#Chapter 31: Questions - Read Global Awakening: Apocalypse Ender's Chronicle Chapter 31: Questions

Chapter 31: Questions

Although Shane felt a bit disappointed that he didn't get the first kill of the Jumper Leader since he didn't get the first kill reward, he ignored it for now as he ran towards Harper and helped him stand up.

Anyway, there are tens of thousands of them in just his region, and it wouldn't be surprising if some of them had Legendary Talent that allowed them to kill such a strong and intelligent zombie.

Shane then checked if Harper had any wounds and asked, "Are you okay, Harper?"

"I'm fine, thanks to you. That was a tough one." Harper said, panting.

He looked at the dead Jumper Leader Zombie and shivered.

"Damn, these Jumper Zombies are scary. We need to be more careful, Sir Shane."

"That's not just a normal Jumper Zombie. It's a Jumper Leader." Shane said as he looked in the direction of the three Runner Zombies coming at them.

Eliminating these zombies wasn't as difficult as the previous ones. After Harper learned that the Runner Zombies weren't capable of turning in a different direction once they started charging, these Zombies had become weak and easy to kill in his mind...

Of course, this was only the case if there weren't tens or hundreds of them charging at him all at once.

It didn't take long before the three Runner Zombies were also looted by Shane.

After confirming that there were no more Zombies around, they picked up the metal scraps, pipes, and wire, and returned to their Shelter...

It seemed that Harper's stamina was also reaching its limit, so Shane could only hope that they would not encounter any more mid-tier Zombies.

***

After a few more minutes, the two reached their shelter, and rested for a while. After washing themselves for a little bit from the gathered rainwater around the serfs' houses, Shane invited Harper for a meal.

Shane decided to bring out his bread, and he even opened his mayonnaise jar!

"This is sooo good! What is this called?" Harper asked as he ate his bread. He never had never tasted something like this before!

This confused Shane for a moment since he thought that this world was quite modern considering the places that the other Survivors had been to.

Anyway, it seemed that Harper was quite different so he simply replied.

"It's mayonnaise. We only have one jar, so don't use too much." Shane reminded.

"So it's mayonnaise... What a good name! Thank you for the meal!"

After eating their fill, Shane took out his metal scraps and metal plates from his System Inventory as they planned to make a simple fence or a stronger shelter before the Zombie Wave.

Before he helped Harper do this, Shane recalled something as he started checking the Regional Chat and read the conversations of the Survivors.

He wanted to know what kind of problems they were facing or if someone started giving tips on how to survive here better.

[ Regional Chat ]

Chat Limit: 15

Online: 8,034/54,245

[ Hint: Everyone in the Region has reached Level 2 and unlocked Regional Chat. You have received five additional Chat Limits as a reward. ]

Shane gently nodded after seeing the hint. Well, it was about time that everyone leveled up and unlocked the chat function. Unfortunately, only more than half of them had survived in the process.

'They're probably regretting choosing the Zombie Apocalypse in the selection...' Shane mused.

He then shifted his attention to the Chat Board.

He saw that the Regional Chat was full of messages from different survivors. Some of them were asking for help, some of them were offering help, some of them were forming teams, and some of them were just chatting.

He also saw some messages that caught his attention, some of them came from the first few Survivors he had seen before, but most of them were new.

[ Raze ]: Does anyone know how to deal with Tyrant Zombies? They are too big and strong for me to handle. I need some advice or backup. I'm not inventing a name... It's really called a Tyrant Zombie, I saw the notification from the system calling it a Field Boss. I think I have to kill it to get out of the sewers.

[ Wilfred ]: I found a hidden stash of food and water in an abandoned supermarket near the bright Clock Tower. I have already left the place, but I'm nearby. If anyone needs some, I can share them with you in exchange for Zombie Cores. Just add me as a friend send me a private message if you're interested.

[ Lewis ]: I have a Legendary Talent that works well with mechanical devices. I won't tell you the specific name of the talent, but if anyone needs a weapon, a vehicle, an automaton, or a gadget, I can make it for you. I just need some materials and some Reputation Points. Contact me if you are interested. I'll only work with people near the North Cemetery.

[ Travis ]: Cool! We both have Legendary Talent! I have the Dragon's Bloodline!

[ Amber ]: Please be careful and don't reveal your talents just to anyone. Aside from zombies, other people can be your enemies as well, especially if they lack resources.

