Chapter 446: The Hidden Power of the Crossbridge Empire

The remaining bone-clan experts retreated rapidly into the depths of Sablecliff.

Priest Keer tore open the void in an instant and fled back to the royal court's territory in utter disarray.

Amber, too, fled in panic.

They had no idea where that beam of annihilating light had come from.

But they were certain of one thing: even General Bardini—a fifth-tier Divine Oracle whose bones were nearly as hard as an Artifact of Authority—had been shattered to pieces by that single divine beam.

"The Crossbridge Empire still has hidden powerhouses!"

The reclusive Divine Radiants such as the Lord of Sacred Light felt their pupils contract sharply at the sight.

They were certain this beam of destruction had not come from Aurek.

Moreover, the divine light was profoundly mysterious—neither condensed from laws nor born of the world's origin. It appeared with terrifying abruptness.

A Divine Oracle erased in a single strike—the sheer horror of it spoke for itself.

The plan to wipe out the Soul Warlocks had failed completely. The Ossuary Court had no choice but to initiate full defensive protocols, mobilizing the Ossuary Legions to fortify their positions.

Golden Feather Plateau.

The sage's eyes—brimming with boundless wisdom—suddenly sharpened.

Arcane rule-light flowed around him.

All eight apprentices at the Sacred Radiance rank felt overwhelming fear.

For the first time in ages, the sage stepped off the Golden Feather Plateau, his figure appearing within a fortress in Demonfeather.

Yet the countless figures around him seemed utterly unable to see him.

He stood within the city, but existed inside a self-evolved, independent world—cut off from the abyssal demon realm.

Silently, he gazed toward the direction of the former Dawonru Empire, and did not depart again.

The Outer Star Sea.

A sword-light swept across the void, and countless stars were annihilated in an instant.

Drawing upon the origin power of the chaotic star sea, the Ouros Disc forcefully suppressed the supreme killing might of the Gilded Sanctum Blade.

Behind Aurek, the Conqueror's sacred manifestation surged upward by tens of thousands of meters, revealing a supreme avatar of royal authority. He extended a finger.

Endless laws and the world's origin converged in an instant, condensing into a godly beam that split heaven and earth.

The beam absorbed the power of countless stars around it, transforming into a sky-supporting finger.

With that single point, the stars flickered wildly as the attack slammed into the Ouros Disc.

BOOM—!

The star sea exploded!

Devastating energy became a sweeping storm that tore through all directions.

A region spanning trillions of miles of starry sky collapsed instantly, stars ground to dust and hurled into the depths of the cosmos.

This was Godfall Verdict!

It could condense a trace of sage-lord might.

Slaying a Divine Oracle was effortless.

Yet the Ouros Disc was a World Relic—it endured the blow head-on, its core unscathed.

However, the former Speaker Blair, along with Hayden, Briggs, Barclay, and the other Divine Oracles wielding it, were shaken by the terrifying shockwave until their sacred bodies fractured and their minds reeled.

Their dread of Aurek reached an unprecedented height!

Ten Divine Oracles wielding a World Relic—and they still couldn't kill him!

Such combat power was utterly defiant of heaven.

Aurek himself was blasted backward by the residual destructive force.

Black Dragon scales gathered over his body, blocking and dissolving the remaining killing energy.

Seeing the enemy heavily wounded, Aurek silently activated a law he had only just mastered—Mirror Saint Arrival!

A mirror-like shadow split away, countless filaments of laws and origin linking it to him.

The shadow rapidly condensed from nothingness into solid form, becoming a perfect duplicate of Aurek.

The faces of the ten Divine Oracles changed drastically.

No exaggeration—every divine art Aurek wielded possessed world-destroying power!

This avatar carried all of Aurek's divine arts.

Seizing the moment, Aurek's true body employed spatial authority, slipping into the deep firmament. He left the Gilded Sanctum Blade with the avatar.

Silently, he bypassed the Ouros Disc and appeared on the flank of the ten Sacred Envoy powerhouses.

The avatar raised the Gilded Sanctum Blade and charged head-on, clashing directly with the Ouros Disc.

