

For Dinner 321

Chapter 321: Let Him Do It

Cindy asked Morgan, "What do you think? Can we move your furniture from your room over here, or do you want new ones?"

"Just moving it over is fine," Morgan replied, "I love my car bed! Back then, selecting the furniture for my bedroom with your help was a long and tough process, going from one store to another. I don't want to just throw it away like that. "

There are sentimental feelings attached to it.

Originally their small home, though not large, was filled with wonderful memories together with Cindy.

Now they suddenly had to move, and although the new house was bigger, Morgan was still reluctant to leave the old one.

But now that they could move their old furniture over, it was perfect.

She could still see familiar things, she wouldn't have to face a completely unfamiliar environment, and it would not feel uncomfortable leaving the familiar place.

"Let's move all the furniture from our old home over, and whatever little things are missing, we can buy later," Cindy said, "Does that work?"

As long as Cindy and Morgan were happy, Adrian Zhekova was okay with anything.

"With this plan, you can move in as soon as possible, without waiting any longer," Adrian Zhekova suddenly laughed mischievously, as if he had thought of something.

Seeing his expression, Cindy had a bad feeling.

Then, she heard Adrian Zhekova lean closer to her and whispered, “Are you in such a hurry to move in?”

” Cindy chuckled coldly and said, “Not in a hurry. We can wait longer or even not move in.”

This wasn’t about whether she and Morgan would not be able to move in soon if they chose new furniture.

If they didn’t move in, knowing Adrian’s nature, he would not be able to live here by himself.

He would have to go to her place.

Was he still planning to have him sleep on the sofa?

Moreover, their furniture was still new—the thought of leaving them untouched seemed wasteful.

That’s why Cindy suggested this idea.

Who would have thought that he would use it to tease her with!

Hmph!

Let him suffer!

As if she could not refuse him!

Adrian Zhekova:

Now Adrian Zhekova deeply experienced the feeling of shooting himself in the foot.

It really hurts.

“Let’s move!” Adrian Zhekova quickly said, “We’ll move today! I’ll call the moving company right now.”

Since they were moving Cindy and Morgan’s old furniture, there was no need to go to Furniture City.

With the time saved, might as well move directly.

Morgan was stunned.

Was it really that fast?

They had only just come to take a look at Adrian’s new place, and now they had decided to move?

“What about our old home?” Morgan asked.

“Just let it be. I don’t plan to rent it out anyway,” Cindy said.

“Because some brands approach me to do product promotions. Especially for big items, it’s not practical to replace everything at home regularly. So I thought if there were large items to promote, I’d just go back to our old place to shoot the photos. We can use it as a workspace.”

“Besides, many products sent by brands for me to try out can be stored there,”

Cindy explained, “Otherwise, having too many things at home will not be good. I was already quite distressed that more and more items of all sizes from brands are accumulating at home—it’s almost too much.”

“Some can be sent to Xiaoyun or used as giveaways for fans, but some need me to try them out for myself,” Cindy said with a smile, “Now that we’re moving, the problems with our old place are solved.”

As a result, Adrian quickly called the moving company..

Chapter 322: I’m Leaving Now

He went to the garage and drove a large SUV, taking Cindy Clarke and Morgan Zhekova back with him.

When they returned to Cindy’s place, both Cindy and Adrian Zhekova couldn’t help but laugh.

They had just left for two hours, and now they were back.

Cindy started packing up their daily necessities, and neatly putting them into boxes.

She also carefully packed up Morgan’s toys into boxes.

During this time, the moving company had arrived.

They started loading the large pieces of furniture onto the truck first.

Cindy went to the kitchen intending to pack but changed her mind after some thought.

Since she decided to turn the place into a studio, these kitchen utensils would be needed when she worked there.

She couldn’t move everything out.

So she decided to see what was missing in Adrian's place and buy the items separately.

Leaving the house empty as a studio, she didn't plan to rent it out.

She just wanted a place of her own.

She trusted Adrian, but who doesn't argue when living together or even after getting married?

She was alone in Belfard without any family.

Peggy Lewis had her own life, and even though they were good friends, she couldn't keep bothering her endlessly.

