who repays a favor with a life?” Valda felt that her husband’s words were equivalent to saying nothing.

“The Quentin family has been looking for a medical book. And recently, I got some information about that book. Maybe if we find that medical book, it can be considered as repaying the Quentin family’s favor,”

Valda pondered. If it’s a medical book that even the Quentin family hasn’t found, then it could indeed be considered a great favor.

“But will Harley be willing to do so? She has always liked Lornell so much.”

“I wouldn’t do it if that’s not what she wants!” Brian said. “But she asked that question today, so I believe she must have such thoughts.”

“That’s why you answered her that way?” Valda said.

“Not exactly. Whether she wants to break the engagement or not, I would answer her that way. Love is between two people. Even if one person tries hard, it will ultimately be in vain,” Brian said.

“Not necessarily,” Valda said. “Back then, wasn’t it me who fell in love with you first, and then you gradually fell in love with me? Perhaps if we wait a little longer, Lornell will also fall in love with Harley.”

After hearing what Lornell said, Brian’s eyes filled with deep affection. “Thank you for not giving up on loving me back then!”
