

RAISING A FEW WIVES IN A BEAST APOCALYPSE

Chapter 6 Tossing bodies

The intern's eyes widened as he suddenly felt unbearable pain on his neck. The light in his eyes slowly drained away before fading into nothingness. He was utterly and completely dead.

The stray killer dog had made it to the scene. And it came in with a bang, biting a traitorous intern's neck off!.

Muku had long noticed it, that's why he had told the girls to quickly get into the room. He knew if he had told them about it they likely wouldn't have done it, not wanting to leave him behind in such a dangerous situation.

When the dog was still busy savouring the taste of the intern's blood. Muku quickly rolled to his axe that was a few feet away. He quickly grabbed it and aimed at the killer dog's head that was still dug deep into the intern's neck.

The dumb dog which had not met any resistance from these two legged foods, did not see the attack coming. It expected the other one to run away while it ate the one it had killed then hunt the one that ran later. But unluckily for it, there's a supreme and undisputable law in the world when it comes to most things. Nothing is absolute, there's always an exception. And it had met that exception.

Well technically, since it was dead before it could even realise what was going on, it didn't know that it had met the exception.

[Two kills left....]

A familiar voice rang in Muku's head, of course it was followed by the familiar numbness.

"Huff, that was certainly too close for comfort". Muku said while pulling his axe out of the dog's skull.

"Ahh!". He suddenly screamed while grabbing the back of his head and looking behind him.

"Don't play hero again, what if it went after your neck instead?!". Jade, who was also the one who had slapped him on the back of the head said with a serious expression on her face. Without waiting for him to respond, she walked back into the principal's office and continued to look for the key in silence.

The girls had figured out what had happened and why he screamed at them after they saw the dog.

"You've really pissed her off this time, and honestly even I'm disappointed". Emily said before walking back into the room.

Layla just narrowed her eyes at him before also walking back. Chloe looked at him then at the girls, repeated it one more time before also walking back in.

{Well, seems these kids now see me more as their friend than their teacher. But I still see my four little students, so of course I would try my best to keep them out of danger. This might be a problem. But at least they care, even that troublesome Jade}. Muku thought with a scrunched expression on his face, before proceeding into the room.

"I'm sorry for keeping you all out of the loop, I won't do it again, so please forgive me". Muku said with a serious expression while bowing at a 90° angle in the direction of the girls.

The girls were first surprised but then smiled in acknowledgement. Jade of course made a "Hmph" sound and looked away, but a little smile could be seen on her face.

"Apology accepted, but I have to say, you're looking more and more like a serial killer, sacrificing that guy so easily like that". Jade who never lets go of an opportunity to make fun of him spoke.

Muku's expression darkens a bit before speaking.

"He was clearly trying to kill me, hell he had already killed the principal. Besides, it's not like I'm the one who killed him or ordered the killer dog to do it. By killing it can be said that I even avenged him.". The more he spoke, the more it seemed like he was trying to convince himself more than the girls.

"And where do you get off making such accusations, look at you and Layla tried to toss the principal's body out the window!". After taking a look at what Jade and Layla were doing, he couldn't help but speak up again.

"This is necessary okay, do you want us stay in a room with a corpse?. Or put him in the restroom we will need?. In fact I suggest getting rid of the bodies in the hallway too". Jade replied with a face red from embarrassment though what she said made sense.

Layla only coughed a bit but didn't say anything, before continuing her task. But of anyone focused on her face, they would notice a faint blush, likely also from embarrassment.

"Whatever, but it's still weird how calm you are about it". Muku not accepting defeat added, while joining in the search for the key. The damned principal had at least fifty drawers around his office, some of them even locked.

"Tsk, if you are not going to say anything helpful, then shut up. Besides, after all that has happened today, what could be scary about a dead body?." Jade said as they finished up tossing away the poor principal's body, which was likely going to be eaten up as soon as it reached the ground. She and Layla, accompanied by Chloe this time went for the dog's body next, luckily the window was big enough for it to be tossed out too.

