

Fall for You 995

Chapter 995

Cosmo chuckled lightly, "Not bad, truly worthy of being my son. Indeed, I did send someone to follow you. I heard that the Cameron family is very eager to meet Timothy."

Maxim's expression was icy, "What do you want?"

"Don't worry, I won't do anything. However, if you want Timothy to help the Cameron family, only I can make it happen. I've known Sean for so many years, it's no big deal to help him out. It's just a pity... you had to get involved with Briana Cameron. Because of that, I have no choice but to put this on Sean's account."

Maxim clenched his hand tightly, coldly saying, "What do you want me to do with this phone call?"

originally wanted you to get engaged to Aurora, but then I remembered how you tricked me last time by using the Vanderberg family to steal the key. You continued to act as you pleased afterwards, so I dismissed the idea."

"I said, apart from Briana Cameron, I wouldn't be with any other woman!"

Cosmo laughed nonchalantly, "You're still too young, I guarantee, you won't last long with her."

Maxim hung up the phone directly, radiating a chill all around him.

He would definitely stay with Briana Cameron forever, he would absolutely never let go of her hand.

He called the secretary in, Maxim said coldly, "Contact Timothy, I want to see him!"

An hour later, the secretary walked into the office with a grim expression, knocking on the door.

'Mr. Yoder, Timothy declined, and from what I gathered, he's already planning to take on the Kingly Group case."

Upon hearing this, Maxim's face turned incredibly ugly. He said coldly, "Where does he live? I'll go find him myself!"

After receiving the address from the secretary, Maxim drove there directly.

When arriving at Timothy's doorstep, Timothy had just returned.

Seeing Maxim, he raised an eyebrow, his expression was not exactly pleasant.

"Mr. Yoder, if I remember correctly, I have already explicitly rejected your secretary. It would be inappropriate to keep pestering me, wouldn't it?"

What he hated the most was being forced to do things he didn't want to do.

If the Cameron Group had approached him first, he might have taken on their representation. Unfortunately, he had already planned to collaborate with the Kingly Group.

Maxim's expression was indifferent, "Mr. Smith, I just hope you could give the Cameron family a chance."

Timothy sneered, his eyes full of mockery, "There are so many people suing me every day. If I gave each one a chance, wouldn't I have been exhausted to death?"

"I knew you weren't the kind of lawyer with a sense of morality, doing things entirely as you pleased. How about this, let's make a bet, shall we?"

Timothy frowned, declining outright, "Sorry, I don't like to bet with others."

Maxim curled his lip, "Did Mr. Smith think he would lose, so he didn't want to bet?"

"Mr. Yoder, reverse psychology doesn't work on me. I've already decided to collaborate with Kingly Group and won't consider any other companies."

"I originally thought that Mr. Smith merely had his own personal style, but it turns out he simply has no boundaries. How is such a person fit to be a lawyer?"

Maxim's contemptuous tone made Timothy's face change color, and his gaze became incredibly cold.

"Mr. Yoder, speaking ill when you didn't achieve your own goal only makes people think you can't take a loss."

"Mr. Smith, you should be well aware of how many illegal and criminal activities Kingly Group has committed behind the scenes, yet you still choose to assist them. This proves that you are nothing more than a money-grubbing individual with no sense of morality or boundaries. Your existence as a lawyer is an insult to the law. I assure you, you will regret this within three days!"