

Gardevoir 152

Chapter 152: The Defeat Was Very Careless

"sand....."

Mega Gardevoir stood up and moved slightly, looking at the Mega Garchomp in front of him with complicated eyes.

Then the body fell downwards and the super evolution was cancelled in the meantime, and then circles appeared in the eyes and he lost his ability to fight.

"Gardevoir has lost the ability to fight! So the winner is Sirona from Kamikaze Town!"

After observing the situation at the scene and confirming that Gardevoir had lost its ability to fight, Miss Joy announced the winner of the match.

"Thank you for your hard work, biting the land shark."

Shirona walked up to Super Garchomp and touched her arm. Super Garchomp quietly canceled his super evolution and looked at Shirona with a smile.

Yu Feng also covered his dizzy head and walked to the leader Gardevoir. After comforting her for a while, he put her back into the Poké Ball.

"Your judgment in combat needs to be improved. For example, when the referee hasn't announced the end, you can't let your guard down no matter what the enemy looks like."

"You can only relax when you are sure that the other party is unable to fight back,"

Shirona told Yu Feng about the shortcomings in the previous battle. It seemed that they had fought too few times. When the referee has not announced the result, no matter what the situation is, one must not take it lightly.

"Yes, I know. Also, you should be a person with super powers."

"Don't rush to deny it. My best friend happens to be a superpower as well, but her preferences are a little different from yours."

Seeing that Yu Feng wanted to deny it, Shirona stopped him. Having a best friend who has super powers, Shirona could still tell who was using super powers.

Although I don't know why he wants to hide his identity as a person with super powers, I still have to say what I need to say.

"A Pokémon with enhanced psychic powers is not its true strength. Just look at how your telekinesis is almost drained out in one battle. What if you have to fight the real champion in the future? You know, Garchomp hasn't had enough fun this time."

After Shirona and Yu Feng handed the Poké Ball to Miss Joy, Shirona said to Yu Feng earnestly, "After all, the blessing of superpowers is always an external force. What will happen to the next game when your telekinesis is used up?"

You can't make yourself uncomfortable just for this fight. Not everyone is her best friend, who has superpowers and can go berserk like the king of Pokémon.

Of course, she didn't mean to stop Yu Feng from using his super powers, but she wanted him to practice well and not run out of energy after a fight, which would be too embarrassing. Even if the psychic Pokémon were smart, they couldn't face the opponent directly.

"I see. Hey, he really got carried away this time."

Yu Feng rubbed his swollen head. Normally, he would not be like this, but today, for some reason, he suddenly got too excited and performed a perfect connection, which directly consumed almost all of his superpowers.

"It's good that you know it. More practice is better than anything else. As for the rest, whether it's attacking or fighting control, there are still some unique ideas."

"But you have to give up some unnecessary moves. If you can trade damage and it's more profitable for you, you can take an attack to achieve your goal. Pokémon are not as fragile as you think."

Shirona persuaded Yu Feng earnestly that it was indeed a good thing to prevent Pokémon from getting hurt, but things cannot be compared in this way. For example, in this battle, many instant teleportations could obviously be omitted, probably because the movements looked cool.

"Now that we've woken up, let's stop here for today. We'll talk about other things tomorrow..."

Even though Shirona had fought such a battle, she was exhausted, and judging from Yu Feng's expression, she would die suddenly here if she didn't rest.

Shirona stretched her somewhat stiff body, and the full curves were not as ordinary as they seemed from the surface of her clothes.

Then, Orchid, holding the treasured notebook, and Sirona temporarily left the battlefield and went to the Pokémon Center to rest for a while and wait for the treatment to be completed.

Yu Feng also said hello to Professor Oak and Yu Huijun and left. After instructing the butler to remember to retrieve the Poké Ball, he returned to the guest room, fell into the bed, and fell into a beautiful dream.

After an unknown amount of time, the Poké Ball on Yu Feng's waist opened automatically, and Shiny Kirlia appeared in the room.

Looking at her brother's face, she couldn't help but recall her childhood. When she was hungry, her brother would steal food from the baby bear, and when she was thirsty, he would break into the giant hornet's hive alone.

Gently stroking Yu Feng's cheek, which was as smooth as a newborn baby's, Shining Kirliao sighed that time passed so quickly.

Blue light representing superpowers lit up in her eyes, and the quilt was pulled out from under Yu Feng by itself, gently covering his body, and clothes, shoes and socks were also moved out from between the quilt little by little.

"Chirrut. (You said I was a bad sleeper, but I'm no different.)"

Looking at her brother who couldn't sleep well without holding something, she complained a little unhappily, then looked left and right, and after making sure there was no one around, she snuggled into Yu Feng's arms.

Yu Feng, who had held the thing in his arms, rubbed the head of Shining Kirliam contentedly, and his frown, which had been furrowed because he was not holding anything in his arms, also relaxed.

After feeling the warmth of her brother's body, Shining Kirliam rubbed her chest, closed her eyes and fell asleep.

The breeze lifted the curtains, leaving only the breathing sounds of the two people in the room.

"Shirona, what do you think?"

Mustard Orchid showed Shirona what he had recorded during the battle, and asked his granddaughter to take a good look at it to see if there were any mistakes.

After all, she was not the one fighting, and the specific details needed to be supplemented by her granddaughter.

"Well, I think wild bosses and captured bosses should lack certain characteristics like the dominant Pokémon, and this boss is abnormally large."

Although she had never seen the real boss, Sirona still keenly felt that this Gardevoir was too big, almost as tall as Onix.

And it was obvious that she lacked some qualities, perhaps some aura, or some personality, but in the absence of a second example, we could only use this one as a benchmark.

"That's true. By the way, I remember her eyes glowed red when she started fighting, and then it gradually disappeared?"

Speaking of this mustard orchid, I remembered that when we first started fighting, her eyes were glowing red and she was howling towards the sky with a wildness.

"No, the red light has always been there, but it's not that..."

After hearing what Mustard Orchid said, Shirona recalled her experience of the battle and shook her head. Although the red light was very small afterwards, it was certain that it had always existed.
