

God level 201

Chapter 201: Bloodrose Studio's Revenge_2

The beauties in the studio whispered, "What's that scumbag so smug about? Brother Tianhao will take him down!"

"Don't underestimate him. This scumbag completed the National War mission and is strutting around Elorin like a tyrant."

"Then we must take him down!"

"Brother Tianhao, you got this!"

At this moment, Zhou Qing clenched his fists, gritting his teeth and staring at the big screen with eyes full of frost!

...

Even though Da Fei was marching towards the arena with bravado, he started feeling nervous inside.

Da Fei was fired up earlier. The opponents had come in numbers, and he hadn't looked closely. Now, Da Fei realized this guy had a Vice Hero too, masked, wearing a cloak, stepping on a Black Light hero aura. Race unknown, hero profession unknown! What hidden profession hero is this? The outfit looks like an assassin? Capable of Stealth and invisibility? My God-level Reconnaissance Skill should be able to spot him, right?

But even if I spot him, I still need to win, right? Vice Hero Alicia might not be able to hold her own either.

Not to mention the opponent's equipment advantage, totally outclassing mine. I only have a Spider Demon Armor worth mentioning; the rest is a mix of pirate leather armor. Reconnaissance Skill can only see the big equipment worn on the opponent, can't see the small items in the support slot, but they must be good too. Anyway, my double-job attribute point advantage is definitely offset by this top-tier set, especially since I'm still a newcomer without 20 attribute points for not switching jobs.

This tycoon isn't simple! Damn, anyone who has managed to become the husband of a lady in a big studio isn't simple.

The more Da Fei thought, the worse he felt about the situation! Am I, the number one in the China Region, going to lose? He's leveraging fame and beauties to rise up! Such self-sacrificing good deeds, I'd rather die than do.

What to do? I still have 10 Skill Points, use them up? On what? Only on Attack Defense Skill. The problem is his equipment is too good. Even maxing out Attack Defense Skill might not help. Luck Skill? I have a Misfortune Hourglass! As long as I can create an 8, 9, 10-point luck gap, combining Alicia's high-speed running with long-range shooting, I can take him down guerrilla style!

Exactly! Even though Alicia's skills aren't reliable, she's at least a ranger, the profession most fit for PK, focused on speed. Plus, I have a U.S. high-class Speed Cloak that can further boost her speed.

In any case, Luck Skill is definitely useful. Da Fei no longer hesitated and pulled out the Skill Book! Golden lights flashed continuously!

—System Prompt: You spent 4 Skill Points and advanced your Luck Skill to Master Level!

The golden light flashes from Da Fei immediately drew boos from the surrounding players.

The Rose Knight sneered, "Trash knows fear, huh? If you're scared, you don't have to go there. No one is stopping you here."

Da Fei said defiantly, "I know your equipment is good, so I'll let you know I have many Skill Points too, don't envy me! I'm just a legend."

The Rose Knight laughed heartily, "A legendary pile of crap. No matter how you add points, you're going to lose!"

Da Fei suffered no loss, “You don’t even match up to a pile of crap.”

The Rose Knight replied coldly, “We’ll see!”

Da Fei felt even more uncertain inside. Could this tycoon have a Divine Artifact? The entire Beauty Studio is behind him! What beauty supports me? Only her, right? Da Fei couldn’t help but cast his gaze at Alicia beside him, looking around without the slightest tension. Ah, compared to real-life beauties, NPCs, no matter how good, are ultimately just inflatable dolls.

Da Fei asked quietly, “Later, I’m going to duel with this guy who has an assassin. Can you handle this assassin?”

Alicia laughed, “That’s not an assassin, alright!”

Damn it! Whatever it is! But since you know what it is, does that mean you’re confident? Da Fei eagerly asked, “Are you confident?”

Alicia laughed heartily, “Not confident!”

—Ah poof! Da Fei almost spat a mouthful of blood on her face!

They reached the arena. The entire city was like a festival, countless players gathered from all directions. Damn, I know you’re not here to cheer for me. Humph, whatever. If I lose, I’ll say it’s because his equipment is better! I can also say I let him win, I still have two Vice Heroes not on the field! Yeah, I let him win!

The Rose Knight said with a smile, “The room’s set up, come on in!”

The scene changed, Da Fei and the Rose Knight appeared in the center of an Ancient Roman Arena, then around in the splendid stands, countless white lights flashed like a frenzy of flashbulbs. Needless to say, players from across the city all entered to watch. The city’s grand promotion quickly attracted game media reporters, all journalists eagerly crossing the Teleportation Array, rushing to the Saint Paul Arena.

At this moment, both people in the arena tacitly didn't rush to fight. Hmm, waiting for more spectators to arrive.

For the Rose Knight, just as Da Fei thought, it was a perfect opportunity to rise by stepping on a celebrity and win over beauties. But for Da Fei, "the reigning champion," whether win or lose, it was a chance to further increase his notoriety—after all, his reputation was already terrible; he might as well go for even more fame.

Finally, amid the cheers of the crowd, the thoroughly enjoying Rose Knight formally requested a duel.

—Arena Battle Report: The Rose Knight VS Da Fei's match officially begins!.

