Chapter 421 Eavesdropping

Another pain struck his wrist, and he then let out a cry before moving carefully again.

This was the first time he had ever encountered a woman who was so difficult to chase.

It took a long time for the pain in his wrist to subside.

He opened WeChat and sent a message to Paige, "I won't give up, I really mean it this time."

However, as soon as the message was sent, he was dumbfounded.

After his message, a blinding red exclamation mark appeared!

The bottom prompted him that his message had been refused.

This meant that he had been blackballed by her.

Abel let out a long breath helplessly and grumbled to himself, "How cruel."

On the road with endless traffic, Paige's white Lamborghini weaved freely.

She drove with one hand while her other hand rested lazily against her chin, her elbow on the window frame.

The window was fully down and the rose-scented wind blew in, causing her hair to move slightly.

Tonight, she was in a bad mood.

Full of anticipation, she went to meet her game husband, only to find that he was actually Abel, the playboy.

The Alexander in her fantasy had always been a gentle, clean, modest gentleman.

Her first online relationship, which she thought would have a perfect ending, unexpectedly ended with such a result.

She liked the feeling Abel presented to her in the game, gentle, responsible and devoted.

What she liked about him was just the way he presented himself in the game.

She disliked him in person because he was not the type of man she could handle.

She then paused in her steps, before listening carefully with her ears up.

"The situation has improved, but you still need to be careful," Regan seriously admonished, before releasing Noah's hand.

"Okay."

"However, with the amount of demand you have now, that person probably won't be able to satisfy you soon, you'll still have to reply on Jocelyn, I think you should talk to her about it."

"I will."

"I know you can't afford to use her blood, but you still have to."

Noah then let out another long sigh.

"I'm really happy to see that you guys can be together now, it's not in vain that I went through all the trouble to bring you guys together in the first place, you can only live properly if Jocelyn is with you all the time." Regan added.

Noah did not say anything, just silently poured himself a glass of alcohol and drank it all.

Outside the door, Gloria's eyes were full of shock.

What was the meaning of their conversation?

How did it sound as if Noah's marriage to Jocelyn and the Mason family's good treatment of Jocelyn were all for another purpose? It seemed like it was for Jocelyn's blood?

The key thing was that it seemed like Jocelyn didn't know his purpose yet.

From what they said, it seemed that Noah needed to live on Jocelyn's blood.

Could it be that the reason why Noah was good to Jocelyn was not because of love at all, but because of her blood?

That must be the case.

Thinking of this, Gloria began to be happy in secret.

She really wanted to know how Jocelyn would feel if she knew that her husband had married her with an agenda.

The more she thought about it, the more excited she felt.

A sound of footsteps rang out.

The subtitles continued to play on the building display across the street.

"Abel, what should be said I have already told you very clearly. That advertisement is quite expensive, hurry up and let people withdraw it. I hope you can meet better woman."

The words fell, Paige then coldly looked at the employees who were gathered at the scene, "What are they all doing? You don't have to work anymore, do you?"

The staff lowered their heads sheepishly as soon as her words fell, and turned around and ran into the building.

Paige also followed the tide of people and entered the building without looking back.

This scene was a shock to all the passers-by who were watching.

A high profile courtship by a rich and handsome man, according to the normal script, the woman should be willing.

But how come this time was different?

This scene was expected by Abel, and he did not feel shocked at all.

It's just that he still felt quite humiliated that she rejected him again in front of so many people, and even left him here.

He let out a long, helpless sigh and rubbed the back of his head, before turning around, returning to his limousine and taking off.

The bodyguards he had brought with him also got into their cars and followed him.

Until they all left, the people still did not disperse.

There was an uproar.

"Why is this woman so insensitive? The man is handsome and rich. If it were me, I would have said yes."

"If I had such a handsome man, I wouldn't even need him to confess his love to me, I would just go up and pounce on him."

Beatrice walked in with a large group of black-clothed men holding huge bouquets of red roses.

Among those people, several were the ones Paige had just seen, helping Abel to release the balloons.

In all, thirteen people came in, holding flowers in their hands.

Beatrice led them straight up to her.

"Miss Gill, this is the man from earlier, giving you flowers." Beatrice added.

"..... Beatrice, did I tell you that? No random strangers are allowed to be brought to my office without my permission."

