

First Love 164

Chapter 164 My life has been ruined by you

Qiuyan and her ex-husband agreed to meet in a cafe. Qiuyan arrived at the cafe at the appointed time, but her husband arrived an hour late.

Qiuyan came to a seat for two people by the window and sat down. At this time, the waiter came up and asked, "Miss, what would you like to order?" "Order a cup of coffee first."

Qiuyan was shocked when her ex-husband, Principal Zhang, showed up in the coffee shop. His energetic and handsome look was gone. He looked much thinner and older than before.

His face, which he had kept clean, was now covered with a beard. His complexion seemed to have been ruthlessly eroded by the years. His originally smooth and delicate skin had become rough and dull, and his eyes and forehead were covered with fine wrinkles, as if they had been kneaded by an invisible hand.

His eyes were no longer as bright and energetic as before, but revealed a deep sense of fatigue and powerlessness. He looked as if he had lost his vitality and energy, listless and listless. Compared with before, he seemed to have aged ten years in an instant.

Qiuyan felt as if something had pinched her heart hard, causing her great pain. She thought to herself that emotions could actually torture a person so cruelly.

The endless pain surged into my heart like a tide, making it hard to breathe. It was as if an invisible hand was tightly strangling my throat, and every breath became extremely difficult.

This torture is not physical pain, but a kind of mental torment that goes deep into the bone marrow, following you everywhere and lingering. It is like a sharp sword, ruthlessly piercing the depths of the soul, leaving scars that cannot be healed.

In the vortex of emotions, people often lose themselves and are controlled by emotions, unable to extricate themselves. The laughter and happiness of the past have now vanished, leaving only desolation and despair. This cruelty is not limited to love, but may also involve various emotional bonds such as family and friendship. When cracks appear in these relationships, the harm caused is even more difficult to describe.

"Are you okay?" Qiuyan's throat seemed to be blocked by something. She didn't know what words to use at this moment, so she could only say this sentence clumsily.

"It's okay. You've seen that I am like this now." Principal Zhang, who used to speak slowly and softly to Qiuyan, now looked nonchalant. His words were full of sarcasm and ridicule, which made people feel very disgusted.

"We are husband and wife after all, why do you have to be so sarcastic now?" Qiuyan felt extremely sad after hearing what Principal Zhang said.

"You still remember that you are a husband and wife, you cruel woman. Do you have any humanity left? For your own shameless and lewd selfishness, you disregard your family and the life and death of your children, and only care about your own little romantic affairs." Qiuyan looked at Principal Zhang in surprise.

She couldn't believe her ears. Such filthy and clumsy words actually came from his mouth! She stared at him with wide eyes, as if she saw a completely stranger. The good impression she had of him disappeared in an instant, replaced by endless astonishment and disappointment.

These words were like a sharp knife, piercing her heart and making her feel extremely angry and humiliated. She could never have imagined that he, who was usually well-mannered and elegant, would actually say such vulgar words.

At this moment, her understanding of him was completely overturned, and she began to re-examine this person.

Looking at Qiuyan's surprised expression, Principal Zhang became even more excited. "You vicious woman, you have not only harmed our family and son, but also my life. For you, I, a university teacher, followed you to a remote mountain valley. I thought that for love, I would sacrifice everything for you and gain spiritual comfort. As long as there is true love, I would be willing to pay for you in this mountain valley. But I didn't expect that you would treat my kindness as a donkey's liver and lungs and waste it at will." As he spoke, Principal Zhang was already sobbing and couldn't continue.

At this time, Principal Zhang's voice was a bit loud and attracted a large number of spectators. Everyone talked about it and blamed Qiuyan. "This woman has the nerve to come back. She is really shameless."

"You've driven such an excellent principal crazy."

"Yes, when Principal Zhang was in our school, the teaching quality of our school improved very quickly. Our school's admission rate was very high, and more than half of the students were able to enter high school every year."

"Humph, beauty is a disaster. You don't know yet, she has also harmed the Wang family in the town and broke up the family of Wang's son. She is really a troublemaker." Qiuyan heard the accusations of everyone, and tears welled up in her eyes. She wanted to explain, but found that her voice had already choked.

At this time, Qiuyan felt so ashamed after hearing everyone's public opinion that she wished she could dig a hole in the ground and crawl into it.

"It's not like that, I..." She tried to defend herself.

However, Principal Zhang interrupted her.

"Enough! Do you still want to deny it? The facts are in front of us!" His tone was full of determination.

Qiuyan felt heartbroken as she looked at the man she once loved deeply, but now he was so cold to her.

"At that time, my mother warned me that I was not a good woman, but I didn't believe it. If I had listened to my mother's advice, I, Principal Zhang, would not have ended up like this."

It turns out that Principal Zhang has been away for more than a year. Due to the emotional blow, I am exhausted and have now taken sick leave at home and have been recuperating for more than a year.

"For the past year, I have been almost isolated from the outside world, fighting the disease every day. My physical discomfort has prevented me from moving freely as before, and even simple daily life has become extremely difficult. Whenever I think of how I treat you wholeheartedly and devote all my emotions to you without reservation, an indescribable pain will surge in my heart.

I thought we had a deep bond, and my love for you was so pure and strong, but your response made me feel extremely disappointed and heartbroken. Every time I recall those bits and pieces of the past, I can clearly feel my sincerity and enthusiasm at the time.

However, reality has mercilessly awakened me. Your indifference and apathy, like a sharp sword, pierced my heart.

I don't understand why my efforts are not rewarded, why my love is ignored. This unequal treatment makes me fall into deep pain, and I even begin to doubt my own value and the meaning of my existence.

Maybe I was too naive, thinking that sincerity would be rewarded with sincerity; maybe I had too high expectations for love, but ended up with nothing. But no matter what, I can't accept such an ending. I once gave so much for you, but now there is only endless pain and loss.

I had to stay in bed for a long time, relying on the care and concern of my family. Looking at the bright sunshine outside the window and listening to the birds' laughter, I was trapped in this small space, and I couldn't help but feel helpless and bitter.

Principal Zhang became more and more excited as he spoke, and Qiuyan felt more and more ashamed as she listened. She lowered her head and did not have the courage to face Principal Zhang's angry eyes.