

Genius 1331

Chapter 1331: Robbing Before Killing!

Don't be fooled by the fact that he's from the Yamamoto Family, he's actually just an ordinary branch member, far from being comparable in status to those direct line members of the Yamamoto Family.

But he's lucky enough to have a good relationship with a very powerful figure, which is why he was able to land this lucrative position as head of the Yamaguchi Group's Hong Kong Branch.

Many people are envious of this position.

Some people have long been scheming to take him down and replace him...

This matter was originally a very good opportunity for Yamamoto to advance, as long as he sent this mechanism box back to the Yamaguchi Group headquarters, it would be a great merit.

With such a merit, convincing that powerful figure would be much easier, making it much more likely for him to be promoted and reused...

But if this matter fails, then the outcome is obviously clear.

Not to mention that promotion and reuse would be impossible, failure to carry out the task would already be a big responsibility, not to mention certain people hitting him when he's down...

Thinking of this, cold sweat ran down Yamamoto's back.

So, at this moment, he had no other choice, only by fighting desperately did he have a slight chance to retrieve the item, which would save his life and his grand future...

Yamamoto didn't get to his current position by being completely useless, he himself also possesses some combat skills. Although he is vastly inferior to Kyokushin Genichi and Miyamoto, and not even comparable to Fujita, he at least has the level of an ordinary special forces soldier...

Not to mention, as Yamamoto rushed towards Qin Fang, his wrist brushed behind his back, and a dagger glinting with cold light appeared in his hand.

As he approached Qin Fang, this cold and shining dagger quickly thrust out, aiming directly at the vital chest and abdomen areas of Qin Fang, unleashing its strongest strength.

To save his own life, Yamamoto had to retrieve the mechanism box. Qin Fang's strength was obviously much stronger than his, and facing him head-on was impossible. At this moment, he planned to use a sneak attack.

The distance between Qin Fang and Yamamoto wasn't very far, merely over a meter. At such close range, this sudden move was difficult for most people to react to.

Could Qin Fang be so easily injured by someone?

Obviously, that's impossible.

Although Yamamoto was somewhat capable, trying to deal with Qin Fang was akin to displaying one's slight skill before an expert.

Faster than words can describe!

Just as the dagger in Yamamoto's hand was about to pierce Qin Fang's vital kidney area, Yamamoto could almost hear the sound of the dagger entering flesh.

But just at this moment, he suddenly felt his dagger-holding hand suddenly grasped by another hand, and with a gentle squeeze, his hand stopped moving, failing to advance even half a step further...

Not only that, but at the same time, that hand gently pinched, and Yamamoto felt an immediate sharp pain in his wrist. The instant pain nearly overwhelmed him, his hand opened up immediately, and the firmly gripped dagger clattered to the ground...

The assassination failed!

This was without a doubt!

Qin Fang's strength far surpassed Yamamoto's, and his reaction speed was much faster.

If even a quasi grandmaster-level expert like him could be injured by a novice like Yamamoto, it would be an astronomical joke.

The dagger fell towards the ground, Qin Fang lightly tapped it with his foot, and the dagger instantly transformed into a streak of silver light flying up.

With a casual grab, Qin Fang caught the dagger in his hand, and at the same time...

Squish~~

Without any hesitation, Qin Fang stabbed through Yamamoto's palm!

"Ah..."

A horrific scream erupted from Yamamoto's mouth, a sound terrifying enough to make one's blood run cold.

"I didn't originally plan to do anything to you, at most just a lesson! But unfortunately..."

Looking at the small fry Yamamoto in front of him, Qin Fang's face showed no emotion. Even as blood gushed out, Qin Fang seemed indifferent, speaking with incredible calmness.

"You..."

With his palm pierced through, the intense pain was almost unbearable for Yamamoto. But at Qin Fang's words, his eyes opened wide, subtly sensing the growing hostility in Qin Fang's gaze.

Squish~~

Without any courtesy, Qin Fang shook his wrist, immediately pulling the dagger out of Yamamoto's palm, his eyes scanning Yamamoto, seemingly contemplating where next to strike with the bloodstained dagger.

"You... you dare kill me?"

Feeling Qin Fang's extremely unfriendly gaze, Yamamoto felt an inexplicable panic inside him, even making him ignore the intense pain in his hand.

In the face of the danger of death, any other pain seemed powerless.

Once life is lost, then there's naturally no need to care whether it hurts or not...

"Why not..."

Qin Fang's face showed a mocking expression, disdainful of Yamamoto's self-proclaimed pride, almost wishing he could directly spray him to death with soda water.

From the start, Qin Fang never intended to let Yamamoto live.

This guy is a typical tenacious rascal; last time, because there were too many people, Qin Fang wasn't able to act, so he spared him once.

But unexpectedly, this guy now found experts to deal with him and even developed some improper thoughts about Tang Feifei, so Qin Fang couldn't be blamed for his ruthless actions.

As a member of the Yamaguchi Group and the head of the Hong Kong Branch, Yamamoto wasn't clean either; his hands were dipped in the blood of many people, and his Sin Points weren't low, already reaching over four hundred... meaning at least four innocent people died by his hands.

No matter whether those who died by his hands were Japanese or Dragon Country People, it wasn't very important to Qin Fang... what mattered was that Yamamoto belonged to the evil camp, so killing him wouldn't decrease Qin Fang's Sin Points, and he might even gain some!

"Ugh..."

Yamamoto's gaze suddenly became stagnant; he had no doubt about the truth in Qin Fang's words, because at this moment the killing intent released by Qin Fang was indeed directed at him, Yamamoto.

Never mind that he was part of the Yamaguchi Group, and even the head of the Yamaguchi Group Hong Kong Branch, controlling the Xin'an Gang Leader Long Ye had to give him some respect.

But in the face of death, he was still just a normal person, nothing more than a regular person whose life was about to end.

As for those so-called power, background, and reliance, to Qin Fang, they were all nothing...

He wanted to kill and killed without needing to consider these.

Moreover, at this time, Qin Fang was using another face altogether, a face that never appeared before, even if the Yamaguchi Group reviewed surveillance footage later, it wouldn't help because this person might not even exist in this world...

Afterwards, Qin Fang left this villa, reverted to his original appearance, even if he walked boldly down the street, no one would consider him as the one who killed Yamamoto.

"You..."

Yamamoto almost accepted his fate, knowing he was doomed because Qin Fang's strength had far exceeded his estimation

But he still held a slight hope, that his subordinates could hear his scream earlier and come to his rescue.

Especially the ninja Miyamoto, whom he had spent a lot to hire, was his greatest reliance... so even facing imminent death, he kept talking to Qin Fang, just to buy a little more time to give his subordinates more opportunity!

"You talk too much... better save it to slowly chat with King Yama below!"

At this point, Qin Fang clearly lacked patience, the bloody dagger in his hand slightly moved, immediately stabbing towards Yamamoto's heart.

The speed was quite fast, almost like lightning...

And the angle of attack was particularly accurate, believing that this stab would pierce Yamamoto's heart, making survival nearly impossible...

Watching the dagger gradually approaching, Yamamoto instinctively tried to evade, but his arm was held by Qin Fang, he couldn't dodge, and could only watch the dagger draw near.

At this moment, Yamamoto was almost in complete despair, seemingly foreseeing the end of life, his face showed an extremely ashen color, looking quite miserable, helplessly closing his eyes, silently waiting for death to come...

Puff~~

This was the low sound of a dagger penetrating flesh, almost inaudible, but Yamamoto felt as if he had heard it.

But...

"Huh, why didn't I feel pain?"

Yamamoto was very surprised, because he heard the sound, but didn't feel any pain, seemingly uninjured by the blade.

Feeling this unexpected development, Yamamoto couldn't help but open his eyes and looked at his chest.

The heart area remained untouched; the dagger Qin Fang wielded hadn't stabbed there, not even seeing the dagger...

But the sound just now was very clear, Yamamoto felt he hadn't heard wrong, it seemed like it happened right beside him.

Since Yamamoto wasn't stabbed, it meant someone was stabbed.

"Could it be..."

With this simple thought, Yamamoto's mind perked up, subconsciously glancing towards Qin Fang, since only the two of them were in this room, if it wasn't Yamamoto stabbed, it could only be Qin Fang opposite...

Chapter 1332: No One Can Save You!

Although Yamamoto couldn't figure out why Qin Fang, the killer, would stab himself, he didn't care about the reason; he just needed this result.

But...

Was the one stabbed really Qin Fang?

Yamamoto was very doubtful about this result because when he looked Qin Fang over, he didn't see any part of his body that seemed injured by a blade.

