

Forgive My Ex-husband Chapter 339

All Jonas wanted was to see his wife as soon as possible.

The moment he entered the police station, his phone was handed over to the police to cooperate with the investigation. Now it was fully charged. It could be seen that these people were very careful. Before returning the thing to him, they charged his mobile phone.

His car was parked in the police station. It hadn't been driven for so many days, and there was a lot of dust on it. Jonas didn't care about it and opened the door and sat down inside.

The first thing he did was not to start the car, but to call Melinda. Thinking that he had lost contact with her for so many days, Melinda must be very worried.

And it was true. Melinda was lying in the hospital.

With the company of her father in the past two days, Melinda recovered well, but her heavy heart was still pitiful and she was not lively at all.

It seemed that she just wanted to live without any soul.

When the phone rang, Melinda didn't respond at all. But Vern, who was sharp eyed, saw the name on the phone and couldn't help smiling.

He put the phone in front of Melinda and said, "No matter who it is, answer it first."

In a daze, Melinda took the phone and put it near her ear. She didn't say anything, but soon a familiar voice came from the other end of the phone, as if it was a call from a distant side, as if she heard a call when she was in trouble.

Tears welled up in her eyes. Melinda heard the other side call her Linda in a soft voice.

"Where have you been? Why didn't you answer my phone?" Melinda said sadly. She knew that there was nothing Jonas could do about it, but at this moment, she just wanted to act like a spoiled child to express her concern.

Hearing this, Jonas felt sorry for her and wished he could rush to Melinda right now.

"Good girl, don't cry. Linda, I'm fine. It's all my fault. I made you worried. Could you stop crying now? I'm so sad."

Melinda stopped crying. She looked totally two different from before. Seeing this, Vern could only sigh and shake his head. Melinda was not physically ill, but mentally ill. Jonas was her best medicine.

Although Melinda was crying, she was overjoyed in her heart. She didn't know how many days had passed since she finally got in touch with Jonas.

The two of them talked a lot on the phone, and Jonas finally calmed Melinda down. At the same time, Jonas also knew what happened and that Melinda was in the hospital.

I promise." Jonas didn't wear headphones, nor up the phone first, but Melinda head when he heard her groan. He took the phone from Melinda and told Jonas couldn't wash himself well in the police station, so he had to tidy himself up before going to see Melinda. Otherwise, she would feel sorry for him when she to feel restless again. The moment she saw him, tears began to fall was really fond of crying recently, just like voice. Surrounded by the familiar smell and arms, Melinda felt a little but finally the flower of the greenhouse. What she wanted to do most was to accompany him and face all the wind and rain, not to Queenena to take care of Melinda. The confirmed that he was fine, she was finally relieved. She hadn't had a good rest these were black circles around his eyes. Melinda rubbed made up an excuse for Jonas. How could Jonas

His eyes were full of ask about her condition after she fell asleep. He felt guilty when he knew that she was walked up to her and hugged her. As expected, first, Jonas wanted to do something else, but finally he was rare for Melinda to have was new progress in the case. The several men in black who were lying were brought this matter had passed, but they didn't expect to be locked here again. This the lies of the five people, they had been investigated for so long for nothing, and the information they wasted so much the captain said. The two policemen nodded. The five looked matter what they would interrogate at that time, what they needed to do was very simple. They just needed to insist that it was Jonas.

room was very restless. He began to complain before the police began to take for you to be willing to close the case? We have told you everything. It was Jonas man said and sat down casually, as if this was the back garden of his own house. The police saw these days. Do you want to annoy us and then