Chapter 581: The War is About to Erupt

The Dark Keep War God coldly watched the scene unfold.

He threw out the number just to test the resolve of these people. Once the arguing died down, he finally spoke.

"The Reincarnation Divine Court will find a way to invite two Empyrean Sanctum figures, and the elite army will be increased by fifty billion. The Starfont Divine Court must match this."

He looked towards the Eternal Glory God King.

The Eternal Glory God King remained silent for a moment, then nodded.

The two sides had to balance, or else the alliance would never work.

No one was surprised. The forces from each domain could still put together a hundred billion elite troops.

As for the fifth Empyrean Sanctum figure...

The Lord of the Endless River immediately promised that they would bring one out.

Five Empyrean Sanctum figures to kill Aurek!

As long as he dies, once the Emperor falls, those tens of billions of unled troops would have plenty of time to clean up.

Or, they could use two Empyrean Sanctum figures to hold off Aurek, while the other three go down to slaughter the tens of billions of troops...

There were many plans, and plenty of ways to kill the Crossbridge Empire!

The two Divine Courts were quick to move their troops, but other forces had their own agendas, making things much more complicated.

...

Three days later.

The Eastern Starfield, Styx Sector, and several nearby Star Sea regions trembled simultaneously.

Three Origin Artifacts—the Annihilation Spear, the Heart of the Starfield Maintenance, and the Ouroos Disc—fell into the core of Styx Sector and two nearby star domains.

The surrounding Star Sea's primal energy was violently drawn in, forming a massive vortex of energy, creating a triangular stalemate formation.

A thick, oppressive aura soon enveloped these dozen or so star domains, as well as the thousands of worlds inside.

The Star Sea's space became even more stable.

It was as if an invisible force was constantly rebounding and counteracting any potential harm.

Even the Celestial Light God Realm, the Endless Continent, and the Abyss Demon Realm became much more stable.

This was the defense magic array set up by Alvin.

"Using the Star Sea's power and primal energy from these dozen or so star domains as a foundation, even an Empyrean Sanctum's attack can be withstood."

Philip, overseeing the project, felt the flow of the Star Sea's primal energy, his heart shaken.

In the time he spent learning from Alvin, and with Lucio, he had learned a lot.

"This can only protect the Eastern Starfield from being directly shattered, but it won't stop real combat," Lucio said, his brow furrowing as he looked at the Star Sea.

"After Storm Thunder God's death, the outside of the Star Sea suddenly became unnervingly quiet."

Philip also frowned.

This was clearly the calm before the storm!

The murderous intent had already begun to affect the Star Sea's structure, and they could feel it.

A storm was coming, but it was something the Crossbridge Empire had to face for its rise.

In the face of the hyenas' covetous eyes, the Empire would show no sign of weakness!

Victory had to be fought for, and earned.

The only uncertainty was whether the Aetherian Sanctuary was prepared...

Both of them looked towards the Eastern Starfield before turning and flying into the Star Sea, beginning to lay out some killing moves.

Every extra layer of defense was an additional insurance.

...

Aetherian Sanctuary.

Aurek entered the Supreme Sanctuary.

Time had been adjusted, and it was impossible to tell how much time had passed outside from inside.

The Emperor Point continued to burn, while Aurek carefully studied the few drops of holy blood he had taken from Storm Thunder God.

He hoped to uncover some of the secrets of the Emyrean Sanctum.

With the Crusader Goddess present, nothing happening outside would affect his ascension.

This time, he intended to break through to the Emyrean Sanctum in one go!

One month later.

In the Thunder Star Realm's outskirts.

The Eternal Apollo Sunblaze, leading a billion Sage Lord army, stopped at the edge of the Star Sea.

He didn't rush to attack.

The intelligence sent back by the Elemental Assassin showed that the Thunder Star Realm had gathered at least fifty billion elite troops inside.

And their battle power wasn't low, being the main forces of both Divine Courts, with True Sage Masters and potential Empyrean Sanctum figures clustered together.

"To muster such forces, it can't just be the Thunder Warden Clan's own strength," Overthunder said, standing beside Apollo as he gazed at the distant star domain.