The only unseen place seemed to be Qin Fang's back...

"Could it be he's stabbed in the back?"

This thought inevitably popped into Yamamoto's mind, because at that moment Qin Fang's arm, which had been holding the dagger, twisted, extending towards his back.

Judging from Qin Fang's posture, it seemed quite possible.

Even though he still couldn't understand why Qin Fang, who was clearly out to kill him, would stab himself, and not in the front but in the back...

Just at that moment, as suspicions flooded Yamamoto's mind, he saw a distortion in the void behind Qin Fang, and then a shadow gradually appeared before his eyes.

Miyamoto!

Yamamoto's heart leapt, because this person who suddenly appeared was indeed the ninja Miyamoto he had hired...

This was a very powerful ninja, with extremely formidable ninjutsu skills, entirely mysterious. Yamamoto still hadn't figured out when Miyamoto entered the room.

But shock aside, Yamamoto actually felt a great amount of expectation.

Miyamoto was a highly skilled individual he had brought to deal with Qin Fang, a very capable person indeed. Although he hadn't arranged for Miyamoto to take on Qin Fang yet, helping to resolve this extremely dangerous figure was also why Yamamoto specifically spent a lot to bring him from Japan.

"Mr. Miyamoto, save me..."

Without thinking, Yamamoto immediately cried out in alarm.

"Was it just now that Miyamoto stabbed this person and saved my life?"

At the same time, Yamamoto immediately connected it to the earlier sound of a knife entering flesh and looked at Qin Fang, hoping this was the case.

But...

"Save you? With him?"

Suddenly, Qin Fang's expressionless face again revealed a sneering look. His body moved slightly to the side so that Yamamoto could see what was happening behind him.

One of Qin Fang's hands was holding Yamamoto, while the other was behind him, holding a weapon... the dagger taken from Yamamoto.

Yamamoto had thought Miyamoto had secretly stabbed Qin Fang and hadn't considered where Qin Fang's dagger had gone; now he realized... that dagger was still in Qin Fang's hand, but the tip was deeply embedded in the ninja Miyamoto's body.

"Ga..."

The little bit of luck and hope that had just risen in Yamamoto's heart was immediately shattered by this scene, his face turning even paler.

Miyamoto had failed...

This ninja, for whom Yamamoto had paid a high price, hadn't even had the chance to carry out the mission, and had fallen here directly.

Ninjutsu is good, almost like invisibility, making it very difficult to defend against, an essential tool for assassination, but Miyamoto, such a shu master, had no opportunity to act, silently getting stabbed...

The person who stabbed him had been about to kill Yamamoto a moment ago, but now Yamamoto was unharmed, and Miyamoto had been stabbed...

This scene was truly too ironic!

Miyamoto himself had also not expected things to turn out this way; he had approached Qin Fang silently, ready to strike instantly, but had not anticipated Qin Fang's dagger, aimed at Yamamoto's heart, suddenly veering in a bizarre direction, his arm twisting in an eerie manner, and the dagger swiftly stabbing into his body like lightning.

Even someone at the quasi grandmaster level like Miyamoto couldn't dodge such a rapid change, for his speed was far inferior to Qin Fang's.

By the time he sensed something was wrong, it was already too late...

The only response he could muster was to twist his body in an attempt to avoid critical areas, to prevent excessive injury.

But although Qin Fang had his back to him, it seemed as though he had eyes on the back of his head; when Miyamoto moved, Qin Fang's dagger moved accordingly, eventually stabbing into his chest.

Although it didn't directly pierce his heart, it almost punctured his lung...

What made it even more unbearable for him was that as the dagger stabbed in, he clearly felt a powerful surge of True Qi invade his body, further injuring his already severely damaged internal organs...

"What an idiot..."

Looking at Yamamoto in front and Miyamoto behind, Qin Fang's face showed deep disdain and sarcasm, and he didn't hesitate to express his contempt in Japanese.

Yamamoto's face was pale with deep helplessness, while Miyamoto's face was ashen as he quickly retreated with a clenching of his teeth.

As he pushed away, the dagger was immediately removed from his chest, and the blood gushed out as if it cost nothing, further whitening Miyamoto's face.

But from another perspective, it also proved that Miyamoto was indeed a freakish figure, or rather, every ninja was a freak.

Because the training they underwent from childhood was extremely cruel, inhuman, and bloody, only enduring what others couldn't could truly master Ninjutsu.

Even with such a severe injury, he could still decisively push away, not giving Qin Fang another chance to strike, showing a level of decisiveness that demanded attention.

If they were on the same side, Qin Fang might have lauded him as a "real man," but unfortunately, they were in opposition, so Qin Fang could only show deep disdain at the corners of his mouth, yet he did not make another move against Miyamoto.

"Your lifeline doesn't seem very reliable... then I won't be polite!"

Not making a move against Miyamoto didn't mean Qin Fang would spare Yamamoto. Looking at the already desperate Yamamoto in front of him, Qin Fang spoke in a calm tone.

As he said this, Qin Fang deliberately glanced over at Miyamoto, making Miyamoto involuntarily take a small step back.

"You..."

At this point, Yamamoto was truly afraid, his underlings still hadn't appeared, and his greatest reliance, Ninja Miyamoto, had been destroyed by Qin Fang. Even a mere glance from Qin Fang could scare Miyamoto into retreating — he was truly out of options...

"I've wasted enough time; it's time to send you on your way..."

Qin Fang seemed unwilling to delay any further, mainly because he noticed that Yamamoto's underlings were finally approaching. If he delayed any further, Qin Fang would have to face a hail of bullets.

Qin Fang grabbed Yamamoto by the neck with a single hand, effortlessly lifting his not-so-tall body off the ground...

Yamamoto tightly grasped Qin Fang's hand, desperately trying to pry it open, but unfortunately, his strength was far inferior to Qin Fang's, making it impossible to succeed.

Being lifted like this by Qin Fang, he found it extremely difficult to breathe, almost on the verge of suffocation. His already pale face turned bluish-purple, looking quite ghastly...

His legs flailed powerlessly, as if trying to rise higher to breathe more comfortably...

But all these struggles were in vain, Qin Fang would never give him a chance to escape.

"Time to go..."

With just these simple words from Qin Fang, he gave a slight twist, and with a crack, the clear sound of a neck breaking followed. Yamamoto's head immediately drooped to the side...

At that moment, although Yamamoto was not completely dead, he was nearly there, moving his lips weakly as if trying to say something, yet nothing came out...

Soon, this pitiable person, whose head was nearly detached from the neck, fell silent entirely, dead beyond dead...

Casually tossing aside Yamamoto, Qin Fang thought that if he truly wanted to kill such a novice, he wouldn't need to waste so many words—he could simply snap his neck and be done with it.

Yet Qin Fang deliberately said so much nonsense before finally killing Yamamoto... this was intrinsically unreasonable.

However, the reason behind this, known only to Qin Fang, was beyond the understanding of Yamamoto and Miyamoto, as they were unfamiliar with Qin Fang's strength and character.

In truth, the reason Qin Fang did this seemingly nonsensical act was to lure the ninja Miyamoto out from hiding...

Miyamoto's Ninjutsu was indeed remarkable and very powerful, capable of silently infiltrating the room, which somewhat surprised Qin Fang.

Miyamoto likely used some incredibly potent Escape Skill, capable of passing through doors, which greatly astonished Qin Fang. At that moment, Qin Fang almost uncontrollably wanted to exclaim.

Though Ninjutsu evolved from Dragon Country Martial Arts and the Thousand Gate's Five Elements Escape Technique, by integrating key elements of both, it had indeed formed a very formidable Martial Arts system.

But it also brought about some peculiar changes, like this extremely stealthy Escape Skill that allowed one to pass through doors unnoticed—if not detected, one could be assassinated silently without leaving any trace...

Miyamoto evidently had this idea in mind, intending to silently approach Qin Fang and strike when near, killing Qin Fang in one move, rescuing Yamamoto simultaneously—a plan that would kill two birds with one stone, so why not?

Unfortunately, the idea was beautiful!

But the reality was cruel...

The Sneak Attack failed, only costing him dearly!

Chapter 1333: Violent Instant Kill!

Miyamoto's movements were indeed very secretive, coupled with his mysterious and unpredictable escape techniques, which made him hard to guard against... Probably no one would think someone could sneak to their side so silently.

This is also the reason why Miyamoto could survive and thrive until today, not knowing how many people died in his hands like this...

However...

Today he met his match!

And it was a very formidable opponent!

So formidable that Miyamoto, who was always invincible, not only failed but was also seriously injured by his opponent.