So, Cindy decided to keep the house as her own fallback plan.

If she ever argued with Adrian and wanted to cool off, she would have a place to go.

When Cindy came empty-handed from the kitchen, Adrian asked, "Why didn't you pack up?"

"Let's keep them here since I plan to use this place as a studio. If I sometimes need to come back to work, it would be inconvenient to carry pots, pans, and other things from home. These things should stay here and be available anytime , " Cindy explained.

"The small appliances in our current place are insufficient. When we get back today, I'll order everything we need online," Cindy added.

"Well, then everything is packed up," Adrian observed as he looked around.

Cindy did a final inspection.

Indeed, everything was ready.

Nothing in the living room and kitchen had been touched.

Appliances and other items were left behind.

She unplugged the power and switched off the circuit breaker.

Cindy and Morgan's rooms were all emptied.

The cabinet for displaying Morgan's toys, custom-made by Cindy, was moved to Adrian's place.

After checking everything, Cindy called out, "Morgan, it's time to go." "Oh!" Morgan responded loudly from his room.

At that moment, Morgan's room, once full of belongings, seemed so cold and empty.

Now, it was just the wallpaper on the walls left behind.

Morgan put his small hand on the wall, "I'm leaving..."

According to Cindy, they moved here when Morgan was just over a year old.

For Morgan, his entire life's memories were in this house.

Although it wasn't big, it was the place he knew best.

His favorite memories were the times spent with Cindy, watching her cook, and watching her take videos.

He knew every corner of the house.

Moreover, this house was also a testament to Cindy's hard work and achievements.

She the house her own efforts.

His happiest moment of the day was returning home from nursery school.

Just thinking about getting home and seeing Cindy would make him incredibly happy.

Therefore, this home was filled with memories of their life together.

"I'll miss you so much," Morgan whispered, choking up, his heart filled with reluctance to let go..

Chapter 323: Undefeated Persona

He dawdled out of the bedroom, noticing that nothing in the living room had changed.

All the furniture and appliances were still there.

Morgan thought about how he used to sit on the carpet every day, watching cartoons.

And he would hold his Poké Ball while watching Pokémon.

Cindy walked over, "Having a hard time letting go?"

Morgan nodded, "This is the place you worked so hard to buy on your own."

"And there are so many memories here. I know every nook and cranny," Morgan said sadly.

"Don't want to move to my place?" Adrian Zhekova asked, walking over. Morgan shook his head, "No, it's just a little hard to let go."

"After all, he has lived here for three years," Cindy said softly, "Despite his young age, he has been here since he can remember. It's the place he's most familiar with."

Leaving the place where he grew up would inevitably cause some sadness and loss for the little guy.

However, children have a great ability to self-regulate.

They can easily become happy again.

And they adapt well to new environments.

Cindy said to Morgan, "Didn't I tell you I'm turning this into my studio? I'll be back here to shoot videos sometimes. I'll try to pick times when you're on vacation and at home. I'll bring you with me."

"Really?" Morgan's mood brightened all of a sudden. He'd be able to come back, not just leave forever. This made him feel a little better.

As long as he was here, Morgan could remember the warm memories of the past.

These were things he didn't want to forget.

Cindy nodded, "Of course."

She looked around and said, "This was the first house I bought with my own ability. It means a lot to me too." And it was in Belfard.

That was not an easy feat to achieve.

Cindy cherished her hard-earned property.

"Why don't I just buy the units above and below? Or I could buy the two units next to it and turn them into a big condo," Adrian suggested. "Then I could move in."

Since Cindy's place wasn't that big, buying just one more unit wouldn't be enough.

"What if they don't want to sell?" Morgan asked, looking up.

He wasn't the least bit surprised by Adrian's suggestion.

Little Morgan was now fully aware of being part of a trust-fund baby family!

"Then I'll offer a higher price," Adrian said casually. There must be a price that could persuade the other party.

Cindy: '

You rich people really are something else.

With the way he was acting like money was no object, she wondered if it might affect Morgan's spending habits.

