

Chapter 10

PRECIOUS

I let the towel fall when the door opened.

Gasp.

Five handsome males, wearing only bathrobes, walked into my room as if they owned it. Didn't they know about privacy? All ten eyes widened as they took in my naked body, and they shamelessly walked towards me. Panicking, I grabbed the fallen towel and wrapped it around myself.

"You have a very beautiful body, princess," Richmond uttered, a smirk on his face with his head tipped to his left. How dare you smirk, you perverted asshole!

"Get out!" I fired angrily, pointing to the door to hasten their departure, but no one listened. It didn't seem like they cared because the five demons kept approaching until they were a foot away. "Don't you understand English in the morning? Okay, let me spell it out for you, dumbasses. GET THE HELL OUT OF MY ROOM!"

There was total silence except for my ragged breathing. I had enough of their nonsense. How dare they barge into a lady's room without knocking? Had anyone ever taught them manners?

Nate moved his hand to touch my face, but I quickly moved my head backward and his hand fell on my chest, causing a bright crimson color to appear on my face. He let go of his hand and flicked it before me. "You are blushing because I merely touched you. So why do you pretend to not want us near you?"

"Nate is right, also tell us why you so much want us to bounce out of your room? Did you have wet dreams about us? Were you scared that seeing us all this morning in your room made you think we are here to do it in real life?" Damon's voice, which was always rough and angry, sounded so sexy to me that my pussy became very wet.

I imagined how it would feel to kiss him. Would he kiss me as passionately as Duke did last night? I slapped myself to snap back to reality. There was no way I was going to let them have their way now, especially when all they did in the past was bully me.

"Don't you know that you are all very dumb? Barging into a lady's room without asking for her permission!" I spat, my voice rising so much that they all stared at me in bewilderment.

"And that lady happens to be our mate, so I wonder now, are you the dumb one or are you blind to see the truth?" Tiger said harshly, earning angry looks from his brothers. Duke, who was nearest to him, punched him on the arm while the rest continued to stare at him as if he were their newfound enemy.

"Watch your mouth, Tiger!" Nate warned, but he immediately calmed down when I placed a hand on his shoulder. We were both surprised by my action and I immediately retrieved my hand and backed away.

"And that mate of yours isn't accepting you. Not today or ever!" My voice boomed dangerously, and the atmosphere in the room chilled as if the AC had been turned on.

"Don't mind this asshole, please," Damon begged in a tone filled with emotions, and my heart softened. I wasn't angry at Tiger for what he said. In fact, I was glad he was honest enough to voice out his thoughts. "Please, accept us as your mates."

"I want to be left alone for now and I will tell you my decision tomorrow afternoon. So don't bother rushing me!" I blurted out then walked away from them and started searching for a simple cloth to wear.

"Far be it that we will rush you. The decision is all yours to make but please do consider us in your thoughts." Duke begged but I said no word nor did I turn to give them a second glance.

Five seconds later and they were out of my room. 1

I got out a white turtleneck top and black pants and dressed in them before braiding my hair into two ponytails. Fishing out a feminine cologne, I applied it all over my body excluding my mouth and private area.

After I was done I wore a pair of matching slippers before leaving the room.

When I got downstairs, I went to the dining room, which was already filled with all the family members. No one had started eating yet. When Alpha Rodriguez saw me, he pressed a bell on the wall near him, and a maid came running downstairs. Talking about maids, I realized I had forgotten to bring it up with the brothers. Well, it wasn't too late; after all, we all lived together. So, no need to worry.

"Good morning, Alpha Rodriguez," I greeted politely with a smile plastered on my face. There were two empty seats, one beside Duke and the other beside Tiger. I swiftly went to sit beside Duke who smiled immediately I made my choice. That is sitting in between Duke and Alpha Rodriguez.

"Good morning, Precious. I hope you slept well?" Alpha Rodriguez asked. I shifted uncomfortably on my seat because I dared not steal a glance at Duke. The memories of the previous night appeared before me and I blushed red. Getting fingered by Duke and almost getting caught by his father was making my pussy drip wet with my juices.

"Yes, I did. Thank you." I replied, making sure my eyes did not meet his. I was afraid he would see right through me so I fixed my gaze on my hands instead. 1

The maid who was serving us breakfast had fair skin that shone brightly against the fluorescent lights in the room. Her skin looked so supple, and I glanced at the brothers to find Richmond's eyes on her as she scooped hot rice onto his plate. My fingers curled around the dining table in anger, but I managed to stop myself from lashing out at both of them. "He's taken, you dirty whore, so stop flirting with my mate," Michelle's cold voice rang out in my head.

"You really care about Richmond, don't you?" Duke's husky voice caused my breasts to tingle in excitement, and my once angry self got replaced with hunger.

"Hmmm," I didn't know what to say. There was no way I was going to admit that I was jealous and I bet he knew that.

"Whether you admit it or not, I know you care about all of us. That's the more reason you should accept us soon so that every female eyes on us would go elsewhere. They don't know that we have found our mate and it's up to you whether you want to accept us or watch other girls take what belongs to you." Saying it in a warning way, Duke started munching his food and I did the same. ¹

We all ate in silence and I was glad that there was no fuss. I needed time to clear my mind and think about the best option for myself because the brothers' constant nagging in getting accepted was beginning to tire me.

Ten minutes later, we were done eating. I pushed away my plate and gulped my juice to quench my thirst. Alpha Rodriguez coughed, a signal I had learned during my stay here that indicated he was about to discuss something important. All eyes fixed on him as he smiled at us all.

"I want to adopt Precious legally."

Comments

Support