

Gardevoir 4

Chapter 4 It always feels weird

"Huh? Where am I?" Yu Feng opened his eyes with great effort, but what he saw was pitch darkness.

I tried to wave my arms but I felt like I was wrapped in some very sticky liquid.

Where am I? I'm so sleepy...

Before he had time to think about why he was here, Yu Feng was suddenly overwhelmed by sleepiness and slowly fell into a deep sleep.

"Sana! (Ah! It just moved.)"

The smallest leader, Gardevoir, looked at the larger Pokémon egg shaking, his eyes filled with curiosity.

"Shanai? (Is it about to hatch?)"

The youngest leader, Gardevoir, was a little excited. After all, he would be the aunt's Gardevoir in the future, and he would finally not be the youngest anymore.

"Sana. (It won't be that fast. It will take at least a month.)"

The sharp-eyed Gardevoir held her forehead with her hand. This youngest sister had a good imagination. They didn't have human incubators, so how could they hatch so quickly?

Besides, even if there are, they won't hatch from the eggs that have just been laid.

"Sana. (But I saw it move.)"

The youngest Gardevoir looked at the largest egg with some mumbling.

"Sanae... (I don't care about you anymore, you can do whatever you want, I need to take a good rest.)"

With sharp eyes, Gardevoir held her forehead with her hand and used instant teleportation to disappear in front of her.

"Sana. (You guys better hatch quickly. I'm still waiting to be your aunt.)"

The youngest Gardevoir held two eggs and was eager to become an aunt.

Is this here again?

Yu Feng opened his eyes and waved his arms to move the liquid that wrapped around him.

He didn't know how much time had passed, and every time he opened his eyes, it was pitch black.

The liquid that wraps around me has changed from being sticky at the beginning to being able to be stirred with a wave of the hand.

Yu Feng had a feeling that once this thing became as light as water, he would be able to get out of this dark place.

But the sudden sleepiness took away his thoughts and made him fall into a deep sleep again.

Gilgamesh enveloped the two Pokémon eggs with healing waves, and after a while, he wiped the sweat from his forehead with his short hands.

He explained the next steps to Gardevoir and the others. After all, newborn Pokémon are still very fragile.

"Happy. (Almost. It will hatch in a week at most.)"

"Happy. (You can also heal the vibrations, right?)"

"Sana. (Yes.)"

"Happy. (Then for the next week you will release healing waves three times a day, morning, noon and evening. Remember, don't stop.)"

"Sana (I understand.)"

After sending away the Chansey Egg, Gardevoir looked at the two eggs with sharp eyes and fell into deep thought.

-----

Light?

Yu Feng has almost adapted to this dark place.

Although it was a bit boring, it was also a pleasure to feel the liquid surrounding me gradually become clearer.

But today was different, a faint white light emanated from his body.

It's really strange, Yu Feng thought, not knowing why he couldn't make a sound even though he wanted to speak.

However, with the help of the white light, he could see the surrounding area clearly.

A sphere-like object wrapped around him, but it was not wide enough for him to stretch his arms out.

But why is the light becoming more and more dazzling?

Yu Feng was still wondering why the surroundings were getting brighter and brighter, only to see the light on his body gradually becoming dazzling.

So much so that even the round object wrapped around him became bright due to the reflection. No, it was not a reflection!

It really is glowing, glowing in the physical sense!

The dazzling light forced Yu Feng to cover his eyes.

As if freed from his restraints, Yu Feng opened his eyes and saw several huge green humanoid creatures.

Although he couldn't tell what kind of creature it was due to the light, he could see that the other party was also very surprised.

one minute ago

"Sanae (You guys need to grow up quickly.)"

The petite Gardevoir muttered to herself as she dozed off.

A sudden tremor woke her up from her sweet dream. When she opened her eyes, she saw the two elf eggs in her arms shaking at a strange frequency, accompanied by a very regular white light.

"Sana! (It's about to hatch, come quickly!)"

The mental power spread, directly alarming the Gardevoirs living nearby.

In the blink of an eye, several figures appeared in the middle of the room, looking at the two shaking Pokémon eggs with surprise. The little heads of Larulas and Kirlia appeared at the door, quietly looking at the situation inside the house.

After such a long wait, they are finally about to hatch.

The two elf eggs in their mother's arms were flashing faster and faster, approaching the two glowing light bulbs.

The other Gardevoirs around them couldn't help but sweat. Even though they knew there was no such thing as a difficult birth, they still couldn't help but feel nervous when looking at their sisters' children, fearing that something unexpected would happen.

Finally, after lighting up the entire room, the two eggs slowly transformed into the appearance of Larulas.

No, the biggest one was not the appearance of Larulas. What appeared in their eyes were two little blue pot-cuts.

However, one of them looked like a human baby boy, which surprised the surrounding Gardevoirs very much.

The petite Gardevoir lifted up the baby boy and looked at him with some curiosity.

"Sana! (Big sis, he is a different color from us, he looks different, he has a little... Ouch!)"

The petite Gardevoir held up the little pot-lid and observed it for a while, then excitedly called out to her big sister.

As a result, he was hit by his eldest sister and immediately crouched down with his head in his hands to defend.

The eldest sister Gardevoir punched the petite Gardevoir to the ground, then her eyes suddenly flashed blue and she caught the child helplessly and held it in her arms.

"Sana (If you continue talking, you won't pass the trial.)"

"Sana (But he really...)"

"Sana (Stop, don't say that anymore!)"

Looking at her elder sister's left hand wrapped in flames, the petite Gardevoir made a zipper motion to indicate that she would not talk any more nonsense.

She handed the other little pot-covered kid to her mother and walked out of the tree house with the two little guys in her arms. These two little guys had made the other little guys in the territory very worried during this period.

The little ones who were just peeking through the door were now sitting outside obediently, their eyes fixed on the human child in the hands of the two men.

Two Gardevoirs walked up to the platform where they usually held meetings, and lifted a Ralts and a human child high into the air facing the sunlight.

Their meaning is self-evident. When these two little guys grow up, they will take over their positions.

The golden sunlight spread on the children's bodies, as if they were wearing a layer of luxurious golden clothes.