

GREED: ALL FOR WHAT?

Chapter 1381 Prospect Of Unity.

They could have also teleported but the Supreme Alliance wanted them to see the immensity of the world and broaden their horizons.

The Supreme Alliance wanted them to see just how large the ancient battlefield was to have a more complete understanding of how large the whole realm was and how large the void universe could be.

The airship is not for only the two of them. There are other Supreme Beasts who just finished their rite of passage with him. They are accompanied by their mentors who are there to protect them during the journey. But each Supreme beast has the privacy of their own cabin.

The airship also carries other types of cargo both living and nonliving. Some of these cargoes are slaves.

His divine sense reached over to the requested port and said, "Bring me my recent purchase."

A voice came out from the inscription on his chair, "Do you mean the battle sage monkey in the livestock warehouse labeled d2fH70?"

"Yes." He confirmed.

"Affirmative. It will be brought to you at the earliest possible moment."

He grumbled to himself while he waited. "Tanc830,428,723C should mind his business more. He has dipped his hands into what could possibly scald him."

Legion-7 joined in, "He even feels proud that he had a hand in denying us of something."

Legion-5 chuckled at that. "Yeah. He said it with pride. 'I dissuaded them from investing in you.' He said it without realizing that he might get punished for it."

"It is good for him that we don't need his help or the help of others for a world seed. We will find it on our own without jumping through hoops for others."

Legion-5 wasn't so optimistic. "Even if we can find world seed on our own, do you think the people he has been in contact with will give up? Do you think the people that are after me will turn away now?"

That question made Legion-7 laugh. "I doubt that. But if we can't act against our mentor on a whim, then they can't act against us anyhow. At least not until we become an Origin god."

"Yes, immortality. It will bring a lot of changes to us and to Legion. I can't wait for it."

He is truly looking forward to becoming an Origin god. He will be immortal and he will reach the energy requirements of becoming a world god with the infusion of cosmic energy. If he can't take on some Origin gods stuck at the first star at that point, then he will be too ashamed of himself.

That is just the lowest estimate of the kind of power he will achieve as an Origin god. There is still the prospect of the second level of Unity with Legion through Legion-7 and the success of his project to become a world god. Then there is the utilization of cosmic force.

He has so much prospect that it would be laughable for him to be scared of some Origin gods stuck at the first star. Even Ragnarok could beat them while he was a king of law. That's of course as long as they don't touch Ragnarok and rob him of his divine ability.

That is one thing those Supreme Beasts that went on the path of further awakening are notorious for. They may not be able to progress themselves, but they stop others from progressing as immortals by stealing their concept.

They are formidable but they can be neutralized early on if one knows about their ability to steal concepts. As long as they don't touch Legion-5, he can kill them with a dragon breath.

As for Tanc830,428,723C, Legion doesn't intend to act against him. It is partly because they are afraid of what the Supreme Alliance will do if they attack another Supreme beast.

It is also because it is not advisable to offend an immortal. It can lead to the creation of an eternal grudge that can easily escalate into something else.

If Tanc830,428,723C were a powerful Celestial, they wouldn't have much scruples about offending him, attacking him, or even killing him. But Tanc830,428,723C is an immortal so they can only swallow their displeasure of his interference in their attempt to cheat some Supreme Beast out of a world seed.

Besides, they don't need the help of the Supreme beasts to acquire a world seed. Legion is rich enough to fund the creation of a world god of the highest quality. They are currently building a part of a world god so they can afford a world seed.

They changed the topic of discussion to the second level of Unity. The first level was achieved when the clones were assimilated by Legion-7. It led to the creation of the independent resurrection system through the manipulation of the psychic engram. It also allowed the sharing of energy between the clones outside of the soul sphere.

As it is, the first level of Unity is not complete yet. Aeternus, Helios, the dragon clone, and the Tree Father have not joined with Legion-7 yet. Even so, the second level of Unity is about to become possible.

The second level of Unity will be achieved when Legion-5 and Legion-7 both manage to become Origin gods. At that stage, it is postulated that the clones will be able to share their concepts through Legion-7.

Then at the third stage of Unity when all the clones unite with their Origin, Legion-7's theory of Immortal consciousness might be fulfilled. It will be the ultimate form of resurrection probably better than those of world gods. Legion is not certain of that yet but they are looking forward to it.

Something happened to Legion as they were waiting and chatting. One of the clones became an Origin god. Legion-7 felt heavy pressure as part of his existence was cut off from his control by the void universe.

Legion-7 sighed through the pain and said, "Ragnarok has beat us to the punch."

Legion-5 could only placate him. "It is not his fault. Legion needs someone to handle the pursuit of the perfected Vampires."

Chapter 1382 We Meet Again.

That explanation didn't ease Legion-7's pain though. He still grumbled, "If this was going to happen maybe I shouldn't have united with him. Maybe I should have let CARNAGE have him."

Legion-5 chuckled. He knows that Legion-7 doesn't mean what he said. If the priority was avoiding pain, then letting CARNAGE have Ragnarok would be far worse than the pain he is feeling right now. In fact, all of Legion would feel that pain, and they may never come back from it.

Ragnarok's smug laughter rang in their minds immediately. "Turns out that I beat you two cheaters to immortality. You might have become a Sovereign of law first but only those that are truly worthy get to become Origin gods."

He was already a Sovereign when Legion-7 saved him from the clutches of CARNAGE's evil hands. He also already had an Origin essence given to him when his soul was split from Legion-1 so he had met all the requirements to become immortal.

He went through with the breakthrough to ease the pressure on Legion-1. The Vampires have been perfected and are immortal. They also outnumber Legion-1. Legion-1 could survive this long because of his two concepts but he can't do anything else.

Legion-7 said to Legion-5, "We have to become Origin gods as soon as possible. The independent resurrection system is useless if I don't become immortal too."

It turns out that Legion-7 can't continue to store and control the psychic engram of the clones once they become immortal. They may be a part of him but they also become part of the void universe when they become Origin gods.

The void universe is much stronger than him so it easily robbed him of his control of the immortal clones. This is the second time it has happened. It happened with Soverick when he became an Origin god to increase the power of his eyes.

It is not exactly a bad thing since the clones will still be able to resurrect thanks to the assistance of the void universe. Their resurrection will just be much slower and more resource-intensive than his.

Legion-5 replied, "I am looking forward to it too but we can't get away now. We are surrounded by Origin gods."

"I know and I don't like it."

"I don't like it either but we still have to be patient until the opportunity to escape appears."

Legion-5 knows just how hurtful losing control of Ragnarok's psychic engram to the law matrix is to Legion-7. He too felt the powerful invasion of the void universe into his inner world and how it severed parts of his existence. But there is nothing they can do about it for now.

He too has met all the requirements to become immortal. He has fused all his divine abilities and slots into one. But a young Supreme beast like him should not become an Origin god after 10,000 years of living. He can't wait for the 5 Origin cycles that it will become acceptable for him to become immortal so he can only plot his escape.

A box was brought to their cabin while they were plotting. The robot carrying the box was given permission to enter the room so it brought the box to them. Then it left after unlocking the box.

Legion-5 removed the bonds from the inhabitant of the box and did nothing else. So the master and slave stared at each other. They didn't say anything for a long while so the cabin was silent.

Jarkon broke the silence with a question. He asked, "What do you want from me?"

Legion-5 replied, "You will see soon."

The silence continued for a few more minutes. Jarkon received a call while they waited. It was from Salvini.

She ordered him as soon as he accepted the communication request.

"Let me speak to him. Project me to him with your mind."

He sighed but he obeyed. His divine sense formed into the phantom of a white battle sage monkey. She was a phantom but her eyes were vivid and clear. They were constantly switching colors as she stared at Legion-5.

Salvini said to him, "We meet again."

Legion-5 finally spoke. "Who are you?"

She replied confidently, "You know who I am."

He wasn't moved. Instead, his tone became stern and he threatened calmly. "Identify yourself or I will cut this communication short."

She sighed but obliged, "I am Salvini of the bloodline of the first sage of the Virut plane. I am also the current child of the Virut plane."

"I see."

"Why don't you reciprocate in kind?" She asked. "I would appreciate it if I know who I am speaking to."

"I am not sorry to disappoint you. But you will not have that honor."

She didn't get angry. She stated confidently, "I already know who you are."

"Is that so?" he asked with unconcealed boredom. "Then why did you ask?"

She didn't let that discourage her. "I know you are Legion."

"What is this Legion you speak of?" he asked with interest.

This is the first time that he has shown interest in anything she has to say. It is obvious from his reaction that he has never heard of this "Legion" and he is intrigued by it.

"You can't fool me. I know that within you is the entity called Legion. You are just a husk just like Soverick was."

He said with sincerity, "I am afraid you are mistaken young lady. I am no husk. I am me. And who is this Soverick? Should I know him or her?"

Salvini allowed herself to chuckle. "Your acting is not bad but it can't fool me. I know that I am not mistaken. I am certain of my conjecture. At first, I thought Legion was a group of like-minded individuals. But I am sure it is a type of parasite now. You invade people and make them do your bidding. The events of the Gattling plane are proof of my conjecture."

"Such imagination in one so young. You will make a good storyteller." He said in amazement.

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

If you find any errors (non-standard content, ads redirect, broken links, etc.), Please let us know so we can fix it as soon as possible.

Chapter 1383 A Damsel In Distress.

Legion-5 isn't aiming to fool her or deceive her about his identity but he won't admit or deny anything. He intends to act completely ignorant of her accusation. But she didn't give up.

