

Ex-Wife 1895

Chapter 1895

Meanwhile, Renee had unplugged the infusion tube and left from the window ages ago. She was making her way to the island where Adie was. She knew that the others wouldn't let her leave the hospital in her current condition, but there was no way she could stay there and leave Adie alone during a hurricane. Both Adie and Abby meant more than her life to her, and she had to protect them no matter the cost.

However, Renee was only human, and humans were weak in the face of natural disasters like this. The speedboat she had rented for an exorbitant price had almost been overturned by the strong winds several times, and her compass started to malfunction halfway through. She could only rely on her instincts moving forward. The downpour drenched her and soaked her bandages, tearing her recently healed wound. She almost fainted from the pain. 'My son needs me... I have to hold on!' Renee told herself, biting her lip so hard to stay conscious it started bleeding. She looked up at the sky and yelled desperately, "Take me away if you must, but please don't hurt my child!"

After soldiering through such a torturous journey from midnight, dawn came. The hurricane stopped, and the sky started getting brighter. Renee finally saw the silhouette of the island in front of her, and teared up in excitement. Adie, wait for me. I'm almost there!"

She smoothly docked the speedboat at the island, then walked around the island until she found a cave. Its entrance had been blocked by a landslide. Maybe it was due to her bond with her son, but her instincts told her that Adie was trapped inside the cave. She started digging at the dirt at the entrance, which felt like solidified cement after being soaked in the rain for a night. As she kept digging, her fingernails broke and her fingers started bleeding, staining the dirt red.

'Adie, are you in there? Talk to me if you are!' Renee shouted as she dug, trying to motivate herself.

On the opposite side of the dirt, Adie, Stefan, and the others had collapsed and were dying in the cave. After a night of downpour, the cave was almost filled with rainwater, and Stefan and the captain had to hold the children up high to save them from being drowned. However, the oxygen in the cave was thin, and the two children were on the verge of fainting.

After holding Adie up the whole night, Stefan felt like he was about to collapse. "Adie, wake up. You can't sleep! Stefan tried to keep Adie awake.

"Ugh!" Adie clung to Stefan's shoulders, looking dazed. "Daddy, I'm so sleepy. I'm going to sleep now. If you see Mommy, promise me you won't fight with her, okay?"