

RAISING A FEW WIVES IN A BEAST APOCALYPSE

Chapter 2 At least it's not a Zombie Apocalypse

After a few minutes in silence, screams of agony started ringing out all the building, accompanied by beastly growls. Hearing all the chaos going on, on the lower floors, the girls, couldn't help but squeeze closer to Muku, which made him smile wryly.

Weren't they just making it harder for him to fight like this if anything came?

On the bright side, them being like that calmed down his secretly racing nerves. This way he would be able to act more appropriately no matter what situation might occur.

Boom!

"Growl"

"Ahh!"

Just as he was stuck in his thoughts and the girls were trying their best to bury themselves in his body. A sound of a door being blasted open on their floor was heard, followed by a growl and then screams.

Sounds of things breaking, screams and growls was heard for a while before everything went quiet again. Animalistic footsteps heading their way could now be heard. The girls started shacking in fear again, as Muku's grip on the axe tightened and his gaze laser focused on the door.

Things went quiet when the footsteps reached their door then...

Pwak!

The small glass part on the door was broken and a large dog head with a bloody mouth came through, looking inside.

"Greee"

Seeing some food inside (the humans) the dog started growling while trying to break it's way through, luckily the desks stopped the door from completely opening. But the dog's effort opened up a small part of the door.

It pulled it's head back then put it through the opened part. Just as the dog was probably thinking that it was about to have another feast.

It suddenly felt danger from above, when it looked up. It's skull was met by an axe that dug deep into it, killing it on the spot.

As soon as Muku killed the giant dog. He felt his whole body go numb for a bit before it went back to normal. Before he could wonder what had just happened a voice rang out.

[Condition for Evolution met. Kill 9 more Giant dogs to reach Rank 1 Evolver and gain specialisation.]

"Hmm?". Muku made a confused sound.

"What's wrong teacher?". The forth girl, who was a redhead named Chloe asked him.

Looking back at the girls, seeing that they had confused expressions and didn't seem to have heard anything. Muku explained to them what had happened.

"Hmm...so from that it seems, killing these monsters makes us stronger and gives us a better chance to survive". Chloe said with a hand on her chin, when she looked up, she noticed everyone looking at her with a surprised expression. They can't be blamed though since she rarely talked in the classroom.

"W-what?, I read a lot of apocalypse novels okay, and that's how they usually go". With an embarrassed look she added.

Everyone looked at her with a look of realisation.

"So you're an Otaku huh?, no wonder you didn't talk to others much. So anything else you might want to add that could be useful?". Jade the girl known to have no filter straight up said what she wanted to, not even bothered by how she exposed Chloe's secret.

"Uh, I- I'm not an Otaku okay!!. And for now I don't have anything else, maybe in the future. But I have to say, things look pretty bleak right now." Chloe stuttered at being called an Otaku, so much that her mind couldn't think of anything else to say.

"Well at least it's not a zombie apocalypse right". Great teacher Muku who couldn't bare to not be in the spotlight for even a minute said something that would make anyone want to beat him up.

"Sir, no offense but, how exactly did you manage to become a teacher?". Emily asked him with a deadpan expression.

"Ey, that's hurtful, how can you ask that when you know that I finished highschool at 12 and then university by 18, Hmph, if I wanted I could be doing something more paying than this...not to mention I'm super handsome." Muku started tooting his own horn again. To nobody's suprise since he does so every chance he gets.

"Sigh, whatever". Emily was lost for words and didn't feel like talking to him again, neither did the other girls either so they all ignored him.

"S-So what's our next step?". Chloe's unconfident voice sounded again.

"Obviously we have to find a way to start killing these monsters, from what you said I think it's safe to say, they are either going to get stronger or stronger beasts are going to show up eventually. So hiding it out isn't a viable solution. We just have to do what the voice said, Evolve or die". Before any of the other girls could reply to her, their joker teacher Muku, replied to her with a serious expression, his eyes blazing with battle intent.

"Well, I guess what sir says makes sense, but how do we go about it, I doubt the same trick like now will work, it mostly depended on luck anyway. And we also don't have any weapons other than the axe.". The critical Layla spoke.

"Hmm, I have a plan but I need all your cooperation, plus there are emergency axes in every classroom so the weapon part shouldn't be too hard to address." Muku, after thinking for a bit finally spoke.

"Okay, lets hear it". Emily said, while looking at him along with the other girls.

"Okay, so the plan goes like this...."

...

A while later, another dog made its way to Muku's class's floor. As soon as it turned the corner, it noticed a blonde girl standing on the hallway looking at it. As soon as their eyes met, the girl ran into the room after a little scream.

If the dog was a little smarter, it would have noticed that the girls' fearful expression was a bit off. But it was a creature that worked on instinct after all, so as its prey ran, it chased.

As soon as its head made it into the room, an axe was brought down on it. Before it could react, its neck was cleaved right through, killing it instantly.

"What?!". Muku who had done it along with the girls, were all surprised by this feat. None expected him to have so much strength.

"I think it's the evolution, I can't wait for when I evolve". Chloe the otaku was first to recover and said with clear excitement in her eyes. She felt that she was close to realising the dream of every otaku in the world. Which was obviously to get stronger, beyond human capabilities.

[Eight more kills needed before evolution]

The monotonous voice was heard again in Muku's head as the familiar numb feeling occurred.