Maybe she would have given up if she could predict his actions the way she could predict normal people's actions. But she can't predict anything about him. There are other people who have used various items and methods to block her sight so this is unique.

However, this whole encounter reminds her of her conversations with Soverick. She was also blind to his future. When combined with the information that Jarkon and his squad have risked their lives to acquire, she is at least certain that he is related to Legion in one way or another.

She threatened him with a smile, "If all I am saying are fairytales then you wouldn't mind if I go around telling people."

"Go ahead and do that. In fact, write a book about it." He said with a lot of enthusiasm, "Send me a copy when you have published it. I am always interested in helping the young generation achieve their dreams."

Legion-7 chuckled within him. "This girl is not bad."

He completed that train of thought, "But she is not good enough."

They are not concerned that she found out what happened in Gattling plane and they are not concerned that she will tell people about it. For one, no one would believe her accusation about some parasite without concrete proof.

For the second reason, they can boldly take responsibility for what happened in the Gattling plane. The massacre of a plane with an engineered disease is not a new thing that Supreme beasts do.

If she aims to threaten or blackmail him with this information then she has another thing coming for her.

She frowned and said, "Don't underestimate me Legion. I can be a difficult enemy to deal with."

"Young lady, is this all you are here for?" he asked unconcerned about her threat.

"What did you think I came for?" She asked him in turn.

"This silly girl. She is always trying to get information out of us." He thought to himself with a chuckle.

Then he replied, "I was of the assumption that you are here to buy his freedom from me. Be gone if you don't want to."

"I am indeed here for a deal. I want to buy something from you but it is not only about his freedom."

"Oh. What more is there to buy from me?" he asked curiously.

"You should know what I want from you. After all, I sent people to track you down."

He frowned in displeasure. "Young lady, go straight to the point or get lost. I have no time to waste with jesters."

She sighed again before she replied, "I have come to make a deal for my freedom."

His frown remained. He asked with apparent confusion, "How can I give you your freedom? You don't appear to be a slave. Even if you are, you are not my slave."

She sighed in resignation. This will be the third time she has done so in a short amount of time. It is enough for her to understand that he won't admit to having any knowledge of her situation. So she had to improvise.

She started grimly, "I have an enemy who wants my life. He won't rest until he kills me. His name is Soverick. He is very cunning and powerful. I have tried to kill him several times and failed. He has even died once but he returned. There's nothing I can do to stop him. I want you to help me dissuade him or stop him from coming after me."

"I see," Legion-5 said in understanding. "This sounds like a very difficult matter. Surely you must have the appropriate price to pay for my assistance in getting you out of this dilemma."

"Yes, I do." She said.

"What is it then? Don't leave me waiting."

"I have information that will be very useful to you."

He laughed. He laughed so hard his body was rocking in his chair.

"Information? What information?" He asked in mockery.

He didn't wait for her to answer before he spoke. "I have a lot of information to sell to you too. Are you interested in the current location of the child of the Virut plane? Do you want to know where she has built her bunker? Do you want to know how many Origin gods she has on standby to protect her? Do you want to know what Orders she has given to the floating fortresses of her plane?"

She didn't reply. Her eyes stared at him with calmness. But that calmness didn't fool him. He knows that she isn't surprised that he knows that information and she also knows how he acquired the information, but it doesn't change the fact that all her actions are not hidden from him. That is not a pleasant experience for someone Like Salvini who thinks everything is in her control and likes to toy with people.

He asked with a sneer, "Well do you want to know or not? I have a lot more information but it will cost you. How about we do a swap of information?"

She wasn't scared into submission by the amount of information that he had about her. She replied, "I have no need for your information. But you wouldn't want to miss the information I have for you. It will help you grow stronger. You will be able to evolve to a greater level."

"Hmmm. Is that so?" he asked.

"What is this about information that can help us evolve?" Legion-7 asked. "The realm lord also offered the same thing. Is it a coincidence, is this realm lord working with her, or is there something truly helpful for us out there that everyone else can see but we don't know?"

This is not the first time they have heard of this proposal. What the realm lord asked for was too much a price to pay for the information so he is not hopeful about this proposal.

----

A/N: Should they take the deal?

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

If you find any errors (non-standard content, ads redirect, broken links, etc.), Please let us know so we can fix it as soon as possible.

Chapter 1384 Not About Revenge.

They would like to know what this useful information is about but they are not optimistic about getting to find out.

Legion-5 stated. "Let me guess. You are not going to tell me what it is at all unless I help you with your problem."

"You are right. Just the information about its existence is valuable enough. If you know what it is about then you might be able to find it on your own so I can't tell you. But I am certain it is enough to exchange for my life."

"Young lady. I already said that I am not interested in fairytales. You should leave if you don't have something tangible for me."

He is tempted to acquire the information but he is not willing to make that offer. Legion might not gain anything important by killing her, but they might gain something by pressuring the first sage.

They hate Salvini and would like to pay her back for her participation in the first sage's scheme against Soverick. However, they are not aiming for revenge simply for the sake of revenge. That's just a waste of time and energy. They would rather attack when they have something to gain from it and their main aim is the first sage.

They are aiming to target the first sage through her. They are not willing to give up that plan for something that they are not certain will be helpful.

It is already risky to make a deal with someone as cunning and scheming as Salvini. To make a deal for something intangible and unknown in return from her is practically asking to be cheated.

She made another offer. "I have something else. I can get you a world fragment."

"Is that so?" he asked in genuine surprise.

He is not surprised that she can get access to a world fragment since she has a lot of world gods as relatives but he is surprised that she is willing to go this far for her freedom.

He asked her a lot of questions, "And how will I get this world fragment? Would I have to meet you? When will that be? And who is the world god whose Supreme law is used to make the world fragment?"

"There is a slight problem. I can only acquire it for you during the era of conquest."

His interest died down immediately. He wasn't going to accept the world fragment in the first place since he couldn't use it without the permission of the world god and the world god will be able to track him through it. But the fact that she was not going to offer it to them immediately made him feel insulted.

So he waved his hand at Jarkon. A hand of world power formed and crushed the battle sage monkey into meat paste. All of his hopes and dreams died immediately. Salvini's connection was also cut off.

"I must say that I expected something better from her," Legion-5 said in disappointment.

"I think it is high time that we pressure her."

"Yes. Let us leak more information about the Virut plane to the child of the plane of the Vipers. That should make things difficult enough for her to teach her a lesson."

The Vipers haven't taken their defeat during the Unified Skill Index lying down. Their child of the plane is especially dedicated to getting revenge for his humiliation. They found the planar portal of the Virut plane and have been attacking it for a while now.

The Vengeful Viper Child Of The Plane didn't give up when he heard that the one who humiliated him had died. He is even more bent on fighting Salvini since she was able to defeat Soverick who he thought highly of.

He is not the only one with a bone to pick with the Virut plane either. A certain world god is not happy with the first sage and has been helping the Vipers so that they will take revenge for him.

This world god didn't even have to try too hard to convince the council of Vipers to act against the Virut plane. The fact that the battle sage monkeys wiped out all the Vipers in their plane has angered the Vipers and roused them into action. They want to repay the genocide perpetrated on their race.

Legion is aware of this situation because Soverick has been keeping tabs on the Virut plane and their child of the plane. But they didn't take advantage of the situation because they didn't want to offend the first sage yet.

That has changed since they have already offended the first sage with what they did with his world fragment. They can't go back on that so what's one more grievance?

Their hands are mostly tied because they promised not to tamper with the Virut plane. That means they can only help another plane if they want to pressure her.

This is the most effective method despite the fact that they have the right to fight and kill Salvini. They can't use that right because they can't get to her easily ever since Salvini hid and protected herself.

She has a bunker that is watched all year round by numerous Origin gods and floating fortresses. The combined might of Legion can kill her despite her preparations but they are not willing to make the sacrifice yet. They would rather grow stronger and plan better to achieve a clean victory.

Besides, it won't do if they get rid of her now. It would be better to do so when the plane needs her. That will pressure the first sage more.

The first sage claims that the plane doesn't need a child of the plane. All they need to do is change that. If they assist the Vipers in pressuring the Virut plane, then the plane might need Salvini. Then getting rid of Salvini will affect the plane and the first sage indirectly.

They would have kept to their promise not to damage the plane but succeeded in damaging the plane. It is the best plan for them since it is more efficient and effective at using Salvini and the plane to affect the first sage.

Chapter 1385 Hopeful For Possession.

They thought about their numerous plans and plots and ultimately decided on the most important thing to do right now.

Legion-5 said, "First, we will become Origin gods. Revenge is good but Power is the best."

--SALVINI

"He didn't try to possess me." She thought to herself in disappointment. "It is either I was wrong about his ability to utilize spiritual connections for possession or he doesn't want to kill me now."

The communication was cut off abruptly but she wasn't attacked by an entity trying to possess her. It was a threat she was very much aware of when she decided to communicate with the current host of LEGION directly.

If not for the assurance of one of the elders of her family who is a world god, then she wouldn't have allowed her mind to get close to Legion at all.

It was the process of getting that world god to set up a trap in her mind that delayed her. She expected it and knew immediately when Jarkon appeared in front of Legion. But she had to be sure that she wouldn't lose her life before she initiated the communication.

"I hope he infected Jarkon. I will be able to get the ancestor of the bloodline of Justice on my side too. That will make two world gods to help me in my fight against this disease."

She understands that she needs help and the best help she can get is from world gods. But world gods are very difficult to get help from. The problem is perspective. World gods don't care much about familial bonds. Instead, they will ask themselves, "So what if Salvini dies?"

