Chapter 491 Find Out

At this moment, there was a rapid sound of an engine driving towards this side.

The girl in the driver's seat had a cold aura and a calm face.

The car circled around the group of men in black at an extremely fast speed. Except for Lamont, the other men in black were shot and fell down.

Paige threw the spent gun aside, got out of the car, and helped Lamont up, "Are you all right?"

Lamont looked at his younger sister in front of him, and suddenly asked anxiously, "Didn't I tell you to come back later?"

As soon as the words fell, more than a dozen cars drove towards this side, and the new men in black appeared.

"You protect Leyna and Nels go first."

Dared to hurt her brother?

Paige looked up at the menacing vehicles, her eyes turned cold, none of these people would even try to run away!

Lamont didn't argue any more, but protected Nels and Leyna to go up the stairs first.

At the same time, Martin also sent new reinforcements.

The situation was increasingly favorable for them.

Lamont sent the two old people to the plane, but Leyna held his hand and said reluctantly, "Let's go together..."

"I still want to find Yana, you go first..." Lamont knew that Leyna was worried about the safety of them. He raised the corners of his handsome lips and comforted her, "Don't worry, we will be fine."

"But your injury..."

"I'll bandage it up in a while. I'll help Paige first. I'll contact you later." Lamont told the people inside to close the door.

Leyna patted the door, looked at Lamont's leaving back, and cried again, "Be careful, Lamont, be careful in everything..."

Jairo paused, and continued, "It's one of the experimental bases of the T3 Research Institute. It's not only a living laboratory, but also a terrifying breeding cradle."

The T3 Research Institute was a terrifying medical organization that usually liked to study various viruses and conduct experiments on children.

Children who could survive would be recruited by their headquarters and become members of the organization.

In the developmental trajectory of these people, there was often a need to perform a variety of tasks.

They needed a normal identity to cover up their private behavior, so the head of the orphanage would arrange them into a normal family, so that they could have a normal life on the surface.

"All the adoptive parents don't know how terrible these children they adopted..." Jairo said with emotion, "They look like other children, they go to and from school normally, they get good grades, and they are liked by others, but in fact, they need regularly return to the organization to report back, and complete various tasks assigned by the organization..."

Jairo said this, and added, "These people have never felt the warmth of a family since they were young. After being adopted, they usually develop feelings for their adoptive parents, which instead become the organization's weapon to restrain them..."

Paige's eyes dimmed, "You mean, Yana might be from the T3 research institute?"

“Very likely!” Jairo affirmed, “And I guess, she should have the weakness of the orphanage, so the people in the research institute will chase after her and want to catch her back.”

“But I have fought against that group of people, and the opponent’s way is not from the research institute.”

Hearing what Paige said, Jairo also felt a little strange.

“However, last time the people from the T3 Research Institute focused on you and made things difficult for us. One of our subordinates died and the other was injured. This feud is finally settled!”

Paige knew that as long as she was targeted by the people of this research institute, she would either obediently serve them, or there would be only one end, and that would be a dead end.

It was said that for so many years, as long as they had been targeted by them, no one can escape.

Could it be that Yana belonged to them too?

“You just said that the T3 Research Institute has a headquarters?” Paige asked again, “Where is the location? The headquarters is also called the T3 Research Institute?”

Chapter 493 Deciphered

So later, they lived peacefully in the triangle area for a long time, but recently, a few new forces emerged, together with the old gang, saying that they wanted to meet their boss...

Withdrawing their thoughts, everyone shouted again in unison, "Hello, Mr. Lamont"

Lamont nodded, and after greeting them, his heart was still extremely shocked.

How much hardship did the little girl suffer to sit on this chair and become the boss in everyone's mouth.

No wonder she looked cold-tempered, always indifferent, as if she didn't care about anything.

Growing up in the Tate family since childhood, her adoptive parents didn't care or love her, and even treated her as a disaster, never giving her family warmth.

Except for Grandma, it seemed that no one had really cared about her. She had to fight for everything by herself, which was why her personality had become solitary and self-reliant.

Her coldness, her rustiness, and her excellence were all bought with blood and tears.

Like Patricia, she was never beaten by the society since she was a child, and she was held in the palm of her hand by her family. She could get whatever she wanted, and did whatever she wanted.

But his own sister, because of some fault, she crawled all the way here by herself. She really experienced endless darkness and suffering before she achieved what she got today.

Thinking of this, while he was admiring, the sockets of his eyes warmed up unknowingly.

He secretly swore in his heart that he would treat this sister even better in the future! Give her all that she had never experienced, and all that she had not got, and double it to her.

"Boss, a few gangs are looking for you recently..." His subordinates followed Paige to report, "There are also people from Hell Base who asked you to come to their site alone within three days, saying that they have something to discuss, otherwise we will be in trouble."

Paige curled her lips coldly, "How dare they to say that?"

It's okay not to mention the hell base, but when they mentioned it, her whole body was ignited with anger.