The cheers were thunderous. Damn it, damn it, the scene is so massive, it's making me nervous! Come on, I don't believe you can take me down!

In an instant, the Rose Knight's assassin Vice Hero moved, black light flashed in his hand, and a black mist enveloped over Da Fei and Alicia's heads, Da Fei's vision suddenly went black!

—System Prompt: You are affected by the Shadow Blinding Magic, you are in a blind and vision-loss state!

—System Prompt: Your Vice Hero Alicia is affected by the Shadow Blinding Magic, in a blind and vision-loss state!

The entire arena was in an uproar, Da Fei was shocked! You've got to be kidding! Blinding! And a complete blinding for all! One simple magic just nullified my God-level Reconnaissance Skill! No wonder he was so confidently sure of beating me!

I'm going to lose! Damn it! My long reputation!

In his ear came the Rose Knight's loud laughter, "Run! You can still run, right? Come on, audience friends, let's watch this Da Fei like a headless chicken running around looking for shit!"

The whole arena burst into laughter.

Da Fei was furious! Fine, fine, I'll admit defeat this time! Even if I lose, I'll lose with dignity, I'll stand still and wait for you to come kill!

At that moment, two swift swoosh sounds reached Da Fei's ears! The sound of shooting arrows! Da Fei was suddenly startled, how are they shooting while blinded?

—System Prompt: Your Vice Hero Alicia launched “Double Shot” at the Rose Knight's Vice Hero, causing -67, -30 damage.

—System Prompt: Your Vice Hero Alicia killed the Rose Knight's Vice Hero!

The whole arena was in an uproar!

Da Fei was ecstatic, blind shooting? Instant kill! Damn, the little girl actually has this special skill? She didn't, right? How did she do it? Haha, hahaha!

(Something came up tonight unexpectedly, sorry for the delay) (To be continued. If you like this work, please go to Qidian (NovelBin.net) to vote for recommendations and monthly tickets. Your support is my greatest motivation. Mobile users, please read at m.NovelBin.net.)

Chapter 202: Anlicia's Little Tricks

“The sudden collapse of the Rose Knight's vice hero shocked the entire audience.

In the arena's spectator mode, the actions and spells of the duelists appeared as battle report information in the audience's info panel.

When the Rose Knight's vice hero cast Blinding Magic, the whole crowd erupted in shock! Normally, Blinding is Master-level Dark Magic, a realm hard for ordinary players to reach. But this Shadow Blinding Magic was not recorded in any Magic Book—was it a personal skill of the vice hero? Or did the vice hero truly reach Master-level capability?

If the Blinding Magic was used this early, the Rose Knight really would be the king of the arena!

Amid the shocked voices of the crowd, the screams of the beauties behind the scenes of Bloodrose Studio, and the loud laughter of the Rose Knight ridiculing Da Fei, the vice hero of the Rose Knight became a dark shadow, silently and swiftly moving behind the blinded Anlicia.

Yes, the assassin's cruel and effective one-hit kill skill, throat slit!

And just as the assassin slowed slightly to turn, the Female Ranger suddenly pivoted—whoosh! whoosh! A Double Shot!

At such close range, at such a strange timing, and with such an unexpected sneak attack, the assassin hero didn't have time to adjust his body, didn't even have time to react; he just watched wide-eyed as an arrow whistled toward him—hitting square in the chest!

The whole audience exploded! No Dispel or Purification was performed, and the Blinding effect hadn't vanished; how was this Ranger able to counterattack so precisely? Blind shooting? At that moment, all the players and Da Fei had the same thought! But could there be a Blind Shooting skill in this game? Impossible!

The most shocked of all was, without doubt, the Rose Knight, whose laughter came to an abrupt halt!

"How could this be? Why did this happen?" At this moment, staring at the Female Ranger readying another arrow to finish him, all he could do was charge through the firepower and try to slash her! If he could rush forward!

—Arena Battle Report: Da Fei's vice hero launched "Double Shot" at the Rose Knight, dealing -25, -28 damage!

The crowd screamed!

And Da Fei finally recovered from his shock. Though he didn't know what exactly happened, Anlicia must've had a hidden skill to counter Blinding! Of course, it might have conditions or limitations, so what Da Fei needed to do now was mock and taunt to draw aggro.

Da Fei laughed wildly, "Hey hey hey! You lost without me taking a move or a step? You're worse than a piece of shit, even worse than a fart, aren't you? You can't be this weak, can you?"

The whole audience burst into laughter!

The Rose Knight was so furious that his veins bulged, wanting to immediately turn and slash this bastard, but he knew this was the opponent's trick, so he stayed the course and continued rushing toward the Ranger.

Whoosh! Whoosh! Another two arrows!

—Arena Battle Report: Da Fei's vice hero launched "Double Shot" at the Rose Knight, dealing -26, -29 damage!

The crowd boiled with excitement! Da Fei's heart skipped a beat; even with a hundred health points gone, he wasn't dead yet? As expected of a tycoon with high defense and thick blood! No matter, beaten to this extent, even if Anlicia lost, Da Fei could still engage with a bayonet to finish off his low-health opponent. So Da Fei calmed down, stood with hands behind his back, and exuded the demeanor of a cool expert.

