Chapter 31 He Shines

Jocelyn didn't bother to talk her, walked around her and went straight upstairs.

Gloria was just about to chase after her and continue her taunting, but her phone rang and the browser pushed her a news item about Ryan.

However, the headline blew her mind, "Ryan will attend the opening ceremony of Faraday Apartments tomorrow!"

Gloria was completely baffled, her eyes full of disbelief.

Jocelyn had only paid 8 million for the endorsement, and as a rule, Ryan would only cooperate with the company to take photos and videos, and would not even be there to help promote the event in person.

What was the situation now? What made her idol agree to do that? She was getting jealous again.

A vague worry began to swim in her heart, what if Ryan went and the whole property was bought by the fans?

But on second thought, she thought it was impossible.

The Faraday Apartments was a high-end residence, not so many people could really afford it.

Even for a top-notch celebrity like Ryan, the number of tycoon fans he had was probably still a small minority, so what could a few fans do?

Thinking of this, she felt confident again.

Calming down, Gloria suddenly thought that it might be fake news, so she went to Weibo.

Her topic was still number one on Weibo's hot search list, and the sight of it made her feel prickly, wondering how long the person who was trying to screw her up.

Under her hashtag, it was #Ryan's opening ceremony for Faraday Apartments#.

The fans at the scene all went crazy, each screaming and completely losing their minds -

"Ahhhhhhh!"

"Ryan! Ryan!!!"

The moment she saw Ryan, Gloria's eyes instantly lit up, and the excitement in her heart was completely overwhelming.

It had been a long time since she had been to see him live, and she felt that her idol was handsome, and this look of his today was really so provocative and handsome!

Her heart was completely flooded with excitement.

With music and screams, Ryan began to sing along with the music while dancing close to a female backup dancer.

The extremely dynamic rhythm and the extremely provocative movements caused the fans on stage to shout extra loudly.

Everyone's enthusiasm was high.

Jocelyn off stage was equally infected by the atmosphere in front of her, and her mood also followed the excitement, and she began shouting along with the audience.

At the same time, #Ryan Dancing# became the second most popular topic.

The entire topic was filled with short videos of Ryan dancing.

After the dance, the backup dancers retired en masse, and Ryan stood panting in the middle of the stage, followed by "The World is Beautiful with You".

The cheers from the stage became more and more ferocious.

Ryan smiled lightly and made a no-sound gesture to the stage, and the next second the whole world fell silent.

Allie smiled in satisfaction, and then quickly took out the small mirror from her pocket and carefully checked her make-up.

After making sure it was okay, she looked at her friends and asked, "Do you guys see that my makeup and clothes match are really okay?"

"Yes." A noblewoman said.

Only then did Allie lead the way with confidence, through the sea of people to Jocelyn's side.

"Beauty, we want to buy the house." Allie said bluntly, her mouth all smiles, the excitement in her heart could no longer be concealed.

Jocelyn immediately put her eyes on several of them, and with just one glance, she felt that this group of people were extraordinary and noble.

Especially the one she was talking to, she felt that she was good looking, no matter if it was her skin and body or her face, she must have been a great beauty when she was young.

"How big do you want to buy?" Jocelyn asked with a smile, looking at them politely.

"We all want the biggest." Allie said without thinking.

"The biggest one is five hundred square feet, and it's all in this one building. Come with me and take a look." Jocelyn acted generously and decently.

With these words, she led Allie and her group to the side of the building model, and Gloria quickly followed.

Turning on the laser pointer, Jocelyn pointed to a building in the middle of the model and said, "This is the one, this one belongs to the king of the buildings, the feng shui is first class and the greenery around it is the best in the whole district."

Looking at her face up close, Allie was even more satisfied. Her skin was so delicate that she couldn't even see her pores, and her features were flawless.

And how come her voice sounded so nice? It was so soft that it made her feel comfortable.

"Then let's take this building, I want to buy it." Allie said without thinking.

The moment Allie said this, the scene immediately fell silent, everyone put their eyes on her face, and many people showed a look of disbelief.

"I want this one."

"I want this one."

"This one for me."

"I'll take this one then."

The four people scrambled to be the first to say, not thinking at all.

Jocelyn was now increasingly unable to believe that everything in front of her was real. What the hell was going on? So many people were coming over early in the morning to buy one building after another?

How come all the rich people are still gathering today? It must be because of the good publicity and the good location of her property? Was that why the rich people want to buy it for investment?

