

Gods Daily 564

Chapter 564: Expansion, Annexation, Expedition!

Outside the Celestial Light God Realm.

That primordial world cleaved open by Aurek's single sword strike was slowly revolving within the Star Sea.

The shattered remains of the slain experts of every race, the ancient scions, and the Primordial Giants, together with fragments of world origin, had fused into one under the effects of creation divine arts and the Art of Zephyr-Heaven. They were now completely integrated into that world, becoming part of its fundamental order.

The lifeforms of the Celestial Light God Realm and the entire Eastern Starfield had all flocked here to witness the birth of this miracle.

By taking this opportunity, they could also gain insight into higher-level laws and order—or at least glean some understanding and inspiration.

Below them, the new world's origin had transformed into the purest holy light energy, perfectly fused with rules and order. It was exceptionally suited for transcendent lifeforms to advance within it.

"To this degree... was this really created by His Majesty?"

"Not created—carved out by His Majesty with a single sword strike. The Thunder Clan chief, the Lord of the Elysium Star Realm, those quasi-Empyrean Sanctum experts... all of them were buried inside it."

Some experts from outer regions grew more alarmed the more they heard, and more awestruck the more they looked.

"With one sword strike, he split out a primordial world fit for life to inhabit... this is practically the work of a creator god."

"Even if he isn't one yet, how far off could he possibly be?"

Countless experts looked toward the Celestial Light God Realm, with nothing left in their hearts but awe.

"By the way... can we enter it?"

"I want to know too. This new world is still merging with the Star Sea's origin and is still expanding. It'll definitely produce many rare resources in the future. If we can enter and begin developing it now, we'll have the absolute upper hand after endless ages."

"Exactly..."

As soon as someone raised the topic, many others were tempted.

...

The Cursefont Star God, Suggwoth, and the others led their forces back to the Celestial Light God Realm.

The Lord of the Blazing Eagle, Alvin, Philip, and the War Executor had also returned.

When they passed that primordial world, everyone froze for a moment.

This world was linked to the Celestial Light God Realm, yet it was several times larger—and incomparably stable. It was simply unbelievable.

"This is His Majesty's handiwork."

Lucio spoke from the side, his gaze also resting on that world.

Even now, he still could not forget what he had seen earlier.

Philip's pupils contracted. "Weren't we in the middle of a war? How did this..."

Alvin, the Lord of the Blazing Eagle, and the others all looked toward Lucio.

Lucio slowly recounted how Aurek had slain countless quasi-Empyrean Sanctum experts with a single strike, and with that same strike opened a primordial world.

By the time he finished, everyone was standing there dumbstruck.

An attack... had forcibly opened a world that life could actually inhabit?!

What kind of concept was that?

This was a world where real lifeforms could truly exist—not some temporary illusory universe artificially constructed through powerful means.

Such a terrifying technique was already equivalent to creation itself!

That was a power only a creator should possess.

"What exactly did we miss?"

A Sage Master muttered blankly.

Lucio gave a faint smile. "Let's go. We still have tasks to complete."

No one lingered any longer. They hurried back to the Celestial Light God Realm...

...

The Grand Council Sanctuary.

All ministers were assembled.

A unified and devout voice echoed out from the hall.

Eternal Apollo Sunblaze, Merxis, Suggwoth, and all the others had returned.

Aurek personally sat upon the imperial throne.

That towering, majestic figure was like an immortal God Mountain.

The short physical distance between them felt layered with one heavenly chasm after another, suppressing everyone into utter insignificance.

The Lord of the Blazing Eagle was nearly suffocating. Kneeling there, his whole body trembled faintly, his heart filled with fear and unease.

He even felt a humble sense that he was unworthy of standing in this hall.

As for ancient sage lords like Boid, they did not even dare raise their heads.

Suggwoth and Ares had already stepped into the true Sage Lord rank. With slaughter and vast resources piled upon them, their growth had been astonishingly fast.

Tina, Harry, War Bear, Overthunder, Golden Armor, and Cyriel had also entered the Sage Lord rank.

The rise of Suggwoth and the others made the Lord of the Blazing Eagle and his peers so envious their eyes turned red, yet they could not figure out the reason.

They could only assume it was the brutal warfare and the Empire's resources that had allowed them to advance so rapidly.