"You get the guy you got kille... I mean you avenged". Jade said after they finished tossing out the dog.

"I'm your teacher!, how dare you tell me what to do, besides I'm looking for...". As Muku raged, he was interrupted by a cry from Emily.

"Found it!". Emily excitedly started jumping up and down with the storage room's key in her hand.

"Tsk". Muku wasn't too happy about it though, since he now had no reason to not toss the body out. And so he accepted his fate unwillingly under Jade's smug smile and did it.

Luckily the janitor's bucket and mop happened to be in the principal's rest room (yeah well, my novel, my conveniences). While the girls were busy in the storage room he was mopping up the blood on the floor.

"How did I, this handsome and smart teacher fall so low?. Even my students are older than me around now.". He lamented while cleaning.

...

On floor one...

Bang!

BANG!

Bang!

Three bodies fell from the sky outside, two human, one dog. If the killer dogs had even a little thinking capacity they would have found the occurrence rather weird.

But sadly all their brains knew was eating and why would they turn away from a free meal?. And so a race to the food among them commenced. There at least thirty dogs on the floor while there were only three bodies, so the intensity of the competition can be easily imagined. In less than two minutes, all that was left of the bodies were blood stains on the ground

Chapter 7 Kill count met!

"Well, it's to be expected, and it's better than nothing I guess". Muku said looking at the store room filled with only canned foods. The foods ranged from canned beans, fish, beef and the beverages were all the same....coke.

"Let's move some into the office incase an emergency occurs and we can't come get more.". Layla said, thinking of a possible, unwelcomed but likely future.

"Yeah, and we should barricade the stairs, who knows if another dog or two will show up, our teacher might end up sacrificing one of us if that were to happen". Jade added, though the later part of her statement was obviously targeted at the usual suspect, who now was giving her the stink eye(Great teacher Muku of course).

"Sigh, you just can't help yourself can you?". Emily said while looking at Jade, who looked away in embarrassment without saying anything.

"Okay, Chloe and Emily will move some food while Jade and Layla will help me barricade the stairs". Muku gave our orders and everyone got to work.

It took quite some work to move the headmaster's big*ss and super heavy desk to the stairs. Muku even did most of the work after the little girls started complaining. Jade saying girls weren't meant to do such heavy lifting while Layla said she was more of a thinker than a doer. Truth if the matter is, they were both lazy and just didn't want to do it.

.....

"Phew, finally done, but this again brings us back to a past problem. We can't stay hidden, we need to get stronger". After finishing up. Muku thought of a reoccurring problem, the situation reminded him about the saying, "you can't have your cake and eat it".

"That's simple...well risk it, but still, it's our only option. We just have to make a bit of noise up here to bait in a few of them. Of course the danger is that, we might bait in too many and get killed..". Layla thought out loud.

"Hmm....works for me, lets do it... the sun will set in a few hours so lets be quick about it. I have to at least kill one today" Jade grabbed her axe thinking about the excitement to come.

"Careful, your fangs are showing". Muku said trying to come her down, as it would lead to making mistakes. Jade understood what he meant, she again made a "Hmph" sound but calmed down nonetheless.

.....

Bang! Bang! Bang!...

Muku repeatedly hit the giant table blocking the stairs many times, though not too loudly.

.....

Floor 7....

The eleven dogs that were led up by the bloody smell were now loitering on the floor. Five of them that were closest to the stairs leading up heard a sound. Their eyes twitched before they started to slowly make they way up the stairs. Since it didn't sound like any prey they had heard before, they didn't rush up, which was a lucky break for Muku's group. Because if even one had sprinted up, the rest would follow.

...

"I can feel multiple foot steps, should be around four to six killer dogs, everyone get ready" Muku who had stopped making the banging sounds and now had his hands on the floor, warned the girls.

Jade looked at him with sparkling eyes, desiring to also step on the path of evolution and gain such sensitivity. She then held her axe tighter her eyes laser focused, with the stairs her target.