"Yes. but, they said that if you didn't accept it, they wouldn't leave, so I had no choice."

Paige gave her a helpless look before she turned her attention to the people in black and said, "You send the flowers back and tell your Mr. Mccall not to do such things in the future."

However, as soon as she said that, the people in black neatly placed the flowers on her table.

Then, as if they hadn't heard her words, they walked away.

The bouquet of flowers covered her entire desk perfectly, even blocked her view.

She held her forehead in distress, and then got up and looked at them and said, "Come back."

However, the men were oblivious.

Soon their figures disappeared from her sight.

Looking at these words, Paige felt her headache.

"Miss Gill, what should we do about these flowers?" Beatrice asked cautiously.

"You have it." Paige said.

"By the way, that Stewart family has been so bad since they married Gloria into the family, and now it's not what it used to be, hahaha."

"Last time I saw the Stewart's chairman's wife at the mall, she used to buy a multi-million bag without batting an eye, but now, she actually just looks at it and doesn't buy it."

"It must be because the family's financial strength is not so good now. Haha."

Several women continued to discuss.

When Phoebe took Joseph's arm and walked up to the few women, she just happened to hear the conversation between the few women.

The faces of both instantly went cold.

The conversation of these few people made them feel very humiliated.

Especially Joseph, at this moment, could not wait to stomp Gloria into the mud.

Raising his eyes, he saw Jocelyn crouching on the ground, holding her face like a child, looking at a statue.

The long hair was wantonly draped, she looked like a fairy.

A long white chiffon dress set off her temperament.

Her body seemed to carry its own light, where she is, the light will follow her.

Even if she does nothing, she can easily amaze his eyes.

The more they get after the separation, the better Jocelyn gets, and by virtue of her own strength, she walks out of a prosperous path, and she grows more and more dignified and aspirational.

The feeling of regret crept into his heart once again, and he really wanted to kill himself for treating Jocelyn badly in the first place.

If only he had held out longer, he would have waited for Jocelyn's perfect transformation, and he would not have beGloriatangled with that fool Gloria.

And even more so, he would not have been stuck to that fool.

Jocelyn glanced at Joseph, but after a second, she looked away.

In an instant the target of everyone's compliments became Regan and Jocelyn.

"Jocelyn, look at how well your in-laws treat you. You like it and he spent tens of millions for you."

"That's right, Master Regan is really generous with his money."

"If I were you, I'd wake up laughing."

Jocelyn became the star in the limelight again.

And Gloria, again, is nothing.

This little thing that the Stewart family bought for her was really insignificant in front of all these things from the Mason family.

The moment the light faded, Gloria's heart was hard to the extreme.

As long as Jocelyn is around, she will never be able to shine.

It had never been like this since she was girl, except for the times when Jocelyn was fat.

She really wished that Jocelyn was still, right now, a fat person.

Jocelyn smiled blandly before pulling Regan's lapel, "Grandpa, why are you doing this? I just casually said it looked good, I didn't want it."

Regan smiled and with a loving face, he came up to her ear and whispered, "I know about your relationship with your sister, I just doesn't want Gloria's limelight to overshadow yours."

Jocelyn's heart instantly warmed.

Her master always thought of her at all times, more dear than her own grandfather.

Jocelyn, "But, there is no need to break the bank."

Regan, "Spending money for you, I am happy. As long as it is your pleasure, even if I have to take all these things, I would love to."

"Well, accompany me to pay for it."

Regan then took Jocelyn and followed the staff's directions and went to the back to pay.

What Gloria liked to see the most was Jocelyn's unhappy appearance, she was so unhappy now, what made Jocelyn happy?

The most important thing was that if Jocelyn lost the blessing of Noah, she could harm Jocelyn even more recklessly.

They were sisters, of course they should hold hands and destroy together. When she falls into the abyss, Jocelyn naturally has to follow her down.

How lonely must it be to languish in the abyss alone, without Jocelyn's company?

Jocelyn didn't notice at all that Gloria was watching herself.

She just kept her head down, listening to the recording over and over again.

Every word that came into her ears was like a bloodless knife that hurt her to the core.

The more she listened, the harder it became.

Everything was really too cruel for her.

She felt that she could no longer support herself, and her strength seemed to have disappeared all of a sudden.

Taking a deep breath, she clutched her phone and rushed out of the hall.