Rangers were the best-suited profession for PK, with every high-level Ranger originating from the third-tier unit Jungle Hunter—they had such sharp firepower that it could overturn human understanding. In large-scale battlefields, any all-melee squad encountering the enemy's Jungle Hunter Unit would find themselves defeated and overrun!

Therefore, in small-scale battles, the Elf Clan's position as the PK king was hard to shake. Of course, even then, they were powerless against the Universe-defying Undead. The Undead's first-level troops were Skeleton Archers with a built-in special skill: Hollow Skeleton, reducing ranged damage by 50 percent. It was a losing trade the Elf Clan couldn't afford.

In sum, every spectator shared Da Fei's thought: even if the Rose Knight decapitated the Ranger, it was futile. After all, there was no Healing Hero available.

He got in close! With gritted teeth, the Rose Knight took out a big red bottle and drank it down in one gulp.

—Arena Battle Report: The Rose Knight used a Super Healing Potion, restoring all Life Value!

Aagh!

Da Fei, unable to maintain his calm, exclaimed, and the whole crowd booed! Damn, drinking a blood bottle in PK, and a big one costing thousands of Gold Coins each, truly a real tycoon!

And then the Female Ranger moved! Her high-speed move quickly widened the gap between her and the Rose Knight, and then she turned and shot an arrow back!

The audience became fanatical again! Normally, a Ranger kite-flying a melee opponent isn't much to watch, but the point of interest is that she's still in a blind state! How was she hitting without missing?

Now, the outcome was decided, without suspense. Da Fei's hanging heart finally settled, and now it was his turn to flaunt his superiority!

Da Fei sighed long and said, "I thought anyone daring to challenge me must have some skills, but with standards like this, you're just joking with me. How busy must I be to waste time with an idiot like you?"

His words sent the audience into uproarious laughter.

And just at that moment, a rainbow light fittingly appeared above Anlicia's head, oh yeah, luck was triggered! It felt as if Da Fei could control luck any time he wanted, ha ha ha!

–Arena Battle Report: Da Fei’s vice hero triggered a luck effect, launched “Double Shot” at the Rose Knight, dealing -60, -60 damage! The Rose Knight was defeated!

–Arena Battle Report: The match ended, Da Fei won the match.

The whole crowd booed. Perhaps due to dissatisfaction with Da Fei’s victory or perhaps as a mockery of the Rose Knight’s incompetence.

Yes, as an expert, one must have the demeanor of an expert; I represent the image of the China Region, and this battle will surely be studied by foreign experts, yes? Take your time analyzing, even I don’t know what happened, let alone you.

Da Fei waved to the audience, “Sorry for wasting everyone’s time; everyone, carry on with your own stuff.”

Then, not looking back at the Rose Knight on the ground once, Da Fei left the arena. Yes, the ultimate form of disdain is ignoring, trying to step on me? I will die laughing at you, ha ha ha!

Bloodrose Studio was dead silent.

Mr. Lin had been pursuing the studio’s leader not just for a day or two, flaunting every possible skill, currying favor, and giving gifts to the beauties in the studio, winning their favor. If it had been the ordinary beauties in the studio, their hearts would surely have fallen.

His strength in the game was also something everyone acknowledged—strong and very strong! Even when placed on the world stage of professionals, he was not to be underestimated. But now, he lost—lost in a way so inexplicable, lost in such a humiliating manner.

The studio’s leader, Zhou Qing, coldly said, “What are you all dazed for? Get to work!”

In no time, the group of women were coughing awkwardly and returned to their places. However, they were still doing small actions in private, taking the opportunity to send their comforting messages to Mr.

Lin. Although for some reason, the leader wasn't interested in him, the ordinary beauties had long secretly promised their hearts. When else to make a move if not now?

Of course, they didn't know that their comforting messages, in the extremely angry and unwilling eyes of the Rose Knight, became a form of sympathy and pity, only adding fuel to the fire, making the Rose Knight's anger burn a hundred times stronger: "Da Fei! You damned trash! I swear if I don't crush you, I'm not named Lin!!!"

...

As soon as he got outside, Da Fei couldn't wait to probe Anlicia's true strength.

Da Fei chuckled and asked, "How were you able to counterattack while blinded just now?"

Anlicia snorted, raising her chin high, "Hmph, not telling you!"

Petulant! Da Fei smirked, "Hmph, just a little trick. No need to say it."

Anlicia glared and said, "A little trick can counter a big skill—that's good enough. Didn't your God-level Skills easily fall apart with one blind attack?"

Hey hey, what's all this "you" and "your," call me Captain! Could it really be a little trick? Da Fei became even more curious, "Okay, I won't ask."

But Anlicia did lean close and whispered in Da Fei's ear smugly, "I'll tell you, I placed two Little Honeys on them ahead of time! No matter if they go invisible, get blinded, release fog, or use Illusion Techniques, I can pinpoint their positions!" With that, she proudly unveiled her palm, revealing two Demon Bees buzzing around.

Da Fei's eyes widened in surprise, "This is a Divine Skill, isn't it?"

