Chapter 751 No More Births

"How are you?" Noah asked.

Jocelyn dry heaved while saying, "It's not good. so hard."

As she spoke, Jocelyn's eyes were holding back tears.

Taking a deep breath, she continued to dry heave with her hands on the toilet.

At lunchtime, and in the evening, she didn't eat anything because of her severe pregnancy vomiting.

At this moment, she didn't spit anything out.

Looking at Jocelyn, Noah frowned deeply and said with a serious face, "After this birth, we will never have another child. I will go for sterilization."

"Such a painful process, just this once is enough." The more Noah said, the more he felt his heart ache.

His words made Jocelyn's heart warm at once.

The average man, although he knows that it is hard for a woman to be pregnant, can rarely say such things.

It is especially rare for a man from a wealthy family to say such things.

Someone who can only go so far if they truly love and adore you.

Jocelyn smiled, "I didn't want to have any more children."

Now, inside her belly, there are two children.

It was enough for her.

Besides, the process of pregnancy, so hard, was something she really didn't want to experience a second time.

Originally, she thought that she had prepared herself mentally for this.

Because, she knows all about the pain of a pregnant woman's pregnancy.

But when the pain, really, reached her, she found that she was helpless.

Suddenly, another flip-flop in the stomach.

Once again, Jocelyn turned to the toilet and dry-heaved like crazy.

"You told me that Jocelyn was still throwing up, I wasn't sure, so I came over to take a look." Allie said, then walked over to Jocelyn and Noah and sat down, "I am so worried that I can't sleep."

Clutching Jocelyn's hand tenderly, Allie looked at her haggard face and said, "It's so hard for you."

Looking at Jocelyn, Allie's heart ached.

Although the time when she was pregnant, she didn't have such a hard time.

But Allie understands how painful pregnancy sickness can be.

Jocelyn laughed, dry-heaved and said, "It's a necessary part of most people's motherhood. It is okay."

"Do you want to eat something? Whatever it is, just say it and I'll make sure I get it to you right away." Allie asked.

Jocelyn shook her head.

She is not even half interested in the delicacies of the world right now.

"This won't work. You're already hypoglycemic." Allie said, and then her eyes reddened with heartache.

"If only I could hurt like this instead of you." Allie added.

Looking at Allie's reaction, Jocelyn once again felt sweet in her heart.

With the way the Mason family treated her, it didn't matter if she died for the family.

She felt that whatever she was doing, now, was worth it.

"Mom, don't worry, I will probably get better in a while." Jocelyn comforted.

"Who knows? What if it's not good? God, why do my precious daughter-in-law has to be made to suffer like this?" Allie said as she wiped her tears.

Watching Jocelyn suffer, she felt was like watching her own daughter suffer.

Even if Noah and Ryan are sick, she had never had such heartache.

She thought that it was probably because Jocelyn was just too much for her to love.

"Relax." reassured Jocelyn again.

Jocelyn allowed Noah to hold herself and glanced at the phone screen.

It's a message from Allie, all with words of concern.

"Good morning."

"Have a good breakfast, and take a picture of the breakfast Noah made later."

"Let me see what Noah has cooked for you."

When she woke up early in the morning and saw Allie sending these words, Jocelyn felt in a good mood.

She hooked one hand around Noah's neck while the other operated her phone and sent a reply to Allie,

"Okay, thank you for your concern, mum."

And the dry heaving sensation, once again, struck.

Jocelyn tucked her phone into her pocket and covered her mouth with her hand.

Noah frowned deeply and looked at Jocelyn with worry, "Honey, let's abort the children."

Hearing this, Jocelyn couldn't believe her ears.

She knew how much Noah was looking forward to the arrival of the two children.

It was also clear how happy Noah really was because she was pregnant.

Between the lines, he was previously full of his own plans for his two children for the road ahead.

A man who was so looking forward to being a father suddenly said such things because he was definitely worried about her.

The thought of it made her feel, once again, warm and fuzzy inside.

Jocelyn shook her head, "No, I love them."

"Do you not want children because you don't want to see me in so much pain?" Jocelyn asked.

Jocelyn and Noah talked on the phone for a while and then reluctantly hung up.