Seeing this, some of the bodyguards who were waiting outside the door followed Jocelyn's footsteps.

Looking at where Jocelyn left, Jocelyn once again couldn't help but cover her mouth and laugh.

Jocelyn was hurt.

Everything that followed would go the way Gloria had expected it to.

Just thinking about it made Gloria feel excited.

"It's not in vain that I spent a lot of money to get someone to make fake recordings."

Gloria couldn't help but mutter to herself in her heart.

Chapter 428 Just a blood cow

Every time she listened to it more, her heart got colder.

"Noah, you are impressive." she couldn't help but mutter to herself, her tears falling.

These days, he really spared much effort and money in order to keep her around as his regular blood cow.

He really played the image of a good husband just right.

If she hadn't heard this recording today, she might really have been fooled by him for the rest of her life.

There are other people in the Mason family who are just like Noah.

She really wants to ask them, is this exhausting or not?

Ridiculous, it's all really too ridiculous.

The vibrating sound of her phone rang out.

It disturbed her thoughts.

On the screen, the word "husband" looked particularly glaring at this moment.

She truly loved him as her husband, but he was not.

He was false to her, he only treated her like his own blood cow.

She hang up, and after that she turned off her phone and tossed it aside, her hands clasped around her legs and her head buried deep in her knees.

The truth of it all was really too cruel.

So cruel that she really would have preferred that she had never heard it all.

"Oh, that's for sure, if it weren't for the blood, I wouldn't have been treating her so well, our Mason family would have found a woman who was a good match for the family."

"That's natural, I don't like this woman, but she has a rare golden blood type like me. It really bores me to coax someone I don't love every day."

The conversation between the two was like a magic spell that kept replaying in her ears.

Did Noah bully you? Did he make you unhappy?"

If she hadn't had a problem with Noah, she wouldn't have been alone, in this hotel.

Her slightly red eyes made his heart hurt.

At this moment, it was as if he saw his Iris crying to himself.

"It's nothing, let go of me." she said faintly as she lowered her eyes.

After the words were said, she gently pushed him away, walked to the sofa and sat down.

She and Lois had been in danger together, they were not very close after all, and there was no need for her to talk to him about the matter at hand.

"If there's nothing else, you can go about your business, don't worry about me, thank you, Mr. Carter, for your concern." Jocelyn said again.

Lois walked to her side and sat down without hesitation, forcibly turning her body and placing his hands on her shoulders, "Tell me, what is going on? How did he bully you? Is there a third party? Give me that woman's picture and I'll go kill her right now!"

"No."

"Then what the hell is it?"

"....."

"It's fine if you don't tell me, then I'll go find Noah now and ask for an explanation."

"Mr. Carter, I just want to be quiet now, I don't want to talk about those things anymore. Can you stop asking?" She really didn't want to talk about it, she just wanted to be quiet.

Lois gave her a deep look, hesitated for a few seconds, then nodded, "Okay, then let's talk about it when you want to."

Jocelyn let out a long breath as if she had been released, and then closed her eyes, "I know, you are very busy. Go busy, I just want to be alone."

"Do you think that I can leave you alone if you are in this state now? If I leave you, I will be so heartless." Lois said again.

Lois leaned lazily against the sofa, folding his long legs, looking at her with a smirk, "Choking, right? The first time you smoked it, you should inhale less and then slowly send it into your lungs, you inhaled too much."

Jocelyn followed his description and took a small, careful puff.

This time, the irritation wasn't as great, but she was still irritated and coughing.

Eventually, she chose to give up, wanting to extinguish the cigarette.

Lois, however, naturally took the cigarette she had taken a few puffs from and brought it to his own mouth, taking a deep puff, "Don't waste it."

"It's okay, I don't mind you."

She could easily feel the ambiguity in these actions and words.

"I also think of you as a friend, that's why I don't mind you. What are you thinking?"

Lois said, then he arched his right index finger and flicked her forehead.

A subtle pain spread out.

Jocelyn subconsciously stroked the place that had been flicked.

"Are you in a better mood?" Lois changed the subject.

Jocelyn shook her head.

Lois, "Then go out with me for a walk?"

Jocelyn, "I don't want to go."

Lois, "I have helped you so many times, are you not willing to agree?"

Jocelyn, "....."

His words made her unable to retort anymore.

Lois then got up and extended his hand towards her, "Come with me."
