Chapter 597: Seeking Fortune and Avoiding Evil Again, the Great Calamity Affecting West Continent_2

If born in a resource-rich place like the Western Continent, there's a great hope for Divinity Transformation.

Unfortunately, there is no such "if" in this world.

"This is quite normal; in the Ancient Era, the Western Continent was a place where True Spirits ran rampant."

"So, leaving behind some True Spirit Secret Realms is understandable."

"However, entering the True Spirit Secret Realm to gain opportunities is not an easy task."

"Danger lurks in every corner."

The Primordial Talisman Pen said solemnly.

It also knows about the True Spirit Secret Realm, a place where a True Spirit resides.

Even after countless years of falling, it still contains unimaginable power and danger.

If one's cultivation is insufficient, entering the True Spirit Secret Realm recklessly would surely result in death.

Therefore, it also temporarily doesn't want Jiang Fan to enter the True Spirit Secret Realm, as it would be purely unwise.

"However, the Celestial Roc Race seems to hold grudges; who would've expected after so long, they still want revenge."

"Should they free their hands, they might send Nascent Souls over."

The Demon-Vibrating Bell spoke.

It can feel the killing intent from the Celestial Roc Race; this Divinity Transformation Race on the Western Continent is extremely arrogant and vindictive, believes in its own supremacy, and hunts down anyone who offends them relentlessly across Nine Heavens and Ten Lands.

Unless you leave the Western Continent, they will never let go.

Not just after one year, but even after ten years, a hundred years, or even a thousand years, they will not stop.

This is also the reason for the Celestial Roc Race's notorious reputation.

Any enemy that offends the Celestial Roc Race will be feared and completely exterminated.

Luckily, when Jiang Fan wiped out that group of Celestial Roc Cultivators, he didn't leave any clues or aura. Otherwise, he would have to leave the Western Continent and abandon the thought of rebuilding the Primordial Talisman Sect on the Western Continent.

"The Celestial Roc Race is indeed a significant trouble."

"If there were a way to trap them in internal strife, so they have no time to care about matters here, that would be ideal."

Jiang Fan's eyes glinted.

Although he is not worried that the Celestial Roc Race can find the Ten Thousand Beasts Secret Realm, after all, the entrance to the Secret Realm has long been closed by him. Even if Divinity Transformation Cultivators come and search inch by inch, they cannot detect this spatial entrance.

Only a being beyond Divinity Transformation might find it.

So, for now, the Ten Thousand Beasts Secret Realm is relatively safe.

But if the opponents remain here, they will hinder the further development of the Primordial Talisman Sect, which is detrimental to the Human Race on the Western Continent.

After all, he still wishes to continue letting the Human Race flourish, quickly increasing its population.

If the Celestial Roc Race falls into tribulations and gets delayed by other matters, they might give up on pursuing this issue further.

The Celestial Pine Mountain Range won't become the focus of the Celestial Roc Race's attention.

But this is not easily achievable.

Bang~~

At this moment, he sensed the Fortune-Telling Talisman deep in his Elixir Field and Sea of Qi begin to vibrate, and a message instantly permeated into the depths of his sea of consciousness.

"Imminent chaos, heaven and earth overturned, opportunistically seizing rewards, opportunities will come."

"Arrive at Red Bear Ridge at noon five days later, wait for the right moment, and you shall obtain a Fourth-Grade Opportunity. The process will be thrilling yet risk-free, without fear of repercussions, extremely fortunate."

"Arrive at Golden Sparrow Mountain late at night six days later to have a chance at obtaining a Third-Grade Opportunity, but high-level rivals compete, collateral damage is likely, dangers are hard to predict, every step is nerve-racking, extremely ominous."

"Stay low-profile in the Ten Thousand Beasts Secret Realm and continue cultivating, you'll gain nothing, with no hidden troubles later, slightly ominous."

Upon sensing this message, Jiang Fan's eyes sparkled.

Undoubtedly, now is a critical moment of destiny.

In fact, he instinctively perceived that a massive Tribulation Qi had enveloped the entire Western Continent.

This is merely the beginning of the calamity; it hasn't even started yet.

Once it starts, it will certainly affect every force on the Western Continent.

However, to Jiang Fan, the emergence of a calamity is actually a good thing.

For without calamity, how could there be opportunity? The two complement each other.

Every time a calamity arises, it's a great opportunity to seize rewards amid peril.

If successful, not only can one obtain great opportunities but also weaken the enemies' destiny, achieving two objectives at once.

"This sudden calamity, could it be related to the Qiongqi Secret Realm?"