[ Travis ]: I know it better than you! Do you think I will reveal my talent if I'm incapable of protecting myself?

[ Linley ]: I have a tip for everyone. If you want to level up faster and unlock more features in the Apocalypse System, you should try to kill as many zombies as possible. The more zombies you kill, the more experience and rewards you get. You can also use some items or skills that can boost your experience gain, such as Experience Potions or Experience Boosters.

[ Travis ]: Hey, Linley... I think everyone knows about the first part.

[ Rene ]: I have a question for everyone. I previously read that other Survivors have three or more Apocalypse options. I only have two choices at that time: Zombie Outbreak and Ragnarok. What about you?

Chapter 32: Announcement

Rene's question sparked some interest among the Survivors. Similar to Shane, they thought that everyone had the same options in the beginning.

Shane recalled that he had a total of eight options.

They were A.I. Rebellion, Alien Invasion, Demon Invasion, Dragon Awakening, Fairy Realm Collision, Magic War, Ragnarok, and Zombie Outbreak.

However, as he continued to read the chat messages, he realized that even the highest had only four options while the lowest had two!

'I guess no one will believe me if I said I have eight options at that time...' Shane mused as he continued reading.

[ Wilfred#12 ]: Why are there so many Wilfred on this server? Anyway, I also have Zombie Outbreak and Ragnarok in the options before...

[ Wilfred ]: Oh... I guess I'm the first Wilfred to reach level 2, huh... Interesting.

[ Jonathan#35 ]: Wow... I had Demon Invasion aside from those two from above. I should've selected the Demon Invasion instead. This Zombie Outbreak smells rotten.

[ Travis ]: That's right. I think Ragnarok is also better... for those without Legendary Talent like me! Hahaha!

After reading through the chats, Shane learned that the most common Apocalypse in the options were Zombie Outbreak and Ragnarok. Then, those who were lucky to have three or four choices, they have Demon Invasion, Dragon Awakening, and Fairy Realm Collision as the rarest one.

It appears that the A.I. Rebellion and Alien Invasion were truly rare. Furthermore, there was no point in lying about the number of their Apocalypse Options, so he knew that they weren't lying.

Anyway, the Survivors had obviously become curious about the situation of other Apocalypses. Because of this, Raze's question was buried so easily, and he didn't see anyone replying to him, or perhaps, they just sent a private message to him.

'Tyrant Zombie, huh... I wonder what it looks like...' Shane muttered as he felt curious about this zombie in the sewers.

After all, the name of that zombie sounds terrifying. It must have some sort of ability that made it difficult to kill.

He was also curious whether Raze could kill it. If that was the case, then maybe buying the information on how to kill it might be a good idea.

With this in mind, Shane added Raze to his friend list.

To his surprise, Raze already had a request to add him as a friend, and he only had to accept it. It means that he already reached level 4, at the very least.

After accepting it, Raze immediately sent a private message.

[ Raze ]: Shane! Do you have a way to kill a Tyrant Zombie? I will pay you once I activate the Trade Function.

[ Shane ]: It's my first time learning about Tyrant Zombie... But I met a Violent Sprinter Zombie already. I can share my experience with that Zombie and you share your information with that Tyrant Zombie. Also, it seems you're not level 7 yet, but how did you know that there would be a Trade Function?

[ Raze ]: Oh... I like that Trade! I will tell you everything I know about the Tyrant Zombie. As for the Trade Function, I don't know at all. I'm just guessing that since every time my level goes up, a function of the system will be unlocked. I think it will not take long before the Trade appears as well. I am actually a gamer before!

[ Raze ]: So I have to reach level 7 to get a Trade Function? That's interesting... Hehe, thanks for letting me know. I will give you a Stale Bread in exchange if you want.

[ Shane ]: No, it's fine... You will know about it eventually. Anyway, the Violent Sprinter Zombie is a mid-tier...

Soon, Shane shared what he knew about the Violent Sprinter Zombie, while Raze shared information about the Tyrant Zombie. He didn't mind doing this since he knew very well that friends wouldn't just appear out of nowhere. He would have to communicate with other people and slowly get close to them. There were also people who might have other intentions, but in the end, he wouldn't know who was trustworthy without talking to other Survivors.

Since Raze was the second one to reach level 2, he felt that he had quite a talent, and both of them might benefit once they started sharing their experiences like now.