This was definitely Miyamoto's greatest shame in a long time, even more shameful than losing to those grandmaster-level experts...

In fact, the reason why Miyamoto came over was not because he heard Yamamoto's scream, but because he was bored downstairs, recalled Yamamoto's mysterious demeanor earlier, and wanted to see what Yamamoto was doing or what kind of treasure was in that brocade box Yamamoto brought back...

So he utilized ninjutsu to quietly approach and infiltrate this room...

Only upon entering did he get a fright from what he witnessed.

He actually saw Qin Fang holding Yamamoto hostage, not only robbing an extremely important treasure but also intending to eliminate Yamamoto...

As a master hired by Yamamoto, naturally, he didn't want his employer to inexplicably die like this, so he intended to save Yamamoto's life, which was definitely beneficial for him.

But judging from Qin Fang's moves, Qin Fang's strength was formidable, almost not much weaker than Miyamoto's, and Miyamoto was always very cautious.

Facing such a master, he wasn't confident of winning, not to mention rescuing someone calmly, so Miyamoto intended to end this opponent with a sneak attack.

Everything went smoothly up to this point, just needed that final push, but suddenly everything went awry, not only failing to sneak attack but also caught off guard by the opponent before he could make his move...

"Really think learning ninjutsu makes you invincible, utterly idiotic!"

For the ninja Miyamoto, besides disdain, Qin Fang had nothing else to say...

If the two fought openly, although Miyamoto still wasn't Qin Fang's match, he could at least restrain Qin Fang.

But this guy intended to use a sneak attack against Qin Fang, so naturally, Qin Fang wasn't going to show mercy...

Is a sneak attack useful?

For others, it naturally would be very useful.

But for Qin Fang, it's really hard to say...

Miyamoto was just relying on his stealth, no one would think he had entered the room without opening the door,

And with his strength, once close to Qin Fang and suddenly attacking, he had about seventy to eighty percent certainty of injuring Qin Fang, or even killing directly...

However hard he calculated, he absolutely didn't expect Qin Fang to have such an anti-heavenly skill like the Scouting Skill, especially after Qin Fang's scouting skill advanced to grandmaster level, with the mini-map function emerging, those stealth methods became completely useless in front of Qin Fang...

Yamamoto thought he entered the room discreetly, not knowing Qin Fang had already noticed him at the first moment, even when he just stepped upstairs Qin Fang already noticed him.

The mini-map function monitors within a fifty-meter range, Qin Fang controlled the position of everyone, who approached and who moved away, Qin Fang saw it all clearly.

So Miyamoto's little tricks could deceive others but not Qin Fang.

Originally, Qin Fang was prepared to prevent Yamamoto's men from rushing over in large numbers, unexpectedly, the first to arrive was Miyamoto...

Qin Fang had noticed Miyamoto's every move, so he had guarded against it beforehand, only Miyamoto himself didn't know.

The reason for not taking the initiative was the fear of not being able to kill with one strike, which would be troublesome; if held up and Yamamoto had a chance to escape and call in others to gang up on him, although Qin Fang might not fear this, not being able to take down Yamamoto would still be a significant regret...

After thinking it over, Qin Fang immediately played a trick to divert attention and deceive, and the result was that Miyamoto unfortunately fell into the trap.

Once Qin Fang made a move, it was sure to be overwhelming.

Just like the slash before, Miyamoto indeed avoided the heart's critical point relying on his strength, but was still severely injured in the lung by Qin Fang, with his internal organs violently shaken, almost causing him to have a bitter taste in his throat and cough up that mouthful of blood... barely holding it back.

But merely a severe injury was evidently far from meeting Qin Fang's expectations.

Since Yamamoto was already dealt with, Qin Fang naturally wouldn't let Miyamoto go... understanding the maxim of letting a tiger return to the mountain bringing endless troubles, so such a thing absolutely couldn't be done.

"Never should have, in a thousand ways, you should never have come against me! Therefore..."

Facing the heavily injured Miyamoto, Qin Fang's expression remained calm, but his steps gradually moved closer to Miyamoto, releasing pressure that made Miyamoto sweat profusely.

Of course, this profuse sweating perhaps wasn't from the pressure, but from the pain... after all, his injuries were truly severe.

Chapter 1334: Violent Instant Kill! _2

If such injuries cannot be treated in time, I'm afraid that his life might not be saved...

However, Qin Fang never planned to let Miyamoto's life continue, Yamamoto is already dead, and next is this severely injured Miyamoto.

This kid's strength is even stronger, and the blood debts on his hands are much more than Yamamoto's, his Sin Points are also quite large, several times more than Yamamoto's...

For a person like him, even if he wasn't hired by Yamamoto to deal with me, Qin Fang absolutely wouldn't allow him to continue living...

As for the reason, it's naturally to rid the populace of harm!

Qin Fang already knew the purpose of Miyamoto's visit from Yamamoto; he had already figured out Yamamoto's intentions beforehand.

If it weren't for that, Qin Fang wouldn't have acted as an assassin against Yamamoto so quickly.

For someone who bears grudges like that, Qin Fang couldn't give him the chance to pose a threat, so it was better to eliminate the problem at its roots, which makes things much simpler.

Yamamoto's plan failed last time, so he specifically invited Miyamoto to deal with Qin Fang. Naturally, the requirement was for Miyamoto to kill Qin Fang...

With Miyamoto's elusive techniques, if Qin Fang were just an ordinary person, he absolutely couldn't have escaped from his assassination... It's a pity that Qin Fang is not an ordinary person, and Miyamoto is destined for a tragic end.

In fact...

Before Miyamoto could even trouble Qin Fang, Qin Fang came to him of his own accord, even having a brief exchange where Miyamoto became severely injured, giving Qin Fang an absolute advantage.

Perhaps Yamamoto didn't even think until his death that the fierce character who appeared suddenly was indeed his old enemy, Qin Fang...

Miyamoto also never expected that the expert who pushed him almost to the brink was the very Qin Fang Yamamoto hired him to deal with.

If the two of them knew, their expressions would have certainly been very peculiar at this moment, with a kind of bitter and stifled feeling they couldn't articulate...

"You want to kill me... it's not that easy!"

Qin Fang intended to attack Miyamoto, but Miyamoto is not so easily handled, like a soft persimmon; at this moment, he was also secretly fierce, his eyes brimming with a ferocious light, seemingly determined to fight Qin Fang to the end, even to the point of mutual destruction...

While he spoke, the heavily injured Miyamoto suddenly shook his hand, and a black ball was seen being thrown onto the ground...

With a bang.

The ball exploded immediately, releasing a particularly dense white smoke that quickly filled the entire room.

Meanwhile, Miyamoto himself was completely engulfed in the white smoke, seemingly disappearing without a trace...

"Escape Orb?"

In fact, when Miyamoto took out this black ball, Qin Fang had already recognized it but he didn't stop Miyamoto from using it.

The Escape Orb, also known as the Escape Smoke Bomb, is one of the ninjas' most commonly used escape tools and is a necessary means for evasion.

This Escape Orb originally spread from the Dragon Country, having been used in the Dragon Country Martial World centuries ago, as one of the essential tools for thieves and perverts, and was considered an inferior item.

Unexpectedly, this item, despised by the Central Plains martial arts community, was spread to Japan and even enhanced by the perverted devils there, so much so that the original Patriarch who invented it might even feel ashamed...

This is one of the ninjas' survival techniques, and basically, when encountering a situation like Miyamoto's, using this Escape Orb is the best choice, especially since Miyamoto's strength was not enough to contend with Qin Fang at this moment...

If not escaping now, then when?

Anyway, the employer Yamamoto has been killed, so Miyamoto has no reason to stay; survival is the first choice, revenge can be put aside.

Miyamoto, almost at the first moment the white smoke rose, immediately activated ninjutsu and quickly rushed toward the door; he must escape as soon as possible, then flee far away...

"Gah..."

But things didn't go as smoothly as he imagined.

The extremely dense white smoke almost blocked everyone's vision; even Miyamoto himself could only vaguely see some shadows or traces...

Miyamoto had already made a plan in his mind; as long as he could find the direction, he could flee immediately...

But before he took a few steps, a strong and powerful hand reached out from the dense white smoke, and before Miyamoto could react, the hand had already grasped his neck and violently swung him...

Miyamoto felt as if his body was completely out of his control, flying straight into the large alloy safe behind him.

Bang~~

Before Miyamoto could react at all, his body crashed heavily into the incredibly hard panel of the alloy safe.

The impact was enormous, and even the metal safe had a slight dent left in it... all caused by Miyamoto's collision.