.....

Tap, tap, tap, tap....

A few moments later, familiar footsteps could be heard as the killer dogs had arrived. The interesting thing about these dogs was that they didn't bark, seemed to only know how to growl.

And growl they did, when they noticed the prey in front of them poking their heads out from the top of an obstacle. They didn't wait to ask questions, nor did they have any in the first place, without hesitation, they sped up the stairs. Although for humans such a thing would likely leave them close to death with exhaustion, but for the dogs it seemed like a walk in the park.

Apparently they had the stamina every unsatisfied wife wishes her dog husband had.

(P.s the author is a virgin who has never even kissed a girl, so don't feel offended, even if you can't satisfy her, at least you do have her right?)

.....

"There are five, every get ready, don't let them get through the table!". Muku screamed out as he got ready to receive the leading killer dog.

The killer dog aimed straight at him as if it knew the man was going to attack it no matter who it aimed for. It got into pouncing position, and pounce it did.

"Honestly, I know these dogs aren't very smart nor where they there when I killed the other ones, but why do they always fall for the same trick?". Muku smiled wryly as he spoke looking at the dog getting ready to jump to at its death.

"Well it's likely because they haven't met anyone who fought back, so their vigilance against us is basically zero. Which you should be celebrating instead of complaining about I might add." Layla replied him as his prediction came true. The dog basically jumped at his axe and he killed it.

[One kill left....]

"I'm not complaining, just that, its always good to spice things up every once in a while". Muku said while pulling his axe from the dog, getting ready to support the others.

"Yeah well, when a dog spiced things up before, you and me almost died!". Jade who was fighting back a dog replied to him.

They had been shallowly cut so many times by the girls that their crimson eyes turned even redder with rage. They kept on trying to break through to their prey who kept on wounding them, which made them even more mad. And like that the circle repeated.

Emily, Layla and Jade managed to mangle their dogs so much that they bled out and died, setting them on the path of evolution.

[Condition for Evolution met. Kill 9 more giant dogs to reach Rank 1 Evolver and gain specialisation]

The voice and numbness familiar to Muku had finally made its way to their bodies.

Unfortunately, Chloe the otaku didn't have enough stamina to finish the job. Just when she couldn't lift her axe anymore and the dog was about to successfully jump over the table and take a bite. Great teacher Muku stepped in.

[Kill count met. Evolution Commencing. Initialising Specialisation. Individual found to be first human to meet the requirements. Ultimate ability to be generated as reward]

With that familiar yet unfamiliar voice, great teacher Muku fell unconscious.

Chapter 8 Devine Metal Warlock!

The reason why Muku was lucky enough to be the first to reach a kill count of ten in a world of guns was because of three things. First, kills by guns weren't counted by whatever being that was acting behind the scenes. Second, although there were people who were more skilled than him the whole world over, they might not have had the courage to fight the beasts they faced, faced beasts that rendered their skills useless(not all of them were killer dogs after all) or didn't come across ten beasts to kill quick enough. But the main reason is, he was just lucky.

...

Muku found himself surrounded by darkness. His body felt sore all over but he couldn't open his eyes. He felt that someone or something was dragging his body somewhere but he couldn't hear any sounds.

Suddenly he felt a burning pain in his lower abdomen. He could feel a sphere forming there. And for some reason he knew what was going. It was the formation of a mana core...

[Mana core formation complete. Extremely High affinities with telekinesis and metal element detected, requirements for Legendary Specialisation met. Legendary Class, Devine Metal Warlock awakening...]

With the familiar voice saying unfamiliar things, Muku's body felt more than numbness this time. His whole body felt like it was burning all over and yet he couldn't even open his lips to scream. Making the whole experience even more unbearable. After what felt like a lifetime of suffering but was only five minutes, the burning sensation stopped.

When he was about to sigh in relief in his mind.....

[Reward Ultimate ability: Law of Nihilicity, generating...]

