Chapter 508: The Star-Source Divine Court and the Judgement Divine Court

Eternal Winter Divine Empire — Icecrystal Palace.

After Alvin left, a Divine Oracle powerhouse arrived before White Lady Shirino.

"Your Majesty! The Second Princess has already reached a cooperation agreement with the Crossbridge Empire."

If Sherana were here, she would be shocked to discover that this Divine Oracle was one of her own trusted confidants!

Shirino glanced calmly toward the direction of the God Mountain territory.

"Let her stay there obediently."

"The Crossbridge Empire will soon point its sword at the entire Celestial Light God Realm. If she keeps causing trouble... you all know what to do."

The Divine Oracle hesitated, confused. "Your Majesty, why don't you explain everything to the Second Princess?"

Shirino did not answer.

She had understood Sherana's temperament, her nature, and where her weaknesses lay since childhood. Some matters were not worth wasting breath to explain—better to seize control of the situation directly.

Even if she did explain, her proud and arrogant younger sister would only treat it as empty wind in her ears.

"The flames of war over at the Star Sea will be lit soon as well."

Shirino looked into the depths of the starry sky. Her delicate jade feet tapped lightly atop drifting snowflakes, and her figure floated away into the depths of the Snow Palace.

The Royal Court.

After seizing the Olympian Divine Sword, the Crossbridge Empire now possessed two World Relics, two Proto-World Relics, and had enslaved two quasi-Sage Masters and seven ancient Sage Lords...

With these forces stacked together, the empire now had enough power to confront two Sage Masters head-on!

And with Kaos—Beyoncé's grandfather—standing behind them, the empire effectively held deterrence equal to three Sage Lord-rank beings.

As for the legions of every tier—Sacred Radiance rank, Sage King rank, God King realm, and more—their numbers were so vast they were impossible to count.

The residual national fate of Olympian God Mountain was devoured and fused into the empire. The overall national momentum of the Crossbridge Empire surged to an unprecedented peak.

The Imperial Academy had already dispatched personnel to take over God Mountain's scholarly and inheritance institutions, and began relocating a portion of elite talent from the Eura Continent to settle there.

At the same time, the empire issued a decree:

Any former God Mountain citizen who encounters an imperial citizen must bow respectfully!

This was a decision reached by Josephine after deliberation with the ministers.

Only by completely shattering and then reshaping the former God Mountain citizens' deeply rooted sense of superiority and faith could long-term rule be secured.

This process would inevitably bring pain and resentment in the short term—but in the long run, the benefits outweighed the costs.

After this battle...

Vane, the tower master of Thousandblade Spire, led his people to pledge allegiance to the empire.

Vivien of the Sanctified Heart Garden also chose to submit.

The dragon leader of the Stone Sea unified all dragonkin and sea clans and declared their vassalage.

Forces such as Wolf King Diok of the Chaotic Realm, Bumet, the Green-Eyed Serpent Woman, Nalodebi of the Amethyst Highlands, and Bolink of Swigo Mountain likewise arrived one after another to swear loyalty.

In addition, certain reclusive Divine Oracles and quasi-Sage Lords chose this moment to throw themselves under the empire's banner.

Eura Continent — Supreme Sanctuary.

Aurek glanced at the information panel.

[Emperor Point +2,253 trillion-trillion...]

His Emperor Point reserves had surged dramatically.

This was mainly because those he had killed were all powerhouses above Sage King rank, even including quasi-Sage Masters. The points extracted from them vastly exceeded what could be gained from slaughtering massive ordinary armies.

After breaking through to quasi-Sage Lord rank, Aurek was now launching a full-force assault toward Sage Lord rank!

Olympian God Mountain had been taken. Portions of the Chaotic Realm's territory had also voluntarily merged into the empire's map.

The empire's national momentum exploded upward accordingly. The imperial phantom had fully solidified—its size and might swelling by tens of millions of times—sitting in dominance above the Supreme Sanctuary.

Even the Eura Continent itself was affected. Law-origin overflowed, rules and order manifested, and the world continued to undergo transformation—pushing countless native experts to break through into higher ranks.

Just then—

A transmission crystal arrived from the Eternal Winter Divine Empire.

Shirino's figure appeared. Even as the Empress of a Divine Empire, she still offered Aurek respectful courtesy.