The hit was really hard, and Miyamoto's body, which was already badly injured, suffered a devastating blow...

Pu~~

A mouthful of fresh blood spewed out, with faint pieces of broken internal organs mixed in, and Miyamoto's entire body just slumped down, looking extremely miserable, covered in blood as if he was fished out from a Blood Pond...

"Humph, killing you is really easy..."

Wiping away the bloodstains on his hands, Qin Fang said in an extremely calm tone.

Miyamoto was still that self-proud, but his skills were really too mediocre, lacking several grades compared to Qin Fang, fundamentally not in the same league.

Ninja skills are the foundation of their survival... but in Qin Fang's presence, it had no market at all since the mini-map function clearly revealed their figures.

Whether invisible or not, it made no difference to Qin Fang... Miyamoto thought Qin Fang couldn't see him, not knowing that Qin Fang saw clearly.

This Escape Orb is quite similar to invisibility; pure ninjutsu isn't so easily detected, but some highly perceptive experts can discern from subtle clues.

However, once this Escape Orb is used, the strong white smoke it releases covers the entire space, making everything invisible except for the pervasive smoke, and one's own hand is barely visible even when in close proximity...

Yet to Qin Fang, this was simply ineffective.

As soon as Miyamoto moved, Qin Fang had already noticed his intended direction, so he moved first and arrived at the door.

Before Miyamoto could use his technique to pass through the door, Qin Fang already acted, grabbing Miyamoto's body and suddenly exerting force, throwing him with terrifying strength...

In that moment, the force Qin Fang unleashed wasn't his full punch power, but it was still seventy to eighty percent...

The speed at which Miyamoto flew backwards was astounding, crashing into something so hard... even for a quasi grandmaster-level expert like Miyamoto, Qin Fang's strike was enough to severely wound him instantly.

Originally wounded internally by Qin Fang's Inner Qi, now severely hurt again, Miyamoto's condition worsened.

The internal organs were likely shattered by the repeated severe injuries, evident by the blood Miyamoto vomited, mixed with fragments of internal organs.

Even...

As soon as Qin Fang finished speaking, Miyamoto already showed significant reactions.

Pu!! Pu~~

Seriously injured, Miyamoto spewed several mouthfuls of blood, then tilted his head, unable to hold on any longer, and died just like that!

Chapter 1335: A Great Item Exploded!

...

It's not that Miyamoto is extremely fragile, unable to withstand Qin Fang's strike. As a ninja whose body was trained through abnormal methods, his resistance to blows is definitely quite formidable.

Although he can't be compared to those muscle-bound boxers from Europe and America, he isn't much weaker either. After all, some of the training content for these ninjas is something that even Qin Fang finds chilling to his spine—it is absolutely abnormal and inhumane...

Ninjas trained in this manner are not just simple experts; they are at an abnormal level...

This is one of the reasons why Japan's ninjas are far inferior to Dragon Country's martial artists in the cultivation of Inner Breath, but not too much in terms of strength.

Coupled with their flexible, strange Ninjutsu, they are even more difficult to deal with!

This is why many experts would rather face those seemingly fierce boxers from Europe and America than deal with Japanese ninjas.

Flexible, tough, bizarre, crafty...

These are several very important traits of Japanese ninjas.

As one of the outstanding Middle Level Ninjas, Miyamoto is infinitely close to being an Upper Ninja expert. His strength is definitely quite formidable, but unfortunately, he encountered Qin Fang. In the end, he didn't even manage to make a ripple and went to meet King Yama with his employer Yamamoto.

After successfully killing Yamamoto and Miyamoto, Qin Fang didn't stay here any longer. He casually picked up the items Miyamoto dropped and swiftly rushed out.

Using the small map's monitoring function, Qin Fang easily avoided Yamamoto's lackeys, then directly jumped over the villa's courtyard wall, quickly disappearing into the night.

By the time these lackeys arrived at that room, they found two lifeless bodies, and as for the murderer... he had long disappeared without a trace to follow.

The only thing they could do was pull out the surveillance video and find the appearance of this murderer... Unfortunately, it was completely fake!

To be exact, Qin Fang didn't deliberately avoid the cameras; he even casually revealed his face...

There wasn't much deliberate intention. Such actions would be too fake; natural is the best way, making it very difficult for anyone to notice he had other motives.

But Qin Fang wasn't particularly concerned. Even if someone suspected, it wouldn't matter; they couldn't trace it back to Qin Fang... At most, they could find out Qin Fang had a grudge against Yamamoto.

But with Yamamoto's kind of personality, he had conflicts with many people. You can't suspect every enemy... So Qin Fang soon put this matter out of his mind, not thinking about it further.

The people are already dead, so Yamamoto's backup plans are useless, and naturally, they won't trouble Qin Fang anymore. He's relieved for the time being.

Emerging from the villa area, Qin Fang zigzagged through several streets before changing his face and then slowly returned to the Qu Family.

The journey was naturally very calm. Returning to his room, Qin Fang took a shower, washed away some anger, and removed the faint scent of blood from his body. His whole demeanor became refreshed, completely unseeing of his recent double murder.

When he calmed down, he remembered the items Miyamoto had dropped before he left...

Basically, every expert reaching this level would drop some items when killed by Qin Fang, except for Tang Nan as an exception.

Why Tang Nan didn't drop a single hair, Qin Fang guessed either his luck was really bad, or he simply had nothing of value on him. The only valuable thing was Storm Pear Blossom, but that still ended up in Qin Fang's hands, not much different from being dropped directly...

Besides Tang Nan, almost everyone else dropped something, even though previously only Shangguan Tianling had... now Miyamoto had joined as well.

As for the poor Yamamoto, he was downright irrelevant, even if something dropped, it wouldn't be valuable. He was not as valuable as when Qin Fang took out High Priest Darren; at least Qin Fang got a superb ring from Darren... the Thousand Doors Treasure Qianji Ring.

Of course, Qin Fang still snatched the Mechanism Box from Yamamoto.

However, this Mechanism Box was targeted by Qin Fang earlier. If Yamamoto hadn't insisted on contending, Qin Fang had planned to auction it off for a high price.

But Yamamoto insisted on meddling, so Qin Fang simply carried it through, not only snatching the Mechanism Box but also dealing with this relentless enemy altogether.

With Yamamoto's death, all those unnecessary issues have become unimportant. Qin Fang took out all the items Miyamoto dropped from the Props Box.

The items weren't many, just two.

"Middle Level Ninja Token..."

The first is a token. Seeing the "Middle" character on it, Qin Fang's face showed some helplessness. He had obtained this item once before; this was the second time.

This was the first time Qin Fang killed a Japanese ninja and caused one to drop, and that unlucky kid was also a Middle Level Ninja. However, his strength was far inferior to Miyamoto's, completely not on the same level.

The kid had barely stepped into the level of a Middle Level Ninja, while Miyamoto was almost entering the Upper Ninja level.

The token at that time was given by Qin Fang to his little female servant, Song Dao Cainaizi, who is now Qin Zi, allowing her to successfully enter the Middle Level Ninja stage... She can be considered a junior expert now.

"Middle Level Ninja Token, special item, using this token can directly enhance your strength to a Middle Level Ninja level..."

The content of this introduction is almost identical to the previous one.

"Hmm... no, it's not the same!"

But upon careful inspection, Qin Fang discovered this token had some differences compared to the previous one, specifically, there was a line of small font remarks behind this sentence.

"Remark: If already at the Middle Level Ninja stage, it can enhance a certain level of strength, the highest can reach the peak of Middle Level Ninja..."

"Hiss~~ It can actually stack!"

Seeing this note, Qin Fang couldn't help but take a sharp breath.

This seems somewhat similar to the concept of Qin Fang's skill book, where if the original body already possesses the skill, learning it would only increase a certain level of skill proficiency without adding a new skill or rendering it unusable...

This Middle Level Ninja Token is the same, those without strength can rise to Middle Level Ninja, those who are Middle Level can directly enhance their strength...

"Not bad, it's a good thing!"

Seeing this note, a knowing smile appeared on Qin Fang's face.

It's unknown whether this was specially arranged because of Qin Fang's ultimate task, Qin Zi's strength was much stronger than before, but wanting to break through the encirclement and win that final victory is obviously still far from enough.

However, with this thing as help, the success rate of Qin Fang completing this task is much higher...

Seeing this token, Qin Fang seemed to see a shortcut to quickly enhance Qin Zi's strength, which is to wildly farm tokens...