With that statement, he braced for pain, yet nothing happened. Before he could be happy he was suddenly attacked by the worst headache possible. It was so painful that he was a hair's breadth away from having his mind break. Along with the headache strange information he understood nothing of was being implanted in his mind. As soon as his the information was done being implanted, the pain stopped and he completely went unconscious.

.....

A few minutes back....

The girls was shocked to see their teacher collapse with no warning like that. All their minds went blank for a few seconds not knowing what to do.

"Shit!, someone grab his hand and lets drag him to the room. More dogs should be coming soon!." Layla was the first to regain her wits but from the suprise curse, the others knew that she was just as panicked as the rest of them. She just suppressed it because she knew they didn't have the time, which the others admired. They quickly did what she said.

And as if trying to prove her right, the remaining ten dogs on the seventh floor quickly made their way up the stairs. Drawn in by the scent of blood spreading in the air.

....

The girls had already reached the room and closed the door. Then suddenly Muku's body started twitching like crazy while sweating buckets.

"W-what's going on with him?, is he going to". Emily had already lost her cool, tears sliding down from her pretty golden eyes. Was asking no one in particular seeing Muku's state, but still hoping someone who'd tell her that he'll be fine. Before she could finish speaking though, Jade whose green eyes were also a bit puffy and red covered her mouth.

Before Emily could ask her why she covered her mouth, she heard it. The growls of the killer dogs as they fought over the five bodies of their allies. Hearing the sounds, she felt all the strength in her body disappear and even forgot to remove Jade's hand from her mouth who had also frozen in place.

Even Layla couldn't stay calm anymore, her body shaking with fear. It seems all their courage up to that point was because they had teacher Muku with them. Then suddenly, out of everyone else's surprise, Chloe stepped forward. She held her axe tightly while facing the door, getting ready to receive any dogs that came.

Well obviously this was a dumb idea. But to the other girls, it gave them the motivation they needed. They all grabbed their axes and stood beside Chloe.

"Thanks for that Chloe". Jade said as she stood beside her.

"Huh?". Chloe was confused, not knowing what she had done.

"Nothing, lets focus on this for now". Jade said again with a smile, she couldn't help but like Chloe more after realising that she didn't even know what she had done.

Of course, Jade's weird actions only confused Chloe even more. She looked at the other two girls for some answers but even they smiled at her without saying anything.

With their attention on the door, the girls failed to notice that Muku's condition seemed to have stabilized. Even one of his fingers twitched a bit, with a faint energy being drawn into his body, his lower abdomen to be exact.

....

Close to ten minutes later...

Bang! Bang! Bang!....

It seemed the killer dogs had finally finished with their cannibalistic meal. They finally noticed the human scent close by, the poor table that was blocking their way with no back up from the humans , was soon banged out of the way.

Tap...tap...tap...tap

With the dogs so close by, even the girls with their semi awakened or even normal senses in Chloe's case, could hear them approaching.

When the multiple footsteps reached the door, they stopped. The area descended into complete silence, making the girls even more tense. Their breathing became a bit unstable and more audible.

Bang!!

As if waiting for the girls to be on edge before attacking. The door was blasted open, one dog after the other speeding into the room. Seeing this scene, the girls all had one thought....

{We're dead}

The leading dog was about to bite Chloe's head off after knocking away her axe. She didn't have enough strength to make it cut deep so it basically bounced off. The other girls didn't have enough time to react and help her because more dogs were coming and aiming at them.

Chloe seeing the giant head getting closer and closer to her, she closed her eyes. Hoping it will be as painless and quick as possible. Though deep down she knew it was definitely going to be the most painful experience of her life. And likely the last as well.

Woosh!

"Howl!!"

Suddenly she felt a slight breeze pass by her ear followed by a pained cry from a dog.

She couldn't help but open her eyes, what she saw confused her greatly. At her feet the dog was dead with a silver sword embedded deep into its skull.

