Chapter 300: Forging an Army of Millions

At this moment, the points Aurek had accumulated became clear.

The total Emperor Points reached a staggering 476 billion!

To upgrade the titan to the next tier, 410 billion Emperor Points were required!

Aurek hesitated for not even a second.

With a thought, his vast spiritual domain expanded.

After gathering the required Emperor Points, he first upgraded the titan rank.

[Emperor's Scepter upgraded to Level 13, capable of nurturing 51,200 Level 13 titans daily]

[Next upgrade requires 1.6 trillion Emperor Points]

[Note: A Level 13 titan has the strength equivalent to a Level 4 Divine Cleric.]

Divine Cleric rank titan!

Every investment was absolutely worth it!

51,200 Level 13 titans meant that the empire would produce 51,200 Divine Cleric rank war giants every day!

And it would be a continuous daily production!

Forget about 410 billion Emperor Points; even if the cost were ten or a hundred times greater, it would still be worth it.

Aurek's heart surged with excitement. This joy exceeded all words.

With this, Crossbridge Empire now truly possessed a solid foundation, standing tall at the pinnacle of the world!

The remaining 66 billion Emperor Points were invested into enhancing other attribute legions.

The elemental assassin was upgraded to Level 12, capable of nurturing 25,600 assassins daily, with strength equivalent to a Level 5 God Fire, and unlocking the new skill [Light and Shadow Intertwined].

The void warlock was upgraded to Level 11, capable of nurturing 12,800 warlocks daily, with strength equivalent to a Level 7 Divine Envoy.

The Mountain Shieldbearer was upgraded to Level 12, capable of nurturing 25,600 shieldbearers daily, with strength equivalent to a Level 5 God Fire, and unlocking the powerful defensive skill [Sanctuary Bastion].

The Life Sorcerer was upgraded to Level 11, capable of nurturing 12,800 sorcerers daily, and unlocking the high-level skill [Divine Creation].

Except for the Doomsday Warrior, all core attribute legions had been upgraded.

The Mountain Shieldbearer, as the future defense backbone, received special emphasis.

The Elemental Assassin, due to its unparalleled reconnaissance and infiltration abilities, was seen as an indispensable force for exploring foreign domains, also receiving special attention.

Currently, the Elemental Assassin and Mountain Shieldbearer were at Level 12 God Fire rank, while the Doomsday Warrior, Life Sorcerer, and void warlock were at Level 11.

Aurek had originally considered prioritizing the void warlock, with its powerful space-based skills such as Void Cage and Transdimensional Leap.

But the Emperor Points required for the upgrade far exceeded the other legions, so it had to be temporarily set aside.

Now, the empire could produce more than 140,000 attribute legions daily!

"185 billion Emperor Points should be enough to upgrade the Emperor's Scepter two or three times," Aurek mused, calming his thoughts as he focused on his Emperor Points reserves.

[Emperor Points are sufficient. Do you wish to upgrade the Emperor's Scepter?]

The fifth upgrade required 1.2 million Emperor Points, the sixth 30 million, the seventh 800 million, and the eighth reached 22 billion.

Each upgrade's cost grew exponentially.

With 185 billion Emperor Points in hand, Aurek decisively proceeded with two upgrades.

The core of the Emperor's Scepter emitted two new beams of light!

As the light dispersed, two divine statues of goddesses appeared in mid-air.

One wore a crown of ice crystals and held a scepter of cold ice, her expression cold yet noble.

Her pose reminded one of the elves from Frostvale but with even greater divine majesty!

The other statue was athletic, with long pointed ears, golden curly hair, and deep, ocean-like blue eyes.

She bore a quiver and held a divine bow that emanated a natural aura.

[Note: Level 1 Elven Marksman can nurture 10 Elven Marksmen daily. This legion excels in archery, and as their level increases, their arrows' power and piercing ability become terrifying...]

Ranged Archers?

Elemental Controllers?

After carefully reviewing the descriptions of the two new legions, a sharp light flashed in Aurek's eyes.

Frostbound Warlocks could freeze everything and, in the future, at high levels, could reach the realm of absolute zero!

They could easily imprison or even annihilate enemies.

Elven Marksmen specialized in long-range sniping, with arrows capable of guiding metal and killing forces.

They would become an unparalleled nightmare for ranged combat on the battlefield.

If their levels were raised sufficiently, they could even track the life imprints and soul origins of their enemies, crossing boundless space to execute precise assassinations!

After understanding their potential, Aurek immediately invested the remaining Emperor Points and quickly raised the two new legions to Level 11.

Frostbound Warlocks could nurture 12,800 per day, unlocking [Extreme Cold Seal], [Eternal Freeze Death Domain], [Frost Storm], and other skills, with strength equivalent to a Level 6 Divine Envoy.

Elven Marksmen could nurture 12,800 per day, unlocking [Wind Arrow], [Piercing Arrow], [Thousand Worlds Tracking Arrow], and other skills, with strength also equivalent to a Level 6 Divine Envoy.

Now, the empire possessed eight major attribute legions, each with extraordinary traits and powerful skills.

Aurek was filled with anticipation for their performance on the battlefield.

He teleported to the Royal Military District.

To facilitate management, the barracks were strictly divided by legion and level.

One of the key reasons for the expansion of Eryndor City was to accommodate the ever-growing legions.

Aurek spread his vast domain, nurturing the Elven Marksmen and Frostbound Warlocks.

The two new legions were all tall, with long legs and delicate forms.

They wore light armor made of silver and leather, carried quivers on their backs, and wielded spiritual bows.

Their fair skin and deep blue eyes exuded an exotic flavor, blending the elegance of the elven race with the agility of warriors.

The Frostbound Warlocks wore ice crystal armor, their cold and noble aura resembling ice and snow goddesses walking among mortals.

"Greetings, my lord!"

The newly-formed warriors bowed to Aurek in reverence.

Aurek stood high above. The empire now possessed three female-centric legions.

He continued to nurture other legions, and in a single day, the empire added over 170,000 warriors above the Divine Envoy rank!

Such military power, if spread throughout the continent, would surely cause tremors across the world!

More importantly, the titans had been upgraded to Level 13, meaning the empire now instantly possessed over 50,000 Divine Cleric rank giants!

Such a terrifying number!

"The passage in Godfall Gorge must be utilized as soon as possible," Aurek thought.

Sweeping across Eura continent was no longer a difficult task, but the looming threat from the god realm always remained.

Though Divine Cleric rank warriors were strong, without sufficient Emperor Points, the upgrading of legions would eventually come to a halt.

Though the gate to the god realm was nowhere to be found, the passage in the gorge was real.

This sparked a bold idea in his mind.

He no longer lacked Divine Cleric rank warriors but sought stronger beings of higher ranks!

After properly settling the newly-formed Frostbound Warlocks and Elven Marksmen, Aurek returned to the Imperial Palace and issued a decree.

Soon, the entire realm was shaken.