Since a Middle Level Ninja can drop a Middle Level Ninja Token, theoretically, an Upper Ninja can drop an Upper Ninja Token as well. No matter how many times a Middle Level Ninja Token is used, it can only reach the peak of Middle Level Ninja, but using an Upper Ninja Token could immediately advance to Upper Ninja... Basically creating a Grandmaster-level expert out of thin air.

Moreover, in the profession of ninjas, the strength and threat of an Upper Ninja are far greater than that of a Middle Level Ninja...

Don't judge Miyamoto for seeming not so formidable, that's because he hasn't advanced yet, but once he does, it won't be so easy for Qin Fang to kill him.

Of course, it's not likely for him to successfully sneak attack Qin Fang either, since Qin Fang's mini-map can expose any enemy trying to approach him...

"Let's keep this thing for now and see..."

Having confirmed that this token is a good thing, Qin Fang was naturally very pleased, but wasn't currently entirely sure how best to use it.

Giving it to Qin Zi for use is certainly an option to enhance her strength, but if Qin Fang later farms an Upper Ninja Token, using this token would be a waste since it can't be retrieved to use again...

Instead of wasting it like this, it's better to give the token to his woman, like Tang Feifei, to enhance her strength, so she also has the ability to protect herself.

Qin Fang isn't a god, he is just an ordinary person after all, so he has weaknesses too...

And his biggest weakness is his family...his mother Qin Qing, and the women around him.

As Qin Fang keeps stepping forward, the number of enemies will increase, and the world he engages with will become more complex, magnifying his vulnerabilities.

As such, these women's self-preservation capabilities are a critical backup force for Qin Fang. He doesn't expect these women to fight on the battlefield, but at least they can protect themselves and not become a burden to Qin Fang, allowing him to confront his enemies with full force...

Qin Zi's task has no time limit, so Qin Fang is not in a hurry. Whether her strength is enhanced or not isn't significant for now, so Qin Fang thought it over and decided not to let her use it for the time being.

Now knowing that killing these ninjas can drop such tokens, although Qin Fang isn't certain that every ninja will drop one, even if one drops from among several, by the time Qin Fang officially sets foot in Japan, these tokens would likely drop in bulk...

There's no need to doubt this possibility. Since Qin Fang accepted this ultimate task, he has anticipated how great the danger and difficulty would be.

Especially as the enemies he faces aren't just one person, nor just one family, it's very likely to be the entire Japan... and ninjas seem to be Japan's specialty!

Chapter 1336 Wood Release Technique

...

He tossed the Middle Level Ninja Token into the Props Box, contemplating when to give this thing to Tang Feifei first.

Originally, he wanted to give it to his mother Qin Qing, but he decided against it.

Qin Qing has a relatively calm disposition, and her life is very peaceful, and Qin Fang doesn't want to disrupt this peace. Giving her the Middle Level Ninja Token really holds little significance.

On the other hand, Qin Fang feels it's necessary to specially protect Tang Feifei, mainly because he doesn't want the incident where Cao Chun held her hostage to happen again...

That time really gave Qin Fang a huge fright.

If not for Qin Fang's trip to Yangcheng where he acquired a puppet person, even his incredibly resilient body wouldn't have been able to withstand that powerful bomb.

If Tang Feifei had the power to defend herself, comparatively, Qin Fang could also be at ease a lot more...

Of course, this is just Qin Fang's first target. Next, he would try to ensure every woman he has connection with would possess considerable strength...

The Japanese side might not yet realize that because of this token, before Qin Fang officially steps into Japan, many unfortunate ones are already marked by him. By then, it will depend on whose luck is worse and ends up bumping into Qin Fang's gun...

"And there's one more thing..."

Putting away the token, Qin Fang went on to look at another item.

"This is..."

The other item that Miyamoto dropped out was actually a book...

And it seemed to exude an ancient aura, appearing as if it had existed for a very long time.

Seeing this ancient book, Qin Fang's face immediately showed astonishment, while also revealing a hint of anticipation.

If this thing was obtained from somewhere else, Qin Fang naturally wouldn't care much, even if it was a very precious ancient book.

After all, he's not an archaeologist, so he doesn't need to understand the significance of ancient books... of course, some martial arts manuscripts would be an exception.

But martial arts manuscripts are not that easy to come by. Those existing are mostly held by major sects and are not easily passed on to the outside, and even disciples of the sect have to go through layers of testing to have a chance to cultivate...

As for those passed down among civilians... Qin Fang can basically pass them directly, since after that great upheaval, many precious ancient texts and historical materials were destroyed, let alone these things.

And over these past few decades, National Arts have long declined significantly, and there are even fewer people who would preserve such things... so Qin Fang simply doesn't believe that such martial arts manuscripts have been passed down among the people.

The ancient book in Qin Fang's hands was dropped by Miyamoto, which is clearly different from those ancient books circulated in the outside world...

To Qin Fang's belief, there's over an eighty percent chance that the book dropped is a Skill Book.

As for what kind of skill it contains, it depends on luck. It might be really good, or it might be quite average, it's hard to define.

Before the book is identified, it's in a chaotic state without any font, so Qin Fang used his Scouting Skill on this book.

"Wood Release (Fragmented)."

Very soon, the result came out, and this book also underwent a significant transformation.

Originally in a chaotic state, it now turned into a ragged book, its cover seemed to have been torn off, and even the end part seemed to be missing...

This is a fragmented book!

"Oh, it's still a good thing..."

Seeing this, Qin Fang was even more delighted, even to the point of feeling excited and ecstatic.

Frankly speaking, the previous Middle Level Ninja Token, while good, was of no use to Qin Fang himself, as his strength far exceeds that of a Middle Level Ninja, not much lesser even when compared to an Upper Ninja.

But this is a Skill Book, even if it's a fragmented one. For Qin Fang, that's not an issue. As his skill proficiency increases and his level goes up, the originally incomplete skill will gradually be completed, so for Qin Fang, this fragmented book is just as good as a complete one...

And what made him feel extremely pleased is that this skill is very useful to him.

Seeing this skill, Qin Fang realized why Miyamoto could enter that room without making a sound; it turned out to be because of this.

The room storing the safe, although well-guarded by various security measures surrounding it, Yamamoto didn't want to make it too special, so the door to the room was the same as others, all made of solid wood.

Wood Release, naturally it's an escape skill that can be used on wood, one of the secret techniques of the Five Elements Escape Sect, and among those stolen by the little devils long ago.

The Five Elements Escape Techniques of the Five Elements Escape Sect are considered unbeatable, providing significant leverage for the sect within the Thousand Gate.

Unfortunately, no one knows what means the little devils employed back then to steal some of the secret techniques. Though incomplete, they used these fragments to research and develop these twisted arts known as ninjutsu...

Ninjutsu was indeed initiated by the little devils, but its foundation is the escape skills and martial arts of Dragon Country, merely transformed with a new guise. Nevertheless, some children believe ninjutsu is impressive, not realizing these are ancestral legacies...

Wood Release can be used on wood; this wooden door is the perfect medium, allowing Miyamoto to silently pass through the door unnoticed by the two people inside the room.

Had it not been for Qin Fang's powerful mini-map function, even he wouldn't believe that Miyamoto could achieve this...

This isn't to say Qin Fang couldn't detect Miyamoto without the mini-map; if Miyamoto got slightly closer, Qin Fang, with just his hearing and perception, could sense his presence!

Thus, Miyamoto's downfall was due to his insufficient strength and his insistence on attacking Qin Fang, leading to his eventual demise...

Of course, ninjas like Miyamoto often end up in ruin; even if not killed by Qin Fang, they meet their end by others, seldom living long.

Yet, when killed by others, nothing explodes, whereas when slain by Qin Fang, you can reap a couple of good items... At least Qin Fang didn't waste his efforts fruitlessly.

"Didn't anticipate, actually managed to make it explode..."

Before killing Miyamoto, Qin Fang had thought about causing an explosion, but never expected to trigger this skill; it was indeed an unexpected delight for Qin Fang.

Without hesitation, Qin Fang swiftly tapped the skill book, which instantly turned into a stream of light, penetrating his body...

Consequently, a new skill appeared on Qin Fang's skill panel... Wood Release.

This skill was indeed extraordinary; upon learning it, Qin Fang discovered it immediately derived a major skill... Escape Skill.

Under this major skill Escape Skill, aside from Wood Release, there are also Metal, Water, Fire, and Earth escapes, though currently gray, even the major Escape Skill itself is gray...

"Seems I need to gather five types of escape to synthesize the true Five Elements Escape Skill..."

Seeing this, Qin Fang roughly understood that extrapolating skills isn't impossible, but it may not succeed every time, and the difficulty level might also be a consideration.