Anlicia smiled even more triumphantly, “Ice Fruit! One bee breaks all illusions! My grandma used to trick me with illusion techniques, but I broke them easily with a little bee! So, I never studied those magics again, they have no depth—” As she spoke, Anlicia’s expression suddenly darkened.

Da Fei coughed lightly and said, “You can’t devalue other people’s magic just because you can easily break it; your grandma had good intentions.”

Anlicia, eyes red, sighed, “Sadly, I was so ignorant back then. . .”

Da Fei quickly patted her back to comfort her, “It’s okay, you’ve still got me, we’ll learn together and improve together. . .”

Anlicia nodded, “I will definitely develop my own skills! I won’t let grandma down!”

Da Fei nodded, “Of course, of course!” Grandma up in Heaven, please rest assured, Anlicia’s back feels so nice to touch! Ha ha ha!

. . .

Under the gaze of players all over town, Da Fei swaggered towards Navy Headquarters to receive his Military Rank. A friend notification chimed, naturally, it was Invincible Soldier, ever the flatterer.

“Brother Fei, awesome! Brother Fei, mighty!”

Ha ha ha! Even the little ones knew! But seriously, can you flatter properly? Da Fei snapped, “Squashing a clown is no great victory; it’s a waste of my time! You all should focus on grinding Reputation Points. Don’t waste time and energy on trivial matters, understand?”

Da Bing hurriedly replied, “Brother Fei is right, I know I was wrong, we are working on on gaining Reputation Points!”

Satisfied, Da Fei said, “I need to sail out once, which might take a long time; when I’m back, I’ll check your progress, and if it’s not done, you’ll all be cutting off JJ!”

“Yes, yes, Brother Fei, rest assured!”

Ha ha ha! How pleasurable! Why did I feel so delighted? Is stomping on others the source of true happiness? No wonder many enjoy stepping on others so much; this isn’t good morally—it’s an illness that needs curing, ha ha ha! (To be continued. If you like this work, feel free to vote for it at Qidian (NovelBin.net), and your support is my greatest motivation. Mobile users, please read at m.NovelBin.net.)

Chapter 203: Preparations Before Traveling

Navy Headquarters, it was still the same overweight officer, but his attitude was completely different now. He respectfully presented the new Military Rank insignia to Da Fei, with a beaming smile saying, “Your Excellency truly is the pride of our Alliance, I look forward to you making even greater contributions in a higher position!”

—System Prompt: You have received the Alliance Lieutenant Military Rank insignia, your Command Power +300. Note: Military Rank Command Power is a fixed value and is not affected by treasures or skills.

Getting promoted is ultimately a good thing, Da Fei didn’t dwell on the past, and he chuckled, “I still have to thank the officer for his strict admonishments back then!”

The overweight officer laughed even more brightly: “Ordinary military training couldn’t bring out your abilities, I have high hopes for you.”

This fatty sure talks a lot, well, it’s necessary, going through Makar’s apprenticeship test has indeed changed my status. Since his intention to ingratiate himself is clear, I might as well test him.

Da Fei inquired, “Does the officer know what to pay attention to when stationed at Fire Dragon Island?”

“Fire Dragon Island?” The fat man paused, and then immediately spread out the map on the table, his finger tracing northward to begin searching. Damn it, searching for what? Failing geography, that’s a negative review!

Generally speaking, the terrain of the Hero Continent in various parts of the world bears a slight resemblance to the real-world map of Europe and Asia.

The Human-ruled Lionheart Empire occupies the “Central Europe” surrounded by mountains, also known as the “Middle-earth” often featured in fantasy works, backed by the sea, surrounded by mountains on three sides, with a vast expanse of fertile pastoral scenery in the middle.

North of the mountain range at the border of the Lionheart Empire lies a vast forest, which is the territory of the Elf Kingdom, roughly corresponding to the location of Poland and Germany. Meanwhile, on the overseas Mainland, there is the territory of the high elves, located similar to England in Europe, always playing the role of a secluded utopia.

North of the forests of the Elf Kingdom are the vast snowy mountains, rich in various minerals, the territory of the dwarfs, much like Northern Europe.

The vast steppes in the “Eastern Europe” region are the territory of the Beastmen. Of course, there are primordial forests, but even the Beastmen themselves dare not enter those. The Undead’s location is much like the Turkish Peninsula in Europe on the bottom right, separated by a mountain from the Human Empire, constantly in fierce battle. The maritime operations of the Undead are also developed, since many of the Undead were skillful sailors when alive. As for the Hell Race, as mentioned earlier, they do not hold territories in the Hero Continent, playing a different game.

Then, across the sea, akin to Africa, lies a vast desert and barbaric land, which is the territory of the Mage Academy. The mages are keen on alchemy and creation; they are atheists because they believe themselves to be gods. This barbaric land has become the “nuclear” testing ground for the mages, a monster breeding field. This is where players level up after reaching level 50.

This roughly outlines the geopolitical landscape of the Hero Continent. In short, the Bright Alliance occupies the rich “Europe,” and the suffering Beastmen and Undead are greatly dissatisfied.

.....

Now, the fat officer's finger stopped on a map at a location corresponding to Iceland up north: "This here is Fire Dragon Island! It takes a month to sail here from the Elf Kingdom!"