After the disconnection, Allie then carefully took Jocelyn's hand and said, "It's wonderful, Jocelyn. North is finally going to be completely back to normal."

Originally, when her father-in-law told her that Noah's illness could be cured.

She didn't believe it.

At one point, even, she was skeptical of that drug.

But later on, she saw that Noah's genes had, literally, changed.

There is really nothing in this world that is impossible.

She really thanked God for that.

Thank God for the one who found the long term blood supply in time when Noah was sick.

Thankfully, that person, too, had a bone marrow match that matched Noah's.

"Yeah, Mom." Jocelyn smiled and nodded.

As long as Noah successfully underwent the operation, then she had nothing more to worry about.

The words fell, and Jocelyn wept with joy.

And so did Allie, "Jocelyn, I think, it's all your blessing that infected Noah, you see, Noah has been moderately anemic for years, yet there has been no way to change the status quo because of his special genes."

"But ever since you appeared, Noah's illness immediately had a solution."

"Are you the legendary angel?" Allie wiped her tears and said with a smile.

"I think it's because you and Dad, and Grandpa, have good hearts and do a lot of good deeds that make it happen." said Jocelyn modestly.

As far as she knows, the Mason family has been active in charity for so many years.

Wherever there is a real need for help in this country, there will be a donation from the Mason family.

"Our common blessing." smiled Allie.

Tom's voice rang out.

Jasmine Lloyd.

Hearing this name, Noah frowned slightly.

The name was rather familiar.

It took some serious recollection before he remembered that it was his high school friend.

During the whole three years of high school, she was one of his craziest suitors, at first to pursue him, this woman was like crazy.

How did she suddenly find her way to Griffin Group?

He did not feel, between them, that there was any reason why they had to meet.

"Something wrong?" Noah asked.

"She didn't say."

"Send her away."

After saying that, Noah then hung up the phone.

After the call hung up, he once again threw himself into his intense and busy work.

The name Jasmine Lloyd was all but forgotten.

Downstairs, front desk.

A beauty, who was leaning lazily, touched up her lipstick.

If Jocelyn is an angel, this woman is the witch.

The two receptionists, at this point, were all stunned by her beauty.

Although, both agreed that she was still slightly inferior to their chairman's wife.

"He married me for my sex, and I married him for his money. Anyway, the deal is still quite fair." Jasmine said very frankly, without any half-hearted concealment.

Noah just listened, but did not move his voice.

"The Z companies that previously supplied our country's mobile phone manufacturers, with supplies of high-end chips, are starting to ask for a high price."

"I didn't think they would work, so I thought of Griffin Group, how about a partnership? As long as the price is right."

Jasmine was once again straightforward.

After a brief chat with her, Noah gave her an ideal price.

And Jasmine was quick and agreed with alacrity.

After that, Tom went to print the contract and the two signed a cooperation agreement.

The whole process took just one hour.

The contract was in two copies.

Once the two had signed separately, they would have a copy.

Holding the contract in one hand, Jasmine looked at Noah and said, "I hope we have a good cooperation."

"Okay." responded Noah lightly.

"You're still as cold as ever."

"Even when I delivered such a big order personally to your door, you were cold as hell."

Jasmine complained.

Noah hooked his lips shallowly, but still didn't say much.

"Don't get me wrong, the reason for personally sending you the big order is definitely not because I'm still in love with you."

"Rather, because, in Z Country, the enterprise that I trust the most is Griffin Group, and in this regard, the best is Griffin Group." Jasmine added.

"Got it." After saying that, Noah dialed Tom's number and explained everything to him.

About a minute after the call, the three people who were calling became quiet.

A few people came over and looked at Jasmine, nodded and humbled in the same voice, "Sorry. sorry, Miss, we are wrong."

"You guys are wrong, you know that right?" Jasmine asked, frowning slightly.

Even the way she frowns slightly carries charm.

Several people nodded respectfully.

Jasmine gave them a few blank stares, "Get lost."

"What about compensation?" A woman asked.

"Someone will come to the door to make a claim." Jasmine's voice was still cold.

A few people got into their sports cars and left in a huff.

Jasmine hooked her lips contentedly and looked at Noah with a smile and said, "Thanks."

"Welcome." She had sent him such a big order, it was natural that he could not stand by and watch what happened to her.