“It would be so much trouble to connect the units,” Cindy quickly stopped him.

“Let’s just move to your place.”

Having money doesn’t mean you should waste it on buying overpriced houses.

Why bother!

Morgan nodded, “Dad, even if you have money, you can’t be so willful!”

Adrian: ‘

Who was he doing this for?

This ungrateful little brat!

“Let’s go,” Cindy said, seeing that Morgan was stirring up trouble again.

It seemed that the little guy had already adjusted his mood.

He was once again able to tease Adrian.

She had thought that knowing Adrian was his real dad would change the little guy’s attitude.

But it turned out that Morgan was indeed consistent, and his character remained unshaken.

Adrian gave Morgan a vengeful smile.

It seemed that their lack of time together was the reason the boy didn’t know him well enough..

Chapter 324: Scolding Whom?

I never knew he was the type to hold a grudge!

The movers had already left with their luggage.

The remaining personal items were placed in the trunk of Adrian Zhekova's car.

On the way, Cindy Clarke was browsing on Amazon online shop for some small appliances.

Like electric stew pots, egg steamers, electric egg beaters, high-speed blenders, etc.

Adrian Zhekova's house had an oven, but not the molds needed for baking.

Basic ingredients like low-gluten flour, high-gluten flour, and butter didn't exist either.

Cindy looked at each item, adding them to her cart.

Adrian Zhekova noticed that she kept looking at her mobile phone, completely absorbed, and asked, "What are you looking at?"

"Checking what our kitchen needs, I'm shopping on Amazon," Cindy replied, "we don't have any small appliances at home."

As she said this, Cindy suddenly remembered: "Right, we don't have a steamer basket either!"

Cindy quickly searched for a steamer basket.

"If we don't have a steamer basket, I won't be able to make dumplings for you," she said while searching.

"Bamboo sticks, Cindy, buy some bamboo sticks for grilling skewers," Morgan Zhekova reminded her from the back seat, "I only had one skewer at the competition. I'd like to try other flavors."

"Okay." Cindy searched for bamboo sticks and added them.

"Using charcoal at home isn't safe, so I won't buy charcoal or a charcoal stove,"

Cindy explained, "I will buy an electric grill instead."

"No problem!" Morgan didn't mind this.

Although it might lack the charcoal aroma, as long as Cindy made it, he would love it!

Plus, others can't even taste it.

Adrian Zhekova suggested, "When we have time, we can find a place for outdoor barbecuing, and then we can use a charcoal grill."

"Dad, you're the best!" The little guy was getting better and better at calling him dad, without any hesitation.

He certainly knew when to be sweet-talking!

Adrian Zhekova wouldn't buy that: "Ha!"

Cindy immediately turned to look at him.

Who was he “ha”-ing?

Didn’t know how to cherish the son he just acknowledged?

Adrian Zhekova: .

“Ahem.” Adrian Zhekova quickly changed the subject, pretending he hadn’t just “ha” -ed. “Don’t rush to pay yet. When we get home, link my bank card. From now on, if you want to buy anything, use my card.”

“But I have money,” said Cindy.

For a moment, she wasn’t used to spending Adrian Zhekova’s money.

She felt like she had her own money, so she should spend her own.

Even if it was for buying things for the house, it didn’t matter.

After all, whose money wasn’t meant to be spent?

“What’s yours is yours, keep it for your own use,” Adrian Zhekova said, “since we’re now a family, I should be responsible for all the household expenses.”

“I will take care of all daily expenses, including Morgan’s tuition fees and everything,” Adrian Zhekova continued, “Don’t act like a stranger. And whenever you want to buy something, use my card.”

“Nowadays, you don’t need to carry cash or even a card in our country.

Whatsapp and Paypal are enough,” Adrian Zhekova recalled, “Right, when we get home, link my card to your Whatsapp too.”

“From now on, don’t spend your own money on anything you like, clothes, bags, snacks, no matter what,” Adrian Zhekova reminded her again.

“And do you have high demands for cameras when filming your videos? If you need to replace any lenses or cameras, feel free to do so,” Adrian Zhekova added.