After some time, Shane ended their private message. It seemed that Raze was visited by a few Zombie Rats.

'Field Boss, huh... Is that Giant Zombie a Field Boss as well?' Shane mused as he felt that each area should have some kind of Field Boss similar to the one that Raze encountered.

***

After a few more days, a message from the Apocalypse System finally arrived.

[ Attention, Survivors. ]

[ The Zombie Wave is approaching. The Zombie Wave is a special event that will test your skills and your survival. The Zombie Wave will start in 3 hours, and it will last for 12 hours. During the Zombie Wave, you will face a horde of Zombies that will attack you from all directions. You will have to fight, hide, or run to survive. ]

[ The Zombie Wave will also have different levels of difficulty, depending on your location and your progress. The Zombie Wave will reward you with experience, loot, and achievements if you manage to survive. ]

[ Prepare yourselves, Survivors. The Zombie Wave is coming. ]

The day of the Zombie Wave had finally come, and Shane and Harper were ready for it.

They had spent the past few days hunting Zombies and collecting materials from the mining site and the plane crash site.

They had made simple weapons they could use in emergencies, a few traps, and barricades to defend their shelter.

They had also stocked up on food, water, and medicine to survive the wave. Of course, the medicine came from the Medical Gift Pack he chose when he reached level 8.

They were confident that they could handle the horde of Zombies that would attack them.

Anyway, since this was only their tenth day in the Fiend Continent, the Zombie Wave shouldn't be too exaggerated, or it would be too imbalanced.

Nonetheless, although the time for the Zombie Wave arrived, the day for the next inhabitant to arrive had also come!

Chapter 33: New Member

Anna could no longer recall how long had passed after she entered the gray fog.

She wasn't getting hungry or getting tired inside the fog, and it even felt like she was in a trance for a long time. She had been wandering alone for several days, with only her dog as her companion.

She had lost her family, her friends, and her home to the zombies. At this time, she was simply trying to survive, one day at a time.

Her dog, Lucky, was a border collie with black and white fur and brown eyes. He was loyal, smart, and brave dog, and he had saved her life many times by alerting her of zombies, finding food and water, and fighting off attackers.

Lucky seemed to have weakened after entering the gray fog, but fortunately, before it could get any worse, something unexpected happened.

She heard a mysterious message from the Lord of the Realms about the Foreign Survivors, and soon, she was out of the fog!

'Foreign Survivors, huh... I guess it's not bad working for them...' Anna thought to herself after hearing the mysterious voice...

Furthermore, her Unique Skill wasn't even compatible with combat, so it was better to find a shelter with strong fighters if she wanted to survive.

Since she was finally out of the gray fog, she had decided to look for the shelter, hoping to find some safety and comfort.

"Lucky... Did you notice someone else's scent? Make sure they're not from zombies, okay?" Anna said to the dog that was already wagging its tail.

It seemed that he had found some other Survivors!

She then allowed the dog to lead her elsewhere.

During this time, she had avoided zombies and other dangers, and kept her dog close to her.

Soon, she found traces of light coming from a distance... There were also silhouettes of small buildings around the place, so it seemed that she really found a shelter!

As she got closer, she realized that one part of the area had a fence around it. To be exact, the fenced area covered five small houses not too far from the ruined manor and church.

The fence was made of metal bars and wire. It had some traps around it, such as spikes and nets.

She had approached the shelter cautiously, looking for any signs of life. She didn't want to make unnecessary noise as it may attract zombies instead of people.

Soon, she saw two men, probably father and son, coming out of the shelter. She only had a dull knife as her weapon and she didn't even bother taking it out as she held Lucky's leash tightly.

"It's a girl and a dog this time, huh..."

They didn't look too surprised about her arrival, and they even seemed to be expecting her!

"You're not followed by Zombies, are you?" The handsome man in his early twenties asked after seeing her.

His black hair and eyes made her nervous a little after being gazed at. He was also fully equipped with his leather jacket and pants, which seemed to be made of the highest quality materials.

Furthermore, he had a hatchet and a revolver on his belt, which made him look strong and confident.

"I'm not being followed... At the very least, not that I know of..." Anna replied.

"Right... I'm Anna, and this is Lucky." She said, pointing to her dog.

Shane looked at the two with interest since he hadn't expected such a pair to arrive in his shelter.

Anna had black hair and blue eyes, which was quite mesmerizing. She wore a simple sweater and pants and was only carrying a backpack and a knife on her waist.