"Howl!!" × 9

Before she or anyone else could react, a blurry figure passed by her and the other girls from behind. Followed by nine cries of pain from all the dogs who had made it into the room. The principal's office was large after all, especially after the removal of the giant table. And they stood a bit of distance away from the door, giving all the dogs enough room to enter.

By the time they came to their senses, all the dogs were on the floor howling in pain as their legs had been cut off. And right at the middle of them, great teacher Muku stood facing away from the girls with a bloody sword in his hand.

"Finish them off". Teacher Muku said without turning back, continuing to stand there, maybe trying to look cool. Which to the girls in that moment, he definitely did.

Chapter 9 The power of a Rank One Evolver

The girls didn't waste time, and none hesitated this time. In less than five minutes the dogs were all dead.

[Seven kills left.....]

The familiar voice rang in all the girls' heads.

Layla, Emily and Jade all killed two dogs each, while Chloe killed three, which caught her up to the rest.

"Umm Sir, why are you standing there like that?". Jade couldn't help ask the question all of them were wondering. Surprisingly she asked it in a respectful manner, guess it's true when they only the strong are respected.

"Cough...I can't move". Great teacher Muku made a fake cough before exposing his shameful situation.

"What!!" ×4. All the girls were flabbergasted by his statement.

The cool image of him that had formed in their heads shattered after less than ten minutes of life.

....

A few minutes back.

Muku woke up around the time Chloe stepped up. Though he still couldn't move his body, feeling a weird emptiness from within. He then noticed that some sought of energy was being drawn in from the air and being stored in his newly acquired mana core. The more the energy entered his body, the better he felt, and like with the name of the mana core he subconsciously knew, he also subconsciously knew that the energy was mana.

A couple minutes later, although his mana core was far from being full. He had enough in it to move again again. The first action he did was look towards the girls, that's when he noticed it. No it wasn't one of their underwears, sadly they where too far that, and their school skirts were too long anyway.

He saw a killer dog a few inches away from biting off Chloe's face. And the other girls would likely be in the same situation in a second or two.

Without thinking, he raised his hand, a silver sword manifested out of thin air and flew forward. It was his body operated on instinct to protect the girls, and so the target was hit and died on the spot.

Though he didn't wait for that, he lifted his body up with an invisible energy. He stood up in such a way that even Michael Jackson would be jealous. The energy then carried him forward, another sword manifested and he started cutting down all the dog legs in his sight.

After cutting them down, he wanted to turn around and talk to the girls when he realised that his body couldn't move. And so, like any great teacher (In his head), he played it off like he meant to do it, hoping that he would be able to move before anyone noticed. Sadly he was found out.

...

"You're a disappointment". Jade disdainfully said, but anyone could tell she was happy that he had woken up. Except for teacher Muku who still couldn't move.

"Hey I'm your teacher and your saviour, show some respect!!. Besides I should be fine in a few minutes, just need to regain a bit more mana.". Muku felt like turning around and spanking her but sadly he still couldn't move, so he could only shout.

"So mana is real huh?...and we gain access to it after reaching level one. How interesting, though if we lose control of our bodies after using it, wouldn't we end up dead sooner or later?" Critical Layla analyzed the situation while grabbing the sword embedded in the head of the first dog Muku killed.

"Actually I'm pretty sure the only reason I can't move right now is because I had to use every ounce of it to save you. I had only gained less than a quarter of my core's maximum. Which leads me to believe that as long as you don't use all of it in a short burst you should be fine.". Muku tried to explain the situation as clearly as he could. He had regained enough to turn around at this point.

"Oh, that's good then". Layla only said that before shutting her mouth. If anyone looked at her face and bit closer, they'd notice that it now had a faint blush. It seemed knowing that he used everything he had to save them, really touched the young maiden.

"So cool, lets go kill more dogs, I also want to reach Rank One and massacre these beasts". Jade who had snatched the other sword from Muku's hand said with shining eyes while looking at it. Then suddenly the sword, along with the one Layla had started fading until they faded into nothingness.