If the answer is "Her death doesn't matter." Then they won't help her.

It is not being callous. If her death won't affect them while on the other hand, moving to save her will cost them time and energy, then it is smart to simply watch her die. If they miss her, which is nearly impossible, they can create a clone of her who thinks and acts like her.

World gods can create everything they need. When combined with the fact that they don't need her for anything, it makes it difficult for them to care about anything that they can create themselves. So it took the benefit of acquiring something unique like Legion to get her elder to set a trap within her mind.

That elder is the descendant of a sage like her but that wasn't enough for her to help her for nothing.

It was already very difficult to contact the world god, but it was far more difficult to get the world god to help. However, her plan has failed now that Legion didn't possess her. It means that the world god will be disappointed.

She can only sigh and move on. What she is especially glad about recently is that despite the difficulty of getting their help, she has managed to get Ghastorix on her side. It took saving something important and dear to him to get him to help but she succeeded.

She is even looking forward to getting the ancestor of the lion of justice on her side too. That willful and determined person who got lucky enough to become an Origin god and even world god will not sit by as his descendant is enslaved.

"The Lion of justice might allow anything to occur but Slavery is his bane. I hope Legion has not disappointed me."

She will know if her bait worked soon. The lion of justice himself will contact her. After all, she was the one who sent Jarkon and the others on a mission that led to their death and enslavement.

The lion of justice will question her about the cause of the possession of his descendants or their slavery. He is sure to be angry. So all she has to do is be helpful by turning his wrath on Legion.

If the descendants with the bloodline of justice can track Legion down, then the ancestor can do so much more. It is something that she is looking forward to.

It is also why the squad she sent after Legion was never going to be saved. They were bait so they were doomed right from the start. Salvini was never going to ruin her plan by interfering and doing something like stopping them from becoming slaves.

If it is any consolation to Jarkon, it is that she isn't exactly proud of her scheme to use him as bait. Unfortunately, she hasn't had any other options because Legion hasn't given her any other avenue for her to take advantage of.

She knows the battle sage monkeys that have been possessed in the plane due to her title as child of the plane but she can't prove the possession to others because Legion could leave his vessels without a trace.

No one can tell the cause of the death apart from the obvious traces of a disease. Only world gods might be able to notice the peculiarities but they can't enter the plane. These difficulties have made it impossible to get the racial council to help her in fighting Legion. But that will change if the descendants of a world god that hates injustice and slavery get possessed by Legion.

Someone knocked on the door of her bunker as she was thinking. A voice said from beyond the door, "The guest you asked for is here to see you."

"Bring her in." She said.

She is currently in a heavily fortified bunker. It is because she fears for her life. There are a lot of people who want her dead. Soverick is just one person on that list. Most of these people are the ones who wanted to kill Soverick when he was the child of the plane.

They were the ones that planned to kill him during the Calamity Of The child of the plane. They planned the events of the Unified Skill Index during the third challenge. So they are not amateurs in their attempts to kill the child of the plane.

Search the website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

Chapter 1386 The Weakness Of The Eye Of The Sage.

These people hated Soverick simply because he was the child of the plane. They hate her for more. She is also the child of the first sage so their organization has picked up heavy momentum against her.

She has learned that the bloodline of some disgruntled world gods are funding the hunt for her life. So the bunkers and Origin gods became a must for her or she would be attacked as soon as she gave them the opportunity.

Her visitor came soon after. Salvini opened the door and let her in. Litori stepped into the large room. She looked the same as he always had. Her fur is red and her eyes her completely white.

The bunker is more of a house. Within the house are several rooms and facilities. This room is just one of the rooms and it is meant for meeting visitors. There are seats arranged in a circular form. Salvini is sitting on one of them.

"Please sit." She said to her guest.

Litori sat. She looked around briefly before speaking. "It seems it is common for every child of the plane to hide themselves away from the world."

Salvini agreed. "Yes. We are always busy with work and don't want any disturbance."

Litori agreed. "I know that to be true of Soverick. As for you, I don't think so."

"Why do you think so?" Salvini asked.

Litori gave an excuse. "I assume it's because you simply like solitude."

Litori didn't speak her mind. She didn't say that Salvini was hiding away because she was afraid of being killed. She didn't say that, unlike Soverick, Salvini is only strong when she calls for support from the plane.

Litori is confident of survival even if she said those things because her safety was sworn to her. If the child of the plane and many Origin gods hadn't worn to keep her safe then she wouldn't have come here. Even so, there's no need to antagonize her host needlessly with words that might be considered harmful or disrespectful.

"I am here now. You said you wanted to see me. What can I help you with?" Litori asked.

Another thing she wanted to say but didn't say is that Soverick wouldn't need her help for anything.

Salvini started talking, "I need your help with..."

But she stopped. Several scenes were layered in her sight. She can see several outcomes of her actions in them. What she noticed was that Litori's behavior was the same in every one of them.

In all her visions, Litori is sitting silently without any movement or action. Litori didn't say anything for a while after she made her request. It made it impossible for Salvini to anticipate what Litori would say to her request and use that information to convince her to help before making the request.

"It seems you are careful against me," Salvini said.

Litori still didn't say anything. She kept quiet and watched. It is exactly what Salvini saw in her future visions. It made Salvini decide to push her divine ability to its limit.

There is the short and accurate future vision or precognition. She can see outcomes accurately as long as they are within 5 seconds of the future.

She is pushing that limit now. But got nothing from Litori even when she pushed it to 30 seconds. It means Litori won't say anything to her questions or requests for at least 30 seconds.

"Soverick and his siblings are too troublesome," Salvini complained to herself.

Soverick could bypass her future vision completely. All she would see of him was nothing. It was as if she was talking to nothing whenever they were speaking with each other. Now his sibling is giving her problems with her divine ability by using a common method.

By keeping silent for a long period of time, Salvini and others with her divine ability to see the future will only get silence in their visions unless they go beyond the range of the silence. Unfortunately, the range of her accurate future vision is not up to 30 seconds.

Her complaint won't help her so she used the far sight but inaccurate future vision. This vision uses her as an anchor into the far future. Emotions and information can be transmitted to the present from the future through her future self.

This method is highly inaccurate because there are multiple versions of herself in the future who have experienced different things. It is impossible to acquire information from all of them so the information she acquires might not be useful at all or might be outright wrong and harmful.

She doesn't have a choice now so she used it. This ability also surprised her. Almost every version of her future self sent the same information to her. It made her realize that Litori had already made up her mind no matter what this meeting entails.

Litori is determined not to help her or have anything to do with her. The feeling of disappointment and rejection is constant from her future vision. Litori will eventually talk after her period of silence but all she will say is "No."

It frustrated Salvini to no end so she didn't bother to make the request. Instead, she asked, "Why are you against me?"

Litori didn't reply. She remained silent for 60 seconds. Then she said, "You are very dangerous."

Salvini already got the answer before Litori spoke so her face fell before she was accused of being dangerous. It is not even a false accusation and it is a good reason to be unhelpful but it still stung to be cornered.

"Looks like I burnt more than one bridge during the Unified Skill Index," Salvini muttered loudly so that her guest could hear.

Unfortunately, Litori didn't take the bait. She remained silent. Salvini looked back to find when she must have offended Litori or made her so adverse towards her. The moment that is most likely responsible for the prejudice is when she killed Litori during the Unified Skill Index.

----

A/N: Which bloodlines of disgruntled world gods are after Salvini? Her situation is very dangerous. It is a good thing that she has Ghastorix on her side.

Chapter 1387 Thorny Bed.

That moment stood out in Salvini's memory like a thorn. She had pretended to be weak in their first encounter and ran away in defeat from Litori. Then she brought her brother and used him to weaken Litori. Then she killed Litori after her brother Salvin died.

She took advantage of the two of them that day. Later on, Soverick himself the great and powerful Child of the plane died at her hands. If there is a lesson to be learned there, it is that Salvini is dangerous and anyone who associates with her can die at any time.

It is no wonder that Litori is hellbent on rejecting her. Even her brothers are wary of her because of things like that. They call her a snake to her face. Unfortunately, she can't go back to fix that problem. She has made her thorny bed and has to lie on it now.

"It is clear to me that you don't want to help me. I understand your unwillingness to work with me but I will try to convince you anyway. I have something that will help you to comprehend the law of the soul and become a titan of law in the footsteps of your ancestor. It is a soul parasite."

She spoke then she became silent. Litori didn't talk for another 60 seconds.

"I thank you for your generosity but I am not interested."

Salvini was prepared for the rejection so she had something prepared to say as soon as Litori finished talking. "Don't be quick to reject. I don't want anything in return for this. I will grant you the information and you are free to do whatever you want with it."

Salvini stood up with a disappointed sigh before the reply came. This was after 55 seconds.

5 seconds later. Litori said, "I think I should leave now. I was told that I could leave whenever I wanted."

Litori stood up to leave. Salvini was already standing. She smiled. "No problem. I keep to my word. You can leave anytime you want. If you have free time please go around the plane for sightseeing. You might notice some people with strange soul fluctuations. I am certain that with your sight you will notice the peculiarities and similarities between them."

Litori wasn't listening. She retracted her divine sense and blocked her mind. She doesn't want to hear any information from Salvini. While a soul parasite is very important to her, she had promised herself not to entangle herself with Salvini in any way.

"I will just have to create my own soul disease when I break through," Litori said to herself.

She is still a transcendent and is Comprehending the law of fire. It is her only choice since the law of the soul is very difficult to comprehend. Even though she has the talent for it, she needs to comprehend a complete soul.

