Chapter 1051 Melting Everything

The person who called was Tom.

Noah then pressed answer -

On the other side of the phone, on the top floor of the Griffin Group, silence reigned in the large conference room.

All the top brass in place.

Tom stood next to the main seat and carefully said to Noah on the other side of the phone, "Mr. Mason, the top brass are all in place, when will they come over for the meeting?"

At these words, Noah frowned slightly, glanced at his watch and said faintly, "Today's meeting is cancelled."

Tom, "But..."

Aren't there important decisions to be discussed at the meeting today?

Noah, "I need to stay with my wife."

After saying that, Noah hung up the phone.

The voice on the other side of the phone, in the quiet conference room, was extraordinarily clear.

Those who were close to Tom, at this moment, all heard it.

In an instant, the entire conference room was in an uproar.

These days, their chairman has already lost count of the number of meetings he has missed on an ad hoc basis for the sake of his wife.

People really do change.

Once upon a time, the man who treated time meticulously has also changed.

While the crowd looked at each other, they could not help but admire the chairman's wife in their hearts.

As a bystander, the executives who have watched them all the way to where they are today genuinely feel that Jocelyn is not a simple woman.

In the end, the steel that has been refined has been turned into the softness of the fingers.

It transformed Noah into a form they didn't recognize at all.

The cots are all the same, simple white models with hanging, pink, blue and different coloured wind chimes.

The two children, at this moment, are constantly looking at the couple.

The pure look in their eyes seems to melt everything.

The moment she saw them, Jocelyn felt her heavy heart which seemed to have relaxed a lot all of a sudden.

These two children are her medicine.

No matter how painful it is, it seems that the sight of them makes it that much better.

The moment their eyes met, both children smiled brightly towards her.

That smile, too, instantly melted her heart.

She thought to herself that the children were so lovely and she really needed to be there for them as they grew up.

From today onwards, she's really going to try to sort out all her grief, get fit and take care of her bodies.

Only then will she have the strength to ride out the storm even more.

Only then will it be possible, in good health, to be with them for a long, long time.

Taking a deep breath, Jocelyn picked up Lawrence, his body was very soft.

She was very rusty and seemed careful because she rarely held children.

She really didn't dare to move around much for fear that she might break his bones.

The child in her arms is like the ultimate fragile treasure that must be cared for.

Seeing this, Noah immediately and carefully held Lawrence's head in his hands, helping Jocelyn to switch to a comfortable way of holding him.

After holding him steady, Jocelyn then carefully placed her forehead against Lawrence's forehead.

Chapter 1053 The Lights Go Out

And since the two women had agreed, the Noah had nothing more to say.

Anyway, the Mason family motto is that the wife is the most important.

And the best way to be good to his wife is to make her happy.

As long as his wife is happy, it doesn't matter what they do.

What's more, Noah is not averse to living with his parents, and Scott can't bear to leave his grandchildren.

"Come, come, let me hug Lawrence." Scott smiled as he hugged Lawrence, looking cautious.

The moment the two looked at each other, Lawrence once again revealed a sweet smile.

That smile made Scott, who wanted to give him his whole world.

He really didn't know how in this world, there could be two such lovely children.

little angels.

Smart looking and cute!

Hugging Lawrence, Scott was eager to hug Madeline again.

These two children, he really can't get enough of looking at them and hugging them.

"Jocelyn, let's swap, I still want to cuddle Madeline." Scott added, with a bit of urgency under his eyes.

Even Scott, who has been in the market all his life and has experienced countless storms, and whose joy and anger do not appear in his face, will always break in a second when facing these two children.

Immediately, Jocelyn smiled and exchanged children with Scott and took Lawrence in her arms.

And when Allie saw this, she couldn't help but say, "Jocelyn, let me hug Lawrence, really too cute, you go rest, go rest."

Instead, Jocelyn shook her head and insisted, "I want to hold them longer."

Seeing this, Allie then let out a long sigh of disappointment and looked at Scott with pity, "Let me hug Madeline."

Scott seriously refused, "You have hugged for a long time. It's my turn. No, definitely not."

Outside, in a moment, the storm clouds changed.

And the sight of Jocelyn and Noah began to turn dark.

The whole space is out of reach.

Jocelyn subconsciously wrapped her arms around Noah's neck.

Is it the Lena fox who have come? Why so perverse?

Noah, on the other hand, was holding Jocelyn tightly, not daring to let go.

In the darkness, the man's brows tightened as he looked around warily.

Soon the whole world turned from darkness to light.

The sudden brightness caused the two to squint.

Immediately afterwards, Jocelyn saw a book and a necklace placed at the top of the last step, not far from herself and Noah.