That was the only possibility.

With a heart full of joy, Jocelyn took them to sign the contract.

Afterwards, they paid and left.

Each of them behaved neatly and without any delay.

On the other side, Gloria was so angry that she couldn't speak at all.

In just a short while, she had watched Jocelyn sell nineteen buildings, a huge step towards that goal of hers.

Was Jocelyn really going to make it? How could God be so against her?

After Jocelyn sent them off, she returned to the hall with a heart full of joy.

"Okay, thanks, Dad." With those words, Jocelyn smiled, stood on tiptoe and gently kissed Allen on the cheek, before dragging her tired body upstairs.

Allen once again gave the two a cold glare before storming upstairs in anger.

"If we let Jocelyn continue to shine, the Murphy family's estate will really become hers!" Gloria looked flustered.

"So, we have to give her a harsh lesson." Sara's eyes were suddenly full of calculations.

"What have you investigated?" Sara asked.

"I'm still looking into it."

"Mr. Mason, this is the invoice for the house Mr. McCall, Mr. Walsh and Mr. Moore bought today."

In front of the high-end rosewood desk where documents were piled up, Noah slowly raised his head and his gaze coolly fell on Tom's face.

Tom pushed the gold-rimmed glasses on the bridge of his nose, before quickly placing a large pile of invoices on the desk.

"Why are you giving me this?" The words fell, and Noah frowned slightly.

"Probably to prove to you that they really bought the houses." Tom responded respectfully.

"Throw it away." He said indifferently.

Tom nodded respectfully, "Yes."

"This is the contract for the purchase of the property on our side as well as the invoice, please have a look." With that, Tom placed a thick red folder in front of Noah.

"Got it, go out."

With those words, Noah then placed his gaze on the mobile phone screen, the report on the news of the opening of the Faraday Apartments.

Chapter 36 Jocelyn, You Are Finished!

In a rare moment of relaxation, Jocelyn slept and woke up.

When she opened her eyes, it was already after ten o'clock.

The sunlight naturally scattered on her stunningly beautiful pure face.

She had just put on her slippers and was about to get out of bed, a knock sounded on the door, followed by the maid's voice entering the room, "Miss, Master wants you to go down immediately now."

"Okay."

With those words, she quickly went into the bathroom and washed up, briefly applying a layer of skin care products to her face, then put a silk robe over her white silk nightgown and quickly walked downstairs.

In the living room, Allen, Sara and Gloria were all there.

Allen was sitting alone on the single sofa, holding a cup of coffee and sipping it slowly.

Gloria and Sara sat side by side on the long sofa next to each other, chatting while drinking coffee, looking relaxed and at ease.

She gave them a cold look before she quickly walked over to the single sofa opposite Allen and sat down, looking at him and asking in a soft voice, "Dad, did you call me down for something?"

Allen took a shallow sip of his coffee and glanced coldly at Gloria.

She knew it was Gloria who was up to something again, but she didn't say anything, just poured herself a cup of tea slowly, gently sliding the lid over the cup while blowing cold air into the boiling hot tea.

Gloria snorted coldly, folding her hands arrogantly and lifting her chin lightly as she looked askance at her and said, "Still have the heart to drink tea? You won't be able to drink it later."

With those words, Gloria picked up a red folder beside her and respectfully handed it to Allen with both hands, "Dad, see what this is."

Chapter 37 My Brother Is Dead

She would never have dared to tell her father the truth.
Her father was a very traditional man, and he would have been furious if he had known that she had casually married a stranger in order to regain her looks, and that she had stayed in a marriage with no real name, and had added divorce to her marriage history.
He might even think she was frivolous and unloving.
Instead of telling the truth and making him angry, she could create a good story and make him think she was fine with her husband, which would give him some peace of mind.
So she had to make up a perfect and plausible story, in which she must look happy.

With those words, Jocelyn got up and knelt down in front of Allen, with a sincere and serious face, "I'm sorry, Dad, I shouldn't have done such a thing behind your back."

She said this from the bottom of her heart. In fact, it was really hard for her to keep such a big thing from her father, but at that time she had no choice.

If she had not regained her beauty at that time, many things would not have been accomplished so smoothly, and she did not want to remain an ugly girl and let Gloria humiliate her.

Seeing this, Gloria and Sara immediately snuck a smug smile at each other before quickly setting their eyes on Allen, waiting for him to beat her up.

"Do you think Dad will let you off the hook? You're too naive, aren't you?" Gloria snorted coldly.

