Chapter 1041 Love the girl

The thought of this made Jocelyn's eyes red.

It's really a shame that a father who loves children so much and looks forward to the birth of his grandson and granddaughter doesn't even get a chance to hug them once after they are born.

The only time they met, the children were still inside the incubator and no one else could even touch them.

She thought that it would be a pity for her father, wouldn't it?

The more she thinks about this, the more messy and broken Jocelyn emotions becomes.

Soon, she was in tears again.

Tears blurred her vision and she recalled, again, the little moments she had with her father, from childhood to adulthood.

Her father was really good to her.

She's the daughter her father loved from his heart.

A good father like that had gone without ever having enjoyed her dutifulness properly.

Since then, she has never had a father.

When she came home, there was no longer anyone, sitting on the sofa, smiling at her while elegantly sipping tea.

There is no one, any more, to be her family.

She became an orphan.

A fatherless and motherless orphan.

If she could, how she wished it was all just a joke played on her by the gods.

If it were possible, she would have been a dream.

Woke up from a nightmare, opened her eyes and her father called and told her to come home for dinner.

Back home, there was her father, with his kind and smiling face, and his fatherly admonitions full of love.

Once upon a time, she always felt that her father was nagging.

Noah, "In his eyelids, a transparent cyst identical to yours was found."

Hearing these words, Jocelyn's heart, at once, throbbed hard once again.

Identical hyaline cysts.

Then it stands for father was also poisoned by that spirit!

That also means that her suspicions really might be correct.

It's Connie.

It must be her!

In this moment, she felt even more guilty.

Heartbroken and unable to breathe.

Blame it on her.

When Connie suddenly appeared in the first place.

So easily, she had promised her father that the two of them would be together.

If she hadn't said yes, it wouldn't have turned out so well.

She really regretted it, so much.

At the time, she should have tried desperately to stop it.

Yes, in this world, everything is for sale.

Money can buy many, many things.

But the only thing you can't buy is a pill of regret.

Thinking of this, Jocelyn's heart, at once, jerked hard.

Looking at Jocelyn in such a state, Noah's heart once again felt aching.

He instantly sat down beside Jocelyn, carefully cupping her face, his thumbs caressing her delicate flesh, and said, "Jocelyn, don't be like this. I know what are you thinking. "

"But it's not your fault." said Noah again.

"I must make Connie pay in blood!" Jocelyn added, "It must be Connie, she was the one who poisoned both me and my father together after she appeared!"

Two babies suddenly started to develop rapidly.
From frail and sickly to fat and healthy in three seconds.
The children are still covered with a golden glow.
The cave was still as white as day.
Here the picture ends.
Her eyes were dark.
She wanted to keep reading.
Mostly she wanted to try and see if she could see the Lena Fox and exactly where it had gone.
Yet, nothing could be seen.
Her eyes, as they were, have not evolved.
Just the experience of being able to see something, but not much more of the rest.

Seeing this, Jocelyn's heart full of anticipation disappeared.

All that remained was a full-on shock.

Her two children are really superb!

"Jocelyn, did you see something?" Noah knew that Jocelyn was doing something.

Jocelyn then told Noah and the others exactly what she had seen.

Noah and Ghost Face, two people who already knew a lot of things, were not too shocked at this moment.

But Allie, who was exposed to the world of metaphysical fantasy for the first time, was a different story.

She was like someone who had just entered the city and found everything so new and shocking.

If it weren't for the fact that she had heard so many impossible things today, Allie would never have believed that this world, in fact, really existed in the world of metaphysical fantasy.

Jocelyn frowned deeply, "We don't know, but both Noah and I are in debt."

"And it seems like in a previous life we did a lot of things to him that went too far, so in this life, he's here to collect his debt." added Jocelyn.

"So, you and my son knew each other in a previous life?" Allie's eyes were still full of shock, but her voice, however, was kept low.

To avoid, being overheard outside.

Although the place is well soundproofed, so as long as the door is closed and you talk, no one outside can hear you.

However, she still felt that it was better to be careful.

Jocelyn nodded.

"Anyway, there's going to be a lot of stormy days in our world," added Jocelyn.

Jocelyn's words fell, Allie's eyes went from shock to horror.

She then drew a cold breath and added, "What should you do then? Is there nothing that can be done to avert the holocaust?"