Her options are her soul or the souls of the dead. Unfortunately, her sense of her own soul is muddled because of her body, and the souls of the dead that she acquires are incomplete. This is preventing her and has prevented many people with her bloodline from achieving what their ancestor did. Search the website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

She might not be able to create the concept of soul fire if she doesn't learn the law of the soul so the opportunity to see a soul parasite is very important to her. However, she is going to pass on that opportunity because it is clearly bait from Salvini.

It will be difficult to create the concept of soul fire on her own but her ancestor was able to create one so she can too. She might die in the attempt to become a titan of law, but she will surely die if she let Salvini play her about.

Soverick's fate is lesson enough for her. She already knew that Soverick was more than he seemed from the moment he battered Ghaster with his Aura when they were babies. If the death of someone so powerful hasn't taught her the lesson to stay away from Salvini then she must be stupid. If she dies during the breakthrough, at least she has some 100 origin cycles to live before she dies. She won't have that time with Salvini.

So Litori left the bunker after making her wish to be left alone known to the child of the plane. Salvini watched her leave with disappointment and feelings of rejection. It is the same emotions that her future self felt. Now it has come to pass. It is even worse because she knew it was coming but couldn't change it.

"Should I even bother with Ghaster?" She asked herself.

Salvini had high hopes for Litori's divine ability. It is a very rare divine ability that has only one lineage in the whole plane and Litori is the only person to have it in the last thousand origin cycles. The lineage of Salvini is the only lineage that has what she needs to combat and maybe defeat Legion.

There are other ephemeral flame wielders in the plane but their divine ability stops at using illusions to manipulate emotions or combusting emotions. They can't see spiritual bodies and can't harm the soul like Litori can. They surely can't use their divine ability to harm someone and every clone that they have. So the soul-fire divine ability is likely her best counter for an entity with many bodies like Legion.

Litori's ancestor got her divine ability through a mutation. No one managed to follow in her path ever since and the bloodline while eternal stopped showing up because most of its bearers died during the attempt to become titans of law.

The major problem that they had was the problem of the soul law and creating the image of a soul fire. Salvini wanted to use that opportunity to introduce Litori to Legion.

Not only would Litori try to capture Legion which will lead to them fighting, it will also grant her more information about Legion and further prove her claims that Legion exists. Unfortunately, it didn't work.

-----

A/N: Do you remember her nickname? Salvini The Snake. Or was that the nickname for the first sage?

Chapter 1388 4 Plans For Legion.

The other plan she had for Legion was to rely on Ghaster. From the information she acquired from the squad that went to the Gattling plane, lightning might be able to harm Legion. This is because the child of the plane was able to wield lightning and the disease disappeared after the storm of lightning that the Celestial Supreme created. Either Legion was afraid of lightning or he was pretending.

If he was pretending that means he worked together with Celestial Supreme who created the lightning storm as a façade to kill the Celestial of Knowledge. If the two of them worked together, that means the Celestial of Lightning must be capable of restraining him. So either way, Lightning is still useful against Legion.

That's why Salvini planned to convince Ghaster to help her since he was related to Soverick and can wield Lightning. But now she is sure he will not even bother to come near her or entertain her request at all.

She shook her head in disappointment, "Forget it. I will just rely on myself and the Ghastorix family if I have to."

Her plan for Ghaster is based on conjecture so it might not work even if Ghaster agrees to work with her to target Soverick. Legion might not be weak to lightning which will be a waste of time. It is already uncertain if Ghaster will work with her if she tells him that the one that he had always wanted to defeat is not dead yet.

Ghaster could get pumped up and determined to fight Soverick or get scared that Soverick is not dead even after everything that happened to him.

Her chance of working with Ghaster successfully was 50/50 before. Any one of those outcomes could happen but now she is certain that Ghaster won't work with her due to Litori's behavior.

"I can only hope that Legion took the bait with Jarkon." She said while waiting for the good news.

But the only news she heard was that the Vipers had increased the pressure of their attacks on the planar portal of the Virut plane in the ancient battlefield.

Things got so bad that the first sage reached out to her. Her mind was pulled into a large white space. A single white eye appeared in front of her.

She bowed in greeting. The eye said to her, "I'm guessing Legion didn't accept your deal and they didn't take the bait you set for him either. It seems the realm lord won't have his way this time either."

The two of them spoke for a short while. Meanwhile, the world moved on.

-----The POV Of A Very Busy Man.

Something very powerful and very angry was barrelling towards the realm of high heaven. Monarch high heaven sensed it from within the realm tree and couldn't help but sigh in exasperation.

Mother High Heaven's warning came soon after, "You have a guest for you."

"Come on." He complained. "Not now of all moments. I am very busy."

He has other things to do but he has to pay attention to this angry guest. Especially since he is most likely at fault for their presence. Unfortunately, he can't ignore his angry guest. That's probably the worst thing he can do to a world god who is very angry with him and also has a lot of influence within the realm tree.

So he sent a clone outside of the realm to meet the guest since the guest can't enter the realm to meet him.

His clone appeared in the path of the angry entity. The world god didn't stop. It continued barreling towards him as if to run him over.

He conjured a force field in front of him. The world god stopped in front of the obstacle. Apparently, they aren't angry enough to crash into him. But they were still angry so they snorted. The snort created a shockwave that shattered the forcefield he used to protect himself.

It is a show of strength. That display tells him that if they wanted to kill him then they don't need to crash into him.

Monarch high heaven didn't get angry. He said with a smile, "What can I do for you, Your Excellency Star Shatterer?"

World god Star Shatterer looked on with barely withheld anger. She said in reply, "You know why I am here."

World god star Shatterer's gaze is not for the weak. She was an Origin god who could shatter everything with a touch. Now she is the Shattering itself. Her existence is constantly breaking apart to create a massive amount of energy and power.

It is a wonder to behold fission made manifest in all its explosive glory. That is if you don't go mad. Even then, the gaze that is inducing your existence to shatter and explode is not one that can be beheld easily. But the Monarch of High Heaven didn't cower. He spoke without missing a beat, "I am afraid I don't know what you're talking about Your Excellency."

He is lying of course. He knows very well why this world god who is tottering on the edge of madness because of being in a state of constant destruction is here. But he is not going to admit it and he will not admit to anything else.

"You have gone too far elven boy. I can allow a lot of things but harming the young generation is my bottom line."

Monarch high heaven was aghast. "I wouldn't dare to do such a thing."

He would in fact dare to and he did dare to. But he said in anger, "Who would dare say such a thing about me? Who is out there slandering me?"

"Is the report I received a hoax then? Are you saying the Shadow Lurker is not linked to you? Are you saying it is by luck that she found the location of a rite of passage and several locations of the rite of passage before now? Are you saying she didn't have your help in removing the suppression of the realm and using a domain without consequences? Tell me. I am willing to listen."

-----

A/N: Is it just me or are Soverick's siblings special? Makes me wonder what Ragnarok's siblings would have been capable of. Anyways, what do you think Salvini's plan was for the deal she offered?

Chapter 1389 The Laughter Of The Mad Elf.

Monarch High Heaven couldn't believe that someone out there was falsely accusing him of assisting the Shadow Lurker in terrorizing the Supreme Beasts. His anger and confusion showed on his face.

He had to ask, "Why would I do such things? What could I possibly gain from it?"

He seems to be genuinely perplexed and shocked by the thought that he would try to harm the Supreme Beasts who are trying to interfere with his interests during the era of conquest. Apparently, that kind of action feels so alien to him that he couldn't possibly have entertained the idea.

If there is a reason for him to frustrate the expansion efforts of the Supreme Alliance or reduce their influence in the high heaven realm, it is not clear to him.

And no matter how clear those reasons may be to others, he will never admit to seeing them. Much less admit that they are his motives or that he indeed has been frustrating their expansion efforts.

Most of all is the false accusation about harming kids. He had to make his stand against that lest his pristine reputation be ruined.

So he asked the fuming world god, "Your Excellency, how many of your young generation died? How many did the Shadow Lurker kill?"

It might be true that he had something to do with the uncanny way the Shadow Lurker could find vulnerable targets of the supreme alliance in the realm.

Maybe it is true. Maybe it is not. But one thing is certain, no young supreme beasts died the last time the Shadow Lurker attacked. He has Legion-5 to thank for that. As for the previous occasions that the Shadow Lurker harmed young supreme beasts, he won't admit to it even on his deathbed when he has nothing to lose.

Star Shatterer maintained, "That is not the point. It is the attempt that matters. I have it on good authority that you are her source of information."

The body she came with collapsed. It drew in energy from the void universe forcefully by using the gravitational pull of her collapsed existence to her advantage. Then she used the energy to bolster her existence. She grew bigger and her gravitational pull grew stronger.

Then she resumed another round of fission. She grew brighter as reality warped around her. A single thought from her and she would leverage her existence to shatter the realm lord's clone before her. But she didn't, for now.

She made her Will known, "I will not leave here unless I am appeased."

She has put down her metaphorical foot. It is both a promise and a threat. This is the kind of threat that the Realm lord might have been trying to avoid if he had decided to frustrate the expansion efforts of the Supreme Alliance.

The influence of the Supreme Alliance is too much in the realm of high heaven so while a world god can't threaten him directly, they can do a lot of damage to the realm directly. Unfortunately, despite all the setbacks the Supreme Alliance has encountered, they have continued to enjoy success in their efforts. This has led to this situation where a world god of the Supreme Alliance can threaten him.

