

Chapter 1356 The Man In The Mind

Ariadna hurried to gather some materials and crafted a similar mask with Loraine.

Loraine slipped it on and sang a few lines by herself.

As she sang, memories of practicing with her band and winning first place in a music competition flooded back.

As she thought of those moments, her confidence grew, and a smile spread across her face.

But in the next instant, her smile vanished.

She saw a familiar-looking man in the crowd, clapping for her.

Loraine suddenly stopped singing, clutching her head as a sharp pain hit her.

Ariadna rushed to her side, worried, and asked, "What happened? What did you remember?"

Loraine struggled to remember the mysterious man through the pain, but nothing came to her.

Ariadna asked again, "Are you okay?"

Feeling conflicted, Loraine shook her head and said, "It's Feeling conflicted, Loraine shook her head and said, "It's nothing. I feel like I'm getting my groove back on stage, but I'm really exhausted today. I just need some rest."

"Okay, just let me know if you need anything," Ariadna said, not pushing the matter.

Loraine headed back to her room and lay down, her head still throbbing a little.

She didn't want to worry Ariadna with what she saw, but keeping it to herself was frustrating.

Then she spotted Qbot on her phone and decided to share her thoughts. "Qbot, I've been seeing this man in my memories, but I can't remember who he is. Can you help me figure it out?"

Meanwhile, in the executive office, Marco was busy working when his phone buzzed.

It was a message from Vincent: Keely was captured.

Marco grinned with satisfaction and summoned Carl to his office.

"How can I help you, sir?" Carl asked politely.

Marco smiled and said gently, "We can move on to the next step."

Carl was briefly confused but quickly caught on to Marco's implication. He chuckled, "Your plan is perfect. You handled Keely so fast."

Marco was surprised it had gone so smoothly as well. This brought him closer to finally meeting the real Loraine.

He went on, "Stick to the original plan. First, sway public opinion in Eplistan, so the royal family has to spend a fortune on materials to appease people. Then, present the products from Solar Company and Universe Group as a better, more affordable option, leaving them with nothing for their money."

"Got it," Carl responded quickly.

Marco paused for a moment and asked, "Is your girlfriend taking good care of Loraine and winning her trust?"

Carl smiled sheepishly and replied, "Don't worry, Rita has already taken Loraine to a music variety show. I heard Vincent will be there too."

Marco nodded and added, "Just make sure she's really looking after Loraine."

He let Carl leave the room after he was done speaking.

Once the room was quiet, Marco opened a video on his computer.

It was a recording of Loraine's performance on stage, which he had requested.

As Marco watched her singing in a red dress, he couldn't help but recall the times before Loraine lost her memory.

Back then, he would watch her perform on stage from the audience, celebrating her triumphs together.

Tears filled Marco's eyes, blurring his vision as these memories flooded back.

When Loraine finished singing, he wiped away his tears and resolved to protect her at all costs.