

ALMIGHTY FATHER SYSTEM

Chapter 7: Daddy's Molding A Car Is Online.

The next day, Lily and Snow left for work and Leo was left alone at home, again. The young man finished his physiotherapy and sent off the attendant before he went to the garage thinking about how to become a streamer.

Another thing that he needed to think about was what would he stream? As he was pondering on the question, he looked at the clay before him and decided to stream some pottery and clay sculpting.

He downloaded the app, and turned on the streaming app, he positioned the camera at his workstation and hid his face. In the garage there was a table that has become his workstation.

Leo started streaming, but he did not get much traffic, not that he expected the channel to explode from the get go and started kneading the clay.

A teenage girl was scrolling through the new stream channels to kill boredom when she found a pair of hands kneading the clay very skillfully. The visual effect was very satisfying and after watching it for a few seconds, she checked the name of the channel and chuckled.

Her roommate was also bored and asked, "Ting, what are you watching?"

Ting replied, "There is a channel and the person is kneading clay, I think, but the channel name is so funny."

The friend leaned over and asked, "What is it?"

Ting replied with a smile, "Daddy's Molding A Car."

The other girl also smiled and she said, "Ask him what he is doing."

The girl opened the comment section and sent a message.

Leo was kneading the clay when he heard a notification sound and found a viewer on his channel. He was surprised but when he saw the question floating on the screen, he replied, "I have some skill for pottery and clay sculpting, so I thought about streaming and earning money. Thank you for coming over, well, how about this, since you are the first viewer, I will sculpt something that you like. Tell me."

...

Ting and her friend were surprised, she looked at her friend and then replied, "Sculpt a butterfly."

Leo looked at the prompt and replied, "Okay, I will explain to you what I am doing as I sculpt. If you like the stream then please like the channel, after all, I have to buy my daughter a car."

Then he began to use various tools from the kit and began to tell the girls what he was doing. The two of them were captivated by the moves, and the slow but satisfying process of how an irregular ball of clay was turning into a butterfly. Leo said, "You see, the clay I am using is called air dry clay, the sculpture will dry in a few minutes when left alone, and then we can color it, and in the end, two coats of resin spray will preserve the paint and add gloss to it."

...

Ting saw the whole process and began to communicate with the comments. Leo did not hide anything, he told her where to get the clay and the things that someone should keep in mind when they are just starting with it.

Ting's friend asked, "Ask him how he got into it."

Leo made something up, "I used to be a naughty child, and many times broke my mother's precious china vases, and sculptures. So, one day as a punishment she got me into the classes to understand how much hard work is put behind this, and so that's how I got into it."

While they were talking the butterfly dried and Leo picked up the paints to color the butterfly, and then sprayed resin on it. He used a blow gun to dry the resin quickly and showed it to the camera.

Ting's friend said, "Ask him if he is willing to sell it to us."

Ting said, "We should give him a gift, and then ask in a nice way, Ellen. He is a new streamer, and asking him to give his work to us is not nice."

Ellen nodded in agreement.

Leo was looking at the butterfly when he saw a notification on the screen. A flower bloomed there, and a text appeared, 'Ting gifted you with a flower.'

Leo was surprised and said, "Thank you, for your gift. It means a lot. Please subscribe to the stream so you can receive a notification in the future, and if you come back next time, I will make something you ask me to."

That said, he was about to disconnect the stream, when Ting asked, "Host, would you be giving away the things you make in the future?"

Leo smiled and said, "Yes, when I reach a thousand subscribers, I will give away the first ten objects I made for free."

Ting commented on 666 and Leo disconnected the stream and went inside the house to have his lunch and order more clay for his future streams and also ordered a kiln to brisque.

Leo went inside the house and ate his lunch. The rest of the day was boring, in the evening Lily and Snow came back home. The warmth of the family was a precious thing for Leo and he loved when Lily would come home and tell him about how her day was, and what she learned and chat with him.

Snow was resting beside them and asked, "Honey, how was your day? We both go out and you stay at home. Are you not bored?"

Leo smiled and replied, "No, I am not bored, today I started to stream my pottery and sculpting skills on the Star Chaser Platform."

Snow was surprised and asked, "That is a surprise, what did you make?"

Leo smiled and pointed at the butterfly on the table. Lily was surprised and Leo said, "Baby, you can play with it but be careful. It is a give away gift. When I reach one thousand subscribers, I will give it to one of them."

Lily nodded and inspected the butterfly before she said, "Baba, I also want to learn this."

Leo smiled and replied, "Well then on Sunday I will teach you."

Lily cheered and after dinner the trio turned in.

In the national university, Ting was talking to her friends about the stream. The girls found it very childish, but when Ting played the video they found that it was interesting.

Many heads bowed and looked at the screen while they heard Leo talking slowly. At this moment, one person came over and asked, "What is going on here?"

Ting raised her head and said, "Good that you came, Mel, can you inspect this video and tell us something about it."

Ellen on the side replied, "Oh, yeah, Mel is learning ceramics. She must know how much of what this guy said is true."

Mel was a blonde and could be called beautiful. She was pursuing fine arts, and was forced to audit the video. However, shortly after, she exclaimed, "The heck where did you find this guy? Do you know who he is?"

Ting shook her head and said, "No, I don't know, it just popped up on my feed when I was scrolling, is it bad?"

Mel shook her head like a rattle and said, "No, this is good, so good that even Ivan would have to work hard to match the standard, here see this."

She began to tell them about what she perceived from this video and said, "It is very helpful and enlightening to me. Give me the link to this room, I will subscribe and learn from him to flex at my classmates."

Ting and the rest of the girls chuckled before the former told Mel about the give away, and Mel said, "Girls, I think we all should subscribe to his channel, even if you are not learning pottery or ceramics, you will find it very soothing to watch. This is almost like therapy."

Then Ting shared the link and all the people began to subscribe to the channel one after the other, and the word spread. The video was shared in their family groups as well.

The elders at home loved watching such things, and they easily subscribed to the channels as well.

In the morning, Leo woke up, took the delivery of the clay and asked the people to set up the electric kiln in a corner. The website was very efficient, they delivered the goods within twelve hours, and the quality also did not have a low standard either.

In the afternoon, Leo turned on the stream and he was surprised when he found that he gained hundred subscribers in a night. After thinking about it, he mumbled, "Maybe it is the protagonist halo."

Then he sat down on the chair, and began streaming for the day. Same as yesterday, he pointed the camera at the workstation and kneaded the clay while waiting for the people to join the stream. He wondered what the people would ask him to make today.

Ting received a notification, 'Bing: Daddy's Molding A Car Is Online, Join the stream now!'