“Oh, how about buying a professional video camera instead? Our house is big anyway, even those big tripods can be set up. The video quality will definitely be better..”

Chapter 325: The Capriciousness of Wealth

Cindy heard him list items one by one that she might need, reminding her to buy them, but only with his card.

When Cindy heard Adrian Zhekova mentioning buying film shooting equipment, she hurriedly said, “You don’t have to buy such high-end equipment. Even if the video shot is of 4K quality, the video platform would compress it. Regardless of the quality of the video shot, the compression would degrade it anyway.”

If he continued, she was afraid that Adrian Zhekova might even hire a professional director for shooting.

Really... money buys caprice!

“You let me spend your money this time, and that time too,” Cindy calculated with her fingers, “In the end, there is nowhere I need to spend my own money.

So what am I earning money for?"

"I earn more, so it's only natural that I spend it on you," Adrian Zhekova said. He had so much money that he couldn't spend it all. If he didn't spend it on Cindy, who else could he spend it on?

"Just consider it as helping me spend it, " Adrian Zhekova said.

Cindy: '

Such a great deal of helping someone spend their money.

"Besides, we're family. Why should we separate 'your money' from 'my money' so clearly? We're living together, it doesn't matter whose money we spend," Adrian Zhekova said with a smile.

Unexpectedly, Adrian Zhekova's thought was in line with hers.

Yes indeed.

Cindy was thinking of not needing to be so particular about each other.

Why bother being formal with Adrian Zhekova then?

So she nodded and laughed, "Okay."

Seeing Cindy laughing, Adrian Zhekova finally sighed in relief.

She must have forgotten how he just 'hmped' at Morgan Zhekova, right?

Unexpectedly, in Cindy's heart, Morgan Zhekova's status is higher than his.

It seems that he needs to make more effort!

All that Cindy could remember, she added to the shopping cart.

Whatever she forgot could be added gradually in the future.

Unable to recall anything else, she turned off Amazon.

Remembering Zoe Silverstone's matter, she logged onto Facebook to check.

First she looked at the Hot Topic, there was something about the Pingla Competition.

There were snippets of her in it.

It also covered the argument with Zoe Silverstone on stage.

However, the majority of netizens comments sided with her.

Especially after, when other contestants also thought Cindy's grilled skewers were more delicious, and Zoe Silverstone was still unyielding and argumentative.

It was clear that Zoe Silverstone couldn't take a loss. If you were to listen to Zoe Silverstone's words in the beginning,

Netizens would also think there was a problem with Cindy.

But witnessing the later part, tricked by Zoe Silverstone's shenanigans, they felt Cindy to be rather innocent.

Being strong herself, yet labeled unfairly by Zoe Silverstone, it was very easy for her to be misunderstood.

Being against a competitor like Zoe Silverstone, Cindy was quite unlucky. Seeing that Zoe Silverstone hadn't gained anything, let alone public opinion advantage, Cindy felt at ease and ignored it.

Meanwhile, Zoe Silverstone, forgotten by Cindy, was fuming at home.

The marketing account she had contacted had just told her they couldn't take this job.

No matter how she asked them why, they just said their ordered jobs queue was too full now, unable to take anymore.

If you are going to make excuses, please make them more considerate!

This is not any major work, just posting a message online.

Are they really queuing for this?

Isn't it just a matter of minutes?

Zoe Silverstone thought to herself, then might as well not look for a marketing account.

The money spent on the marketing account is quite a lot too.

It would be better to directly post it under her own alternate account.

After all, she had already discussed Hot Topic terms with the Facebook side..

Chapter 326: Send One, Delete One

At that time, just buy a Hot topic and that's it.

It also saves money on finding a marketing account.

To gain followers, besides buying dummy fans, she also had a few small accounts leading the trend.

There is no need to register another account.

So, Zoe Silverstone used her small account to post the photographs and her derogatory words targeting Cindy Clarke at the same time.

After that, she contacted Facebook to buy a Hot topic.

Unexpectedly, the other party who agreed to it in the morning suddenly backed out.

They said that all the Hot topic positions had already been booked and there was no room left.