The end of the necklace is set with a red gemstone.

A simple and elegant style of necklace.

Jocelyn was stunned.

And at that moment, a flash of consternation flashed under Noah's eyes.

He then quickened his pace and carried Jocelyn down the steps.

And then he was careful to place her on the floor, and then he picked up the necklace and the book.

The book is one that they often see inside costume dramas, a very classical book.

The necklace is gorgeous when viewed up close.

Inside that ruby, faintly visible, a red glow surges.

What is it?

Jocelyn and Noah instantly glanced at each other.

"How can this be? Just now the heaven and earth suddenly changed drastically, is someone to send us something on purpose? What exactly is the person? What exactly do these things mean?" "Honey, open the book and take a look at it," Jocelyn added.

Noah did not say anything, just frowned deeply and opened the book.

Inside the book, the paper is a dull yellow and looks somewhat old.

The faint, aged smell of paper still lingers on the top when opened.

On each sheet, it is blank.

Throughout the book, neither Noah nor Jocelyn saw anything in it.

Jocelyn, "I think that this person should have something to do with the rose birthmark on the back of our children's hand."

Noah, "Yeah."

Jocelyn, "So, I think, what she said is true, my gut feeling, too."

"Yes." said Noah, still shying away from words and looking thoughtful.

Looking at Noah's appearance, Jocelyn's eyes, at once, had a few more probing moments, "What's wrong?"

Noah gently wrapped his arms around Jocelyn and squeezed the wordless book in his hand, saying, "It just feels like getting weirder and weirder."

Jocelyn nodded slightly, with a bit of melancholy under her eyes, "Yeah."

Really, it gets weirder and weirder.

"What did she mean when she said she could help you and me at a critical time?"

"Could it be that what is dense inside the necklace is actually magic?"

"At the critical moment, what is sealed in here, will come out to help us?"

"What about the wordless book and what does that mean? This book does not look like it carries a fairy aura, much less any use."

"Could this be a secret book of martial arts, or cultivation into a mystical book? A key moment that will appear inside the book to read and let you learn some powerful magic instantly?"

"It, apparently, only knows you."

Jocelyn continued.

Noah thoughtfully narrowed his eyes, the emotions under his eyes obscure.

"Maybe." After a moment, he said.

And it was at this time that the scent of roses once again hit the nose.

The woman's voice once again sounded, "Do not continue to guess. The book is Noah's, the necklace is Jocelyn's."

With that said, the rose scent, once again, disappears.

And the woman's voice, too, is completely gone.

"Who are you? The Rosary God, right?"

Jocelyn couldn't hold back her curiosity and asked again.

And still no half-hearted response.

"North, why is it a book? I've really never seen that anyone have a book as a pendant. Won't this pendant break if you sweat or get water on it?"

With that said, Allie curiously stretched out her hand to see what was going on.

But just at that moment, she suddenly felt herself being violently electrocuted.

Immediately afterwards, a mysterious force pushed her hand away.

"Ah." Allie subconsciously whimpered in shock while taking a few steps back.

Her delicate hands, electrocuted, hurt.

Allie realised at once that something was wrong with the pendant.

Knowing a lot of things about the metaphysical world, she understood in an instant what was going on.

She instantly gave Jocelyn and Noah a deep look.

In unison, the two shook their heads towards her, signalling her, for now, not to speak or ask.

And Allie understood in seconds and didn't say a word.

Even if they both didn't, she wasn't going to, in the presence of so many people, say anything about it.

Seeing this scene, Scott immediately went forward and put Allie's hand into his own and repeatedly looked at it, "What's wrong? Where does it hurt?"

Allie immediately drew back her hand, "Nothing, it's just that Noah probably carries static electricity on his body."

Scott frowned deeply, "So that's how it is."

Scott then doted and lightly rubbed Allie's hand a few times and said, "Scared the hell out of me."

The lovey-dovey scene made several baby-sitters, who were watching, envious once again.

The two people who have been together for so many years, yet still have the same feelings as before.

Many times, they feel that Scott loves his wife more than a man in love with him in the heat of the moment.

This is really going to make people envious to the point of jealousy.

Allie, "Leave me alone, go see your grandchildren."

Scott nodded obediently, and then he went straight back to Madeline and Lawrence.

At this point in the nursery, all but Noah and the children were frozen in place.
It was as if the computer had a pause screen on.
Allie immediately walked up to Scott in shock and gently touched his face, asking, "What is going on?"
Immediately afterwards, Allie was terrified.
At this point Scott, with his full body, was also breathing like a normal human being.
Just nothing reacted, not moving or smiling, as if petrified.
In the next second, Allie became anxious and red-eyed, "What the hell is going on with Noah?"
Even Allie, who had experienced so much, could not be calm at this moment.
How can people suddenly become like this?
And Jocelyn instantly and walked over to Scott and touched him.