Both Eternal Apollo Sunblaze and the Cursefont Star God had stepped into the quasi-Empyrean Sanctum.

In terms of battle power, they had reached a level beyond imagination.

Below the Empyrean Sanctum, they could fight anyone.

"I summoned you back for two matters!"

Aurek's voice carried supreme authority, reverberating through the hall.

All the ministers listened intently.

"First—expand outward!"

"The Empire has already entered the sight of the Star Sea universe. Since that is so, there is no need to remain tucked away in one corner."

"This matter will be handled by Alvin, with Lucio and Philip assisting in the deployment."

The three bowed at the same time. "As you will, Your Majesty."

"Second—expedition!"

Aurek's voice suddenly sharpened.

"I will launch an expedition!"

"Oblivion Originkin, Elysium Star Realm, Godblood Scions... I want every power that participated in this war utterly destroyed."

These two objectives served two purposes.

First, to seize as much territory as possible and prevent these powers from uniting against them.

Second, to obtain Emperor Points and strengthen the Empire's destiny-fortune!

Especially Emperor Points.

He intended to make a push for the Emyrean Sanctum as soon as possible.

Although he had retained 40,000 trillion Emperor Points this time, he worried it still might not be enough.

If he failed to keep pace at the forefront, everything the Empire had built would be lost in vain.

He had to prepare thoroughly.

"The expedition will be commanded by Eternal Apollo Sunblaze, the Cursefont Star God, and Ares!"

"Overthunder and Harry will lead troops. Suggwoth and War Bear will assist Alvin in expanding outward."

"We obey His Majesty's decree!"

Everyone accepted the order at once.

After a moment of thought, Alvin bowed and said,

"Your Majesty, after this battle, the Empire's foundation will inevitably be exposed. The two Divine Courts will never sit idle."

"The Starfont Divine Court and the Reincarnation Divine Court will certainly be brewing a storm aimed at the Empire."

"I suggest that while the imperial armies expand outward, we must also begin constructing defenses as quickly as possible."

He paused, then continued.

"Moreover, the ancient scions who came this time were only a small portion. The true powerhouses are still hidden at the poles of chaos, hidden in the most ancient regions."

"They are watching and waiting. Those fellows pose a far greater threat to the Empire than the two Divine Courts."

"If an Emphyrean Sanctum truly makes a move, the destruction it brings... will be beyond estimation."

Alvin had already simulated matters to that level.

His attainments on the path of fate were extremely deep, and from the perspective of a quasi-Emphyrean Sanctum, he could glimpse a trace of the Emphyrean Sanctum's terror.

He understood very clearly that quasi-Emphyrean Sanctum and Emphyrean Sanctum were not on the same scale at all.

As soon as he said this, everyone in the hall understood the current state of affairs.

What the Empire now faced were the strongest overlords in the entire Star Sea universe!

In a contest among overlords, Emphyrean Sanctums would absolutely take action!

Any being capable of peering into fate was something no one could help but fear.

Aurek had already considered all of this.

That was exactly why he needed enough Emperor Points to strike at the Emphyrean Sanctum.

"I am already prepared for this matter. For now, open up territory first. Only when our lands are vast enough will the Empire have the confidence to withstand every challenge that comes."

He looked at Alvin. "The matter of constructing defenses will also be placed fully under your authority."

"Yes."

Alvin cupped his hands in acknowledgment.

After that, the ministers discussed the expedition for a long time, proposing many different plans.

Eternal Apollo Sunblaze would personally lead the sage lord legion, open world-gates, and begin an expedition into the Star Sea!

Aurek also ordered Eva to lead fifty million Sage Lord-rank Life Sorcerers as a powerful safeguard for the army.

Once state affairs had been arranged, the ministers withdrew.

Aurek was just about to leave.

"Your Majesty."

Angie entered the hall in haste. "Someone outside seeks an audience."

"Mm."

He had long since sensed the person outside the Gold Giant Gate.

A short while later.

An old man in a coarse linen skirt entered the Supreme Sanctuary and prostrated himself on the ground.

"Charlemagne of Sacredwood Settlement, Styx Sector, bows before Your Majesty."

"What is it?"

It was only a soft sentence, yet to the old man it felt like a God Mountain pressing down upon him.

Charlemagne was horrified inwardly, and for the first time truly experienced the terror and grandeur of this emperor!