Phoebe said, "After Linda beat you, her father brought her to the door, nominally saying that it was to make amends to your father, but in fact, between the lines that meaning, has always been to imply that your father, you are bad."

"Actually, they're not making amends. Your father was angry, but also kept saying that Linda is right to beat you." Phoebe added.

When Bella heard this, she was instantly furious.

"This Linda is a bitch."

"That's right, even if you're not right, she doesn't treat you like this, right?" Phoebe coldly snorted.

Now, she was really heartbroken for her daughter, so heartbroken that she was going crazy.

Just at this time, the door was opened from outside.

Archie's cold face appeared at the door.

Seeing this, the two at the same time were shocked.

Their hearts raised to the throat at the same time.

Archie frowned coldly and looked at Bella, "Sinner, are you feeling better?"

In his tone, he was indifferent and did not show any concern.

The current Archie was still angry and hadn't lost any of his temper.

Bella nodded, "Better."

"Then get up," Archie added.

"What do you want?" Phoebe's eyes were full of puzzles and her tone was tense.

"Naturally, to personally go and apologize to Jocelyn, otherwise do we continue to wait for Griffin Group to target us? Last time we offended Noah, how miserable our Stewart family was, have you forgotten?"

These icy words made Bella feel like her was going crazy.

Jocelyn also knew why Bella was so well behaved.

But even so, she still felt quite good.

Jocelyn didn't say anything more, just hooked her lips contentedly, pressed the car window, and led the caravan, rushing to the door of the house.

Soon, the induction door slowly opened.

The limousine convoy overbearingly disappeared in the sight of the three Stewart family.

Looking at the car that left in an overbearing manner, recalling the high and mighty look of Jocelyn just now, Bella immediately felt that her pride, once again, was rubbed on the ground by Jocelyn.

Jocelyn, I won't let you off the hook.

What do you have to be proud of?

At this moment, Phoebe's heart was also itching with hatred for Jocelyn.

She couldn't help but clench her fists and muttered to herself in her heart, "I hope God, you can open your eyes and punish the evil one. Let Jocelyn get sick and die."

At this moment, Phoebe suddenly felt a pain in the right side of her kidney.

At first it was a slight stabbing pain.

But soon, it turned into a sharp pain.

Beads of sweat sprang up from all over her body.

And a wave of dizziness swept over her.

The pain and dizziness kept torturing her, and she soon went straight to the ground, covering her kidney area regardless, and kept crying out in pain, "Ah, I'm in so much pain, help, help, I'm dying."

Chapter 633 Overbearing Noah

At this moment, Jocelyn body was hot.

Looking at her, Noah instantly panicked.

"What's wrong with you? Wake up."

"Wake up."

He subconsciously raised his voice and looked at Jocelyn calling out anxiously.

Just at this time the door opened.

Regan kept whistling at the parrot, looking all relaxed.

When he raised his eyes and saw the situation in front of him, Regan panicked.

He then put the parrot on the floor, walked over to Noah, lifted Jocelyn's arm and checked her pulse while asking, "What's wrong with her?"

"I don't know, she was fine, and suddenly she fainted." Noah said.

Regan did not say anything more, but just continued carefully checking Jocelyn's pulse.

From the pulse, Jocelyn was not half abnormal, her body was very healthy.

"This is strange." Regan had been practicing medicine for many years, but this was the first time he had encountered such a situation.

Jocelyn had fainted and was sweating profusely, but when he took her pulse, he could not find anything.

He considered himself to be highly skilled in medicine, and there was almost no illness that he could not diagnose from his pulse.

But today, he was really defeated.

Soon, Regan's eyes were stained with shock.

Seeing this, Noah then frowned deeply and asked after him, "How is it? Grandpa? What's her condition?"

Regan's expression made Noah's heart become more and more worried.

Noah frowned slightly, from his pocket took out a gold card, has a white business card, thrown in the Audi car owner's arms, "Repair costs. no password, if not enough, contact me yourself. "

He then drove away.

The whole process was smooth.

It confused the people present.

The cars in the next lane, even more unconsciously, stopped.

They took out their phones to take pictures, while Noah just sped away.

"Who the hell is this? So arrogant?"

"I don't know, but I feel that car owner is so handsome."

"There should be some kind of emergency, right? His temper is bad, but I like it."

"Crash, he is so manly."

Behind, watching the scene, a few female car owners can not help but whisper about it.