The realm lord's mind twitched. This threat on top of the stress of controlling ten thousand clones is putting pressure on his psyche and causing the wound in it to ache. His head is currently throbbing in pain. The pain was so much that it threatened to overwhelm him.

The clone of Monarch high heaven laughed. He laughed for a while about something only he finds funny. His body shook as he laughed as if having a fit.

But then the laughter ended. It was abrupt and he was calm again.

He said to the world god, "Fine. I am willing to appease you."

He usually doesn't respect World gods despite their power. He is wary of their strength since it would interfere with his plans but he is not afraid of them because they can't kill him.

Even if they manage to bypass his clones and the defense of the high heaven realm to kill his main body, they can only liberate his current existence for another reincarnation. So he doesn't have much to fear from a world god.

But the end of the universe is coming and there are some things he must achieve before then. So he will capitulate and try to appease this world god for the goal of Supremacy.

A round of negotiation thus began. It was surprisingly amicable. The only odd thing was the strange fits of laughter from the realm lord. But that is normal at this point. Everyone knows he laughs for no reason. It is one of the reasons they call him the mad elf.

The two of them pushed and pulled until they finally settled on an amicable agreement.

"I agree with this." Star Shatterer said. "The Supreme Alliance will not suppress the other races and parties that participate in the era of conquest. But you must inform us first and only us about the date for the era of conquest before it starts."

The realm lord nodded and asked, "So we have a deal?"

"Yes, we do." Star Shatterer said then she left.

She left just as she came, as a force of nature that was very angry and in a hurry. The star core that is her current form disappeared into the distance.

Monarch High Heaven watched her leave with slight awe. He is mildly impressed by her power.

"She is strong. If only she had more cosmic energy then it is possible for her to wreak havoc in the void universe." He said with slight pity,

The Star Shatterer is a living bomb. She is a bomb that can destroy a whole realm and more as she is. And she will be unharmed by her existence exploding. She makes the best case for why world gods are not allowed in a realm.

- Chapter 1390 Lies And More Lies.

Chapter 1390 Lies And More Lies.

The Star Shatterer is a true miracle of power. However, she is limited by the amount of cosmic energy that she possesses. Cosmic energy is needed for worlds and world gods to evolve. If she had a lot of it, then she would be a menace to the void universe itself.

It is a good thing that the void universe doesn't provide anything to world gods. But it is a bad thing for world gods.

He said to himself in amusement. "It is no wonder why world gods will choose to prey on the void universe rather than help it."

His clone dissipated into the void and his attention returned to his plans and preparations.

He complained. "I wish I had more cosmic energy."

World gods are not the only ones who have a lack of the precious energy. Cosmic energy is one of the three forms of matter-energy substrate that world gods need. It is a substance that can be transformed into force and can also be used to grow stronger by those who can control it.

He himself will need a lot of it when he becomes a world god. However, he already has a lot of needs for it currently. Unfortunately, his position as the realm lord is not helping him in that aspect.

The world spark is the source of cosmic energy for a realm tree. It supplies cosmic energy for what the realm tree needs and only what the realm tree needs. The world spark doesn't like him so it won't give him Cosmic Energy.

If the world spark was willing to give him cosmic energy then he might not be looking forward to the era of conquest so much. He doesn't care if the world spark is just doing its job, since it won't do him any harm and will only benefit him, it has become a must to remove the world spark for freedom.

It is something that he wants to do as soon as possible. Unfortunately, he doesn't have enough cosmic energy to finish his preparation for the era of conquest quickly. So he has to look for it like a normal world god.

Monarch High Heaven's gaze narrowed as he looked at the only sentient star in the realm of high heaven, probably the whole void universe. That star is also a spring of Cosmic Energy. He could have all the cosmic energy he needs if he gains access to this star.

But he looked away and grumbled, "If I were a normal world god, I wouldn't have to go too far to find Cosmic Energy."

The major cause for the delay in the era of conquest is looking for sources of Cosmic Energy like other world gods. He truly needs cosmic energy for a lot of things. However, the most important thing that he needs cosmic energy for the most is Authority.

He can't have too much Authority so the lack of cosmic energy has caused a delay in its production. This is a delay that could be solved if he had permission from Mother High Heaven to nab a certain star full of cosmic energy. But Mother High Heaven refused his request to act against Legion just as she refused his request to act against any of her children.

The usefulness of cosmic energy is why he covets Helios. It is why he approached Legion-7 to make a deal with him. He is not interested in his experience in the spiritual dimension. In fact, he knows about the great mother and other soul prowlers. Legion is not the only one to investigate the Phoenix race or know about the spark of consciousness.

All he wanted to know from Legion-7 was how he escaped from the great mother. That moment is very important because it is the same moment that Helios became a star, Ragnarok escaped from the demon god of Carnage, the dragon clone changed, and Soverick looked at him.

Legion changed at that moment. It is either that they were hiding their capabilities which they displayed at the same time or they suddenly gained some previously unknown abilities at the exact same time.

The abilities that they have all shown are different so they might be a coincidence. It could be that Legion decided at that point to stop hiding some of their capabilities. But he doesn't believe it to be a coincidence since it occurred just after they broke another rule of the universe.

point to stop hiding some of their capabilities. But he doesn't believe it to be a coincidence since it occurred just after they What's strange is that the information about the rule they broke and its effects on them doesn't show up on their stats screen at all. It is almost as if the reward for the law that they broke doesn't affect them in any way whatsoever.

So he has been after Legion ever since. Unfortunately, he can't act against them directly so he hoped to fool them into releasing a hint of their source of strangeness.

It is not the first time he is lying to get his way. Lying is second nature to him. He has done it several times to others and twice to Legion whenever he met them for deals.

The first time he met with Legion was with Aeternus. He lied then that he couldn't get their information from the system without their permission. It was to give Legion a false sense of security.

He didn't want Legion to know that the reason why he couldn't access their information was because Mother High Heaven refused to grant him access to information on Origin gods. If Legion knew that all he needs is permission from the Will of the realm, then they might become scared of him.

The second time he lied was with Legion-1. He lied back then and got his way too. The information he got out of Legion-1 helped him to build the translocation pillar that the Battle sage monkeys and Vipers used to transport the participants of the competition into world fragments a large distance away.

He has succeeded twice to great effect with Legion so he expected the third round of deals to go smoothly. However, Legion-7 didn't fall for it. The spiritual abomination refused to give him its memories.

Chapter 1391 What's The Deal With The Deal.

Legion-7's refusal not only destroyed his plans to acquire information about their special reward, it also made it impossible for him to complete his deal with the great mothers.

She wanted Legion's weakness before the attack of the Phoenix race on the Stellaris plane and she was willing to pay heavily for it but he didn't have it. He couldn't even tell her if he had it. That will be breaking the rules of his position.

The best he could do was get her in contact with the first sage. The first sage told her something which made the great mother happy. She was happy enough to invest 3 great mothers in the attack on the Stellaris plane.

The first sage was also happy to acquire some much-needed information about Legion-7 from the great mothers. Only he was not happy.

The good news is that he is not alone in that unhappiness. The invasion of the Stellaris plane by the dragons, phoenixes, and Stellos ended in failure so the great mothers became unhappy.

The great mothers also failed to ensnare Legion-7 through Salvini. She didn't actually contact Salvini to use her. She contacted the first sage who contacted Salvini. This led to Salvini offering Legion the deal about the information of a substance that can lead to his evolution.

The great mothers still haven't given up on Legion-7. She knows his identity but she also knows that she can't do anything to him as long as he remains in the protection of the Supreme Alliance. But things will be different if Legion-7 leaves that protection and returns to the spiritual.

This is because Legion-7 seems to have lost his ability to become intangible. No one knows for sure but the first sage seems to be certain of it. The first sage deduced from the information that the hounds of the bloodline of justice acquired that Legion-7 can't evade attacks anymore or he wouldn't have been threatened by the lightning storm or the Celestial Supreme.

It is a long shot but it emboldened the great mother to try and nab Legion-7 in the Stellaris plane. They attacked the Stellaris plane but failed. They still didn't give up so they wanted to tempt Legion-7 with something that would make him return to the spiritual dimension.

Of course, the information about what can make Legion-7 evolve is real. The realm lord was truthful about it when he had first offered it to Legion-7. But since then, the object has found its way into the spiritual dimension where it is being guarded by the great mothers.

So Salvini wasn't lying about the information. But if Legion-7 had accepted the deal, not only would Salvini become safe from Legion, but Legion-7 would also go to the spiritual dimension where he will find the great mothers waiting for them. If he can't become intangible anymore then he won't be able to escape from the great mothers.

All of these don't concern the realm lord much apart from the fact that the great mothers had promised that if they succeeded in nabbing Legion-7, they would reward him for linking her up with the first sage. As things are right now, it is unlikely that he will get that reward.

The great mother's reward aside, what he truly wants is the special reward that made Legion-7 become intangible in the first place. But the only inkling he has ever gotten about the special reward was the moment when Ragnarok began destroying the Lumen plane.

The system noticed a spike in Cosmic force around his tails. That was after the failure of his deal with Legion-7. It brought to light how much he missed with that deal and has firmed his intentions to acquire more information about it. Unfortunately, wishes are not horses.

He shook his head to remove the disappointment and instead thought to himself in anticipation, "It doesn't matter. I will get what I want soon. I will get everything and no one will be able to stand in my way."

The realm lord was deep in thought when Mother High Heaven spoke to him. "I am surprised that the encounter with Star Shatterer ended well. I remember her explosive temper very well so I expected a disaster."

Then she asked him, "Do you know that she was part of the forces that wiped out the ancient Supreme beasts so that their genes and ideology wouldn't contaminate the new Supreme Alliance?"