A month! Three days in real time! A round trip is a week! Da Fei is devastated! There's no way around it, until the players' territories are built, sailing is the most profitable industry in the early to mid-game. But the most profitable comes with the most frustrating limits, sailing is destined to be boring and lengthy. But no matter, a lot of players will turn to piracy during the public test, making sailing more interesting and lively, just more frustrating. But no worries, with Catherine's Master-level Navigation Skill along with being a naval family, it should relieve a lot.

The overweight officer sighed, "Fire Dragon Island is the legendary place where the Evil Dragon is sealed. Although we have never seen it, the Alliance still has a battalion of a thousand troops stationed there all year round. It's very cold here, with a 10-month Ice Sealing Period each year, and it's hard for supplies to reach by sea, so life is very tough for the soldiers stationed on the island. But departing this season is just right, so if Your Excellency could provide them with some urgently needed supplies, they will be very grateful."

Anlicia, who was by the side, also couldn't help sighing, "They have it tough."

The overweight officer laughed heartily, "Well, that's the duty of a soldier!"

Da Fei's eyebrows twitch! Extra supplies urgently needed? Wait a minute! Does that mean they need more than just Healing Medicine? Think about it, a bunch of soldiers, squatting in the freezing cold every day, unable to watch TV or go online, how would you survive?

Holy crap! I should enrich the spiritual and entertainment life of the soldiers! All sorts of tasty and fun stuff should all be brought to them!

Right, as a pro, one should dig deeper into the limited mission information available! Did I struggle for a month in the game just to earn that bit of fixed salary from the task commission? Ridiculous! I want to maximize the benefits of the task!

To confirm his thoughts, Da Fei hurriedly asked, "May I ask, sir, what else do the soldiers on the island need? How much is needed in total?"

The chubby officer laughed and said, "That's hard to say clearly, you know, being soldiers, they mostly drink, play cards, play chess, and those with a bit more culture read books. As for the quantity, a thousand-man group, neither too much nor too little, just give whatever you feel like."

So that's it! It means I need to buy entertainment supplies!

Da Fei said excitedly, "Is there anything else I need to be aware of? Please don't hesitate to instruct me, sir."

The chubby officer sighed, "Of course, the journey is very dangerous. The North Sea hosts many mythological-era monsters, you must be careful to avoid them, especially the Sea Demons, encountering them would mean doom. Other than that, there's not much else to say, you can go ask the local fishermen."

Da Fei tensed up inside, truly a S-level task! Totally a trap!

The chubby officer smiled, "Alright, I need to go and inspect the troops now, I wish you a smooth journey!"

Da Fei hurriedly said, "Thank you for your guidance, sir."

...

Now that I've inquired all I could, it's time to return to Elorin to purchase supplies in large quantities.

But there are still two problems, my ship only has 300 holds! It can't really carry much at all. Second, how can I ensure a smooth arrival? Do I really trust my luck and strength to drive a little boat straight into danger like an idiot? That kind of person really isn't cut out for great things!

For a moment, Da Fei fell into deep thought.

If, it were not a game, but a real-life situation where failure is not an option, what would I do?

Probably nine out of ten people would tell you, subcontract the work! That's right! This embodies the deeply ingrained Chinese contractor spirit, a concept that reflects the unique wisdom of the Chinese people, and has created the "Chinese speed" on the world's toughest job sites that astonishes foreigners!

If you can't do it yourself, leave it to someone who can!

Elorin is a big seaport, right? There must be navigators in Elorin, right? Even if there are no navigators or they are not at home because they are at sea, there must be many "local fishermen" in Elorin, right? I should be able to find people willing to go to Fire Dragon Island with me, right?

Exactly, the cargo I can't transport by myself, I'll call them to help transport! The monsters I can't beat, I'll call them to help fight! And to achieve this, one must rely on power! I don't have power, but the mayor does! (To be continued. If you like this work, please come to Qidian (NovelBin.net) to cast your recommendation vote, monthly ticket. Your support is my greatest motivation. Mobile users please visit m.NovelBin.net to read.)

Chapter 204: Moon God Night

When Da Fei was still at the Navy Headquarters talking to the portly officer, the sensational video of his arena battle had already been posted online, instantly attracting numerous clicks and eyeballs.

Da Fei, the scammer of the national service, a celebrity of the National War, his every move began to attract the attention of players and the media. Why is he still a rookie? Why does he have so many female heroes? Why is he so strong? Did his ship really sink? Everything about him was so mysterious and so intriguing. And many veteran players also commented that years ago, there was also a person named Da Fei in the online gaming circle, could it be the same person?

At this moment, inside Makar's Magic Study Room.

A female player clad in silver armor and standing upon a golden Knight Aura quietly waited for Makar to craft equipment for her. Her name was Moon God Night. She was the player who had a fleeting connection with Da Fei amidst the sea of people.

Indeed, Moon God Night was of a high caliber; on the surface, she was a human Female Knight, but actually, she was a vampire—a dual-class!

At this moment, she was also scrolling through the forums to pass time, and naturally, she watched Da Fei's video on the forum, which made her mood turn very sour.

Da Fei, a name she deeply loathed and despised.