"So now what has happened to your father, and the children, is because of the Lena fox collecting a debt, right? Now that someone has died because of it, and you've tasted the pain, can it be over?" Allie asked.

Ghost Face was full of unfathomable eyes, "I'm afraid that everything is just beginning."

Allie, "You knew it?"

Ghost Face, "Yeah, just the time is not right. Who owes the debt, who pays. No one can replace, or stop."

Allie instantly was worried about Jocelyn and Noah.

And the same goes for Jocelyn and Noah.

Everything, it's just beginning.

And what next, that Lena Fox, will do?

"So what should we do, really just sit back and wait for death to happen?" Allie asked.

Ghost Face, "We'll see."

The whole world is gloomy and windy with heavy snow, covering the sky.

The sudden change in weather caused Allie's eyes to fill with consternation, "Could it be that the weather outside has something to do with that person?"

After all, it's too much of a coincidence.

He went away in mysterious ways, and immediately afterwards, that was it.

Noah, who had seen the metaphysical images from Ghost Face before, was as steady as a mountain, with no ripples in his eyes.

And the same goes for Jocelyn.

Although she wasn't sure exactly what was going on, she knew it had to be because of Ghost Face.

"Yes." Noah said.

Jocelyn's mind was unruffled.

For everything, as she would expect.

And Allie, who had just come into contact with the world of mystical fantasy, was surging inside at this moment.

Everything today has really made her question her life in her mind countless times.

If it were the old days, someone had told her that there could be someone who would make the weather change suddenly.

Then she certainly wouldn't believe it.

Shee would even silently spit out in her mind that the person was a psychopath.

But now, she realises that in this world, anything is possible.

What humans know is really only the tip of the iceberg.

In fact, there are many more exaggerated things in this world.

It's just that, for ordinary people, it's out of reach.

"It must be the one he asked for help from showed up." guessed Noah.

"What is that?" Allie asked, "Could it be a god?"

Noah responded indifferently, "I don't know."

Ghost Face is a man of excessive mystery, making it completely impossible to guess.

Chapter 1046 How Did She Die?

Looking at such Jocelyn, the eyes of Noah and Ghost Face all reddened at the side.

Noah knelt down on one knee and carefully wiped Jocelyn's tears while saying, "Jocelyn, don't be like this, Dad hates to see you cry, have you forgotten?"

A word that once again stirred up memories of Jocelyn's past.

She was about seven years old when her father took her to experience life in the countryside.

On the third day of her visit, she became ill and had a high fever.

But in the village, it was not easy to get around, and her father did not drive.

She cried all the time because of the pain of her illness.

Her father was so distraught that he carried her three miles through the night to the town and found the hospital.

She was impressed that it was snowing heavily that night, with a gusty north wind.

Her father went out in a hurry.

He had only dressed her in thick clothes, but he himself had forgotten.

He was wearing just a plain winter loungewear suit.

The cruel north wind, wrapped in crisp snowflakes, kept lapping at their two fathers and daughter, and her father, who was freezing cold but still insisted, carried her to the hospital.

When she arrived at the hospital, she was fine, but her father was freezing in the face.

To this day, she cannot imagine just how much her father suffered at that time.

From a young age, her father protected her well.

When she needed protection, her father was always there.

But she may not always be around when her father needs someone.

Thinking about this, she felt even more that she usually did not care enough for her father.

If she could, she would really like to turn back the clock and go back in time.

That way, she wouldn't have to spend so much time on her work.

She would spend most of her time, for the most part, with her father.

If she could turn back time, she would not have let her father go back that day in the ward, so soon.

At least see and talk to your father more often.

At the time, she really wasn't in the mood because of the babies and neglected her father.

The more she thought about it, the more Jocelyn's heart ached.

"Suddenly died a violent death without any reason, and now the coroner came over and is investigating the cause of death." Tom said again.

Such an ending was not expected by anyone.

Allie, Jocelyn and Noah's eyes were filled with consternation.

"After you check it out, tell me." said Noah, and then he pressed hang up.

"She just died after what she put us through." Jocelyn snorted coldly.

She wanted to have skinned that woman.

It was so unsettling that she died like that.

She originally wanted to learn some clues about the location of the Lena Fox from Connie.