Hayden and the others quickly stabilized themselves, continuing to jointly drive the Ouroos Disc in battle against Aurek's avatar.

At that very instant, Aurek's true body burst forth from the flank!

A terrifying killing threat enveloped the ten Divine Oracles in an instant.

"Not good!"

Briggs's expression changed violently.

Though they had prepared, before an Aurek who fully controlled spatial law, it was still far too crude.

Before the word retreat could be uttered, Aurek swept his sword.

Thousand-Sword Judgment Domain erupted instantly!

Billions of layers of Judgment Sword Domains descended in a blink, enveloping all ten.

The scene—like billions of universes stacked together—filled Barclay and the other Swords of Order, who had witnessed its might before, with terror.

Former Speaker Blair recalled the Ouroos Disc at top speed and smashed it into the Thousand-Sword Judgment Domain.

The colossal disc crashed down, the universe quaking— even the abyssal demon realm shuddered violently.

All eyes were drawn to the collision.

The avatar lifted the Gilded Sanctum Blade and unleashed yet another Thousand-Sword Judgment Domain, instantly sweeping two Divine Oracles into it.

"I am the sovereign of the star-cosmos—

all origins return here!"

"Chaos—here shall sink into eternal stillness!"

Using his Divine Oracle soul as the catalyst, Blair drove the Ourois Disc.

The World Relic's vast might was further unleashed.

The star-sea patterns at the disc's center manifested, forming one real star-sea world after another, spanning the void.

In an instant—

The billions-layered universe-sword worlds of the Thousand-Sword Judgment Domain collided violently with the star-sea worlds evolved by the Ourois Disc.

Three Divine Oracles were dragged into the Thousand-Sword Judgment Domain, struggling in despair, unable to escape.

Aurek's true body and avatar jumped through space simultaneously.

The billions of universe layers of the Judgment Domain collapsed to a single point, burying five Divine Oracles in total!

At the same time, the judgment sword intent—condensed to its utmost—slashed fiercely as Aurek and his avatar struck together, cleaving into the star-sea worlds evolved by the Ourois Disc.

RUMBLE—!

The star-sea worlds shattered.

The Gilded Sanctum Blade and the Ouroos Disc collided head-on!

CLANG—!!!

A thunderous impact, as if it could shatter souls, echoed across the cosmos.

The direct collision of a World Relic and a quasi-World Relic unleashed destructive aftershocks that caused the avatar to collapse and disperse.

The Gilded Sanctum Blade was hurled away by immense force, transforming into a streak of light that pierced heaven and earth as it shot back into the abyssal demon realm.

The Ouroos Disc vibrated violently, shattering layers of space as it too fell toward the demon realm.

PUCHI—!

Blair, Barclay, Hayden, Briggs, and another seventh-tier Divine Oracle Sword of Order were blasted by the shockwaves until their sacred bodies exploded.

Some were left with nothing but a head and a shattered torso, falling helplessly from the outer heavens back into the demon realm.

Aurek frowned slightly.

He had underestimated the might of a World Relic.

So far, he had only slain five Divine Oracles.

And the Council of the Dark Order still had at least three quasi-sage lords presiding!

Though he didn't know why they had yet to act—allowing the Swords of Order to be butchered—judging from the killing power displayed by the Ouros Disc, if those three quasi-sage lords were to drive it with full force, the threat would be immeasurable.

Of course, this was also because Aurek had misjudged the true power of a World Relic.

He reappeared in the skies of the demon realm.

Where the Gilded Sanctum Blade fell—at the border between the Holy Kare Mountains and the Demonwing Empire—a bottomless crater was driven into the land, forcibly splitting the continental plate.

The Ouros Disc, meanwhile, crashed into the ancient mountain range at the edge of Yuli and the Holy Kare Mountains.

A world-shaking tremor followed.

Not only did the demon realm quake violently—even the world barrier showed signs of tearing.

Vast regions of Yuli and the Holy Kare Mountains—lands as large as several Eura Continents combined—instantly collapsed and split apart.

That single impact sent fear through every powerhouse of the demon realm.

If this continued, the abyssal demon realm itself might truly be shattered.