Several years ago in China, there was a relatively small Dragon Ascension Game Company, which put all its efforts into developing a follow-up game called "Empire". They even spent a lot of money to hire the then biggest Dragon Slayer Guild from China for publicity.

If everything had gone as planned, even if the game's market prospects wouldn't have been sensational, it would have still been manageable. But then, a person named Da Fei appeared in the game, and both "Empire" and "Dragon Slayer" turned into jokes of the industry.

Dragon Slayer Guild didn't mind, they could fall and rise again. But Dragon Ascension Company couldn't; after falling, they were kicked while down by competitors who poached their staff, and they never rose again. The boss of Dragon Ascension, exhausted by the ordeal, died in the hospital after a chronic illness flared up, sold the company to invest in real estate, and never regained the ambition to rise again, living an early life filled with mundanity and leisure, like keeping birds and practicing Tai Chi.

And Moon God Night was the daughter of the boss of Dragon Ascension. That year, she was 22 years old, just having graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, ready to inherit her father's business and showcase her talent, but then this disaster struck! The sudden blow inflicted deep wounds on her fragile, proud spirit. Since then, Moon God Night relied on her father's investments in real estate, becoming a landlady, a bored woman perpetually feasting and idly playing games online.

She was talented, but her skills were useless.

She was proud and refused to live under someone's hold.

She was beautiful, but admired only by herself.

She was aloof and disdainful towards men.

She was solitary, keeping away from friends.

She had a dark psyche, longing for chaos in the world.

She had a twisted soul, cynically observing the world's grief.

She was paranoid, seeing through the conspiracies of the world.

She was almost thirty, neglecting sleep for games!

No, she certainly wasn't just playing games! Unhappy with the idle life of a landlady, no—it wasn't just dissatisfaction, it was hatred! She also vehemently disagreed with her father's suggestion to shift her focus towards real estate.

Technology! Only technology is the driving force of human progress, not real estate!

When war erupts, real estate is meant to be destroyed!

When comets strike the Earth, real estate is meant to be destroyed!

When Godzilla invades Earth, real estate is meant for destruction!

When aliens invade Earth, real estate is meant for destruction!

Real estate is the root of a decaying society! It is the soil where despair breeds, the original sin! She would never side with real estate, although her current worry-free life is completely due to real estate.

She wants to make a difference! She wants to realize her own value! That is to slay gods! To slay the gods in Heroic Creation Era!

Well, here is the thing.

Heroic Creation Era is a game where the United States provides the core technology, developed in partnership with multiple countries for civilian use from military technologies, with the purpose of earning money together.

So, do you believe that the United States would really be so kind as not to embed some hacker programs in the game to steal secrets from users worldwide? The belief that the United States continues to control the world is unyielding, and their intent to destroy us never dies, at least the cynical Moon God Night doesn't believe so. In fact, during her studies in the United States, Moon God Night also participated in some script writing as a volunteer assistant, but she didn't know exactly what these scripts were for. Now looking back, those must have been part of the pre-production for Heroic Creation Era!

Why so? If it was military technology, students could not participate. Since students were involved, why not openly declare it? Such a mystery must involve a conspiracy!

In any case, Moon God Night neurotically believes that the hacker program is deeply hidden in the game, and it exists in the form of a super BOSS, which very likely is the god of the New World! This god would stealthily steal information from users worldwide.

Moon God Night's goal is to kill, or more precisely, "capture" this god! Because this god is none other than the operational core of Heroic Creation Era! Yes, even though this game was developed in partnership with multiple countries, the core technology is still firmly in the hands of the United States.

What does it mean to acquire the highest core technology of the United States? Going forward, it can be sold to the country to fulfill the dream of a strong China. Retreating, one could start their own knockoff company. The implications are profound!

So, how to steal it?

Moon God Night uses game helmets available on the market, modifies them, and implants hacking codes, then connects to the game consoles sold by Dragon Ascension Company. Once the timing is right, she can use the powerful computing power of the Dragon Ascension console to infiltrate—in a nutshell, what players can understand as her creating a very high-end, low-profile luxurious plug-in with profound implications!

This plug-in can only be used once!

What if it fails? If it fails, then it fails, just keep playing, keep being a landlord, and when in a good mood, just casually marry a billionaire who is tall, rich, and handsome.

Actually, Moon God Night really enjoys her current gaming life, because this game is truly more interesting than any previous game. Even if her father's Dragon Ascension Company does not go bankrupt, it would still fail in front of this game.

...

Demon Light flashes, and Makar appears again. Finally, it's done! Moon God Night feels a surge of spirit.

— System Prompt: You have received the repaired "Netherworld Ring"!

— Netherworld Ring: S-level strategic treasure, quest item. Enemy Morale -1, Enemy Speed reduced by 1%.

He strokes his beard satisfactorily: "You did very well, what you need to do now is continue to kill more Undead, absorb more souls, so this ring will gradually return to its full state."

Moon God Night indifferently asks, "Can you tell me where the Netherworld Wand is?"

Makar shakes his head, “No, that would alarm related forces. Right now, you are not the most outstanding hero; there’s much you need to work on, you may leave now.”

