Chapter 367: Luring the Enemy In, Backstabbing

The Kuylan, Destruction, and Destroyer Legions seized the opportunity to launch a counterattack.

Suggwoth stood at the edge of the castle, silently observing the endless frontlines.

"Give the order!" he commanded.

"Cease the attack, and have the entire army retreat in an orderly manner."

He was not afraid of the enemy's resistance, but the frontlines had stretched too far, and the forces had become thin. Continuing to blindly expand the occupied areas without sufficient God General-level reinforcements would easily allow enemy experts to divide and consume them.

Consolidating their forces was the key to maintaining the strongest strike capability.

The foundation of the Dawonru Empire was unfathomable, and now was not the time for an all-out war.

What was needed now was to secure a reliable foothold in the Abyss Demon Realm and stabilize their position. As for the future, they would deal with it when the time came.

Stellan's arrival, leading more than ten True God-level experts, immediately shifted the power balance at the top-tier expert level, exposing a major shortcoming in Crossbridge Empire's forces.

They lacked enough top-tier experts!

Generals like Harry and Tina commanded the army to withdraw.

Cyriel and Covenant Deity were responsible for handling Stellan, the near-God King-level expert, along with the dozen or so True God-level and over twenty God General-level experts.

Painek and Blood Lion Reo also joined the high-level battle.

The four-winged Demon Race finally received reinforcements, and Maurice and others re-entered the battlefield.

After two days of intense fighting, Covenant Deity, with the help of the Doomspear, barely managed to hold off Stellan.

Cyriel and Suggwoth joined forces to hold off Maurice, Sapphire Dominion, and Demonbone Dominion's two True God-level governors, along with more than ten other True God-level experts.

In order to align with Suggwoth's overall strategy, Cyriel chose to fight while retreating.

Attribute warriors retreated swiftly, far ahead of the Kuylan, Destruction, and Destroyer Legions, moving to the edge of the Secondary Demon Realm.

This rapid retreat was designed to make the Dawonru Empire's legions lower their guard during their pursuit, neglecting their rear and flanks.

Over five million Divine Cleric-level Elemental Assassins had already infiltrated the rear and flanks with the progress of the battle.

Millions of Mountain Shieldbearers had established a solid defensive line at the edge of the Secondary Demon Realm.

This line of defense was the cornerstone the Empire must hold!

Stellan had indeed fallen into the trap.

Immersed in the intense battle, he had failed to notice the presence of the Elemental Assassins.

As other attribute warriors retreated, he misjudged Crossbridge Empire's actions as simply consolidating forces to avoid being divided and destroyed.

He immediately ordered the attack to speed up and personally led the experts to the Secondary Demon Realm's defensive line, completely ignoring the control of the rear troops.

At the moment, Cyriel, Covenant Deity, and Suggwoth could only barely hold off Stellan and those True God-level and God General-level experts.

But the true trump cards of the Dawonru Empire had not yet been revealed.

The true God King-level experts had not entered the fray.

For now, the frontlines were at a stalemate.

Meanwhile, in the Demonbone Dominion and Sapphire Dominion regions, the Golden Armor deployment had been completed.

Millions of Divine Cleric-level Elemental Assassins, like invisible reapers, quietly approached the Kuylan, Destruction, and Destroyer Legions.

"Ah—!" A scream suddenly rang out.

A Divine Cleric-level demon general near Hawk was instantly sliced into pieces by an invisible blade.

Hawk's expression darkened.

"Ahh!" Another scream came from another direction, followed by a series of shrill wails.

Hawk stared around in shock.

The Kuylan soldiers, resting, dropped one after another in strange positions.

Even his most trusted first assault unit was slaughtered in a matter of moments!

"There are enemy infiltrators!"

"All troops, stand ready—!!!"

Hawk's magical roar spread across the area.

The pursuing demon generals hastily stopped and formed defensive formations, but this could not stop the Elemental Assassins' strikes.

They locked onto their targets, relentless in their pursuit.

One demon general's throat was slit, and in the next moment, a powerful expert was nailed to the ground.

The entire army was like a startled bird, not knowing from which direction the attack would come.

On the other side, the Destruction Legion was also enduring continuous assassination attempts.

Especially high- and mid-tier demon generals, who were the main targets.

This severely disrupted the command structure and retaliatory capabilities of the army, leaving them completely stalled in the two dominions.

"Lord!"

"The rear forces have been ambushed by hidden enemies, suffering heavy casualties."

A blood-covered messenger demon general rushed to the front line to report to Stellan.

Stellan's mind power swept over the rear two dominions, and his face changed instantly.

"Damn it!"

"We've been deceived!"

A True God-level expert's face turned ashen as he immediately left the frontline and rushed back to the rear, hoping to stabilize the situation.

Stellan furrowed his brows.

He wasn't sure if this was a trap carefully set up by the Empire.

But the rear forces had suffered large-scale, mysterious assassinations, with casualties that were horrifying to behold.

This had already become a serious threat to the stability of the entire battlefield.

He temporarily abandoned the plan to break through the defensive line and prioritized dealing with the rear assassination.

Cyriel, Covenant Deity, and Suggwoth kept an eye on the two dominions.

The previous invasion of the two dominions was meant to turn them into a strategic buffer zone, with the Elemental Assassins deployed there in advance.

Now, these assassins had successfully launched an internal attack on the enemy, effectively tying up Stellan and other top-tier experts.

As long as they dared to leave the two dominions, the Elemental Assassins would launch fierce attacks.

This forced Stellan to halt the full-scale offensive against the Secondary Demon Realm.

However, everyone knew this was just a brief calm before the storm!

In Crossbridge Empire, on the God Mountain.

The coronation ceremony of Emperor Divine Dawn Day had already concluded.

From that moment on, Aurek became the sole ruler of the Eura Continent!

Countless beings across the continent were his subjects, following his laws and fulfilling his will!

He was not just a ruler, but the recognized sovereign of the world.

Wearing the World Crown, he could now partially manipulate the world's rules of the Eura Continent.

On this land, he could tap into some of the world's power.

Coupled with numerous trump cards, even a Sage King-level existence would have to bow before him!

In a sense, his power was already comparable to that of a Sage King.

As long as he ascended to the appropriate rank in the future, he would fully understand the World Crown's origin, which represented the Eura Continent's fundamental rules.

At that point, he would become the true master of this realm!

At the same time, this process would accelerate his control over the Aetherian Sanctuary.

The importance of mastering this divine abode was self-evident!

Whether for resource development or relying on its unparalleled defense, it was crucial.

Now, the war had already begun, and the counterattack into the Abyss Demon Realm was underway as planned.

Seizing a stable foothold in the Demon Realm was a key part of his plan to take the initiative in the war.

However, what still worried him the most were the God General-level and above experts of the Dawonru Empire.

In the face of true power, even large numbers of troops became insignificant ants!

At that moment, the system template reappeared with the following messages:

[Killed a large number of enemy units, gaining Emperor Points: 38 trillion.]

[Our attribute warriors suffered a total of 3.4 million in casualties!]