He chuckled and replied. "I didn't know that but I am not surprised to hear it."

"As for the encounter, I knew what she and the Supreme Alliance wanted. They wanted an advantage during the era of conquest. It is just their nature to feel superior and look for opportunities to be superior. I just gave them that opportunity so the star shatterer was appeased."

Mother High Heaven asked, "So her anger wasn't real?"

The Realm lord shook his head. "It was both real and a facade. To a world god, everything is about benefits. Her anger and threat would have been real if I had not appeased her. But it is also a facade because there was nothing for her to gain by going to war with me."

"I would be hurt and so will the realm, but it wouldn't improve the situation of the Supreme Alliance. So it was more of a show. A dance of interests if you will."

Mother High Heaven spoke, "Anyways, it is a good thing that you let this end well. But I am still surprised that you let it end well after they threatened you."

She wasn't concerned about the reaction of the Star Shatterer. The realm tree of high heaven is a mid-grade world with the protection of the void universe. A world god can't do anything to her right now. Besides, they have offended a lot of world gods. What's one more?

She was more concerned about the realm lord's reaction to being hamstrung and threatened like that. The Supreme Alliance was the one to offend him no matter how angry the star Shatterer looked. He is the one who should be angry for their intentions to interfere in the era of conquest.

He could have told the star Shatterer off because of that. It would definitely lead to bad consequences for the realm tree. The Star Shatterer might not be able to do anything against the realm directly but the Supreme Alliance is not made solely of world gods. There are a lot of powerful Origin gods such as the one that can refine a whole plane into an army.

Chapter 1392 The Era Of Conquest Is Coming.

Monarch High Heaven shrugged and replied, "They are tools. They may be proud tools and they may create a fuss but they are still tools for us to be victorious in the era of conquest."

They call him the mad elf because of his disregard for consequences but he is not stupid. He disregarded consequences because they don't matter in the long run. Those consequences won't affect his main aim so didn't care about them. But antagonizing the Supreme Alliance is not that.

It would be foolish to antagonize the Supreme Alliance when all they want is a way to serve him better. It is a foolish move that even his damaged psyche wouldn't allow him to do. It is as they say, one shouldn't look a gift horse in the mouth.

"That's true." Mother High Heaven conceded. "So have you made a decision concerning the realm tree we will target?"

That question brightened him up. He said excitedly, "Yes, I have. It is the Realm of Tyrants."

Mother High Heaven wasn't so glad. "Are you sure? We won't be able to leverage the advantage of our realm configuration against them. They have just one plane of existence so it would cost a lot to reconfigure our realm for the spatial alignment."

He replied confidently. "I am certain. They don't have a realm lord so it is good."

But his confidence isn't infectious so Mother High Heaven was still concerned. "But they have Tyrants."

"I know that. I am not ignorant of the races that the realm I want to engage in a battle to the death with has."

"That's not what I am saying. I am saying Tyrants are very strong. They are called Tyrants for a reason. Their whole realm was named after them for a reason."

Monarch High Heaven still wasn't concerned. He said with disdain, "Tyrants are not realm lords and even if they were, there is no realm lord like me."

Mother High Heaven insisted, "But it will be so much easier if we chose a weak realm without a problematic race."

He waved away her concerns. "The Tyrant Realm won't be a problem either. Trust me. Have I ever failed to deliver?"

"Yes." Came the quick reply.

He didn't feel awkward about being called out on his failures. He said with a straight face, "Those were unexpected circumstances. They were flukes that no one could account for. Don't forget that this is very important to me too. I will die if we fail so you can be certain that I won't botch things. You know how much I have planned for this."

"That's true. I can give you that. You have made a lot of preparations."

"Yes, I have. Trust me. We will win." He said confidently.

"If you say so." She said before leaving.

He said to himself after she left. "I have to win. There is no other option."

He has burned a lot of bridges to get to where he is today. He has made a lot of enemies that will surely end him even if he somehow survives the destruction of the realm tree and its realm heart. So he must be victorious in the era of conquest or all the consequences that he disregarded in the past will come around and show themselves as relevant.

He has to win for reasons other than survival. Becoming a world god with a very strong world is the minimum requirement for the first one to fully awaken. That awakening must be realized at all costs which means he must succeed in the era of conquest.

Any delay in the awakening of the first one is just more time for him to suffer due to the injury on his psychic engram. So he must succeed as soon as possible.

Besides, he doesn't want to start again from scratch this close to the end of the universe. He doesn't want to miss the opportunity that will arrive when the void universe ends so he has made a lot of preparations for success.

He has gotten world gods on his side who are also anxious for his success. He has also gotten the only ones who could betray the realm on his side.

"Victory comes to those that are prepared for the possibility of failure." He said to himself with a chuckle. "I learned that from the first sage."

He is prepared for every possible problem that he might face during the era of conquest. Not only did he shackle the demons and the abyss to his boat metaphorically, to prevent betrayal, he even allowed an opportunity for betrayal to exist so that he could snoop on the realm he wants to target.

It is smart to anticipate betrayal and seal every avenue for it, but it is smarter to allow a betrayer to exist so that he can gain more. At the very least he is aware of the only avenue of betrayal. If the enemy takes the bait and contacts the demon god of GREED, then they will be falling into his trap.

He turned a problem into an opportunity. It made him laugh sinisterly to himself.

He said, "Schemes and more schemes."

Every single action of his is carried out with multiple goals in mind. He did not stop the exploitation of Life Trees because of the goodness of his heart. That action made him a lot of enemies and yet he managed to gain the support of many world gods for the era of conquest.

He did not use the Shadow Lurker to terrorize the Supreme Alliance for fun. He did not make the deal to help the great mother just because he was interested in the law of the soul. He did not choose the Realm of Tyrants instead of a weaker realm at a whim. Everything has a purpose that will benefit him.

He said proudly to himself, "I may not compare to the first sage but I try my best."

He is a man of schemes. He has schemes against everything and everyone. He has many plans that will go unused and many that might be critical to his success. All will be made known in the era of conquest.

He muttered in anticipation. "The Era of conquest is coming."

THE END.

-----

A/N: There you have it. The end of Volume 6: Supremacy. I hope at the very least, you know what Supremacy is about.

Search the website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

Tip: You can use left, right keyboard keys to browse between chapters.

If you find any errors (non-standard content, ads redirect, broken links, etc.), Please let us know so we can fix it as soon as possible.

Chapter 1393 Nipping The Trouble In The Bud.

The Beginning Of Volume 7.

---After The Void Universe Was Threatened With Destruction.

Somewhere on the dark side of the universe past the Corridor of Worlds. This event occurred some time ago when the void universe was threatened by a singularity of infinite possibilities.

The void universe is very large so a tiny hole through the space-time continuum won't be easily noticed and neither will its effect be easily felt. Only those who have a close connection to the operations of the void universe noticed the tiny hole and only they put in the necessary work needed to fix it.

One such entity is streaking across the thick frozen darkness of reality. It is moving in a straight line and with a purpose. This entity just left a meeting that ended with bad news so it is understandably angry.

"They do this every time," It said with anger. "They make a mess and leave to pick it up."

This entity is angry and it is angry with the act of rectifying part of the problem that has made it angry. The smart thing to do is to remove everything about the problem including the person or group of people that created the problem.

But no, they didn't remove the whole problem. They just fixed the tiny hole and let the criminal go with a nice reward for his actions. Who wouldn't be angry with that?

Sure they said that the troublemaker won't be able to create a tiny hole anymore after Origin flame was used. But that doesn't satisfy this entity. Fortunately, it has a plan.

Its current mission, if successful, won't fix the whole problem, but it will take the edge off of it. It will nullify the greatest trouble and make things easier for it to solve. It is still lacking but it is better than nothing.

This entity muttered to itself as if flew, "I do all of this hard work and what do I ask for? I ask to kill the troublemaker. It is just one little thing. No one will miss the trouble maker but they refused. Now I have to murk around the dirt with more criminals just to fix the first problem. If I have my way, all of them will be put to death. They will all die a painful and gruesome death and I will..."

It continued to complain and grumble for quite a while. It is indeed very angry.

What's greater than its anger that the problem was allowed to occur in the first place or the denial of its request to end the troublemaker once and for all, is its anger about what it is about to do to solve part of the trouble.

It doesn't want to do what it is about to do but it has to be done. Otherwise, it might not be able to solve the real problem when the opportunity arises. Because as things are going, Legion might grow too strong by the time they become world gods.

As the entity created and tasked to keep the order of the void universe, it will always decide to overcome its distaste for the greater good of the void universe. So it will grumble and complain, but it will still do what needs to be done.

The dark side of the universe is very strange. It is very dark so most life forms won't even be able to see ahead. Divine sense can't operate here either. The pressure of reality will cause it to collapse.

For weak life forms that need divine sense to see, if they somehow are capable of surviving here without getting crushed, they will only exist in a state of limbo. Their reality will be nothing but darkness and it will be a crushing darkness too, not an ordinary lack of light. It is a darkness that not only rejects light, it seeks to strangle life.

This crushing pressure makes the dark side a constant battlefield between the void universe and the strong creatures that can survive here. Most world gods hate the pressure but not this creature. The pressure is one of the best things it likes about the void universe. If it were up to it, the pressure would be stronger. This way, every living thing on the dark side will struggle more to survive. This will satisfy its enjoyment and also reduce the propagation of Chaos caused by their actions.

The love of the pressure might have something to do with the fact that this entity isn't feeling any pressure. It is more like an embrace to it rather than a crushing pressure.