At this point, Zoe Silverstone still didn't feel anything was wrong.

After all, Hot topic positions are sought after, especially the top few spots are very rare due to the high price.

Zoe Silverstone gritted her teeth and decided to buy the tenth Hot topic.

"But we had a good talk this morning? You said the tenth position was still available." Zoe Silverstone said, "We agreed, you saved me the spot."

“But you didn’t pay the deposit.” The other party said, “Even if you don’t pay the full amount, you have to at least pay the deposit to reserve a spot, right? I never received your deposit, so I thought you didn’t want it anymore.”

“You know, our Hot topic positions are in high demand. If you don’t buy, there are plenty of others competing. To be honest, other people offer a much higher price than you.” The other party said, “I’m just an employee; I can’t make decisions. We must follow the rules here, and the highest bidder wins. I have tried my best to delay for you, but I couldn’t hold on any longer. Our boss is watching too.”

“Just now, our boss asked about the sales situation of the Hot topic spots, what could I do?” The other party said somewhat helplessly.

“Why didn’t you act quickly once you decided to buy the Hot topic? Look at the mess now.” The other party sounded deeply troubled, making it hard for Zoe Silverstone to complain about anything.

“What about tomorrow’s Hot topic?” Zoe Silverstone asked again.

“Don’t even talk about tomorrow; all the spots for this month are gone.” The other party said.

As for the next month?

I heard that Adrian Zhekova had all of Zoe Silverstone’s accounts blocked.

Even if Zoe Silverstone opened a new account and posted. she would only be able to send one and delete one.

By next month, it will all be over.

“Next month?” Zoe Silverstone couldn’t help but raise her voice, “It’s just the beginning of the month; what do I need a Hot topic for next month?”

“There’s nothing we can do. How about trying to buy the second and third Hot topics?” the other party said, “The first one is impossible to buy because there are big influencers there. We can’t just suppress those big influencers. And they have fans who can spend money, no matter what, you are just one person; you can’t compete with millions of fans, right?”

“The third one is our default sales position for the public. Netizens are aware of this, so it’s usually used to promote new TV series, movies, or variety shows.”

“If you buy the third one, people can tell by the position that your Hot topic is purchased. Then I’m afraid...” The staff member didn’t finish.

But Zoe Silverstone knew that if everyone knew that the position was bought.

Even if it appeared on the Hot topic list, most people would think she was deliberately slandering Cindy Clarke.

The effect would be greatly reduced.

No, it’s not even certain if it will have any effect at all.

“You can buy the first and second ones if you want; their prices are about the same.” The other party said, “However, this price can’t be fixed. It needs to be bid on or you have to directly offer a secure price higher than all others..”

Chapter 327: Account Does Not Exist

Whether it was true or not, Zoe Silverstone had no clue.

To be in such a high position on the hot topic list, it must be a significant event that attracts the attention of the majority of internet users, making the topic naturally rise in ranking.

Otherwise, most of the time, the traffic was bought.

This employee had already received instructions from upper management, and there's no way they would sell the hot topic position to Zoe Silverstone.

However, they couldn't explain the reason to her either.

The employee was really in a difficult position.

So they had no choice but to mix truth with lies and added a bit of reality to it.

Anyway, they told Zoe Silverstone a story that was seventy percent true and thirty percent false.

Even though the employee seemed quite sincere.

But Zoe Silverstone wasn't completely clueless either.

The other party's evasiveness and giving her a choice she could not afford at all.

No matter if it's the first or second hottest topic, she couldn't afford it with her financial capability.

It's not that she couldn't afford it.

But she couldn't let herself go bankrupt just to tarnish Cindy Clarke's reputation, right?

As a food blogger and an internet celebrity herself, she was always one level below Cindy Clarke.

She had so many competitors.

Cindy Clarke was in her own league, while she and many other food bloggers were in the same league.

As a result, the promotion fees she received were much less than Cindy Clarke's, not just by one level.

It's because there were too many bloggers with similar fame as her.

The competition among them was intense.

Plus, she usually participated in various events and tried to make connections with trust-fund babies.

Did she really think trust-fund babies just fall from the sky?