"Oh". Teacher Muku suddenly said.

"Hey, why did you do that you jer..." Jade wanted to curse Muku when she was interrupted by Layla.

"What is it Sir?" Layla asked, cutting off the rude Jade.

"I felt that my mana recovery was going slower than before, I thought it could be because of the swords. So I thought to unsummon them, it appears my conjecture was correct, it worked. Seems I was supporting their prolonged existence with my mana." Teacher Muku said, his eyes sparkling, as a nerd, he of course liked finding out new things about things he found interesting. And he definitely found mana interesting.

"Oh, that makes sense otherwise it wouldn't be magic, but creation instead". Layla nodded as she said.

The other girls didn't say anything, Jade was even still angry because they were basically ignoring her.

"This room doesn't seem very ideal to stay in for the night, why don't we go to the teacher's lounge?". Emily suggested.

"Hmm, makes sense, lets do that. Hopefully the dogs from the sixth floor and below don't come up during the night". Muku agreed while the girls nodded in agreement.

"So anyone else expecting another psycho with a dead body to pounce on our teacher again or is it just me?" Jade said as they walked, led by Muku who had mostly recovered his mobility, though his mana was still less than half of his core's full capacity.

"Don't jinx it please". Muku's expression flinched a bit before he spoke.

The girls just giggled, while subtly slowing doing. Noticing it, Muku's expression turned dark but he continued to the door without saying anything.

When he reached it, he couldn't help but gulp down some saliva before opening the door. Although the situation before wasn't too dangerous for him if the killer dog was removed. Except for a few unique type of men, no other man would appreciate being jumped on by another man after all.

Luckily for teacher Muku, the lounge was empty. Jade sighed in disappointment behind him but he ignored the little brat.

The room had a few sofas and a kitchenette with some coffee ingredients. It was a plain white room, but had enough room for the five of them, though there were only three large sofas. The rest being single sitters. (And the author really doesn't like describing rooms and such. So please excuse him if he's ever vague about it in the future)

"At least there's more than just coke now, we got some coffee too now. And luckily the electricity hasn't gone off yet". Emily, always looking for the positives said.

"Your optimism is blinding, stay away from me". Jade jokingly said while moving away from her

Chapter 10 This sofa smells nice

After they had their canned dinner, cleaned up in the principal's bathroom(dude had everything). The girls quickly laid on the sofas to rest. They all fell asleep in no time at all. Which was only natural after the crazy day they had, in fact, crazy can be said to be an understatement.

Great teacher Muku pulled over a single sitter sofa and sat while facing the door. His trusty axe beside him, he didn't want to freely use his magic before figuring out their situation, so the axe was still useful. While he guarded the door, he focused on his mana recovery.

This led him to accidentally discover that meditation can speed up mana recovery, his core was 80% full at this point. He also found out that the presence of mana in the body seemed to work against exhaustion. He can be said to have had the worst day compared to the girls, but he didn't feel tired at all. Which made him like mana even more.

Around 2 am, Layla woke up and came to Muku.

"Sir why don't you sleep and I guard the door for the rest of the night?" She whispered not wanting to wake the others up.

"No I'm fine, you can continue sleeping, you growing kids need proper re..." Muku who was in the middle of rejecting Layla's offer was interrupted by three voices from behind them.

"We'll join her". The voices of Emily, Jade and Chloe sounded at the same time.

"You brats, it's the middle of the night, why do you want to give me a headache even now? Go back to sleep all of you". Muku rebuked them, but was met with defiant eyes from all of them.

"Sigh, fine, I'll sleep for a bit, then we switch again got it?". Seeing that they wouldn't give in, teacher Muku could only give in. Though he planned to only sleep for an hour then wake up.

"Yes sir". They all agreed.

With that Muku got up from his sofa and went to one big sofa and laid down to rest.