“Tch!” Moon God Night has a vague guess who the most outstanding hero is, and leaves the hall without turning her head back. (To be continued. If you like this work, you are welcome to vote for it on NovelBin.net, your support is my greatest motivation. Mobile users please visit m.NovelBin.net to read.)

Chapter 205: Group Outing to Sea

Elorin City Hall.

Da Fei requested to see Mayor Auseliman to state his purpose, “Sir, our Chamber of Commerce has received the first commission from Duke Markar. If we succeed, it will be a great start; so not only can we not fail, but we also have to do better! Our Chamber of Commerce is an established company in Elorin, urgently needing your full support during this revival stage, so I can only ask for your assistance.”

Auseliman let out a small sound of acknowledgment, “You mean you hope I will dispatch a naval escort?”

Is there really such a favor? Da Fei eagerly said, “If that’s the case, even better! If the navy’s cargo hold is large enough to carry some goods for me, that would be ideal!”

Auseliman shook his head, “That’s impossible! Unless your mission commission involves significant national security interests, the military will not be dispatched, and you can refer to the Chamber’s commission level requirement for this.”

So there really isn’t such a favor. In other words, only under an Epic Mission context with an SS-level commission is it possible to deploy NPC troops, right?

Auseliman continued, “Moreover, the Dragon Cavalry Chamber’s reputation is too low to have a mercenary fleet escort, and of course, you don’t have the money to hire a mercenary fleet, so I’m truly unable to help. You should believe in your own abilities.”

The official route really doesn't work. Da Fei quickly replied, "Then, can you help me find someone who is willing to accompany me? I'm hoping there's a navigator or experienced fisherman in town willing to go with me."

Auseliman chuckled, "Fire Dragon Island is a very dangerous place. As the mayor, I don't have the authority to send citizens into danger. I'll give you the addresses of two people; you go visit them yourself to see if you can persuade them. Of course, don't say I gave you the addresses."

— System Prompt: You obtained information about Navigator Coltner.

— System Prompt: You obtained information about Whale Hunter Spielberg.

Indeed, Elorin has a navigator! Speaking of which, didn't I need to interact with other navigators to learn new skills?

Da Fei eagerly responded, "Thank you, sir. Do you know what these two are interested in so I can prepare a meeting gift?"

Auseliman shook his head, smiling, "Their interests are of course navigating and whaling! I'll give you a hint: near Fire Dragon Island, there are very fierce narwhals, and their tusks are extremely valuable; however, Spielberg can't handle this alone. If you promise to help, he might be willing to take a gamble. Alright, I have a meeting, wish you a safe journey!"

Da Fei quickly replied, "Thank you, sir."

Ah, the mayor could only help me this much. In the end, a game is just a game.

...

Da Fei left the city hall and first headed to the dock where Whale Hunter Spielberg was located. Along the way, the way players looked at Da Fei had changed again. Needless to say, after the big fight in Saint Paul, I surprised quite a few people. Yes, a big ship bullies, and people refuse. Only arena duels are the weapon of truly convincing people with virtue!

Da Fei's communicator buzzed. A look revealed it was Invincible Soldier: "Brother Fei, we're busy boosting our reputation and can't come to pick you up!"

Yes, nice! Sure, flattery one must know how to use it, but first, things must be done; Da Fei replied satisfied, "Keep up the good work!"

"Got it, Brother Fei!"

Da Fei found Spielberg's whaling ship in the fishing port's loading dock. My word! Its size was not inferior to my Flying! Yes, small and medium ships are courting death if they dare to go whaling. The whaling ship is designed for whales, and its cargo hold is definitely spacious, loaded up with goods would be lucrative.

However, someone who runs a big ship must be like me — cool, dazzling, arrogant, unyielding; probably not easy to talk to. They do big deals not something money alone can persuade, especially since I don't have much money. What to do?

Da Fei stood staring at the whaling ship, contemplating a strategy when a harpoon cannon at the bow of the ship caught his eye! Da Fei's brows jumped!

This fish cannon is basically a crossbow cannon, right? The difference is that it shoots a harpoon tied with a rope!

Damn! This can be classified as a Special Crossbow Cannon, right? And whales are sea monsters, isn't this fish cannon a sea monster nemesis? The crucial point is that its mount is very modern, at the bow of the ship! Unlike the Flying's old-fashioned sailing ship, where the cannons are at the side — launching an attack requires side position, which is extremely inconvenient! This is the unique strength of a whaling ship!

At the sight of new ships and new cannons, as a high-end player, Da Fei inevitably let his imagination run wild. In any case, by any means necessary, I must fool him into joining the trip, then find a way to cultivate a good relationship, acquire the new ship and new cannon!

Under a sailor's guidance, Da Fei found a bearded, burly man — Spielberg — drinking in a tavern, who was a human NPC.

"Looking for me?" Spielberg looked at him with bleary, indifferent eyes, showing no trace of delight at meeting a fellow countryman in a foreign land.

Da Fei came straight to the point, "Indeed, I have long admired you as a local celebrity, and I wanted to invite you to come with me to Fire Dragon Island; I am sure you'll be interested in the narwhals there."

Spielberg coldly smirked, "I'm interested, but why should I go with you?"

Da Fei quickly replied, "I can help you hunt whales; I imagine you will need assistance."