She had to attend dinner parties, go to pubs, and exhaust every means to infiltrate the circles and places where she could meet trust-fund babies.

Did all these not cost money?

Not to mention rent, daily expenses, designer clothes, and designer handbags

Honestly, Zoe Silverstone already earned way more than the average office worker.

Based on income alone, Zoe Silverstone could definitely be considered part of the elite class.

However, her ambition was too big, and she wanted too much, so she spent too much.

She hadn't saved much money in her two to three years of fame.

Cindy Clarke had already bought a house with a loan, while Zoe Silverstone was still renting.

Cindy Clarke kept increasing her savings.

But it was good enough that Zoe Silverstone's bank account didn't decrease too much.

How could she possibly afford such an expensive hot topic position?

Still, Zoe Silverstone hadn't given up yet.

If nothing works, she can always find other marketing accounts!

If that doesn't work, then she'll do it herself.

Adrian Zhekova couldn't possibly ban her, right!

As a food blogger, as long as she has internet access, she has a place to stand.

Could Adrian Zhekova ban her from posting videos online?

With that in mind, Zoe Silverstone went to log in to her main account.

She didn't plan on doing anything.

She just wanted to log in and take a look, then contact a few more marketing accounts on the side.

But who would have thought, she couldn't log in!

It said the account didn't exist!

Why would this happen!

Zoe Silverstone immediately contacted Facebook's customer service, but they replied that her account displayed violations.

Violations my ass!

On her Facebook, apart from posting videos, she just flirted with fans and occasionally engaged in online arguments.

But only a little, absolutely never touching sensitive topics.

It could be said that there was no violation at all.

Even this morning, everything was just fine.

How could her account suddenly disappear now?

She had no idea how her fans on Facebook were going crazy looking for her account that they couldn't find anymore..

Chapter 328: Banned Across All Platforms

No matter how Zoe Silverstone asked customer service, they all gave the same standard reply.

Zoe Silverstone's biggest fan had her contact information.

Immediately asked her via Whatsapp.

“I’ve been contacting Facebook, but customer service won’t give me a straight answer. I’m preparing to find their staff.” Zoe Silverstone replied.

“It’s not just Facebook, your Public Platform and CouTube accounts can’t be found either,” her fan said. “I’ve checked all the social media platforms where your accounts exist, and none of them can be found – not even on YouTube!” “Not even on YouTube!” Zoe Silverstone was truly shocked this time.

Within the country, she could still try to contact the platform.

But she had to climb the wall by herself to go on YouTube, at most, she could contact customer service.

As for more internal staff, she couldn’t find them at all.

It was a total loss.

“Sister Zoe, there’s something wrong with this! How come all the platforms suddenly banned you all at once? This... this looks more like... a complete ban...” the fan said with trepidation.

A complete ban across all platforms!

Zoe Silverstone’s hand holding the mobile phone was trembling.

Who had such power to not only ban her across all domestic platforms but also target her international accounts?

Although the fan had already told her, Zoe Silverstone still tried to log in to all her accounts one by one.

As expected, none of them could be logged in.

All those accounts, with hundreds of thousands or even millions of fans, were accumulated bit by bit.

There were fans she attracted by spending money on promotion, and fans she gained through constant growth.

All those fans, gone in the blink of an eye.

Her accounts, which she had painstakingly raised, were gone just like that.

Zoe Silverstone was trembling all over.

Now she knew that just looking for Facebook staff would be useless.

A ban across all platforms wouldn't let Facebook be the one to single-handedly unban her.

Even without evidence, Zoe Silverstone knew that this matter was inextricably linked to Cindy Clarke!

It must be because she opposed Cindy Clarke during the competition, exposing her, and humiliating her, which made Cindy hold a grudge against her.

No one could cause her to be banned from the network except for Adrian Zhekova – she couldn't think of anyone else who would do this for Cindy

Clarke.

But doesn't this prove even more that Cindy Clarke and Adrian Zhekova's relationship is deep?

Those people just wouldn't believe it!

Can't they just put their thinking caps on for a bit?!

