“He was joking, right?” Jennifer was worried,

“Mom, I always mean what I say. From now on, don't interfere with my relationship with Clara,” Yohan warned.

As much as Jennifer wanted to Intervene, she couldn't.

Her son had never listened to her.

Yohan excused himself. “Mom, I'm hungry. I'm going to have breakfast,” he said as he stood up, pulling the dazed Clara along with him toward the dining room.

“Mr. Morris, I'm not rejecting you.” Clara felt the need to explain herself.

‘s just an act; go along with it!” Yohan whispered hurriedly.

Clara's beautiful eyes widened in surprise as Yohan pulled her into the dining room.

Facing her favorite breakfast, Clara sat down and happily enjoyed her meal.

Bonnie and Jennifer occasionally glanced at Clara. Seeing Clara eating so heartily, as if unaffected by Yohan's earlier remarks, they exchanged looks.

After she was done with her breakfast, Clara felt the urge to slip away in silence.

She felt that her husband and the ladies were in a standoff, with such skilled players, she, a mere nobody, could easily get caught in the crossfire.

The best strategy was to retreat.

“Clara,” Yohan called out.

Yohan wouldn't let Clara leave him behind.

He stood up, walked over, and said, “I'm not going to the office today. Days off are rare, so I'll take you out to get familiar with the place where you'll be spending your life.” www.n(o)VeiWoRm.cOm

“Mr. Morris...” Clara tried to voice out.

Yohan didn't give Clara a chance to refuse. He once again took her hand firmly and pulled her outside.

Bonnie and Jennifer were left bewildered, not realizing the young couple had already disappeared from their sight.

Jennifer was left confused by her son's actions, unsure of what to do.

“Why does it feel like I forced him into this?” she asked

Bonnie replied, “It's because you pressured him too much. He was overwhelmed by our nagging, and since he couldn't do anything about it, he acted out and went to the city hall, waiting for fate to drop a wife in his lap. Fate was kind and sent Clara to him.”

“To find peace, he also acted out of spite and married Clara impulsively,” she added. “I told him he could get divorced in a year. At least they should spend a year together to see if feelings develop. If there's no connection by then, it can't be helped. But now, he says he wants to spend a lifetime with her.

Jennifer, let's not meddle in Yohan and Clara's affairs. Let them figure it out. If we keep talking, they might end up together for eternity.”

something was off.

“Why would I complain about my daughter-in-law without a reason?” she thought. “Even Bonnie, who could keep Yohan in check, was taking a wait-and-see approach regarding his impulsive marriage to Clara?”

After a while, Jennifer asked her mother-in-law, “Should we tell everyone that Clara is Yohan's wife?”

“This is Yohan's decision. He can decide when to announce it. Why meddle? If he wants to announce it, he'll do it in the middle of the night. If he doesn't want to, even if you did it, he won't acknowledge it,” Bonnie replied. ww(w).n©V@/wOrMl.cOm

Seeing Jennifer still in a daze, Bonnie clarified, “Yohan and Clara are in a secret marriage. Aside from us, no one else knows they are married.”

Jennifer finally understood.
