

Gardevoir 153

Chapter 153: Lao Deng explodes some gold coins!

“Sizzle—Sizzle~~!!”

Yu Huijun was sitting in the room debugging the communicator in his hand, while Fu Ningna was sitting beside him, bored, clapping her hands with the Weileta.

"I'm telling you, can't you come and help?"

Yu Huijun stood up and stretched his body. He had been debugging this thing for an hour and it still hadn't been adjusted properly. If this was not the only way to communicate, he would have given up on it long ago.

Fu Ningna continued to hold the little hand of the Veleta and patted it without turning her head and said, "Do you think I can adjust that thing? How would I know how to operate your single-line communication device?"

The two of you have always communicated through a single line. If you ask her now, she doesn't have any good solution. She has never used this thing.

"You're of no use at all. Let me see the instructions."

Yu Huijun now deeply realized that Fu Ningna was useless. After all, as the owner of the museum, she couldn't even do this. Although the owner of the museum didn't know how to do it, he still had to say it!

"If you encounter a situation where the problem is absolutely impossible, just hit it twice with great force."

Seeing the easy-to-understand instructions, Yu Huijun couldn't help but smack his lips. He was worthy of being called Lao Deng. The things he used were so sturdy and durable.

If it was a mobile phone, it would have been broken after a few hits. Despite this, Yu Huijun still followed the instructions and kicked the communicator hard a few times.

"Squeak, squeak—!! Hey, can you hear me?"

Sure enough, the method described in the instructions worked, and I was able to quickly connect to the communicator on the other end.

"Old... ahem, President Zhou Jingkang, I have something to report here."

Yu Huijun almost said out loud what was in his mind. After all, this guy, the president, was the old Deng who had woken up from his slumber as mentioned before.

Although I know that the other party knows what I want to say just by this sentence, but there is a saying that goes, as long as I don't admit it, I haven't done it.

"Did you mean to call me Lao Deng just now?"

The young man opposite was somewhat dissatisfied with the three Poké Balls in his hands. What was wrong with these people? Why did they like to call him Lao Deng so much?

He thought to himself that he didn't look old, so why did these people like to call him Lao Deng? Couldn't they show him some respect?

"Hey Lao Deng, give me some gold coins. I'm giving my keystone away."

Fu Ningna looked at the connected communicator, and a furry little head popped out from behind Yu Huijun. She asked him to give her a key stone and then continued to play the game of "you hit me, I hit you" with the Vile otter.

"It's Fu Ningna. I approved the key stone for you. Can you please stop calling me Lao Deng? I'm not old at all. I don't know who spread the truth."

Looking at Fu Ningna's actions, Zhou Jingkang felt helpless. He didn't know who was the first to spread the news that the person who woke up from the seal was called Lao Deng, which made these young hall masters call him Lao Deng when they saw him.

If he knew who came up with this name, he would be in big trouble.

Thinking of this, the three Poké Balls in Zhou Jingkang's hands were almost sparking. As for losing a key stone? What was that a big deal?

"Let me finish, old...President, we met a child raised by a Pokémon here."

Yu Huijun coughed a few times and took back the topic, starting to talk about the purpose of contacting him this time.

"Are there not enough children raised by Pokémon? We have a little Deng registered here who can defeat most of the giant blacksmiths."

Zhou Jingkang didn't care about this matter. Their area was vast and rich in resources, and it was not uncommon to find children raised by Pokémon. Most of them would be registered after being found.

But you already call others Xiao Deng, and you don't even want others to call you Lao Deng!

If Zhou Jingkang knew that the person who spread the word of calling him Lao Deng was right in front of him, he might fly over and give him a double beating.

"No, no, this is a child who was raised by the Psychic Department."

Of course, Yu Huijun knew that most children raised by Pokémon were definitely not important, and there were thousands of such cases in their area alone.

But it is very rare for a child to be raised by a psychic Pokémon.

"I said you have something to say, have you forgotten about the comedian?"

Doesn't that mean he was raised by a Psychic-type Pokémon, even though he was raised by a Suction Cup Pokémon.

"This one is different. He should have been raised by Gardevoir. And it seems that the Gardevoir tribe values him very much and sent a king to protect him."

Yu Huijun said to Zhou Jingkan mysteriously that according to his observation, Yu Feng was raised by Gardevoir. After all, a Gardevoir is at its strongest, and a Kirlia does not look weak either, not to mention that it has two flashes.

It's obvious that these are the two bodyguards provided by that ethnic group.

"Hmm? Gardevoir, it's interesting. Tell me more about it."

Zhou Jingkan became interested when he heard that the child was raised by Gardevoir. You know, as a male trainer, taming a Gardevoir has almost become an obsession for him.

But, he is the kind of Pokémon that can sense emotions. He knows exactly what you are thinking. As long as you have bad thoughts, he will not appear.

Moreover, it would be strange if a child raised that way did not have evil thoughts. After all, it is a biological instinct and it cannot be eliminated just like that.

Yu Huijun told about what he had seen and heard in the past few days, and described the appearance and image of the giant Gardevoir. He also mentioned that Mustard Orchid came here specifically to observe this Gardevoir.

After listening to Yu Huijun's description, Zhou Jingkan fell into deep thought. If he remembered correctly, that person should be the leader of Xicui? Oh, now he should be called Sinnoh.

It shouldn't be like this, isn't the boss already extinct? As the relationship with humans gets better and better, the boss no longer has that frightening wildness, and then becomes no different from ordinary Pokémon.

But now another case has come out. Once there is one case, there will be a second case. I am afraid there are still many things in this world that they don't know.

However, Zhou Jingkang still noticed a detail. When Yu Huijun introduced them, he used the local surnames, which means...this group of Gardevoirs are in their territory?

And his last name is Yu? Could he be related to Yu Huijun? Yes, his Gardevoir did flee back to his hometown and never came back because of the exposure of its production date.

This can't be his child, right? But can humans really have children with Gardevoir?

Have you never tried it? In my memory, no one has ever done this before.

Really, Thai pants are hot!

"Anyway, you should find out more about it first and ask that person if he is willing to register his household registration. After all, he is one of your own, so you should still get what you deserve."

Although I was brainstorming in my head, I still had to do what I had to do. Since he asked, he must be asking me whether I should register his household registration.

What should be done about this kind of thing? If his guess is correct, there will be something interesting to watch later.