This proves that everything she said was correct!

Cindy Clarke didn't advance based on her own abilities at all.

It was all because of Adrian Zhekova!

Zoe Silverstone's hands shook with anger as she found someone she knew from the circle.

Not exactly friends, but they had some connections.

She had some connections in the circle as well.

Cindy Clarke couldn't be completely isolated in this circle.

No one could stand on their own without interacting with anyone in this circle.

Finally, after going around, Zoe Silverstone got Cindy Clarke's mobile phone number.

Without any delay, she immediately called her.

At this moment, Cindy Clarke had just entered the house.

The moving company's truck couldn't drive quickly due to its size, and there were many restrictions on the road, so even though they left earlier, they hadn't arrived yet.

Cindy Clarke was pondering in Morgan Zhekova's bedroom about how to arrange the furniture when they arrived.

At this time, her mobile phone rang.

In a spacious unfurnished room, the phone's ring tone sounded especially loud..

Chapter 329: Cindy Clarke, you've gone too far!

Cindy Clarke took out her mobile phone and saw it was an unfamiliar number.

She didn't recognize it, probably a sales call.

Still, Cindy answered it: "Hello?".

"Cindy Clarke, it's you, right?" Zoe Silverstone inquired as soon as she got on the phone.

"Who is this?" Cindy furrowed her brow slightly.

The voice on the phone is slightly different from the person's actual voice.

Cindy didn't immediately realize it was Zoe Silverstone.

"Stop playing dumb!" Zoe snapped, "I am Zoe Silverstone!"

"You're acting clueless about what you've done, and now you're pretending not to know what's going on?" Zoe quivered with rage.

If Cindy had been in front of her, she might have actually hit her!

At this moment, she was wishing she could yell so loud as to make Cindy deaf through the phone.

“What are you trying to say?” Cindy coolly replied, “Stop beating around the bush. If you keep refusing to get to the point, I’m going to hang up.”

“Stop playing dumb! Was it you!” Zoe demanded angrily, “Did you get Adrian Zhekova to blacklist me!”

“Facebook, CouTube, TicToc, Public Platform, and even YouTube, all of my accounts have been deactivated! I don’t have a single account left!” Zoe questioned, “All of my hundreds of thousands of fans, all gone now!”

Finally, Cindy figured out what was happening.

She couldn’t help but raise an eyebrow.

She hadn’t expected Sheldon Rowland to get things done so quickly.

Not only Sheldon, when it came to YouTube, Adrian had asked Kurt Payne for a favor.

Unexpectedly, Kurt had also acted very swiftly.

The platforms had all responded almost at the same time.

All accounts were deactivated.

No wonder Zoe was reacting so strongly.

“I don’t have that much power.” It was Adrian Zhekova who had the power.

Moreover, Cindy was on guard against Zoe.

Who knew if Zoe was recording their conversation.

So, it was better to be cautious, not to give Zoe any leverage due to carelessness.

“It was you, you won’t even admit it!” Zoe was livid, “You advanced in the major competition through the back door, you won’t admit it! And now you used your relationship with Adrian Zhekova to blacklist me, and you still won’t admit it!”

Zoe’s voice was trembling, she was so angry.

She was exhausted by the rage.

Why wouldn’t Cindy admit it!

“If you dare to do it, then admit it!” Zoe screamed at the top of her lungs. She couldn’t help but get emotional, she couldn’t keep her cool Her hysteria was close to its peak now.

These platforms, these accounts, were her sweat and blood!

They were her bread and butter, her means to maintain her current quality of life, her way of connecting with trust-fund babies!

If she didn’t become a social media influencer, who would know her?

Those trust-fund babies, they wouldn’t even bat an eye at her!

With these accounts gone, it was the same as losing her job.

She could start all over with a new account, she did have a fan base.

But, would it be the same?

What if Adrian Zhekova continues to blacklist her?

Zoe was not stupid.

If Adrian could blacklist her accounts, if he really wanted to ruin her career, he would continue blacklisting.

No matter how many new accounts she opened, it would be useless!

