

339: I Will Personally Deal With Him

"Go to the meeting, wait for me to return."

Sebastian, along with Jasper and Vincent, made their way to the KM International Group's US headquarters. Previously, due to the conflicts between Raymond and Jasper, KM International Group had suffered greatly. Now, Sebastian had stepped in to organize a group meeting, calling all international leaders of the company together.

At the meeting, Sebastian, along with Jasper, introduced him to everyone again.

"Ladies and gentlemen, today I want to formally introduce someone to you. This is my second uncle, Jasper."

Everyone was shocked and confused. They couldn't understand why the man in front of them was his second uncle. He clearly looked like his father!

"When did The Vanderbilt Family have three sons? Hasn't it always been two?"

"Raymond suddenly became Jasper? Then where is the real chairman, Raymond?"

In the face of these questions, Sebastian explained the fact that his father and Jasper were twins, which stunned everyone even further. To make it more believable, Vincent spoke up, "That's right, this is my father, Jasper. No matter what happened in the past, he is still my father. As for Raymond, he is my elder uncle. He's also here today!"

Soon, the door to the meeting room opened, and Raymond appeared, sitting in a wheelchair. All the managers stood up. They saw Raymond, and while there were noticeable differences in appearance between him and Jasper, it was still clear that they were brothers.

Raymond stood up from his wheelchair, leaning on a cane as he walked toward them. Many of the people in the room were new faces, and Raymond could hardly recognize any of them, except for a few old-timers who had been there for decades. The ones called by name were in tears with joy.

“Ladies and gentlemen, I am Raymond. It’s been a long time. Eighteen years since I last returned. I’m happy to see all of you again.”

Raymond then began recounting the hardships he faced in the past.

After hearing his story and seeing him return alive, everyone finally understood the great sacrifices Raymond had made for KM International Group all those years ago. After tearfully recounting his experiences, Raymond continued, “Although I’ve returned alive, my health is not good. From now on, I wish to hand over the company’s affairs to my brother Jasper. I hope everyone will continue to support him, support The Vanderbilt Family! Now, let Sebastian say a few words!”

Raymond and Jasper embraced, and after that, Jasper made a speech in front of everyone.

“Everyone, in the past, due to unavoidable circumstances, KM International Group gradually declined, and I deeply regret that. But from now on, with my elder brother’s trust, I’ll continue to lead the company. I am also willing to work hand in hand with all of you to get KM International Group back on track.

“However, I propose that Sebastian take the position of Global CEO of KM International Group. The company needs new blood, and Sebastian has a rare talent in business. With him leading the way, while I will be assisting, I believe we can bring KM International Group back to its glory.”

His speech was passionate and sincere.

“I agree!” Vincent was the first to applaud. Raymond also expressed his support, and all the management leaders in the room followed suit.

Thus, the KM International Group conference ended successfully. Sebastian was elected as the Global CEO, while Jasper became the Global Vice CEO, taking charge of the company's management affairs.

After the meeting, Sebastian and Vincent headed back to VEG. On the way, Vincent brought up the matter of Black Wolf Fortress. “Sebastian, although you eliminated Black Wolf Fortress last time, we can't be sure there aren't any fish that got away. The assassin who attacked my father is still at large, and I'm very worried about my father's safety.”

Although his father had officially recognized the Vanderbilt family and his identity had been made public, Vincent was still worried about potential retaliation from the remnants of Black Wolf Fortress.

“I've already thought of that and arranged for capable assistants to protect Jasper. Don't worry!”

“Good.”

On the way, Sebastian received a call and had to go to the police station. He asked Vincent to return to the company first.

At the police station, Sebastian met with the officers handling the previous attack and was taken to see the attacker.

Through a one-way mirror, Sebastian saw Kairos, the attacker, strapped to an interrogation chair. Two officers were questioning him, but no matter how hard they tried, Kairos refused to say a word.

"Mr. Vanderbilt, this attacker has a tough mouth. He refuses to cooperate. Our team is still negotiating with him."

"Arrange it. I'll speak with him personally."

"Understood!"

Sebastian decided to personally interrogate Kairos. There was no room for patience or negotiations. Soon, the surveillance system in the interrogation room was turned off, and the officers were asked to leave.

Sebastian walked in, and the door was shut behind him.

"Kairos?"

Hearing his name, Kairos looked up in surprise and saw the man who entered.

Sebastian had already put on special gloves. His cold eyes locked onto Kairos, and he walked toward him step by step.

"I already know who you are. You're one of Dustin's subordinates. Now tell me, how can I find The Silent Order and Dustin? Hmm?"

Kairos remained silent. Sebastian didn't want to waste time with him.

He quickly lifted Kairos's shirt, covering his head, and delivered a forceful punch to his face.

The light shirt quickly stained with blood as Kairos was beaten badly. The interrogation chair was knocked over, and Kairos lay on the floor, legs up.

"Are you going to speak?"

Sebastian continued the beating until Kairos couldn't handle it anymore and cried out in pain, "I'll talk... I'll talk..."

Sebastian pulled his shirt off, and Kairos's face was covered in blood. He panted, trembling, and said, "In the northern area of V Country..."

Kairos's information matched what James had said earlier. Sebastian replied, "But The Silent Order isn't in the north. They've abandoned their old stronghold. Do they have any other hideouts?"

"No... I don't know..."

"No? You don't know?" Sebastian lifted him up and swung his fist again. Kairos, terrified, shouted, "I really don't know... The Silent Order only has one headquarters... If for some reason, we'll be scattered to avoid the danger... Once it blows over, we'll return... James knows what I know... but what he doesn't know, I don't know either..."

Kairos's words didn't seem to be lies.

Sebastian adjusted his approach. "I know you and James are both orphans adopted by Dustin, trained to be The Silent Order's death-bound disciples. You're just tools for Dustin to kill with. After your mission failed, he planned for you to take poison and die to protect himself. Don't you think that's too selfish?"

Kairos remained silent, and Sebastian continued, "You all have a special channel for internal communication. James, with his rank, can't know about it, but with your rank in The Silent Order, you definitely know where it is. Tell me, where?"