In the car, Jocelyn took it all in, with a clear view.

Looking at her face, Jocelyn felt stunned.

This woman carries a different style.

It is rather rare to see Noah standing with any woman for more than two minutes in a place other than work.

The woman in front of her, she thought, was either a partner in his company or some old friend.

"What's the matter?" Underneath Jasmine's eyes, there were a touch of disappointment.

"I have to stay with my wife and go for a ride."

"Alright, whatever, I'm off then." After saying that, Jasmine then put her eyes on Jocelyn's face, "Beauty, I'll go back first then, see you again sometime."

Immediately afterwards, Jasmine turned around and went straight back to her car.

"Since you've been given a big order, why don't we go when she invites us to have a seat?" Jocelyn asked.

"You're not going for a ride?"

"When it comes to the important stuff, it's okay not to go."

"When I've promised you something, I've got to do it."

After saying that, Noah opened the car door in a gentlemanly manner and helped Jocelyn into the car.

When she couldn't catch up with Noah every day, she really felt that such a man would be single forever.

She even felt that his woman will be very miserable, have to be careful to be with him.

But she never imagined that Noah would be like this.

Presumably, this is love.

When you start to fall in love with someone, you change for them.

"What a love." sighed Jasmine with a long sigh.

Soon, Jocelyn and Noah's car disappeared from her sight.

She, on the other hand, sat in the car the whole time and didn't leave.

Looking at them in love, she really envied them.

As there are always accidents in any surgery, apart from worrying about Noah, they were also worried about the person who donated the bone marrow, and they really hoped that both Noah and him would be safe.

Since Ryan was there, the nurses at the hospital, always found various reasons to let themselves pass by them from time to time.

All around her, people kept passing by, the noise of footsteps further distracting Jocelyn.

Allie gently held Jocelyn's hand and carefully reassured her, "Jocelyn, don't worry."

Although, she was also worried.

However, she could not show it too much because, for fear of affecting Jocelyn's mood.

Not to mention, she is pregnant.

Jocelyn nodded gently, but did not say anything, only silently closed her eyes and began to pray silently in her heart for Noah, and for another person.

"Won't grandpa come over today?" Ryan asked.

"Your grandfather caught a bad cold while playing with his friends abroad, and Noah said he didn't want to disturb him and wanted him to get well, so, we didn't tell him." Allie said truthfully.

At these words, Ryan understood in his heart, so he put his gaze back on Jocelyn's face, "Jocelyn, don't worry, Noah and that man will be fine."

"Okay." Jocelyn nodded gently, but didn't say much.

And aside, Camille, who was overly nervous, could not utter a word at this moment.

Scott did not speak, his expression growing tighter and tighter.

About an hour later.

Above the operating room, the lights in surgery went out abruptly.

Seeing this image, Jocelyn immediately stood up along with the Mason family.

Once again, everyone's heart was in their throat.

About five minutes later, the door to the operating theatre slowly opened.

The message was from Paige, telling her that she had taken care of many important documents, on her behalf.

Jocelyn replied with a direct OK.

She then returned her gaze to Allie's face once again.

"Mum, I have to stay, I know you're worried about me, but I'll take care of it, when the time comes, ask the nurse to just add an extra bed. I'm fine, I'll just sit on the bed, okay?"

Seeing Jocelyn's insistence, Allie could only nod helplessly.

Ryan frowned slightly, with eyes full of concern, looked at Jocelyn and said, "Actually my suggestion is that you should be at home."

Jocelyn shook her head, "No."

She won't go home, she must stay and look after Noah, even if it does not help much, she wants to be here to watch him.

And Ryan smiled and said no more.

Looking at the two of them in love, Ryan was envious.

His heart was filled with mixed emotions.

Now his brother is living a life that he could only dream of.

"Ryan, don't you have work to do? Hurry up and go to work."

"And, Dad, Mum, Camille, you all go back first, I'll be fine here alone." Jocelyn looked at them all again and said.

Taking care of Noah, she alone would be fine.

She's really not that pretentious.

"Your father still has things to do, let your father take Ryan and Camille to leave, I'll stay here with you." Allie intimately took Jocelyn's arm, her tone gentle.