This way, it has no problem moving on the dark side of the universe.

It is almost as if there is no obstruction in its path whatsoever. The frozen reality is malleable to its manipulation so it can move easily. It makes it so that it isn't in danger of getting lost this far from the Corridor of Worlds.

The Corridor of Worlds is the point of relativity in the dark side of the universe. Without it, there would be no up and down. Worse than that, the position of anything in the void universe cannot be calculated and tracked without it serving as the center of the void universe.

As it is, everything is in constant motion in the dark side of the universe. You can tell the position or the velocity of any object but only one at a time. You can't tell both at once so getting lost is very easy without the Corridor of Worlds serving as the anchor for lighthouse spatial positioning.

But this entity doesn't need the Corridor of Worlds to tell it where it is going and how soon it will get there. It always knows where it is and where other things are in the void universe.

It knows the Void Universe like the back of its non-existent hands. In fact, it isn't so much as moving forward as the universe is pushing it forward. It is why the crushing pressure feels like an embrace.

Chapter 1394 A Ruler Or An Usurper.

Others might find the phenomenon of the pressure assisting someone instead of trying to kill them strange but not this entity. This is normal to it. It is on a mission for the Void Universe so it is not strange that the Void Universe is assisting it.

It found its target after a few years of faster-than-light speed. This is because its target has hidden itself as far away as possible. But again, hiding is futile to it. It will always find its target as long as they are in the void universe.

A domineering Will smashed against the Protector from the target. The angry Protector didn't bother to resist. It didn't need to because the Will didn't reach it.

The domineering Will veered off to its side. It is strange that such a powerful being would fail to hit something and worse still, fail to hit something with his Will, but it is so when any entity in the void universe tries to hit or harm the Protector.

The target spoke after he realized who it was that had found him. "So it is you. What brings you here Overgod of rules?"

The Protector didn't correct him about its title. He is not wrong to call it an Overgod. After all, it is truly at the top of the void universe in terms of power. It is over and above everyone.

The protector said to its target, "I have brought grave news."

Its target still didn't show itself but it was paying attention. It spoke from the darkness that it used to shroud itself, "Please, do tell."

The two powerful entities began to converse in this all-encompassing and suffocating darkness. One of them is a single round object that looks like a head because of the indistinct face on it. It will have to be a very strange head because it has an irregular shape that is constantly shifting and possesses several indistinct faces on it. These features are all anyone can see of the Protector. The other entity participating in this conversation is obscured in the darkness. It is darkness different from the darkness of the void universe. The Protector can see through this darkness and can see the colossal creature hiding within it.

The Protector stated in a grave manner, "Draco. One of your descendants is about to go out of bounds."

Draco wasn't concerned. "You don't need to tell me about what they did wrong. You can remove them for their transgressions. I am done with them. They have outlived their purpose. You can do with them what you want."

"No. This is far more than the breaking of the rules and I am not here out of respect to you. This concerns you too."

Draco was intrigued. "Is that so?"

"Yes, your status might be threatened."

That made Draco laugh. He truly finds it funny that whatever his descendants are up to can threaten him.

"I am a ruler of the universe and I am about to complete my transformation to become an Apex being. How is my status threatened? And how can it be threatened by one of my crippled descendants?"

The Protector became angry immediately. It said with visible anger and disdain, "You are not a ruler. You're an Usurper who stole what doesn't belong to him. Just like you usurped power, someone else can usurp yours too. Is that not why you are hiding away?"

Its disdain was practically oozing at this point as it said, "Look at you skulking around and hiding like a thief. This descendant of yours has the greatest chance of getting what you hold dear above everyone else. And he can do so without finding you."

The Protector had to do its best not to leave immediately. Just standing here disgusts it endlessly. It is in its nature to hate those that break the rules of the void universe or propagate Chaos but it can't do anything against Draco because the ancestor of dragons has something that is protecting him.

The protector is a creature of rules so it has to abide by the rules of its existence. Sometimes it questions why the creator created the universe with the possibility of Chaos. It could clearly eliminate Draco and remove the Chaos he is propagating but it can't do so because of the rules.

Still, it has never and can never question its identity and purpose. That's why it will overcome its hatred and continue speaking with this dirty usurper. After all, there are some things that it can't do because of the rules that someone like Draco can do.

Draco asked. "What do you want of me?"

"I want you to eliminate it. I know that you will be preoccupied with your transformation so you might not notice this hidden danger. I am just here to inform you before it becomes too late. Consider it a favor so you don't have to give me anything."

Draco wasn't happy because of the favor. He said without much enthusiasm, "I see."

Consider it a favor so you don't have to give me anything."

Draco wasn't happy because of the favor. He said without "I will leave now. I am very busy." The protector said then he streaked away.

Draco was deep in thought. "This must be very serious."

He believes that this is very serious because anything that involves the Overgod can not be taken lightly. So he has to take this seriously. But the first thing he did was to move away from his current position.

He knows that the Overgod is unlikely to tell anyone of his position since it doesn't like to propagate Chaos and that his position is constantly changing and cannot be easily found this far away from the Corridor of Worlds, but he still decided to move.

He can be called overly cautious but he has reasons to be cautious bordering on paranoia. He is in a critical situation where he cannot entertain any interruption.

It is as the Overgod said, he stole something from the void universe and is using it to increase his state of existence. This is a great thing but he doesn't dare to brag about it to the world.

-----

A/N: I used to understand the anger of the protector but he has gone too far this time around. He has become a snitch.

Chapter 1395 Draco The Dominator.

Instead of bragging about it, he is hiding in the deep crevices of the void universe. This is because there are a lot of entities in the void universe that want what he has. He is not an apex entity yet so what he stole can still be stolen from him.

So they will swarm to him in thousands if his position is leaked. Even world gods will reach ten thousand. If that happens then he will lose what he has worked for for such a long time.

Prevention is better than cure especially when you have too much to lose so he moved. And in so doing, his form was revealed.

Draco is a Leviathan beyond the parameters used to measure physical dimensions. He is a leviathan spiritually, physically, and energy-wise. He is titanic in body and mind. He is large beyond words could ever describe.

Just seeing his existence is enough for the minds of Sovereigns to explode. They will try to comprehend just how large he is and that will be their doom. It is because he is larger than words can describe.

His size is not surprising since this is his true body. The bulk of his power is not contained here but his true body possesses the foundation of his power. The destruction of his true body won't kill him but it will weaken him drastically.

As a body that contains the foundation of a power greater than that of a world god, it is not a wonder that he has scales that are as large as planes.

The smallest scale on his body has a surface area of 500 million kilometers square. Living beings could live on his body and not know of his existence. They would think he is all of existence. They would be like the living beings living within him who don't know that their entire universe is part of a living entity.

He has a terrifying crown of horns befitting an entity of his great might. It is terrifying because the horns look like embedded blades on his head. The metallic blades are all sharp while some are broken and others are curved.

His crown of blades is not as iconic as his eye. Anyone can have a crown of blades but his eye is unique in the whole void universe. He will be recognized as soon as someone powerful sees his eye.

He has a single eye that has 13 pupils. Each pupil has a different color. They represent all the laws that he was born with dominion of. No other being in the void universe was born with his eye and no one possesses it.

Four pupils of his eye are larger than the others. They take the center of his eye and divide it equally. The other nine pupils form a ring around the two.

With this single eye, he can see and dominate the laws of fire, water, air, earth, life, death, light, darkness, lightning, space, time, creation, and destruction. He doesn't control them. Control is for those who have met the comprehension requirement to manipulate the laws.

He was not born with the comprehension of these laws and yet he could manipulate them. That's because he was born too powerful for the laws not to bend to his will. His crippled descendants dominate mana and spells while he dominates laws.

Draco roused his existence into action. His thousands of wings were set into motion. They pushed reality aside and made way for him through the world. This way, he can move through obstacles because his wings will create a path through it.

He was propelled forward through the tough tar that is the fabric of the dark side of the void universe. The crushing dark reality around him couldn't stop him from moving at many times the speed of light.

Draco looks like a dragon but he is far from the might of his diminutive descendants. Dragons have 6 wings at most, unlike his large array and assortment of thousands of wings.

It is more accurate to say that dragons look like him. After all, it is from him that they got all of their features. They are just less beautiful and less powerful than Draco.

He moved to another hidden corner of the void universe. It is a location close to the edge of the void universe. The reality here is fragile and weak. He could break out of the void universe and leave it from here.

But he is not going to do that because he wouldn't be able to return after leaving. At least no one who has ever left has ever returned. As it is, no one knows what's outside the void universe but he is not curious enough to find out.

It was not until he secured himself again that he began to address the problem that the Overgod had brought to his attention. His gaze disregarded distance to lock on to every one of his descendants.

He started with every world god. They are the closest things that can threaten him. They might have been born as crippled versions of himself, but the path of perfection is no joke.

Some of his descendants have done well for themselves so he cannot underestimate or overlook anyone of them. Especially not when the Overgod specifically came to warn him.

Some of his descendants even sensed his gaze. They looked around searching for who it was that gazed at them. Their actions impressed and amused him.

"Not bad. But not good enough."

The fact that they sensed his gaze, especially the gaze of a ruler, is impressive. But finding the source of that gaze is not something that just about anyone can achieve, not even if they are dragons.

He chuckled with mirth as he continued his search. His gaze was fast and his mind was vast. But it still wasn't easy searching the entire void universe for his descendants. It was like looking for needles in an ocean. It was even more difficult to go through every realm tree seeded with descendants.