"Looks like the intelligence was right. The two Divine Courts have officially entered the fray."

He paused before continuing.

"General, this needs to be reported to the Empire. We're being targeted here, and Cursefont Star God is likely the same. They might be trying to tie us down to prepare for a strike on Aetherian Sanctuary. If that's the case, we need to prepare for a counterattack."

Apollo nodded.

If the two Divine Courts and the various forces of the Star Sea really made a move, their target would definitely be the Eastern Starfield. This information had to be sent back immediately.

As for whether they should attack the Thunder Star Realm...

It would depend on the situation in the Eastern Starfield.

The fifty billion troops quietly gathering here was no coincidence.

...

Deep within the Thunder Star Realm.

Leon stood in the Star Sea, surrounded by a group of people.

Hellshark and the Fire Abyss Demon from the Reincarnation Divine Court.

Dongxing God King and Marquis Stanford from the Starfont Divine Court.

Rod, a potential Emyrean Sanctum expert sent by the Lord of the Endless River.

And more than a dozen other potential Emyrean Sanctum experts from various forces.

They had nearly a hundred potential Emyrean Sanctum figures gathered, and many True Sage Masters as well.

They knew how terrifying the Eternal Sunfire War God's battle power was. This time, they had invested heavily and were specifically coming for him.

"It seems they've noticed," Leon said, frowning.

The Fire Abyss Demon's face, hidden beneath a ghostly mask, betrayed no emotion.

"The Crossbridge Empire has the Elemental Assassin army. It's normal that they've infiltrated already and discovered our intentions."

He paused before continuing, "But it doesn't matter whether they come or not. We just need to keep an eye on these people."

Everyone nodded.

By controlling this ten billion Sage Lord army, they could weaken the forces on the main battlefield of the Eastern Starfield.

Their real target was the Divine Sanctuary behind the Gold Giant Gate, the Emperor named Aurek!

In this month, they had formulated a fairly complete battle plan.

The two Divine Courts were moving quickly. Once their forces were assembled, they would begin the operation.

Their only mission on this front was to eliminate the Eternal Apollo Sunblaze's expeditionary army.

...

On the outskirts of the Elysium Starrealm.

The Fallen Angel Lord and the Starwatcher God-King stood side by side in the Star Sea. Behind them was a fifty billion elite army, with over a hundred potential Emyrean Sanctum figures.

These troops were mostly gathered from various forces, along with the mobilized forces from the two Divine Courts.

They were eyeing the Cursefont Star God's army in the Elysium Starrealm, which was resting and regrouping.

"The Eternal Sunfire War God and Cursefont Star God are the two main pillars of the Crossbridge Empire," Starwatcher God-King said. "The defenders Suggwoth and Ares can fight, but they can't compare to these two!"

"As long as we kill them, it will be like cutting off Aurek's arms."

The Fallen Angel Lord remained silent, his gaze fixed on the depths of the star domain.

Inside the Elysium Starrealm, Cursefont Star God, Ares, and others sensed the movement from outside.

They immediately dispatched someone to report back to the Eastern Starfield.

...

On the outskirts of Styx Sector's defensive line.

Thousands upon thousands of planar gates opened simultaneously.

Millions, even billions, of elite troops poured out from the gates.

The entire starry sky of all races was shaken!

Countless powerful beings quietly approached the edge of the Star Sea, eager to witness this spectacle.

The ancient figures hiding within the Chaos Singularity also began to emerge from their territories.

The Chaos Unicorn hid in the Star Sea, motionless, staring intently.

The elders of the primordial dragons, along with a few potential Emyrean Sanctum figures, observed from afar.

This spectacle was far grander than when they had fought against the Star Divine Court!

Alvin stepped out of his meditation room.

Suggwoth, Ares, Lucio, Philip, and the others had gathered at the defensive line, staring at the countless gate openings outside.

The atmosphere in the Celestial Light God Realm had reached a fever pitch.

One by one, the ministers climbed to the Aetherian Sanctuary and flooded into the Supreme Hall.

They had heard the information that Sophia brought back half a month ago.

But they hadn't expected the enemy to arrive so quickly.

The entire Star Sea universe was now in an uproar.
