Chapter 355: Return to the Eura Homeland

Firmament Sage!

This name represented the power of the Temple of Truth, and they were not unfamiliar with it.

However, they hadn't expected the Four-Winged Demon race to be able to summon such a great figure.

Indeed, the Four-Winged Demon race had deep roots!

To think that they could even summon Firmament Sage, this war's outcome no longer held much suspense.

After all, the name Firmament Sage was also highly renowned in the Abyss Demon Realm.

He had once fought alone against three Semi-God Kings of the Demonwing Empire's War Academy, severely wounding one of them.

Moreover, he had defended against God King-level attacks with his Hand of the Firmament and Codex of the Firmament without losing ground.

He and Hankley, the Great Demon Emperor, were from the same master, both inheritors of the Star Sage lineage.

That existence had personally trained the four Demon Emperors of the Temple of Truth, holding an exalted position.

Even figures like Ganseng, Barris, Fett, and Osinger could only respectfully bow in his presence.

"Looks like we really are just here to watch the excitement," Ganseng sighed exaggeratedly.

The other three shared a knowing smile.

No wonder this war had drawn so much attention; it turned out such a major figure was involved.

Wesley, not daring to be careless with the four great lords, immediately instructed his subordinates to prepare their accommodations.

After this war ended, he would need to rely on them to ask for merit from the Overseer!

"The four great lords from the military department have arrived at the Four-Winged Demon Legion headquarters, and the time for the final attack has been confirmed for Divine Dawn Day," Bone Reaper reported to the Temple Master in the Dark Corruption Temple.

"Divine Dawn Day..."

The skull-shaped figure muttered before giving an order.

"Arrange for more temple followers to join the army on the battlefield. The Dark Corruption Temple has already done a lot for the Four-Winged Demon race. This is a promise they should have fulfilled long ago."

"Understood."

Bone Reaper bowed and retreated.

"Who will Eura Continent ultimately belong to? That is still an unknown!"

The figure on the throne spoke cryptically to himself.

Secondary Demon Realm, near the inter-world passage.

Woots, clad in demonic armor, hid in the void, observing the Four-Winged Demon army patrolling the vicinity of the passage.

Since the last heavy defeat of their legion, the patrols around the passage had increased by several times, becoming much more guarded, with almost no gaps.

Additionally, a high-ranking demon general had been stationed there to prevent anyone from Eura Continent from sneaking in.

But even the tightest defenses had brief moments of changeover between patrols.

After waiting for a long time, Woots finally caught a glimpse of such an opening and immediately signaled to Paineck and the others.

Paineck swiftly led Camiel, Aster, and others as they transformed into a streak of light, charging toward the passage entrance.

However, the ripple in the space still alerted the patrolling soldiers.

"Enemies!"

"Quick, inform everyone!"

A loud shout rang out, and a wave of attacks immediately bombarded the passage entrance.

Several demon generals leaped into the air, delivering their strongest strikes.

Painek waved his hand, setting up a barrier of laws that intercepted all the attacks.

Amid the booming sounds, the light screen remained unwavering.

Now that he had reached the God General realm, the attacks from these demon generals could no longer harm him.

"It's Painek's aura!"

The Darkness Demon Race guards sensed his presence and roared as they charged from the other end of the Demon Realm.

Painek, unwilling to fight, dashed toward the passage and vanished.

"Damn rat, I'll make sure to kill you! Just wait!"

Seeing Painek escape, the commander was furious.

Several times, he wanted to rush into the passage to pursue him, but he could only halt forcefully, glaring angrily at the passage.

"Wait a few more days, until Divine Dawn Day arrives!"

"Even if you run back to Eura Continent... I'll see where you can escape to this time!"

...

Godfall Gorge.

Boom!

With a resounding rumble, several streaks of light shot up from the passage.

Painek, Camiel, Aster, and the others had just stepped out of the passage when they were immediately spotted by Philip and Lucio, who were stationed there.

Painek's mind power, now at the God General level, spread out and covered the entire gorge.

The group looked around.

Although the scenery had changed, they had once fought bloodily here, and the outline of the gorge still felt familiar.

"We're back!"

"This familiar feeling... it's so good!"

Woots felt a surge of excitement and joy in his heart.

At that moment, a terrifying aura descended, instantly freezing their excited emotions.

The group's expressions changed drastically.

"I am Camiel, founder of the Eura Continent's Magic Academy!"

Camiel shouted aloud, announcing his identity.

"I am Aster of the Blood Judgment, returning from the Abyss Demon Realm to help Eura Continent resist foreign enemies!"

Aster also proclaimed his return.

The sound waves echoed throughout the gorge.

At the other end of the gorge, Galenor and eight white-haired guardians suddenly looked up, their mind powers reaching out toward the passage.

They exchanged glances and immediately set off toward the source.

"Galenor?"

Painek quickly sensed the incoming figures.

Galenor followed the sound, and although time had passed, he still remembered these figures as the strong survivors from the battle in the gorge.

"Painek!"

Galenor and the eight guardians bowed to Painek.

They had been stationed here because they had received Painek's orders back then, and they were all from the same origin.

Upon seeing this, the terrifying aura that had been locking onto them disappeared.

Painek frowned slightly.

"This is not the place for a reunion. Please follow me."

Galenor led everyone to a wooden house deep in the gorge.

Inside the stone house, Asmo, the pure-white gentleman Chiusen, the witch Dorothy, and other Divine Cleric-level experts were waiting.

"Greetings, Painek!"

Chiusen bowed with his hand on his chest.

Painek looked at him, a figure from his past emerging in his mind.

"You are the student of Wade?"

"Yes, my name is Chiusen."

"So, Wade's swordsmanship has found a successor."

Painek nodded slightly.

Galenor then introduced Asmo and the others, all of whom were rising stars.

They did not know Painek, Camiel, or Aster.

"Is it true that Eura Continent has been unified by the Crossbridge Empire?"

Aster could not hold back and immediately asked the question in his mind.

Galenor nodded.

"Yes, Divine Dawn Day is approaching, and there will be a unified coronation ceremony. You have arrived just in time."

"Unified coronation!"

Camiel, Woots, and the others were deeply moved upon hearing this.

Such an achievement was truly unprecedented on the Eura Continent.

Receiving the heavens' coronation was only natural.

"Where is the Crossbridge Empire located?"

A Grand Divine Cleric-level expert asked.

"In the Eastern Domain, Fasior Plains."

"Good! Then let's set off immediately and see the coronation ceremony with our own eyes."

The group suppressed their shock, their curiosity about the emperor of Crossbridge Empire overwhelming.

His name had already spread like wildfire throughout the Demon Realm, sparking countless debates.

There were many things they needed to verify themselves, whether they were rumors or facts.

Galenor did not stop them.

The return of these powerful figures was a good thing for the continent.

Philip and Lucio did not make an appearance; their gazes were still fixed on the passage.

The demonic aura surged more and more violently.

"It's getting closer..."

Philip, after some calculations, solemnly said.

"The Demon Realm's attack will happen around Divine Dawn Day..."