For instance, Qin Fang's Cooking Skill once derived from the Noodle-Pulling Skill, but the Escape Skill didn't derive directly from learning Wood Release.

Of course, if Qin Fang were to enhance Wood Release to intermediate, advanced, or even grandmaster level, whether the Escape Skill level would also improve, Qin Fang couldn't be sure, only hoping it would upgrade directly like the Cooking Skill; that would be ideal...

Learning such a skill, if not personally trying it out, certainly wouldn't make sense.

Qin Fang glanced around, noticing the table in the room, made of solid wood and not small in area; it seemed a very suitable target.

Approaching the table, Qin Fang placed one hand on it, and immediately deployed the Wood Release skill...

With the Wood Release skill activated, Qin Fang distinctly felt his hand relax, and his entire palm seemed to merge with the table in front of him.

Whew~~

This change didn't alarm Qin Fang; he simply breathed lightly, gradually merging his entire body into the table before him.

In short time, Qin Fang's entire being vanished, as if his body completely fused with the table...

"There's a time limit..."

Not idle, Qin Fang quickly discovered a time limit to this escape skill; from the moment he started merging with the table, a countdown appeared, starting from thirty seconds, ticking down as Qin Fang fully integrated with the table just as the countdown hit zero.

Then...

Once the countdown finished, the Wood Release skill naturally lost effect.

To Qin Fang's dismay, he shockingly found himself stuck inside the table, hardly able to move. Trying to twist side to side, even slightly exerting force, felt like the sturdy table might quake apart.

"Damn... more practice is needed!"

Seeing himself stuck within the table, Qin Fang was truly at a loss for words; being his first use of Wood Release, encountering such a tiny mishap was understandable.

Still, this awkward situation was quite vexing for him...

"Luckily no one saw, otherwise who knows what they'd think!"

Qin Fang didn't bother worrying about the table disintegrating anymore; with a slight body shift, he seemed to shrink a bit, freeing himself from the table, seizing the moment to slip out...

Chapter 1337: Creating a Heroine!

...

Originally, Qin Fang thought that once he came out from inside the table, the table would definitely have a hole formed due to his body being there.

But the result was incredibly strange, the hole actually self-healed, returning to its original state, as if everything that just happened was merely an illusion...

"It's unbelievably magical..."

Qin Fang carefully explored the table, finding its wood extremely compact with hardly any sign of damage or anything unusual, which was why he couldn't help but express such admiration.

This Wood Release Technique truly has unpredictable and miraculous effects...

Seeing this, Qin Fang realized why Miyamoto was able to pass through a door without causing any damage.

In fact, Qin Fang could also achieve this now; thirty seconds might not seem long, but it's enough for him to pass through a door, which is just a few centimeters of wood panel.

The reason for Qin Fang getting stuck inside the table was entirely due to his body, originally merged with the wood, suddenly becoming exposed, naturally encountering resistance from the wood, but his body was indeed inside the table's wood, leading to the unfortunate situation of being stuck...

And when he jumped out of it, the table returned to its original state, similar to how Miyamoto passed through a door and the door returned to its original condition.

"It truly is a Divine Technique..."

Even Qin Fang, who had obtained numerous powerful skills, couldn't help but exclaim at the wonder of the Wood Release Technique.

The Thousand Gate has been passed down for thousands of years and is Dragon Country's most mysterious and powerful sect, producing innumerable skilled Thousand Gates experts. Just the Five Elements Escape Sect alone is already so powerful, imagine how formidable the various sects within Thousand Gate are...

Of course, the Thousand Gate passed down to this day is nowhere near as prosperous and powerful as it was in ancient times, with many supreme skills gradually being lost, or certain sects with few disciples even ceasing due to having no successors...

Qin Fang might be named as a Thousand Gates acolyte, but in reality, he has yet to truly come into contact with this vast and mysterious Thousand Gate. His cheating skills only just stepped into the advanced level thanks to the enhancement of the Qianji Ring, still far from being able to roam unhindered...

Not to mention experts like Thousand Gate Chess Elder Song Qianqiu, even those masters who possess such miraculous Thousand Gate skills are enough to make Qin Fang envious and jealous.

The Wood Release Technique is merely one of the Five Elements Escape Techniques of the Five Elements Escape Sect, and it is considered the weakest among the Five Elements Escape Techniques...

Especially nowadays, it's far from being comparable to the other escape techniques.

In ancient times, with abundant trees, this Wood Release Technique was naturally quite sharp, but in today's cities built with reinforced concrete, green areas are scarce, and trees are even less, which imposes significant restrictions on the Wood Release Technique...

In truth, not just the Wood Release, even the other Five Elements Escape Techniques face similar issues. The Earth Escape Skill, touted as the strongest escape technique, is invincible in the countryside, but on these concrete or cement surfaces... drilling down would surely end with a bump on the head!

Let alone the Fire Escape, Water Escaping, Metal Escaping... they're also severely restricted.

Despite this, Qin Fang is still very pleased to have acquired the Wood Release Technique, even looking forward to obtaining the other four escape skills, thereby completing the Five Elements Escape Techniques. He's curious to see how powerful the escape techniques will be when all five elements are complete...

Qin Fang's acquaintance, Thousand Gate Chess Expert Song Qianqiu, is an elder of the Qimen Dunjia Sect, specializing in formations and the Way of Chess. While his chess skills aren't worth commending, his mastery in the Dao of Formation is something Qin Fang cannot match even with his best efforts.

Despite Qin Fang playing chess with him many times, this old man always tries his best to subtly put Qin Fang at a disadvantage, making it appear as though Qin Fang has some chance in the battle.

However, after Qin Fang understood the power of the Thousand Gate's supreme skills, he realized that Song Qianqiu never really showed much of his true skills, and was even suppressing his own capabilities. Otherwise, Qin Fang would have faced much greater difficulties long ago...

The Five Elements Escape Sect is allegedly derived from the Qimen Dunjia Sect but later became independent, forming this unique lineage focusing on the Five Elements Escape Techniques and various related supreme skills.

The Qimen Dunjia Sect encompasses everything, formations, escape techniques, Qimen arts, basically possessing everything, with successors carrying on each tradition.

Though Song Qianqiu is an elder of the Qimen Dunjia Sect, he specializes only in formations, having poor knowledge in escape techniques; he seems not to know them at all...

Nevertheless, this old man shouldn't be underestimated at all; he's after all a grandmaster-level expert. When his Dao of Formation reveals its sharp edge, it's surely far more powerful than the Five Elements Escape Techniques.

Defense formations are as solid as gold and iron, attacking formations destroy everything, illusion arrays confuse the mind... and various other chaotic formations, in short, every formation is extremely challenging.

Even the most ordinary person, if well-versed in a single formation, can become an influential figure...

The Five Elements Escape Techniques are more focused on their eerie aspects, useful for escaping and sneak attacks... perhaps this is the reason the little devils stole them!

Chapter 1338: Creating a Heroine!_2

"The chances of raiding the Five Elements Escape Sect are slim. It seems I'll have to hunt down those little devils more often in the future..."

The Five Elements Escape Skill comes from the Five Elements Escape Sect, and they are the only ones with the complete original escape skill. However, Qin Fang getting the full set of escape skills from the Five Elements Escape Sect is an impossibility.

This is the treasured possession of the Five Elements Escape Sect. Although some bits have been stolen by the little devils in the past, it doesn't mean they would willingly hand over the entire original.

It's likely that if Qin Fang really went to ask for it, getting kicked out would be considered polite. Who knows, he might even be hunted down everywhere...

Anyone would do the same in such a situation. It's like a stranger showing up at your house asking for a family heirloom... you'd be a fool not to kick him out!

The little devils' escape techniques are fragments, surely with some defects, possibly fatal ones. Yet, they've combined it with martial arts to create the secret art of ninjutsu.

The practice of ninjutsu requires enduring long periods of inhumane torment and abuse to truly master it. Perhaps this is their method to counter those defects...

However, Qin Fang isn't particularly concerned, since it doesn't really affect him!

Although Qin Fang is practicing the fragmented Wood Release Technique, the skill system that comes with the System can autonomously complete it. In the end, what Qin Fang practices is the true original, perhaps even more precise than the Five Elements Escape Sect's own original...

Because of this, Qin Fang isn't actually worried whether the skill books he acquires are complete or fragmented. As long as it's in his hands, he can naturally produce a complete set of skills.

It's impossible to get skill books from the Five Elements Escape Sect. Killing indiscriminately among them isn't realistic either. Not to mention that Qin Fang has no clue where these people even are, and even if he found them, he wouldn't dare act rashly... Those people are much more powerful than those Japanese ninjas!