Hearing her story and seeing her look so sincere, Allen's heart instantly softened and that tightly knitted brow slowly relaxed.

He let out a long, helpless sigh and carefully helped Jocelyn up, letting her sit on the arm of his sofa, ignoring Gloria completely.

And then he held Jocelyn's hand tightly and said, "I can understand, when one is in immense pain and suddenly a pair of warm hands pull you, you naturally can't resist."

Allen's reaction left Gloria and Sara both dumbstruck, no one had expected Allen to be so nice!

They were waiting for a good show to be staged, but what was this!

The two were so angry that they clenched their hands at the same time.

"That man has allowed you to be reborn and his grandson is so good, you repay your kindness in this way is understandable, repaying kindness is a virtue." Allen added.

Chapter 38 How about Noah?

Jocelyn's heart immediately throbbed hard, her eyes full of disbelief.
At the beginning, her brother was studying in Y Country like them, just in a different school, and at that time, every weekend, the few of them would play together.
She had always treated him as her own brother, and the other day he had even sent her a text message telling her to take care of her health.
Her tears fell, "Okay, I'll give you a month's leave, where are you? I'll go with you."
"The company has so many things to deal with, you should not go with me, I will offer my brother a few more incense sticks on your behalf." Paige sobbed as she spoke.

"Where the hell are you?"

"Miss Murphy, now is not the time for you to be capricious, listen to me."

"Cut the crap and tell me where you are."

"At home."

Jocelyn then quickly hung up the phone and simply packed her luggage and hurried out the door.

At two o'clock in the afternoon, Jocelyn and Paige both arrived at her hometown, a small county in the south, Shasey City.

It took three days of the funeral of Paige's brother, and Jocelyn was there for Paige.

On the evening of the day after the funeral, Jocelyn accompanied Paige for a walk around the small town to take a break, after which the two of them returned to her room with a heavy heart.

As soon as Paige entered the room, she opened her suitcase and began to transfer the clothes from her wardrobe to the suitcase one by one.

Seeing this, Jocelyn immediately took a quick step forward and took her hand, asking, "What are you doing?"

He frowned slightly and slowly took out his phone, and the moment he saw the contents of WeChat, his knitted eyebrows slowly stretched.

In full view of everyone, he directly replied with the word "Okay" on WeChat.

Everyone looked at each other with disbelief.

After Noah came to the company, he had made a rule for everyone in the company that the use of mobile phones was strictly forbidden during meetings, and he himself was the same.

Even if his mobile phone rang sometimes, he hung up or ignored it.

What was wrong with him today?

Jocelyn's heart instantly fluttered with joy upon receiving his reply, and she directly sent a voice, "Then I'll see you at 7pm at Lijing Western Restaurant?"

Her voice, as always, was soft and melodious.

He silently put the phone to his ear and listened carefully.

Then he typed the word "Okay" again.

There Jocelyn sent a voice again, "Then I'll send you a WeChat when the private room is booked."

"Okay ..." he responded again, and then put the phone into his inside pocket as if nothing had happened, and looked coldly at the dumbfounded crowd, "Continue."

Only then did the crowd quickly come back to their senses.

The meeting continued.

But everyone could not help but secretly wonder in their hearts who sent him the message.

How could he make such an exception?

At 7pm, Jocelyn walked into the VIP room of the Lijing Western Restaurant on time.

She had put on light make-up, and her hair naturally spread out and hung on both sides of her shoulders, setting off her extra small face.

"My friend will be here in a minute." He said and prepared to drape his jacket over her body.

Jocelyn dodged sensitively and then quickly ran towards her red Maserati, not giving him the chance at all.

Noah's cold lips gradually melted into a small curve as he looked at the slim figure.

Once Jocelyn got into the car, she quickly blended into the night.

Not long after she left, a row of black Rolls-Royces steadily parked in front of Noah.

Immediately afterwards, Tom got out of the car with a large group of men in black and stood in front of him respectfully, nodding neatly.

Tom then opened a car door for him.

He gave Tom an indifferent look before sitting gracefully inside the car, leaning back against the fluffy black leather backrest, folding his slender legs and flipping through the Fundamentals of Medicine.

Tom quickly got into the car.

Seeing the book in his hand, Tom's eyes were filled with confusion, "Mr. Mason, why are you reading this?"

"Someone told me to take a good look at it." He still looked pale.

"Your wife?" Tom asked.