But now, it's all broken off.

Perhaps it is destiny.

A lot of things are really doomed.

No, she can do whatever she wants.

Lena fox's plan, not implemented to the end, she should not be able to find.

But she won't give up the struggle.

She wants to change her fate against the odds.

She could not allow that more tragedies like her father's would follow.

The pain of losing a loved one is enough just this once.

And aside, Ghost Face's eyes were filled with consternation.

All this was that Ghost Face didn't expect.

At that, he instantly took a step back, and then said, "The trail is broken again."

After saying that, Ghost Face was helplessly letting out a long sigh.

"Could it be that the Lena fox has shown itself?"

Ryan and his group, until noon, reluctantly, left the house.

In the end, only Jocelyn, Noah, and Scott and Allie were left inside the house.

In the nursery, Scott looked at the two children and loved them.

One hug for this one, one hug for the other.

Allie and Noah, likewise.

Jocelyn stood by, watching them, the corners of her mouth unconsciously curving up into a gentle curve.

It was lucky to have them around these days, so she had the pleasure of being cured so.

Especially the children were the cure for everything.

Because they were there, she wanted to be better.

Also because of the presence of her children, she knew all the more that she had to take care of her body and not let her grief completely break her down.

A woman is soft, but a mother is strong.

The picture of a warm and harmonious family in front of her made Jocelyn feel warm and fuzzy.

She would really like, if she could, for it to stay in this moment.

She coveted this warmth.

Do not want to be broken.

Seeing that Jocelyn had been standing there, Noah was distressed.

He then carefully picked up Jocelyn horizontally and said, "You can't stand for too long."

Jocelyn once again felt warm and fuzzy inside, "It's okay, I'll be able to move around normally."

Instead, Allie immediately shook her head, "No, still need to minimize some activities, you are still weak."

Looking at the family in front of her, Jocelyn silently vowed in her heart that in this life, she would do everything she could to be good to them.

"By the way, can I play with my phone?" Jocelyn asked cautiously.

During this time, she was not allowed to play with her mobile phone and controlled very strictly.

Allie says playing with mobile phones while recuperating can fall ill.

Many times, she feels like a schoolboy.

Allie thought seriously for a few seconds and said, "Yes, but don't play for too long, three or five minutes."

Jocelyn smiled, "Okay."

She thought for a moment that if she could do this, in exchange for Allie's love, then she would be willing to do so.

Soon after, Allie had the phone in her hands.

Jocelyn first switched on her phone, after which she opened Weibo.

Intend to receive something new.

As someone who tweets every day, not being on Weibo for a month straight made her feel as if she had been out of touch with the world for a long time.

When she opened Weibo, she saw her two children in the hot search with Ryan, #Ryan post Jocelyn's twins#

At this point the topic is in the number one spot on the Hot 100.

Clicking in, she then saw Ryan's tweet at the top.

He tweeted a total of two photos.

In the photo, the two children are cute and soft, with snowy skin, just like half-breed dolls.

Below the tweet, the comments exceeded eight million.

The amount of attention given to the two children is evident.

The presence of these two children has enriched her life and made her world, in turn, much warmer.

Suddenly thinking of her father, Jocelyn's mood, again, sank.

She let out a soft long sigh and looked at Noah and they said, "I want to go out for a trip. can I?."

The funeral of her father took place after a caesarean section.

The daughter herself is not even present.

The entire process was handled by the Mason family on her behalf.

Now that she is out of hospital, it is time to go and see her father.

In fact, originally, she wanted to wait until she had recuperated before burying her father.

But Ghost Face says no.

It said that it would affect her father's fortune for the rest of her life and might even cause him to become a lonely ghost.

She pressed for specifics and Ghost Face refused to say anything, only insisting that she bury her father on the day she had said.

He also said that she was determined not to go to her father's burial.

There was nothing she could do but listen.

She could disregard anyone's words, but not Ghost Face's.

He was never an ordinary man.

Every word he says is based on something.

Now she thinks she's really more sorry for her father.

As a father buried, her daughter was never there.

As soon as Jocelyn opened her mouth, Noah knew that she was going to do something.

He nodded at once, "I'll take you there."

Jocelyn nodded.

The two have lived long enough to have developed a tacit understanding in such respects for a long time.