"Hmm, this sofa smells nice". With that statement he drifted off into sleep. It seemed although his body was getting sustained by mana, his mind still needed sleep to recover after all he had gone through.

He didn't know that his innocent statement almost made Chloe faint from embarrassment since that's where she was.

The girls pulled over one big sofa where three of them sat while Layla sat on the one Muku stood up from.

After 30 minutes, Jade couldn't help but look back. Seeing his sleeping face she couldn't help but make an unconscious statement.

"Although normally he is fine, he seems to be a bit more good looking when he's asleep don't you think?" She said what she was thinking without realising it.

"Yeah" ×3. The other girls looked back and without thinking they all agreed.

A minute later, when what just happened finally sank in into their heads. Each of their heads started turning red in silence, especially Jade, she wanted to find a hole and hide.

They then looked up, looked at each other, got even redder and looked down again. If the killer dogs came at this time, they might have even made it to the door without being heard.

Luckily for the girls, none of the dogs came up.

...

The next morning....

Great teacher Muku who planned to sleep for only an hour ended up sleeping for five. It seems his mind really was tired, especially after the pain of awakening which he dreaded to even think about.

On the girls' side, they tactfully agreed to not speak about some forbidden interests they all unwittingly exposed the previous night. Though honestly everyone kind of knew already in Emily's case.

"Okay students, lets have breakfast and I, your great teacher will take you down and clear out the dunge.... cough, the school floors. At the same time I'll turn you little novices into an expert like me who only needs to sneeze to kill a hundred dogs.". After some rest and with a full mana core, Muku was feeling quite confident.

"Are you sure it will be fine sir?". Chloe couldn't help but ask with worry visible on her face.

"Yeah, don't worry so much, I'd never do anything that would endanger my students... except for taking them to fight giant man eating dogs of course". Muku said with confidence.

Hearing the first part, Chloe was reassured but hearing the second one she couldn't help but take a step back.

"Sigh, don't be so nervous Chloe, he's only teasing you by the second part. You've seen how easily took care of the ten dogs yesterday right?. And he was basically in his weakest state. So today should definitely be fine.". Jade said to Chloe while glaring at Muku.

This time Chloe was reassured, remembering that although she was a second away from dying, she still managed to save her. So there was no way he couldn't do it again this time when he was in top condition.

.....

After breakfast, they set out on a hunt. The girls were kind of excited since after a day of being hunted, they were now the hunters. A classic case of hunter becoming the hunted.

After a few minutes of advancing slowly, they had reached the sixth floor. As soon as they turned the corner they were met with a bloody scene. Bloody and ripped school uniforms all over the ground. And fifteen dogs laying around with bloated bellies, clearly having eaten their fill.

The scene made the girls want to explode in anger and pity for their dead schoolmates. At the same time they couldn't help be happy that they chose to stay with their teacher instead of running out. As for teacher Muku, seeing this scene, he swore to himself that he won't let any of the girls he had end up like that no matter what.

Seeing the food deliver itself to them, although they were full, didn't stop the dogs from getting up and charging forward.

Before the girls could do anything, great teacher Muku made his move. He again moved at a speed that turned him into a blur in front of the girl's eyes.

"Howl!!" ×15

Familiar cries of pain were heard by the girls, and again the dogs were legless, crying on the floor. The situation was like that of an adult fighting toddlers. The dogs didn't have a chance to resist. Despite their size, they were still unranked beasts after all.

Without asking questions, the girls all got into action and started killing the beasts off.

[Three kills left....] × 3

[Four kills left....]

Jade, Layla and Chloe each killed four dogs while Emily killed three.

"Hmm, I don't know about this, it kind of feels like we're the bad guys now". Seeing how they had basically killed defenceless dogs, Emily couldn't help but feel sad.

"Are you forgetting what is in their stomachs right now?". Jade just said that single statement to her before shutting her mouth.

"Sigh, you're right I guess. They brought this on themselves"

Only Emily would even consider feeling pity for such creatures...