

First Love 59

Chapter 59 College Classmates

Before they knew it, the deadline for the trip had arrived, but they had already adapted to the environment here in the past few days. Because it was so beautiful, Wang Kun accompanied Lizhen to watch the sunrise every morning. In the evening, they strolled on the white beach, hand in hand, with their feet stepping on the white sand. The sea water flowed over the sand and gently hit their feet, which was so comfortable. Looking at the beautiful sunset and the blue sea, they felt a little reluctant to leave.

Wang Kun and Li Zhen live a life of going out early and going out late every day [because the daytime temperature is as high as 40 degrees Celsius], from 9 am to pm. The sun here is so hot that Asians can't stand it at all. The two of them can only spend every day in the hotel, being so sweet.

They had not had time to experience this sweet time since they got married, but these few days they made up for the sweetness and happiness they had missed, and they truly felt the inseparable feeling between husband and wife.

"Wang Kun, time flies so fast. If it weren't for our careers, I wouldn't want to go back. I'd like to be here with you every day until we grow old." After they made love that day, Li Zhen looked at Wang Kun affectionately at his handsome face, and spoke her true feelings from the bottom of her heart.

"I also want to stay like this forever, but that's unrealistic. You have a dad and a mom, and I have a dad and a mom. The burden on us is not light, it's still very heavy." Wang Kun held Lizhen's head with one hand and admired the beautiful face that this wonderful time brought to Lizhen.

Looking at Lizhen, Wang Kun couldn't help but hold Lizhen's face with both hands. Especially when he saw her rosy and sexy lips, he kissed her passionately.

The day of leaving the island is approaching. In addition to missing the beautiful scenery, Wang Kun and Li Zhen also miss Sister Cheng who saved them here. Sister Cheng not only cared about them but also saved their lives, making them unforgettable for the rest of their lives. They left their contact addresses with each other, and they said goodbye to their companions who had traveled together with reluctance, and everyone returned to their own cities.

As Lizhen and Wang Kun walked out of the airport, a handsome, medium-sized young man wearing sunglasses and fashionable clothes came towards them with a trolley case. He kept staring at Lizhen. Wang Kun found it very strange and glared at him to express his protest.

"Lizhen, is that you?" When he came in front of Wang Kun and the others, he called out Lizhen's name in surprise.

"Who are you?" Looking at this unfamiliar face, dressed in a suit and tie, with a black windbreaker on his face, looking like a rich young man who seemed to have just returned from abroad, Li Zhen was very surprised and shook her head at him to indicate that she didn't know him.

"I'm your senior brother Hongliang." He immediately took off his glasses. He seemed particularly excited at this time and couldn't help grabbing Lizhen's hand and shaking it.

What's wrong with this guy? Wang Kun felt jealous. If he hadn't seen so many people at the station, he would have wanted to go up and beat him up.

When he took off his glasses, Lizhen was surprised to find that it was her college classmate Liu Hongliang.

"Liu Hongliang, it's you. When did you come back?" Li Zhen was also very excited and excited, but then Li Zhen's eyes suddenly darkened and her mood suddenly changed qualitatively. After looking at him, Li Zhen pulled Wang Kun and was about to leave.

It turned out that Liu Hongliang was her classmate, and if he hadn't gone abroad, they might have been a couple.

"I just returned home and got off the plane. What's wrong with you?" He suddenly realized that Lizhen was pregnant.

"Oh, I forgot to introduce you, this is my husband Wang Kun." Li Zhen hurriedly pulled Wang Kun in front of Liu Hongliang, as if to say, this is my husband, how come he is more handsome than you, and looked at Hongliang with a boastful look.

Liu Hongliang's eyes lit up and he stared at the tall and handsome Wang Kun. A feeling of awe suddenly arose in his heart.

"Meet Liu Hongliang, my classmate from Lizhen University. He just returned from the United States." Hongliang extended his hand enthusiastically. Wang Kun didn't know what to say, so he just extended his hand and shook hands with him.

"Why don't you develop in the United States? Why did you return to China?" When Liu Hongliang heard Li Zhen asking why he didn't develop in the United States, he couldn't help but look at Li Zhen, and then at Wang Kun.

"I haven't been home for several years. I came back to see my mother." Originally he was thinking of Lizhen. They hadn't been in contact for several years and he wanted to see Lizhen. But when he came back he saw that Lizhen was already pregnant, so he had to say he was going to see his mother.

It turned out that he and Lizhen were classmates in college, and they had a very good relationship. He was the school's academic backbone, and Lizhen was also very good at studying. They had similar interests and they often discussed together and published newspapers for the school together.

Seeing Liu Hong and Liang Lizhen couldn't help but think of the happy times they had in school.

They started dating like everyone else, and their footprints were left on the school playground, the narrow paths along the school flower beds and the roadsides.

Sometimes Lizhen felt a little hungry after self-study in the evening, so Liu Hongliang would take her to a roadside stall in front of the school gate to have some hot and sour noodles, and grill some beef skewers, lamb skewers, leek skewers, kelp skewers, cabbage skewers, etc. to satisfy her cravings.

On Sunday, the two of them packed some simple luggage, walked out of the school gate, and went on a simple tour near the school.

Sometimes they would come to the library to read books and look up information, and they would stay there for the whole day. Sometimes Liu Hongliang would go out to buy fast food, such as some bread, and then simply eat something there.

But they are all very happy and joyful because they are accompanied by their loved ones.

Just when they were immersed in the happiness of love, suddenly one day Hongliang told her that his parents wanted him to go abroad and had arranged everything for him.

"Can you not go abroad for me?" Lizhen deliberately tested Hongwei to see where she stood in his heart.

At this time, Hongliang was in a dilemma. On one hand, there were his biological parents who raised him and had spent a considerable amount of money to allow him to go abroad. On the other hand, there was the girl he loved deeply, which gave him a headache. Hongliang didn't know what to do.

Lizhen still clearly remembers that when Hongwei told her, he didn't dare look at her anymore. Instead, he just squatted beside the flower bed in the school playground, holding his head in agony. Under Lizhen's questioning, he finally convulsed and cried there.

Seeing Hongliang crying so sadly, Lizhen also started crying. In the end, the two of them hugged each other and cried very sadly.

"You study hard in school, and I will wait for you to settle down abroad. When you graduate from school, I will come back to pick you up," Hongliang told Lizhen while hugging her and crying.

But just a few days after Hongliang went abroad, Hongliang's mother came to the school to find Lizhen and told her not to disturb Hongliang. She also gave Lizhen 30 yuan and asked her to promise that from now on, Lizhen would not have any contact with Hongliang. If Lizhen contacted Hongliang again, they would sue the school, ruin Lizhen's reputation and prevent her from graduating.

Lizhen is an ambitious girl. She doesn't want their family's money. She also promised that she will not contact Hongliang again.

Later, Hongliang wrote many letters to Lizhen, but she didn't reply until graduation. Later, Lizhen left the school, and Hongliang couldn't find Lizhen's whereabouts.