The Hell Base was a terrorist organization abroad, and later took root in the Triangle Area, and often confronted their Flame Gang.

"Okay, let's eat first." Lamont went downstairs with her, and before they reached the dining table, they suddenly heard the sound of a plane landing outside the castle.

A subordinate trotted in, looking like he was encountering an enemy, 'Boss, the boss of the Snowbush Gang is here! It looks like he is going to land on our tarmac? Should we stop him?"

Although the two gangs had long formed an alliance, the castle was the boss's private territory after all. Wouldn't it be a bit... too much for them to park the plane directly on the boss's private apron without noticing them?

"Let him stop." Paige's eyes softened a bit, "Send someone to meet him."

"What?" The subordinate thought he had heard it wrong, and was stunned for a second, then received the pressure from the boss, and hurriedly followed what she said...

God, the boss seemed to have changed!

In the past, she was not afraid of anything, and she didn't even respect the emperor. How could she be so polite to the Snowbush Gang this time?

Although the Snowbush Gang had a great reputation and was quite powerful, but it didn't have to be conceded to this point?

The subordinates couldn't figure it out, the boss seemed to have become timid, but he didn't dare to say anything, so he could only bring someone to meet him.

Lamont found out that his sister was hungry and was going to eat. Hearing that Martin was coming, she turned around and walked towards the landing pad. She really didn't hide her expectation for someone...

It's true that you forget to eat when you have love...

Lamont could only follow in the footsteps of his younger sister and met his future brother-in-law together.

After the plane landed, the door opened, and a tall and stern man appeared in front of everyone.

His eyes were clear and his temperament was dignified. Just standing there, he was like a big mountain, and the people below did not dare to breathe.

Rhys was still standing behind him.

Rhys thought, "Boss, you want to see Ms. Paige yourself, why did you bring me together... I want to go back home and have a holiday!"

Such a provocation, Paige would not take it seriously, but Martin would never bear it.

Paige raised her eyes and asked, "So, you arrested their people?"

"The person in charge, I'm going to hang him at the gate of the Flame Gang for three days and three nights, to make an example to the enemies."

Would this be a bit high-profile?

"Anyway, no one is the opponent of our two gangs."

Martin didn't pay attention to other small gangs at all, especially in the triangle area, he didn't need to worry about anything else when he did anything.

"It's fine to strip off him and send him back." Paige still wanted to find Yana next time, not wanting to cause trouble.

Rhys was a little surprised, that's it? Would it be a little merciful for him?

If it weren't for his random orders, there wouldn't be so many people chasing after Ms. Paige a while ago....

"Okay, I'll listen to you." Martin's dark eyes burst out with gentle love, anyway, it's her business to deal with the enemy.

"I'll have someone put him in a coffin and carry him over." Paige ordered the people below to do it.

Paige's subordinates really didn't know what to say, and they somehow felt that the boss was as evil as the boss of the Snowbush Gang...

And they were like a family....

They didn't know if the people at the Hell Base would feel ashamed seeing their boss being sent back in this way...

After Paige walked into the castle, she asked someone to add a knife and a fork to Martin.

The subordinates inside were also stunned. They didn't expect the boss of the Snowbush Gang to come here and eat at the same table with their boss...

His dejected look came into Paige’s eyes, which moved Paige a little, “It seems that person is very important to you.”

“It’s more important than my life.” Nate looked up at Paige again, and smiled, “It’s a pleasure meeting you in this life, and I hope we can meet in another place in the next life.”

“Nate, don’t do stupid things.” Paige seemed to have guessed what he wanted to do, and said to hold back,

“Whenever there is a chance, you should not give up. You told me this.”

“There is no chance.” Nate’s pupils dimmed, and his tone was full of despair, “Paige, there is no chance, there are less than 24 hours left... I thought that seven-leaf lotus could save her...”

Although he guessed that this miraculous herb might be a rumor, he still found Paige with hope...

But when the girl said that there was no such herb on the Yald Mountain, his last hope was also destroyed, and the whole person seemed to fall into the abyss.

He tried everything he could, but in the end he couldn’t keep her.

The boy’s shoulders trembled slightly, and it could be seen that he was crying. His sadness was like an invisible net, which caught the two people in the living room.

Paige saw his sadness, “Take me to see her.”

Maybe, she could help a little...

“At the end of her life, she wanted to go quietly.” Nate choked up and said gratefully, “Thank you for your kindness, I thank you on her behalf, it’s worth it to know you in this life.”

The identity of a poisoned person was not suitable for publicity, so let her go quietly.

And he would accompany her to another world, so that she would not be alone.

Chapter 497 He Carried Her on His Back

Although she had night vision glasses, she could see everything in the jungle clearly, but Paige accidentally tripped over the stones at her feet.

"Be careful." Martin took her into his arms in time, 'Did you hurt your foot?"

Before Paige could answer, Martin had already squatted down, asked her to sit on his lap, and took off her shoes to have a look.

The feet were fine, but there were a few scratches on the ankles from the branches, which looked red, which made people feel distressed.