Although she didn't look injured, she looked tired and weary.

"What are you doing here? I mean, how did you get here?" Harper asked. He was also fully equipped like Shane. He wore a Hunter Jacket and rugged pants. He also had a pickaxe and a dagger on his belt...

"I'm looking for a place to stay, someone with a Foreign Survivor. Is this the right place?" She asked.

Shane wasn't surprised by this question and nodded.

"Yes, this is my shelter and I'm what you call a Foreign Survivor. I'm Shane, and this is Harper. You're right on time... We are preparing for the Zombie Wave, it's special event that will test our skills and survival. We are willing to share our shelter with you, as long as you follow our rules and contribute to our small community." Shane said.

"Really? You would let me stay here?" She asked, feeling hopeful.

"Of course. We are not selfish or cruel. We are here to help each other. As long as you are not a troublemaker or a freeloader, you are welcome here." Shane said.

"Thank you! I will work hard. Right, you must be curious about my skills. I will show you my Survivor Skills. Lucky, you do the same..." She said, feeling grateful.

[ First Aid Skill Lv10 ( Max ): A Basic Survivor Skill that allows the user to heal themselves or others with simple medical supplies, such as bandages, antiseptics, or painkillers. It grants the following benefits:

+10% healing effectiveness with medical supplies

+10% chance to cure minor infections or poisons with medical supplies

+10% speed of applying medical supplies ]

[ Herbalism Lv10 ( Max ): An Advanced Survivor Skill that allows the user to heal themselves or others with natural remedies, such as herbs, plants, or mushrooms. It grants the following benefits:

+20% healing effectiveness with natural remedies

+20% chance to cure major infections or poisons with natural remedies+20% speed of gathering and preparing natural remedies ]

These two were Anna's Survivor Skill, and they were definitely useful! He actually found a healer!

However, what surprised Shane the most was the fact that the dog also had a Survivor Skill!

[ Tracking Lv10 ( Max ): A Basic Survivor Skill that allows the user to follow the tracks and signs of animals, zombies, or other survivors. It grants the following benefits:

+10% chance to find tracks or signs

+10% speed of following tracks or signs

+10% accuracy of identifying tracks or signs ]

"Awesome..." Shane whispered, but he immediately recalled to check the time.

"We still have two hours before the Zombie Wave starts. You two must be hungry. Get inside and have a meal first..."

Chapter 34: The Store

Shane was not surprised that Anna decided to join their shelter since this was the effect of his Title. Furthermore, he knew she wouldn't just betray them since everyone who was brought here by the system would have more than 75 loyalty points if not 100.

Unless he became a tyrant or stopped feeding them, they wouldn't have any reason to betray him.

After some time, Anna asked about the Zombie Wave that was coming in two hours. Shane explained this to her, and although she felt a bit nervous about this, she didn't think of leaving the shelter.

"I'm not sure if I came at the right time... I might just be a hindrance." Anna said as she realized her skills won't help in the upcoming Zombie Wave.

"Don't worry about that... You will still be helpful. You can have this baseball bat... I mean, nail bat. This isn't ordinary and it can smash zombie's head really well." Shane said as he handed over the nail bat.

Before waiting for her reply, he quickly added.

"Foreign Survivors like me have access to a certain store... This store only has limited items and will only be available for 24 hours before the items will change to different ones. If there is something you need, let me know since I'll consider buying them if I see them appear in the store. This nail bat is one of them, and I have already upgraded it. You can check its description."

"Ohhh.. I will use it well. Right, if you see some female clothes being sold, please buy it for me. I will pay you... I have three zombie cores here with me." Anna said before checking the description of the Nail Bat.

[ Nail Bat ( Rare ): A crude but effective weapon that can deal serious damage and knockback to low-tier zombies. It is a wooden bat with nails sticking out of it, and has a good balance and weight. It can kill Crawler and Walker Zombies with a single hit on their head and can also cause bleeding damage to zombies. It is also useful for breaking or smashing things.

Effects: +10% damage against Crawler, Walker, and Runner Zombies ]

After checking it, she realized that it was indeed a good item. It was a Rare Grade item and could surely smash a zombie's head.

"This looks good... I'll go practice swinging outside." Anna said, but she also didn't forget to take out the wooden plates and utensils to wash.