The Audi car owner was just subdued by his powerful aura.

Looking down at the business card, he was dumbfounded.

Noah Mason?

Next, there were no other obstacles on the road.

Soon, they arrived at the first people's hospital.

Because Noah had called ahead on the way, when he got out of the car with Jocelyn in his arms, the president and vice-president of the First People's Hospital, as well as top experts in various fields, were all standing at the entrance of the outpatient building waiting early.

As soon as Noah got off the car with Jocelyn in his arms, the director led the crowd directly, pushing the emergency trolley and walking to his side.

"I hope Jocelyn has minor problem." Regan reassured himself.

Although he knew that it was impossible for a small problem to be undiagnosed by himself, Regan still had a ray of hope in his heart.

The first thing he did was to sit back in his seat again.

Soon, Regan also sat down.

Jocelyn's head was examined for a total of two whole hours.

During the whole two hours, all the experts, led by Marcus, were in a state of busy.

In the middle, Jocelyn silently took her own pulse several times, but found nothing wrong.

And in the end, Marcus's and their busy work did not yield any results either.

Having no choice, they drew Jocelyn's blood again and did examinations on other parts of her body.

But still nothing could be found wrong.

While they were busy and anxious, Jocelyn was much more relaxed and most of the time, she sat on her own first aid bed.

Even if she needed to move around, there were several specialists carefully supporting her.

After checking everything, the specialists then carefully helped Jocelyn back to the operating bed. Everyone then began to sigh.

All the examination results showed that Jocelyn's body did not have any problems.

Seeing everyone's expressions, Jocelyn knew that the situation might not be good. She then raised her heart and looked at the crowd and asked, "What is my current situation? I hope you are not hiding anything from me, do I have cancer? Or maybe I have some other difficult disease?"

Marcus shook his head and said, "No, you are not having any problems right now."

"We've checked all parts of your body, but, we didn't find any problems, whether it's your head, or all parts of your body, there's nothing wrong."

"But that's odd, if there's no problem, why are you like that?" Marcus said while voicing out his doubts.

Marcus's question was also exactly Jocelyn's question.

He thought that he was indestructible and fearless, until this moment, he realized that there is no such thing as a truly indestructible and fearless person.

Your so-called invulnerability and fearlessness is just that the people and things you face are just not your weakness.

Once everything is tied to Jocelyn, he will lose control in a second.

Especially right now, he is really afraid that Jocelyn has a rare disease that cannot be cured and will leave him forever.

He doesn't even dare to think about what he would be like if he didn't have her.

Jocelyn was his life, the oxygen and sunlight he depended on.

Without her, how could he live?

"Honey, I want to go home, I don't like hospitals." Jocelyn said in a soft voice.

The reason why she didn't like the hospital was because, she hated the cold atmosphere and the strong smell of medicine.

"Okay," Noah responded in a soft voice, naturally picking her up in a horizontal embrace and walking all the way out the door.

The two of them were followed by Regan with a worried face, and there was a heavy weight that could not be melted under his eyes.

If he could, he would have wished that he had been sick instead of Jocelyn.

Jocelyn was not simply her grandson-in-law, or her only disciple, anymore.

She was more dear to him than his own granddaughter.

When he returned home, Noah carried Jocelyn all the way back to his room.

In order not to convey tension to Jocelyn, Noah's face was unruffled the entire time.

Sharply using his back to turn on the light, the baroque world turned from dark to light.

He breezed in and placed her on the bed saying, "Don't worry, I'm here for everything, there's nothing I can't fix."

Noah slowly sat beside her, naturally circling her in his arms.

Chapter 637 Ghost Face's Diagnosis

"Do you think it could have something to do with this perspective eye of yours?" Noah said.

Jocelyn was instantly also followed the suspicion.

This disease of hers had only started after she had perspective eyes.

Was this a coincidence?

It doesn't seem like it.

The perspective eye was itself very mysterious, and there was absolutely no way to explain it with science.

And the same is true of this illness of hers.

To say that the two are not related seems impossible at all.

Why else would she be like this?

"When you say that, I do think that it's really possible." Jocelyn said.

In the past, she had read about perspective eyes in movies and novels.

In the movies, people who had a perspective eye would consume the energy in their body every time they used it more.

And once the energy was used up, the protagonist's body would have problems.

Although, she knew that those were virtual.

Yet, she felt that those might not be without reference value either.