“Cindy Clarke , you have crossed the line!” Zoe clenched her free hand into a tight fist, “Is it because of what I said in the competition, you’re holding a grudge against me, so you’re doing this to me?”

“I have no idea what you’re talking about.” Cindy replied coldly, “Zoe Silverstone, if your accounts got banned, find a way to get them back. Screaming at me like this isn’t going to help anything.”

“Cindy Clarke , I know it’s you who did this, your denial is useless, I know it was you! Except for you, no one else holds a grudge against me, and no one else could manage to get all my accounts on all these platforms banned!”

Chapter 330: You are also quite good at slandering casually

“Isn’t it all because of Adrian Zhekova? Only he has the ability.” Zoe Silverstone said, “I’ve offended you, so you asked Adrian Zhekova to block me.” “I know, I’ve offended many people.” Zoe Silverstone said.

Cindy Clarke raised her eyebrows.

So, Zoe Silverstone was actually aware of this fact?

And she knew she had offended quite a few people?

Cindy Clarke really hadn't expected Zoe Silverstone to have such a clear understanding.

Ever since Zoe Silverstone became famous, she had always been fighting on the front lines of conflict and rivalry.

Whether it was bloggers with similar fame or those just starting out in the industry, she could always find a reason to step on them.

The number of people she has offended is probably something Zoe Silverstone herself can't even count.

However, although Zoe Silverstone offended many people, she also had quite a few friends who formed alliances with her.

No matter what circle, they have their own small cliques.

Although Cindy Clarke never clung to groups, she had a few colleagues with whom she got along quite well.

It's just that their drama wasn't as much as that of the small group comprised of Zoe Silverstone.

"But among all the people I've offended, only you have a backer. Only Adrian Zhekova has the ability to make me blocked by all platforms at once. No one else has that power!" Zoe Silverstone said coldly.

Cindy Clarke raised her eyebrows, saying, "Zoe Silverstone, you've made friends with so many trust-fund babies and ultra-rich bosses. You've also done a lot of things where you take advantage of them and leave, not acknowledging them after. There are quite a few people who have been played by you." So, Zoe Silverstone was really bold and capable.

Without any backer of her own, she dared to play with people everywhere.

And she's still fine to this day, without any retaliation.

Cindy Clarke must admit, Zoe Silverstone was quite lucky.

"Maybe one of your golden masters wasn't willing to be played by you, and they decided to take revenge on you for losing money and being played," Cindy Clarke mocked.

Cindy Clarke's words inadvertently struck a chord with Zoe Silverstone.

Originally, she hadn't thought about it.

But upon Cindy Clarke's mentioning, Wyatt Kirk's face suddenly surfaced in Zoe Silverstone's mind.

Because of her, Wyatt Kirk not only failed to buy his favorite sports car, but also offended Adrian Zhekova.

From that day on, Wyatt Kirk never contacted her again.

He was probably holding a grudge against her.

"Don't just blatantly slander me! I'm a decent person and I haven't done that kind of thing! Cindy Clarke, watch your mouth!" Zoe Silverstone was also afraid that Cindy Clarke would record her and release the recording, letting people know about her habit of hooking up with golden masters.

Cindy Clarke sneered, "Oh, now I'm slandering you? What about when you slandered me without any evidence? Saying that my advancement was not based on actual strength, and that I had blocked you from all platforms. You're quite good at slandering, too."

Cindy Clarke didn't mention her relationship with Adrian Zhekova, so it wasn't a lie.

Zoe Silverstone couldn't catch the flaw in Cindy Clarke's statement.

Mainly because she was so angry right now, she didn't have the mind or reason to notice the flaw in Cindy Clarke's words.

"Cindy Clarke, you did it! You did it, don't deny it! If it were someone else, they would have taken action long ago. Would they wait until now?" Zoe Silverstone immediately said, regardless of the truth, she was pinning it all on Cindy

Clarke.

"How evil you are!" Zoe Silverstone said angrily, spitting out saliva.

"If you say I did it, show me the evidence. Otherwise, don't accuse me of being malicious." Cindy Clarke said impatiently, no longer holding back, tearing her face with Zoe Silverstone outright..