Instead of causing trouble for himself, it might be easier and more convenient to brush up against those little devil ninjas...

It's said that after the little devils stole the Five Elements Escape Technique, many different schools of ninjas formed. Besides the division in martial arts, the differences in escape techniques also serve as a criterion for division.

Qin Fang pondered that his trip to Japan was bound to have encounters with many Japanese experts, and he might even form deadly enmities. Qin Fang didn't mind using these little devils for leveling up and to obtain equipment.

Various Ninja Tokens were naturally things Qin Fang needed, but these rare escape skill books were also treasures Qin Fang needed to acquire...

Gathering the complete Five Elements Escape Techniques would certainly be best, and obtaining several skill books could conveniently increase Qin Fang's proficiency in the escape skills. This way, when Qin Fang uses the Wood Release Technique, he wouldn't get stuck inside a table again...

After gaining this skill, Qin Fang's mood improved greatly. He soon took out the mechanism box he'd flown so long to capture and was about to research how to open the remaining two layers of the box...

But just then, Tang Feifei's call came through, and Qin Fang answered it immediately without thinking.

"Qin Fang, what are you doing?"

Tang Feifei called to inquire, her words filled with deep concern.

Since Qin Fang had left the auction house suddenly, and Tang Feifei had returned with Qu Yuancheng and the others, she had no idea where Qin Fang went, what he did, or when he returned to the Qu family during that time.

"Feifei, come over. I've got something good for you..."

Qin Fang thought for a moment and decided to deal with the Middle Level Ninja Token quickly. Giving it to Tang Feifei was undoubtedly a very good choice.

So, without any hesitation, Qin Fang called Tang Feifei over...

For matters as crucial as this, the fewer people who knew, the better. Even though Qin Fang had a good relationship with Qu Yuancheng, he wouldn't reveal his secrets so easily.

Moreover, Qin Fang had left the auction house mid-way, and Yamamoto was then killed. Although Qin Fang didn't care about the speculations from the little devils, he didn't want Qu Yuancheng to get dragged into this.

For Qu Yuancheng, it's not a good thing. It might be better if he knew nothing at all...

As for Tang Feifei, Qin Fang didn't need to hide it from her. In fact, even if Qin Fang didn't say anything, Tang Feifei had already guessed why Qin Fang left unexpectedly.

Seeing how Qin Fang valued the mechanism box and how he had particularly told Tang Feifei that he would share its secrets with her, she understood a lot.

Tang Feifei arrived quite quickly. She had just returned to the Qu family and couldn't help but call Qin Fang. Hearing that Qin Fang had returned, she couldn't wait to come over.

"Qin Fang, what's this good thing..."

Almost as soon as she stepped in, Tang Feifei couldn't resist asking curiously.

Just one Heart of the Ocean had made Tang Feifei very happy. Although the necklace was given by Kong Er, Tang Feifei knew very well that Kong Er did so completely for Qin Fang's sake, perhaps as a huge favor to him... So essentially, this necklace was a gift from Qin Fang himself.

This had already made Tang Feifei very happy... Truth be told, this was the first truly precious gift Qin Fang had given her.

Of course, if there was something more precious, perhaps it was the Metamorphosis skill Qin Fang had taught Tang Feifei, which was worth more than gold...

The Heart of the Ocean was indeed very precious, but such jewelry was merely ornamental, something one could do without. Naturally, Qin Fang didn't care much about it.

And anything that Qin Fang would call a "good thing" was naturally no ordinary item.

"This..."

Qin Fang took the Middle Level Ninja Token from the Props Box and handed it to Tang Feifei, giving a simple explanation of how the token should be used.

"There's actually such a magical treasure?"

Upon hearing that using this token allowed one to instantly become a "Martial Arts Expert" without any effort, Tang Feifei's eyes lit up with excitement and anticipation.

"Haha, I too can become a Martial Arts Expert now..."

Following Qin Fang's instructions, Tang Feifei used the Middle Level Ninja Token immediately. She was so excited that she couldn't help but cheer and jump for joy.

At this moment, Qin Fang also felt quite satisfied, as if to show her thanks to Qin Fang; Tang Mei Mei was quite generous, rewarding Qin Fang with a passionate French kiss...

Only when she was almost out of breath did she reluctantly let go. She didn't care if she could catch her breath and just continued to cheer.

What Qin Fang didn't know was that his women got along well privately. Qin Zi was Qin Fang's female slave, but she mostly spent her time with Tang Feifei and the others.

Tang Feifei and the others naturally knew that Qin Zi was also a little expert, which made them quite envious...

Among these three sisters, only Xiao Muxue had developed faint True Qi due to her closeness with Qin Fang. The other two were still pure maidens, so things remained the same for them...

Every man has a martial arts dream...

In truth, every woman also has a dream of being a heroine... Tang Feifei was no exception.

Being born into a military family, she had received rigorous military training and was stronger than average girls, but she still wasn't that strong.

Tang Cheng underwent the most rigorous training, nearly losing his life several times, which is something a family successor must experience...

But being the most treasured girl in the Tang Family, Tang Feifei was showered with love and couldn't possibly suffer abuse?

Therefore, her strength was quite lacking...

She always longed to become stronger...

Chapter 1339: Beautiful Female Ninja!

...

The advancement process is extremely swift, as that Middle Level Ninja Token transforms into a stream of light and disappears into Tang Feifei's body, completing the process...

This process is considered very swift yet mysterious, with the token made of unknown material drilling into Tang Feifei's body, frightening her greatly. After confirming she wasn't hurt, she finally breathed a sigh of relief.

However, once the token completely disappeared, Tang Feifei's expression changed from initial bewilderment to a serious demeanor. She closed her eyes, her facial expression quite peculiar, as if she were comprehending something.

Ninjas are also martial artists, a martial profession unique to Japan. Becoming a low-level Genin is easy; as long as one crosses the threshold, they can be considered a Genin.

But the Middle Level Ninja is an advanced level over the Genin, regarded as the backbone of ninjas, and basically mastering all the necessary ninjutsu skills...

Both Tang Feifei and Qin Zi were directly elevated through this token, originally knowing nothing about ninjas. Suddenly becoming a Middle Level Ninja naturally requires some time to adapt...

This is why Qin Fang initially let Qin Zi adapt slowly... Now Tang Feifei is the same, suddenly becoming a Middle Level Ninja without mastering any ninja skills, needing time to comprehend and ponder!

Thus, Tang Feifei stood silently, eyes slightly closed, quietly integrating the newly added information on various secret techniques of Middle Level Ninja from her memory...

More than just understanding, the real task is integrating... These skills belonged to Tang Feifei from the moment she successfully used the Middle Level Ninja Token; the only issue was she hadn't personally used them, so integration requires time...

Otherwise, rashly using them could easily lead to some unexpected situations!

Qin Fang leaned to the side, not bothering with the mechanism box, primarily acting as a protector for Tang Feifei, ready to assist immediately if anything went wrong.

As an Inner Sect expert, and a master of medicine, few could compare to him in saving people.

Fortunately, this was not the first time Qin Fang had experienced this process. When Qin Zi advanced, Qin Fang acted as her protector, and nothing out of the ordinary occurred.

This time with Tang Feifei was the same, no accidents, and about half an hour later, Tang Feifei finally opened her eyes...

At the moment her eyes opened, Qin Fang clearly sensed a sharp, fierce gleam flash in Tang Feifei's gaze... She truly possessed some Middle Level Ninja presence now!

"Did I really succeed?"

Though she had already integrated Middle Level Ninja skills in her mind, Tang Feifei still felt like she was dreaming, somewhat unable to believe it was real.

"Find a place to try it out..."

Seeing Tang Feifei's joy mixed with considerable nervousness, Qin Fang gently patted her shoulder and said with a smile.

"Hmm..."

Taking a deep breath, Tang Feifei nodded slightly, heading into the living room, ready to test her suddenly enhanced strength!

Positioning herself, standing firm, Tang Feifei's hands started moving immediately, forming one after another very special gesture...

These gestures are essential ninja skills, commonly referred to as the Nine-character True Words, originally passed from Dragon Country... but adapted by the Japanese into ninjutsu techniques.

But this is already unimportant, the matter is concluded, even if Qin Fang wanted to complain, it wouldn't change anything...

Bang~~

Though Tang Feifei's gestures were done quite inaccurately and also seemed rudimentary, after completing the whole sequence, a slight muffled sound could be heard.

Then...

Vanished...

Tang Feifei truly vanished!