Spielberg disdainfully said, "Kid, what do you have to help me with?"

Hey, hey, hey, I am a victorious warrior back from a triumphant journey! Let's show you the real deal!

Da Fei took out a Skill Book of War Machine Science, "I am a Master-level in War Machine Science, able to operate two crossbow cannons simultaneously!" After speaking, he waved the book, its golden light flashing!

— System Prompt: You spent one Skill Point learning the sub-skill "Mechanical Reinforcement" of the Grandmaster War Machine Science.

— Mechanical Reinforcement: Enhances a war machine stationed position. Prerequisite: Master-level War Machine Science.

Spielberg was indeed taken aback, "You're already proficient in Master-level Crossbow Cannon at such a young age!"

Oh? Crossbow Cannon is indeed the hardest Grandmaster to master, right? Da Fei laughed, "Although the power is still not as strong as yours, I am confident I am much stronger than ordinary gunners, more than capable of a temp job in your gun cabin. Moreover, I have God-level Reconnaissance Skill, able to assist you in easily locating targets!”

“God-level Reconnaissance Skill!” Spielberg widened his eyes in shock!

“Right!” Da Fei suddenly remembered something, taking out a blueprint for a new telescope over crossbow cannon, which was a system reward after successfully training a banshee: “Maybe I can also help you improve your fish cannon to make it more accurate for whaling!”

In fact, the so-called new crossbow cannon was just a regular crossbow cannon with an additional telescope as an assembly part; of course, it would only be recognized by the system with the blueprint. Da Fei’s aim in proposing fish cannon improvements was certainly to see if he could seize the opportunity to get the fish cannon manufacturing method.

Spielberg suddenly stood up, patted Da Fei’s shoulder, and laughed heartily, “Indeed, you are the recent talk of the town and are truly capable. Now tell me, what do you need help with?”

Oh yeah! Halfway there! Da Fei laughed, “Very simple, I want to borrow your large cabin to transport goods to Fire Dragon Island!”

Spielberg laughed heartily, “No problem, it’s an empty cabin when we depart anyway, just fill it up for you! Let’s hurry and set off; Fire Dragon Island has just been unlocked, we’ll miss out if we’re late.”

Oh yeah! Everything is resolved! Having secured the first person, the second is sure to follow!

Da Fei chuckled, “Thank you, sir. To ensure safe travel, I also want to invite Navigator Coltnar of this city; could you join me in inviting him?” Haha, having an additional heavyweight companion will significantly reduce the difficulty of the invitation!

Spielberg laughed heartily, “Let’s go, I’d like to meet him too — let’s all go together.”

Da Fei sighed with emotions; after all, meeting a fellow countryman in a foreign land is ultimately fulfilling. Once acquainted, they're actually quite good to talk to. Damn, they must be reasonable! Who am I? Markar's darling, even the fat officer cozies up to me!

...

Da Fei and company found Coltner's house outside the city, a luxurious manor. Damn, navigators truly are wealthy!

Guided by a servant, a thin elf elder met us, "I am Coltner, are you the famous Mr. Da Fei from the city?"

Oh my, even fame has spread outside the city! Da Fei laughed, "That's me, pleasure to meet a senior!"

Coltner smiled, "It's been hundreds of years, and the Alliance has not seen such a young and talented person as you. I really admire you, and hope this small insight of mine can be of help to you."

— System Prompt: Navigator Coltner has given you "Skill Insights of Wave Resistance"! Spend one Skill Point to learn Wave Resistance.

— Wave Resistance: A Navigator's sub-skill, a skilled navigator can not only reduce the damage of huge waves to the ship but also utilize the power of the swell to further increase the ship's speed.

Damn, I got a skill! This is what communication between navigators should be like! Decided, every place I go, I have to tap my connections to find the local navigators!

Da Fei was overjoyed, "Thank you, senior!"

Coltner shook his head with a smile, "I understand your purpose, but I'm old and can't go to sea!"

"Huh?" Da Fei couldn't help but be stunned.

Coltner continued to smile, "But I have an impolite request. Can you take my grandson on a voyage? He is a novice. Although I wish to teach hands-on, alas, I'm already too old."

He has a grandson! Not a granddaughter? Damn, not a party ship, right? I need a ship, not an extra mouth to feed! Da Fei clears his throat, "By the way, do they have a large ship?"

Coltner bitterly smiled, "For such a dangerous place, a large ship is necessary to compensate for his lack of technique."

Da Fei was overjoyed, "Good, good! As long as there's a large ship!" As expected of a ship's second generation, the starting point is different. No, a ship's third generation, wahaha!

— System Prompt: You accepted the task "Training Apprentice Navigator Little Coltner"! You received Coltner's support of 10,000 Gold Coins.

— Task Prompt: Train Little Coltner to become a formal navigator, and Little Coltner must not be killed. Note: If the task fails, your reputation in Elorin will drop to "Untrustworthy"!

Ah, pft! Apprentice Navigator! Damn, wealth doesn't last three generations, saddling me with a burden! Fine! After all, this trip is also to train Anlicia; considering the elder's 10,000 Gold Coins, I'll buy one, get one free, train them all. I was worried I wouldn't have enough cargo for the ships I was saying.