"Let me take care of the dishes. Go ahead and practice outside..." Harper immediately said as he took the dishes from Anna. During the past few days, Shane had already carved out several utensils and other simple things using his upgraded pocket knife that he got from the Survival Tool Gift Pack.

He made a total of five wooden plates and five pairs of spoons and forks.

'I guess I should make a bowl for Lucky later...' Shane thought as he looked at Anna.

Seeing that Anna was quite happy with the Nail Bat, Shane also remembered to check the Survivor Store. Even if he doesn't find a woman's clothing, he might get something that could help him in the upcoming Zombie Wave.

[ Special Spicy Instant Noodles: A quick and tasty food that can restore health and energy to the user. It is a pack of noodles with a spicy sauce and can be cooked with water and heat. It can heal the user by a moderate amount, and can also boost the user's speed and damage for a short time. Its smell can also be used as a nice distraction from certain zombies with a strong sense of smell.

Price: 2 Zombie Cores

Quantity: 10 ]

[ Rope : A versatile and handy item that can be used for various purposes. It is a 10-meter long and strong rope, and can be tied, cut, or burned. It can be used by the user to climb, swing, trap, or bind things. It is also useful for crafting or survival purposes.

Price: 2 Zombie Cores

Quantity: 10 ]

[ Single Size Bed: A basic and comfortable bed that can provide rest and comfort for the user. It is a small and cozy bed, and has a mattress, a pillow, and a blanket for free! It can be used by the user to sleep with a good bed quality, and to store some items under or over it. It also provides some resistance to noise and cold, reducing the disturbance and increasing the recovery when asleep.

Price: 15 Zombie Cores

Quantity: 1 ]

These three items weren't new to Shane. They had already appeared a couple of days ago and as a matter of fact, he had already purchased 5 Special Spicy Instant Noodles, and he planned to cook them later. Well, the effectiveness of the noodles can only last for 6 hours, and the duration of the Zombie was 12 hours.

He certainly can't waste that time, so he thought of eating them by at least 15 or 10 minutes before the Zombie Wave.

As for the rope and bed, he had already obtained several ropes during their exploration around the area, and he even received one in the Survival Tool Gift Packs. The bed, on the other hand, is some sort of luxury that he'd probably purchase once he survives this Zombie Wave.

Anyway, the other three items being sold were Zombie Detector, Tier 1 Hunter Pants, and Tier 1 Hunter Shoes. The Zombie Detector was something he didn't need even if it was upgraded, but the Hunter Pants and Shoes caught his interest.

After all, if he gave up his Hunter Gloves, Harper would have a complete Hunter Set.

[ Tier 1 Hunter Pants: A flexible and breathable pants that protect the lower body from zombie bites and scratches. It is made of cotton and reinforced with leather, and has several pockets and loops for carrying items. It also reduces the chance of being detected by low-tier zombies.

Price: 10 Zombie Cores

Quantity: 1 ]

[ Tier 1 Hunter Shoes (Rare): A light and sturdy shoes that protect the feet from zombie bites and scratches. They are made of rubber and reinforced with metal. It also reduces the chance of being detected by low-tier zombies.

Price: 10 Zombie Cores

Quantity: 1 ]

Without hesitation, Shane purchased the items and upgraded them with his Item Upgrade Crystals.

Well, since he could only upgrade the items he got from the system, he wouldn't miss this out for sure.

Chapter 35: Zombie Wave

After purchasing these items, Shane opened his status to see his current attributes and inventory.

Survivor Name: Shane Wells

Title: A.I. Rebellion's Chosen One, Fairy Realm's Lone Survivor

Level: 9

Vitality: 140/140

Spirit: 635/635

Strength: 23

Agility: 23

Luck: 10

Perception: 10

Inventory: Memory Spherex24, 28 Item Upgrade Crystals, 14 Zombie Cores, 100L Water, 25 Bread, 1 Experience Potion, 1 Acid Pouch

Survivor Skills: Firearm Mastery, Fishing

Survivor Talent: Complete Loot ( Legendary Talent ), Otherworldly Mechanic ( Legendary Talent ), Territory Lord ( Legendary Talent )

It appears that reaching level 10 was not easy. It felt as if it was one of the biggest hurdles in the early stages of the Apocalypse.

In any case, he was hoping that this Zombie Wave would give him enough experience points to level up. That way, he could get more Memory Spheres and possibly learn more Survivor Skills.