The gesture Tang Feifei performed was naturally the Invisibility Jutsu, a crucial ninjutsu technique, equivalent to Qin Fang's Stealth Skill.

Once the jutsu is activated, the person immediately becomes invisible...

Tang Feifei did just that, with the invisibility skill being an incredibly vital ability for many, which significantly differentiates those who have or lack it.

Although there are some minor flaws and imperfections, they are not very important, as Tang Feifei made a very good initial step.

About ten seconds later, Tang Feifei, slightly panting, gradually reappeared from the void, probably because her fragile True Qi couldn't sustain the invisibility for long...

This is somewhat similar to Qin Fang's Wood Release Technique, except the Wood Release requires no consumption of Qin Fang's True Qi, merely operating on a countdown... but the processes are quite similar.

With significant energy depletion, Tang Feifei cannot sustain invisibility for long and naturally has to slowly recover her form.

The Wood Release Technique is the same; once the countdown ends, Qin Fang also reappears...

"Not bad, not bad..."

Qin Fang couldn't help but praise.

Although Tang Feifei was just a novice and had many flaws, for someone as new as him, it was already quite impressive.

"Really not bad?"

In just over ten seconds, she could reveal herself completely. Tang Feifei was not satisfied, as such a short period didn't allow her to do much.

Yet, hearing Qin Fang's praise made Tang Feifei happy, albeit still a bit dissatisfied, mainly because the invisibility duration was too short...

"It's really great! As a beginner, mastering the invisibility jutsu, which is typically practiced by Middle Level Ninjas, is indeed impressive..."

Qin Fang explained with a smile.

Given that she progressed using a token, advancing directly from an ordinary person to the Middle Level Ninja status, it's quite an achievement already...

"But the time is just..."

Tang Feifei was obviously struggling with this issue too. Although she didn't know if other ninjas could only stay invisible for such a short time, she was not satisfied.

"You just need to practice more, and it will gradually increase..."

Qin Fang wrapped his arm around Tang Feifei's waist, pulling their bodies closer, and gently assured her.

Tang Feifei understood the concept of practice makes perfect, so

"Then I'll practice more when I get back..."

Tang Feifei nodded without hesitation at his suggestion.

She also agreed with Qin Fang's reminder. In this era of declining martial arts, having such skills made her quite an expert.

Now as a Middle Level Ninja, Tang Feifei's strength was almost second to none below the Grandmaster Level, standing out among ordinary martial artists... Even Qin Fang's senior sister Cai Qing might not be stronger than Tang Feifei.

Of course, this comparison assumes they are at the same level of power.

In reality, due to Tang Feifei's inexperience, she naturally can't compare to Cai Qing...

"Let's try something else..."

The invisibility technique had been tested and was quite good, with the only drawback being the short duration.

However, as she was just starting, the focus was more on adapting than showing great power on the first attempt.

So Qin Fang had Tang Feifei try another technique. As he spoke, two Japanese katanas, one long and one short, appeared in his hands.

These were the basic armaments of Japanese warriors, rarely used by Dragon Country warriors. But since Tang Feifei was now a kunoichi, using these two weapons was fine.

Tang Feifei hesitated slightly; women naturally have little interest in swords and guns. However, now she had advanced to Middle Level Ninja, and weapon mastery was an important part, so she quickly took the two katanas from Qin Fang.

Swish swish swish~~

Without any hesitation, Tang Feifei started wielding them. The two katanas created a strong clash in the air and a dazzling display of blades, looking quite intimidating, as if they were very powerful.

The two swords danced in her hands like vipers, trailing gleaming streams of light, appearing quite fearsome...

Even Qin Fang kept his distance as much as possible, first because the swords were very sharp and ordinary items couldn't withstand a blow from them. Secondly, although Tang Feifei was an amateur, she had no problem wielding them herself, but having others around might be risky...

"Phew... really not bad! Quite good!"

Compared to the ten-second limitation on the invisibility technique before, handling these swords was done much more competently, looking as if she really knew what she was doing.

After a round of swordplay, Tang Feifei was sweating profusely, even though she had been moving with the grace of a beautiful, intricate butterfly, adding a touch of ethereal charm.

"It's late, I should go back..."

Filled with excitement, Tang Feifei hadn't forgotten how late it was. Though no one would stop them from staying together, the time was not yet right.

"Yes, it's really late..."

Qin Fang nodded. After all this, it was indeed late, past Tang Feifei's usual bedtime.

"I'll head back to my room then..."

Tang Feifei threw a sultry glance and gracefully left. With these stealth skills to explore, her previously idle life seemed to become more lively and colorful.

Chapter 1340: Open the Mechanism Box!

...

Tang Feifei obtained what she had dreamed of, instantly energizing her whole being. She immediately devoted considerable time and effort into integrating and practicing it...

It's not so easy to be a heroine!

Especially when her own power is still very weak, being a heroine is extremely dangerous. Especially since Tang Feifei is so beautiful, if her chivalrous act fails, she might very well get herself into trouble.

This is clearly something Qin Fang doesn't want to see and absolutely won't allow to happen. So before Tang Feifei fully masters these ninjutsu and skills, he won't let her use them casually.

Not only can't she use them, but she can't even casually tell others about them...

Tang Feifei naturally understands this, just like how she has acquired the Metamorphosis skill. Besides Qin Fang, she hasn't even told her good friends Xiao Muxue and Wen Yan...

She was never one to be particularly high-profile, otherwise, Qin Fang wouldn't have been unaware of her father being the big shot of Ninghai after several years of school together.

So Qin Fang isn't worried at all about Tang Feifei exposing her secrets; her lips are sealed tight...

...

Tang Feifei came and went in a hurry.

However, Qin Fang didn't mind much. Instead, he settled down to deal with the mechanism box in front of him.

Originally he thought Tang Feifei would inquire about the mechanism box, but compared to the Middle Level Ninja Token, Tang Feifei immediately put it out of her mind.

"Mechanism box..."

Qin Fang took out the mechanism box, the blue and white porcelain he had already removed, for as long as it's inside, there's no way to open the next two layers of the mechanism.

The mechanism box is a very magical item. Each turn, each layer, is designed incredibly intricately and constructed seamlessly. No matter how carefully studied, it's almost impossible to see any flaw.

Moreover, each turn is interconnected and mutually restricted. Without opening the previous layer, there's no chance of opening the next...

Just like the three-turn mechanism box in Qin Fang's hand, it is said to be divided into three layers. The first layer is where the blue and white porcelain was stored. Now that the first layer has been opened, the second layer can be unlocked...

If the first layer wasn't opened, then no matter what, the second layer couldn't be opened, let alone the third layer...

Qin Fang intended to open the second layer, reportedly smaller than the first and requiring some very special techniques to unlock.

Otherwise... Even if you found the interlayer of the second layer, no amount of strength would open it... That's the ingenious part of its design.

These are just legends, as it's rare for anyone to have seen a mechanism box, let alone open it... Fully unlocking it, those who claim such would seem redundant.

Where the second layer's interlayer is, Qin Fang looked carefully until he truly discovered that seamless spot, which turned out to be the critical opening point.

Unlike others, Qin Fang didn't reach a point of desperation to open it, not even considering hiring a locksmith.

Whether or not he found the mechanism's opening point, without a lock or even a keyhole, even a locksmith would be helpless.

If it weren't like this, the mechanism box wouldn't have just been opened to one layer after being around all this time. No one knows what treasures remain hidden within the second and third layers...

The mechanism box can't be forcibly destroyed, or it would be severely damaged, even destroying the unknown treasures inside...

If others obtained it, even knowing it holds valuable treasures, without knowledge of unlocking methods, they'd be just as stuck.

But such restrictions aren't a big problem for Qin Fang.

Unlocking in progress...

Qin Fang directly used the Lockpicking Skill on the second layer of the mechanism box.

He had previously used this skill with great effect against Li Rui...

The safe he stole from Li Rui's Bihai Pavilion, claimed to be the world's safest safe, wasn't it ultimately opened by Qin Fang?

Qin Fang thus obtained a great deal of material with which to bring down the Li Family, thus suppressing Li Rui to his current state...

The safe was touted as the world's safest, yet in Qin Fang's hands, an entire night was spent gaining experience points and fame, with it finally being opened by the next morning...

Even a safe acclaimed as the world's safest fell to Qin Fang, leaving them disgracefully shamed...

The skill's progress bar moved very slowly, almost at a snail's pace, advancing little by little, seemingly with a long time to completion.

Qin Fang wasn't anxious. Even if it took a long time, he could wait. Had it been easy to open, it would have been claimed by someone long ago.