Jiang Fan's eyes flickered, pondering the message from the Fortune-Telling Talisman.

Without a doubt, the emergence of this calamity is not without reason; there must be a cause.

The greatest possibility is that it comes from the Qiongqi Secret Realm.

After all, this is a True Spirit Secret Realm filled with endless opportunities.

Even Tier Five Races have only explored some of its mysteries, with a large portion yet to be discovered.

For any race, any cultivator, securing an opportunity within guarantees a meteoric rise.

Don't be deceived by the Celestial Roc, Immortal Fox, Jiao Dragon, and Ice Soul Races—the four major Divinity Transformation Races monopolize all resources on the Western Continent, seeming like kings at the height of power.

But would other demon races want to see this scenario? Do they not want to become new Divinity Transformation Races? Do they not desire the vast resources of the Western Continent?

Certainly, they do.

However, lacking strength, they must endure and suffer the exploitation and oppression from the four major Divinity Transformation Races.

Yet, if their strength is sufficient, and new Tier Five Demon Cultivators emerge, then the situation across the Western Continent will shift dramatically, requiring a redefinition of territories among various races.

"It seems this time the opening of the Qionggi Secret Realm will undoubtedly cause dramatic changes across the Western Continent."

Jiang Fan stroked his chin.

He considers this a likely inevitability of destiny.

Even if he hadn't come to the Western Continent, such events would surely occur.

Those Tier Four Demon Cultivators on the Western Continent are perhaps eagerly awaiting this opportunity for a swift rise.

This calamity might very well give birth to several Tier Five Demon Cultivators.

The emergence of these Tier Five Demon Cultivators will also challenge the status of the four major Divinity Transformation Races.

"Moreover, not participating in this calamity isn't an option."

"If you don't partake, in the short term, you naturally gain nothing."

"It seems devoid of danger."

"But in the long run, this is a grave threat, sowing hidden dangers."

Jiang Fan noticed the third message.

Even if he continues cultivating in the Ten Thousand Beasts Secret Realm and avoids these affairs, there's still a sign of slight misfortune.

Sometimes doing nothing at all is also a mistake.

Because this allows your enemies to grow stronger, ultimately threatening yourself.

If not for seizing the moment to weaken the enemy, waiting until the enemy is formidable is too late.

"If the Western Continent truly descends into a situation of inter-racial warfare, then for the Human Race, it's indeed the best opportunity for rise; missing this, when stability returns, there won't be another chance."

Jiang Fan clenched his fists.

Undoubtedly, destiny guides him to the Western Continent at this time not without reason.

It's likely due to the massive Tribulation Qi brewing on the Western Continent, about to unleash a significant catastrophe, that's attracted him.

If he can seize rewards from within it and successfully obtain ample opportunities, he could surely ascend to great heights.

Even the Human Race could establish itself firmly on the Western Continent.

"Let it be, let it be; such matters are too distant still."

"Without becoming a Divinity Transformation Cultivator, it's impossible to influence the situation on the Western Continent."

"Unable to become a player, only to be a pawn."

"For now, it's about capitalizing on the calamity's outbreak, opportunistically seizing rewards."

Jiang Fan shook his head, ceasing to ponder so far ahead.

In truth, if the Human Race wishes to establish itself on the Western Continent, all it requires is a Divinity Transformation Cultivator.

Once one becomes a Divinity Transformation, naturally one can protect a territory.

Otherwise, the Human Race is always at risk of being wiped out by the Demon Race.

Thus, for now, his focus must still remain on cultivation.

"Then to Red Bear Ridge to obtain that Fourth-Grade Opportunity."

Jiang Fan immediately made his decision.

...

Five days later, at noon.

Western Continent, Celestial Roc Race's territory, Red Bear Ridge.

This is a ridge thousands of kilometers away from the Celestial Pine Mountain Range.

It's one of the territories under the Tier Four Race, Red Bear Race.

Swish!

At this moment, a figure appeared here; naturally, it was Jiang Fan.

He departed from the Ten Thousand Beasts Secret Realm, flying all the way.

Using the power of the Secret Treasure Celestial Cicada Spirit Leaf to conceal his aura and presence, he was practically invisible.

Thus, no Demon Race Cultivator could detect his movements.

This allowed him to reach Red Bear Ridge very safely.

"Will there truly be a Fourth-Grade Opportunity appearing here? What could it be?"

Jiang Fan was quite expectant, his Spiritual Sense sweeping across all directions, attempting to find any traces in the surroundings.