Shane then checked the number of bullets he had and confirmed that he only had five more rounds.

Up until now, the Survivor Store hasn't sold any ammunition for his revolver. It was pretty disappointing, but he didn't dwell on it too much.

Instead, he checked the Reputation Store, which was unlocked after reaching level 9. Like what the name implies, this store only sold things that could be purchased by Reputation Points.

These items are very rare and valuable and require high reputation points.

[ Reputation Store ]

[ Dog: A loyal and friendly animal companion that can assist, protect, or comfort the Survivor. It can also hunt, track, or fetch items. You will get a random dog breed once purchased.

Price: 5 RP ]

[ Drone: A small and remote-controlled flying device that can scout, spy, or attack zombies or enemies. It can also carry items weighing not more than 1kg. It has a camera to record and transmit video and audio, and an arm to carry items. It includes a headset and controller.

Price: 15 RP ]

[ Tattoo: A permanent and artistic mark on the Survivor's skin that can impress or intimidate others. It has 100% chance of unlocking new Survivor Skills. The tattoo's design will depend on the unlocked Survivor Skill. ]

Price: 20 RP ]

[ Reputation Points: 1 ]

Unfortunately, Shane still lacked some Reputation Points, so he couldn't purchase anything in the store. Well, he guessed that he could only get Reputation Points from killing Leader-Type Zombies since that was where he got his first point.

"Sir Shane, I'm considering giving the helmet to Anna for added protection. I believe she needs it more," Harper's voice suddenly rang out, reaching Shane inside the tent.

Shane quickly closed his Reputation Store and replied.

"Go ahead... I'm also thinking of doing that. We need our healer to be well protected." Shane said as he agreed to Harper's suggestion.

After some time, Shane cooked the Special Spicy Instant Noodles he had been saving for this Zombie Wave...

All three of them ate one, costing a total of 6 Zombie Cores. This was probably the most expensive food they'd had until now. Nevertheless, it boosted their speed and damage, so it was worth the price!

Then, as the countdown reached the 3-hour mark, Shane drank the experience potion.

[ You have consumed the Experience Potion. ]

Shane smiled after seeing this. This potion will double his experience gain!

At the same time, an announcement appeared to all the remaining Survivors.

[ Greetings, Survivors. ]

[ The first Zombie Wave has begun. ]

[ From now on, you will face a relentless onslaught of Zombies that will try to kill you for 12 hours. You will have to use all your skills and resources to survive. Remember, you can use everything you have to survive the Zombie Wave ]

[ You can also earn rewards by completing hidden achievements during the Zombie Wave. ]

[ Good luck, and stay alive. ]

As the announcement disappeared, Shane's gaze swept over the misty area outside the shelter.

To his surprise, dozens of Crawler Zombies, their missing legs leaving behind a trail of decay, were gradually encroaching upon their temporary haven.

It was quite weaker than he expected. However, it seemed justifiable considering that this will be a 12-hour run.

Nevertheless, Anna still felt a bit scared as she held her nail bat tight. The eerie sight sent shivers down her spine.

Of course, it wasn't over yet.

On the left side of their shelter, a more menacing threat loomed.

A total of 20 Walker Zombies, their decaying flesh hanging from skeletal frames, advanced with an unsettling uniformity.

Their hollow eye sockets seemed to fixate on the shelter with an unyielding hunger, exuding an aura of malevolence that made Anna's blood run cold.

"So this is the Zombie Wave... It's a good thing that there weren't any Runner Zombies." Anna muttered.

"They'll probably appear once we kill all these mobs." Harper commented as he readied his weapons, a pickaxe and a spear made out of metal pipes, and his sharpened dagger.

The Crawlers, with their twisted, elongated limbs and tattered clothing, moved with an unsettling rhythm, emitting guttural moans that echoed through the misty forest.

Their presence was a haunting reminder of the horrors that had befallen the world.

To be honest, even Shane felt a bit scared just from the sounds they were making.

In stark contrast, the Walkers' relentless advance was accompanied by the sickening sound of bones grinding against each other, followed by the occasional growl that reverberated through the air.

As he looked at them, he could see their sunken, lifeless eyes seemed to harbor an insatiable hunger...

"Anna, Harper, ready your weapons. It's about to get intense..."

As the two groups of Zombies converged on their shelter, a sense of impending doom permeated the air, and Shane knew that the battle for survival had only just begun.