The little girl's skin was already tender, but now these few red marks made Martin couldn't help asking, "Does it hurt?"

Paige shook her head.

If she hadn't seen these marks with her own eyes, she would have no idea that she was scratched by a branch. She never cared about such small injuries.

For her, it didn't even count as an injury.

At most it was the branches tickling her.

"What about the foot, did it hurt when you tripped over a rock just now? Can you walk?"

"Yes, it's fine." Paige felt that he was making a big fuss, "I'm not so delicate."

After Martin helped her put on her shoes, he couldn't help but carry her on his back.

"I'm really fine."

"I want to carry you." Martin walked forward step by step with her on his back, "You're too light, you must have not eaten well these two days."

"I used to be heavy?"

"You used to be lighter, but now you're even lighter." Martin slowed down because he was carrying her on his back, "You should eat more in the future, I will cook all your favorite dishes now, and I will cook them for you later.."

Chapter 498 The Three Questions Are All About Lamont

“Go and see, don’t you know?” Paige was as light as a swallow, and fell directly from the tree to the ground.

Martin followed her footsteps.

The guards of the mountain only saw two black figures flashing past in front of their eyes. Before they could see clearly, they fell to the ground one by one, unconscious.

“I’ll do the physical work.” Martin didn’t want the little girl to work hard, so he kicked these people into the bushes one by one, so as not to attract attention.

When Paige was on the tree just now, she saw a man coming out of the mountain, turning the stone beside him with one hand.

At this time, she imitated that person’s movements and turned the stone counterclockwise. The surface of the stone suddenly opened, revealing a crystal clear recognizer.

It should be the lock.

Paige opened the software developed by herself in the mobile phone, scanned it around, and soon, the program automatically analyzed the traces of various check-ins on it.

It turned out that this group of people entered and exited by swiping cards.

Everyone’s card was different, there were dozens of different patterns, Paige entered a series of codes on the phone, and separated these patterns one by one...

Soon, strange patterns emerged from the screen one after another.

At this moment, the identifier suddenly turned on a rapid red light, and there was a cold mechanical warning sound, “You stay too long, please identify yourself within ten seconds, otherwise the alarm will be triggered, ten, nine, eight, seven...”

Among the separated patterns, Paige suddenly found a key-shaped pattern, which was exactly the same as the one left by Yana.

“Six, five, four...”

Paige found the small key, punched the card directly on it, and soon, the red light of the recognizer turned into a gentle blue light.

The mechanical voice became gentle, “Dear master, welcome home.”

Chapter 499 Missed Call

During the countdown, she directly took out her mobile phone and called Jack.

The eldest brother's schedule was so strict. The second brother often had to perform special tasks and was inconvenient to answer the phone. Their parents had already fallen asleep at this point, and now the only one who could place high hopes... was Jack who stayed up late.

Fortunately, Jack's call was connected immediately, and his tone was full of joy and surprise, "Hello? Paige? What a good day today, you remember me..."

"What date is Lamont's birthday?"

"What?" Jacki was stunned, thinking that he had heard wrong.

"Say it."

Only four seconds left.

"It's November 11th, but Paige, why you suddenly asked..."

Paige hung up directly, entered 1111, and answered correctly.

The data package was downloaded automatically, Paige heaved a sigh of relief, and looked at Martin next to him.

His profile lines were impeccably perfect, his thin and slender fingers were typing on the keyboard, and his dark and bright pupils were particularly beautiful. Soon, the defense program in the computer was rewritten, and the data package was being downloaded smoothly.

Paige saw that the name of the data package he downloaded was experimental data.

So what did she download?

Not even a name, just the letter L... L? Lamont?

Could it be the memories of Lamont and Yana?

Or does it imply life and death?

Soon, the download of the data package was completed, and a line popped up on the screen, "All data will be destroyed in 10 seconds, countdown 10, 9, 8, 7...'

Paige watched it count down from second to second until the screen displayed, "Destruction complete."

She got up and said, "Go."

"Because you saved the boss once, we will respect you, don't be too arrogant."

"If you want to see the boss, the first step is to walk over our corpses."

"Damn, who do you think you are? Our boss is not your follower, and someone you can see whenever you want? Can you consider your identity?"

Martin had never been so arrogant before.

This little brat saved the boss by himself, so he came to show off in front of them.

"Sorry, I offended you." Nate shot quickly.

Mill accepted the move immediately, he didn't mean to hurt Nate, but explained, "The boss is really not here, she went out to do some business."

"I do not believe."

Now every second was very precious to Nate, he must see Paige, not even a moment later.

"That's the truth. Even if you turn the entire castle over, you won't see her." Mill still didn't make a ruthless move, move, but avoided it as much as possible.

Who let Nate have a life-saving grace for the boss? The boss was thinking of this kindness, and he was also thinking of it.

But Nate was different.

He was eager to see Paige, and he was ruthless in his moves. In less than a minute, he had already hit Mill in many places.