It was just that, whether it was all or not, now for a while, it could not be confirmed.

"I think it's too much of a coincidence that the point in time when this disease of yours appeared, coincides with the point in time when you have the perspective eye."

"It's that coincidental, it just so happens to be less than a month after you have your perspective eyes."

Noah once again analyzed carefully word by word.

Jocelyn nodded heavily.

"If we next have not been able to find out in your body what disease you have."

Ghost Face kept on diagnosing for about ten minutes.

Ten minutes later, Ghost Face let go of Jocelyn.

He didn't speak immediately, but subconsciously looked around for a moment.

After making sure that no one was really there, he looked at Noah, "Can you go out for a moment? I have something that I want to talk to her alone."

There are some things that are not trivial, and he was not sure, if Jocelyn had informed Noah, so he had to set Noah apart.

Once Noah heard this, he stood up, "Okay."

Jocelyn looked at Noah and said, "You don't have to go."

No matter what it was, she didn't want to hide it from Noah because there was no need.

After the words, Jocelyn looked at Ghost Face and added, "He is my husband and has the right to know everything. There is no secret between us, so you can just say it."

Ghost Face nodded, deliberately lowered his voice and said, "Have you encountered anything strange recently?"

"Something, for example, that is beyond common sense and beyond what science can explain." Ghost Face continued to ask.

His eyes were full of seriousness and inquiry, and his gaze was always fixed in Jocelyn's eyes.

At this moment, Jocelyn instantly froze.

She didn't expect that Ghost Face would ask her such a question.

For a moment, she did not know how to answer.

The matter of seeing through eyes was extraordinary.

She didn't know whether she should give a proper explanation to Ghost Face or not.
the most taboo thing to do when seeing a doctor was to avoid the

"If you use your perspective eye frequently, your energy will be consumed very fast, it will be enough to consume a quarter of your energy."

"So, I suggest you, when you use your perspective eye a lot, go and absorb the sun's energy twice a day, for an hour each time."

"And if you don't use your perspective eye, you can go every other week and sit between the mountains and the water for an hour. In that way, you won't have a problem."

Ghost Face continued word by word, seriously dictated.

Once Jocelyn heard this, she instantly understood.

She then recorded what Ghost Face said in her phone memo.

After she finished recording, she then looked at Ghost Face and asked, "So, is there any way that is possible for me to check the energy value in my body?"

She felt that if she could check the energy value at any time, it would be much more convenient and could be replenished at any time.

"There is a way, all you need to do is to quietly close your eyes, quiet your mind and concentrate on asking yourself. In time, an energy bar will appear in front of your eyes, a. full bar is 100 percent." Ghost Face said again.

Jocelyn then closed her eyes, slowly let her heart calm down, concentrated and asked herself, "I want to know my energy value."

It was at this moment that a vibrant light green energy bar instantly appeared before her otherwise dark eyes, showing that her energy value was left at 0.1%.

Everything Ghost Face said was true.

With the little energy she had, it would soon be depleted.

If she would die if her energy was depleted, then she would definitely die soon.

She instantly panicked even more.

Chapter 640 Energy

Ghost Face's words shocked Jocelyn.

So, there was such a thing?

Then, in that case, Noah was actually also someone who possessed the highest talent? Also suitable to become a wizard?

Only after the shock, Jocelyn became scared again.

She really dreaded to think what would have become of Noah if he was not the possessor of the highest talent, since he would be sexually intercourse with her every day?

Maybe he would be dead by now?

Or maybe he would have become a dying man?

Luckily, he is also the one with the highest talent.

"Those with the highest talent will not only become a wizard faster than others, but they can also use extraordinary means that are not available to ordinary people to become a wizard."

"For example, having sexual intercourse with those who do not have the gift of wizardry, absorbing his' life and increasing his own energy."

"There are some, who are dark at heart, who will choose to go to such extremes." said Ghost Face again, word for word.

"We will never do that." said Jocelyn with a determined face.

"It's because I know you won't, that's why I'm telling you." said Ghost Face.

"Will my husband become a wizard too?" Jocelyn asked.

"Yes, but, he is also not there yet, well, you guys go now. Go out and turn left, keep going, and you will see the mountain and water." Ghost Face added.

"Okay." Jocelyn said again.

Jocelyn responded in a soft voice, took Noah's hand and went straight out the door.

Passing through the courtyard planted with various herbs, flowers and trees, the two reached the door directly.
