

Forgive My Ex-husband Chapter 158

"Everything is fine," Melinda answered as she deepened her doubts, and she wondered if this Victor was just a leader greeting his new subordinate kindly.

Anyway, this man didn't seem to have any relationship with such a serious thing.

"What are you in charge of now?" Noticing that Melinda gave a perfunctory reply, Victor felt that she was not like other new employees who was eager to praise his diligence and the company.

Jonas hadn't contacted him for a long time, and he called him just for asking him to take care of such a fussy person.

"Mr. Cheng, this is the planning department." Melinda reminded him vaguely. She thought, 'What else could the planning department do besides writing a plan and proposal?'

But she would occasionally help other colleagues analyze the articles and write comments, which was a relatively professional thing.

"I remember that you didn't majored in planning in your resume." Victor started to talk embarrassed again. After Melinda failed to figure out his mind, she briefly explained the reason why she had come to this department at that time.

Melinda had no idea why she wanted to be admitted to the planning department until now.

"Are you interested in transferring to another department? I've been quite interested in a literary work recently. Do you want to have a look?"

Before Melinda could answer, Victor took the laptop from aside and opened the literary work he liked to show it to her.

"This is it. Have a look and tell me how its value is." Victor turned the screen to Melinda, who was staring at the screen. It was a short paragraph with the content of around 30000 words, realistic.

The words were not gorgeous but plain, but there were many life reasons in them.

Melinda slowed down and immersed in the work.

She thought carefully about the situation when the writer wrote this article, trying to reach a resonance with the words.

She watched it so intently that she didn't notice that Victor had his eyes fixed on her. He had his own opinions about this article, and he wanted to discuss it with others at this moment.

With this in mind, he put his hand on Melinda's shoulder. It seemed that he was holding her as holding his girlfriends.

Feeling that, Melinda's body froze and then she pushed away Victor's hand. Without taking a look at him, Victor touched his nose and felt embarrassed.

"Melinda, your attitude is very hurtful. I am at least a handsome man." Victor pretended to be hurt. Melinda finally looked away from the article.

"Mr. Cheng, the stories you read are self-beneficial, but you do not understand it enough." Melinda kept a proper distance from the man and moved her body with a faint smile.

Through his banter, Melinda realized that Victor was a bit dandiacal. She didn't care about what happened just now at all.

isn't it a pastime? 90% of those well-behaved men are not handsome. It is easier to say that they are moment, Melinda had a feeling that what topic a little bit

should I continue the laptop. But Victor felt that there was a sharpness behind Melinda's smile, which

"Yes, go on,"

He knew better than anyone

Melinda again, in order to talk with her as soon as possible. Melinda sudden, Victor felt that as a leader, he didn't look so dignified at mind," Victor apologized sincerely, which made Melinda embarrassed to say too much. It would take some time to read the article carefully.

thought that this article was to read it unless the writer added some quite novel." Hearing what Melinda said, Victor me to tell you one thing. I don't know where you found this article, sharp comment with a little disappointment. Maybe it was a unique work of the two schools as they mixed the style in the beginning, Melinda would agree with it. But later, in order to show his appreciation, the writer destroyed the whole a sarcastic remark. He hadn't recovered from the sudden change of "common" was really an the places that I think improved... Of course, these are my personal views. Maybe, some people prefer literary research she was doing would not be equal to the authority or something, and she felt that her work was very common.

that this style might not be the style people didn't like the profound words, but somehow the researchers thought the shallow heard the last sentence, his eyes twitched. He completely believed that it was him that he felt that it was

I think it would be more appropriate for the sector. She could not show her talent in the planning department and could fully display planning department was not good, but that Melinda was more suitable for editing department. What's more, his company's planning department was really idle. They worked hard occasionally, because many activities were reference from the past years.

curious look on her face, Melinda looked at Victor. She had observed the article and talked her insights of the article that could be directly decided by the superior? Obviously, Victor was different from ordinary

He thought that Melinda was hesitating, but article of Melinda before, thinking that if he let her worked in the editing department, ended up with the removal of a department, where Victor had the right to do that.

writers should submit three manuscripts a

The appearance of Melinda made the writers painful for a long time. The new editor was