"The Peace Committee is an inspectorate established across the realms by the Star-Source Divine Court. This time, they suffered grievous losses. They will certainly report back to their headquarters in the Star Sea. Your Majesty must prepare in advance!"

Star-Source Divine Court!

Aurek frowned. "This Divine Court rules over this Star Sea?"

Shirino replied, "This Star Sea is known as the Starry Sky of Ten Thousand Races. The Star-Source Divine Court is one of its rulers. Besides it, there is also the Judgement Divine Court, and the Stellar Divine Court."

"However, for certain special reasons, the Stellar Divine Court has already been destroyed."

"Now the two remaining Divine Courts are fighting for the supreme world authority, attempting to break through the inherent shackles that bind Divine-Court-level powers. Thus, as far back as one million years ago, both sides began preparing actively for war."

"Once this war erupts, it will sweep through billions of worlds across this Star Sea. Countless factions will be forced into it."

"Since the Crossbridge Empire has already entered the Celestial Light God Realm and revealed foundations that surpass even a top-tier Divine Empire, it will be unavoidable for you to be dragged into that storm."

Competing for world authority...

In that moment, Aurek finally understood why the Dawonru Empire, the Demonwing Empire, and Olympian God Mountain had all tried to invade the Eura Continent.

The Eura Continent not only possessed an abnormally solid world barrier, it was also relatively closed and independent!

If the two Divine Courts went to war, moving key foundations into the Eura Continent could allow those assets to survive the terrifying aftershocks of the conflict.

After all, what a Divine Court ruled over was countless worlds.

Their war would never be a conflict within a single world. It would be a vast campaign spanning endless territories of the Star Sea—how many worlds would shatter in the process was impossible to estimate.

That was why every faction felt fear.

Not to mention a power on the level of the Dawonru Empire—even Olympian God Mountain would be unimaginably small in the face of such a calamity.

Of course, the current Crossbridge Empire was also small.

A Divine Court ruled over the boundless Star Sea; the Celestial Light God Realm was merely one relatively large world under their jurisdiction.

In terms of sheer national scale, the empire compared to a Divine Court was like a drop in the ocean.

Everyone was desperately trying to avoid being dragged into the war—one misstep, and they would become insignificant cannon fodder!

Yet the Crossbridge Empire had no choice but to step into it.

Only a war of sufficient scale could yield enough Emperor Points and resources.

When that time came, Divine Radiant legions, Divine Oracle legions... perhaps even Sage Master legions could be forged!

The spectacle of hundreds of millions of Sage Master legions marching in unison...

Whether or not the Star Sea itself would be shaken, every living being that faced such a force would taste the most bone-deep despair!

"Has the war already begun?" Aurek asked.

Shirino answered, "It has reached the point of blades drawn and bows bent. It will likely erupt fully very soon."

"On the Celestial Light God Realm side, the Committee is trying to stabilize the situation. They will not let this go."

"The Eternal Winter Divine Empire has already struck deep into the heartland of the Devers Divine Empire, cutting off the connection between regions such as the Primordial Sacred Land and the Cloudcrown Sanctum and the God Mountain territory. This has bought time and space for the empire to consolidate God Mountain territory and the Chaotic Realm."

Aurek was rather satisfied.

From a strategic standpoint, Shirino's moves were meticulous—and she truly stood on the empire's side.

"Also," Shirino added suddenly, mentioning something that seemed unrelated, "my younger sister has already entered your empire. If she has offended Your Majesty in any way, I ask for your forgiveness."

Her figure then dispersed from within the crystal.

Aurek did not spend much thought on it.

But Shirino herself...

He had heard certain stories about her past. The more he learned, the more he felt that her descent upon the Eura Continent back then was anything but simple. What scheme lay behind it?

Otherwise, why would she abandon the throne of the Eternal Winter Divine Empire and hand it over to her sister Sherana?

As for the Peace Committee—

After learning its true background, Aurek knew this matter was far from over.

With Kaos seated in command, he could, for the moment, focus on himself.

After advancing to quasi-Sage Lord rank, he devoted himself completely to studying the supreme divine arts recorded within the Supreme Sanctuary, comprehending the destiny of an emperor, the empire's national momentum, and the laws of imperial authority.

At the same time, he continued consuming vast quantities of Emperor Points—launching relentless assaults toward Sage Lord rank!
