

A FAREWELL AFTER BEING REBORN

Chapter 284

Chapter 284

Wanda's expression changed drastically when she heard that. "Are you moving out, Mrs. Holcomb?"

"Yes. Ian and I have agreed to divorce, so I can't stay here anymore." Sage then extended an invitation. "Wanda, you could resign and come with me when I've bought a house and moved in."

Initially, she had planned to move back to her grandfather's place. However, her grandfather's suburban home was too far away from Farsight Investment.

Since Sage had to start work soon, she decided to buy a house near the company. It would be more convenient that way.

Wanda seemed nervous after she heard that. She hurriedly asked, "What did you just say, Mrs. Holcomb? Aren't you and Mr. Holcomb getting along well? Does Mr. Holcomb know you're going to move out?"

"I'll tell him," Sage said as she motioned for the movers to accompany her upstairs. She didn't think she had a lot of belongings.

She had previously asked Wanda to get rid of a bunch of clothes, and from the remaining ones, she chose a few new pieces and favorites. The rest were jewelry, handbags, skincare, and cosmetic products. Even though she didn't take everything, she still filled several suitcases.

Sage couldn't possibly carry it all by herself, so she had to call for help. She felt a bit sad when the movers carried her belongings downstairs.

When she got married, her grandfather was afraid that she would be mistreated, so he sent her off with a few cars full of clothes, shoes, hats, bedding, and all kinds of furniture and appliances.

Yet, she could only take so much with her now that she was leaving. No matter how she looked at it, it felt like a loss. Fortunately, she had purchased quite a bit of jewelry and gold with Ian's money, so she wouldn't leave empty-handed like the tragic heroines in the movies and television shows.

"Mrs. Holcomb, can't you discuss this with Mr. Holcomb after he gets back?"

"Thank you for looking after me all this time, Wanda. Please take some time to think about what I've told you." Sage then walked out the door.

The movers had their own vehicle, and her belongings were loaded into it. Sage told them to deliver everything to a hotel in Haldon. Her grandfather was still mourning Thomas' passing, so she decided not to go back and upset him.

Sage drove her own Maserati to the hotel. As she arrived, her phone rang. she noticed it was Ian calling and figured Wanda had called him. Sage didn't want to deal with him at the moment, so she silenced her phone.

Sage booked a business suite at the hotel and had someone move her luggage upstairs. She felt much more relaxed as she laid on the hotel's large and comfortable bed. At the very least, she could be considered a half-free woman. The single life she was looking forward to was about to begin.

Sage wanted to share her joy with Tiana. But just then, her phone started beeping. Ian had sent her a few messages, asking why she had moved out of Solaris Estate. What other reason could there be?

"We're getting divorced. Of course, I have to move out."

*Sage Joyner, are you that eager to get divorced?"

"What's this? Are you still not willing to get a divorce?"

*Move back to Solaris Estate. We'll talk about this when I return. I'll offer you 10 million dollars in alimony." Even though she wanted the money, she found his request meaningless.

"Why should I? I'll have to move out anyway."

"20 million dollars."

"Woah, he's really going all out," she mused.

Sage immediately called Ian. "Why are you insisting that I move back to Solaris Estate? Tell me. Otherwise, I won't accept it."