Immediately afterwards, Jocelyn's eyes, too, had anxiety written all over them.

Noah frowned deeply, "Don't be nervous. It will be fine soon."

Allie, "What does it mean?"

Noah slightly pinched his brow, "Just now I went through what Jocelyn and I went through, I think you should be very clear, that person came back over after you left, gave two children, respectively, a necklace."

"Probably so as not to scare the others, so she chose to petrify them for a while, and if my maths is right, three minutes, my dad will wake up."

"What?" Allie was filled with stunned eyes as she looked at Noah, the story was really getting metaphysical!

She also really admires these people who can do magic and do whatever they want.

Allie and Jocelyn then shifted their gaze to the two children.

Chapter 1058 Wanting To Be Jocelyn

Only after watching them all go did Jocelyn let out a completely long breath.

She thought Scott was not that good at fooling around.

But she didn't expect it to be so easy.

Turn her head and look at the baby-sitters.

At this point they were all too busy watching the children.

It looked like everyone was muddled through.

"Honey, go back. it's time for you to get some rest." Noah said as he naturally put his arm around Jocelyn.

Jocelyn, however, looked at the two children and said, "But I still want to, stay with them longer."

Noah seriously frowned, "No. You have not rested for a long time, the body is important."

Jocelyn, however, immediately took Noah's hand carefully and said gently, "Honey, please, let me stay here for another half hour, okay?"

Noah, "No."

The man's tone was overbearing and not to be denied.

Instead, Jocelyn immediately put on a pitiful expression, "Hubby."

Ever since he met Jocelyn, Noah has had three greatest fears.

Firstly, Jocelyn cries.

Secondly, Jocelyn is not happy.

Thirdly, Jocelyn plays pity.

As soon as, she did one of them, then he would immediately surrender with both hands.

With a long, helpless sigh, Noah raised his hand and gently stroked her hair, "Okay, Jocelyn, what do you think I should do with you?"

When she pouted, his heart softened.

As soon as his heart softened, he began to take what he wanted from her.

He would even give her his life.

"For those who don't know, they think these two have just fallen in love."

"Noah is cold to everyone but Jocelyn, doting on her."

"He's actually going to give Jocelyn a massage, my perception has been refreshed once again!"

"I suddenly feel now that my life is a failure!"

"Me too, just ask who doesn't sigh so much when they see Jocelyn?"

The baby-sitters talked about it.

Once the discussion was over, everyone let out a long, helpless sigh and returned to Madeline and Lawrence.

At this moment, looking at the two little figures, facing a world without a single owner, they once again spoke freely -

"These two children are truly adorable and combine all the best qualities of their parents."

"I have found that people who are favored by the heavens are really extraordinarily lucky, look at Jocelyn, once she is pregnant, she has twins."

After discussion, everyone got back to work in earnest.

On the other hand, inside the guest room across the hall, Scott sat thoughtfully on the bed with a worried frown after taking a shower.

And when Allie, who had also just finished her shower, saw this, she immediately walked over to him while gently rubbing the expensive skin care essence on her face, sat down and asked, "Honey, what's wrong with you?"

Scott frowned deeply, "Wife, do you think I'm, like, about to get Alzheimer's?"

The man's eyes were full of unease.

Hearing this, Allie instantly asked, "What do you mean? Why do you think so?"

Jocelyn then hugged Noah tightly and said, "I won't have that kind of time, I believe your parents, and they won't let me suffer."
Noah, "I know, just in case."
He knew his parents' temperament, but, just in case, he still wanted to talk to Jocelyn about it.
At no time did he want Jocelyn to have any internal aggression.
What's more, she doesn't want to be condescended to by anyone who puts up with her.
Not for him, even less for his parents.
Jocelyn, "I get it, in fact if that did happen, I'd put up with it for you."
Noah, "The woman that I protect with all my heart doesn't even need to put up with me, so why should she put up with anyone else?"
At these words, Jocelyn once again felt, inwardly, at peace.

A warmth that kept flowing through her heart made her feel as if the air was sweet.

She smiled and continued to hug him tightly, "You're really unlike everyone else, I think, I've had a treasure."

Noah, "I'm the one who found the treasure."

His wife is gentle and beautiful, self-reliant, virtuous and sensible.

There is nothing to nitpick.

The best woman in the world.

Jocelyn, "Okay, let's go to bed."

Noah, "Okay."

Soon the two were in dreamland together.

Perhaps because, at home, the king-size bed is more comfortable and the two of them sleep unexpectedly well.