Chapter 1396 The Gap Of Darkness.

He said with a proud smile as he watched, "Their reproduction is slow and their fertility is poor but they sure spread like fleas."

Every action of dragons has something to do with him. Their impressive actions particularly also make him impressive. After all, he is their source of greatness. So he is proud whenever he sees how well they are doing.

Dragons have done especially well in spreading and dominating their environment. They have poor reproductive capabilities but their numbers have swollen beyond the trillions after so many Origin cycles since their creation.

So it is difficult to examine all of them and he rarely does so. If not for the Overgod then he wouldn't have bothered.

He was impressed just a little bit more the longer he searched. Dragons form a large portion of the strongest inhabitants of the universe. They have truly performed well for the purpose of their creation. Their collective existence was of great help to him in stealing the Cosmic source that he is now imbibing.

He is rarely impressed but he is proud of his descendants. They may be crippled when compared to him but they have succeeded in being a dominating race in the void universe. It shows just how great he is if weak copies of himself are so strong. But his pride soured when he noticed the problem that the Overgod mentioned.

"This is truly a serious issue," He said when he noticed the problematic egg.

He would have missed it completely if the Overgod had not told him. This small egg is doing something other dragons should not be doing. It had not only created a complete dragon heart for some inexplicable reason, but It was also trying to recreate his eye.

If this egg manages to recreate his innate divine ability, then he might be able to interfere with his possession of the cosmic source.

"The Overgod was right. But this interesting too."

His Will moved and his intention was made manifest. Time rolled back in his vision of this egg so the past of this ambitious egg was displayed to him. He saw everything the egg had done.

What's interesting is that there is no past for the egg after a few years. He didn't see how the egg was laid and who laid it. It was as if the egg just popped into existence within a nest of other eggs. There is only darkness in Draco's vision past a certain point.

Draco muttered, "It is as if the existence of the dragon egg was destroyed to create a gap in its history. Someone is clearly hiding something. Who did he it?"

The darkness that appeared in his vision happens when someone dies. But that can't be so since the dragon egg is clearly alive. So he became suspicious and determined to find out what was being hidden.

He moved farther into the past to look beyond the gap. He wasn't disappointed by the attempt. He saw that the egg was normal before this strange gap. It only had an inexplicably powerful soul. There doesn't seem to be anything out of place other than that but he won't believe that.

The powerful soul is already an indication that the egg is abnormal. But he can't find the source or reason for the powerful soul. It is as if it suddenly appeared within the egg.

"That makes two anomalies. An egg should not have such a powerful soul and something must have happened to the egg during the gap. The clue might be in the gap. After all, someone powerful went to such great lengths to hide something from me."

He couldn't find any information because of the gap and he wasn't willing to give up so he used the cosmic source he is in control of. This time there was no resistance to the manifestation of his will. In fact, he gained an ability he shouldn't possess.

Reality changed before his gaze. Matter and energy became pure information. Numbers and concepts appeared within his sight. These numbers formed a stream of information about the dragon egg.

It can be likened to the record of its entire life. It contains every action of the dragon egg and their effect on the void universe including the amount of energy it has used from the void universe, its mass, how many times it breathed, and how much air it breathed each time.

Draco went through this record and noticed something peculiar in the stream of information about the dragon egg. This egg is connected to other entities.

At first, he was surprised. But his surprise changed to shock when he noticed that the connection was not involuntary or predatory. An external entity wasn't trying to possess the egg or force a connection on it. Instead, that egg started out as possessed and now the egg is not a single entity. It is part of a large body of existence.

"I see. This is getting bigger and bigger."

He is very impressed by what he has seen. There are very few things that can impress him since he is so old and so powerful. But despite all of his years, he has never seen an entity that has succeeded in reincarnating their clones into other races and be accepted as separate individuals by the void universe.

He has certainly seen many who have tried. But not many have ever succeeded. The problem is that the entities powerful enough to achieve reincarnation will be too powerful for their clones to be acknowledged as separate individuals. They are too powerful to be considered separate while the weak ones cannot meet the requirements to reincarnate.

Even so, what he has seen has only impressed him. It hasn't made him afraid. He expected this matter to be more serious than a descendant of his trying to steal his power.

A descendant trying to steal his power is serious enough but it is not enough for the Overgod to come and inform him. The Overgod doesn't care about patricide so there has to be more.

Chapter 1397 The Anomalies.

"So Legion tried to reincarnate into 9 bodies. 7 succeeded while the 1 for Phoenix race failed. Ironic enough, the Phoenix clone went to the spiritual dimension and survived while the demon clone died within the egg. This is some interesting stuff."

Everything was laid bare before him. He saw everything from when Gehaldirah Oakstein was born up to his successful reincarnation. He also saw the history of each clone.

One thing that stood out to him was the survival of Legion-7 against all odds while the demon clone died. He is certain the demon clone died because his history disappeared completely after a few years in the egg.

The death of the demon clone didn't give him pause so Draco continued looking through the history of the other clones. He didn't need to search for a long while before finding the issue.

He was right to suspect that the crux of the matter lay in the gap of darkness in the history of the dragon egg. The cause of this gap was unrelated to the dragon egg but it affected the remaining 8 clones.

He saw the actions of some clones who decided it was a good idea to mix Chaos, Order, and divinity. This created an incomprehensible object which poked a hole in the void universe and caused the gap in history.

What Draco saw stunned him. Now he has seen what was so important that the Overgod couldn't sit still and had to inform him. Even he was moved in awe and admiration.

He said as he looked through their history, "So this is Legion. They broke a law of the universe of the universe for the second time. Why did they mix Chaos, Order, and Divinity? Did they know it will work?"

What he saw was so confusing that he had many questions. He can see actions and physical properties in the history but he can't see thoughts or motives so he is left wondering why the clones think it would be a good idea.

"Where did they even get Chaos energy from? That is very rare and dangerous."

"Could they have gotten it from the demon clone before it died? How did they keep it? Could it have been in their mind network all along? They will be mad to do that."

Another thing that bothered him was the appearance of Chaos energy for the experiment that led to the creation of the singularity. He can't find its source. It seemed to have suddenly appeared around them. It made him wary.

"This doesn't check out. Something else is going on here. Someone powerful might be scheming something."

He searched and searched but he only found more anomalies and no answers. He found this anomaly in the history of some other entities that interacted with Legion. For example, Zernon the Celestial Supreme of the Zargoth plane seemed to have been attacked by an unseen entity.

There are more anomalies like that. Those entities saw something but it was wiped clean from their history. Instead of becoming more curious, Draco gave up on it immediately.

"Just as I thought. This involves bigger issues than some dragon egg threatening my position as Ruler. Someone or something is out to get the Void Universe and the Overgod doesn't want it to happen."

His single eye narrowed as he contemplated his course of action. He has to decide if he will continue investigating or back off. He ultimately decided to continue. There's something compelling about this situation that he finds interesting.

He returned his gaze to Legion's history. A quick look at what they were up to made him chuckle.

"They broke two laws of the universe and are already about to break two more. I would be anxious too if I were the Overgod. This is insanity."

Most of the entities in the void universe go their entire lives without the knowledge that it is possible to break the laws of the void universe. Even the strongest amongst these ignorant beings won't know that it is possible until they become world gods. It is then that they will have to fight the void universe for resources and power.

Many world gods fail at it. Not many of them are as successful as him. As for those who already tried to break a law of the void universe before they become world gods, most of them fail. Not many of them succeed.

As a being that was born in the early stage of the void universe, he has seen many entities that succeeded in breaking a law before they became world gods. He hasn't seen those that broke two but he is sure they exist because he has heard about them. However, this is the first time he has heard of someone breaking 3 probably 4 if Legion play their cards right.

He hadn't bothered to learn the name of this multiple-body individual when he found out about their reincarnation. It wasn't as if he would have forgotten but that information wasn't prioritized at all.

But now he has decided that the entity named Legion is worthy of the respect of a primordial being and that knowing their name is important.

Draco was amused.

He thought to himself, "They have truly taken on the properties of a dragon. They are proud and greedy. They are even trying to become me."

"They might be more a dragon than my descendants."

They say dragons are proud but just like everything else, they can't compare to their ancestor in pride. Only other primordials or Usurpers are worthy of his respect. This Legion is neither but he has earned his respect.

This respect is well earned. It is not only because this entity succeeded in reincarnation, breaking another rule, or about to break another rule. It is also because Legion is trying and doing well in imitating him.

The fact that Legion is following in his path through the dragon egg seems to be the smallest thing they have achieved. Legion also seems to be using the power of many to leverage benefits from the void universe. It is uncanny to him because that's exactly what he did with the dragon race in the universe.

-----

A/N: Can you guess what the possible laws to be broken by Legion are?

Search the website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

Chapter 1398 Gestating Godling.

Someone as powerful as him can't go around the void universe making descendants for the fun of it. He is not that lasciviousness, neither does he have so much time to waste. He created the dragon race to gain power and he succeeded in it.

It could be a coincidence that this Legion is following in his path. It might be a coincidence that he chose a dragon as one of his clones. Legion might not be after his Cosmic source.

It might be a coincidence that the dragon clone turned into a godling clone. But coincidence or not, the second law that they broke has turned Legion into his enemy. It is also an enemy that Draco has to take seriously.

He delved deeper into the history of this Legion and all his clones. Nothing about Legion could be hidden from him. After all, he is not looking through his eyes, he is looking through the eyes of the Will of the void universe.

The Will of the void universe is omniscient and omnipresent. It knows everything there is to know about the void universe. It is not omnipotent due to the laws that it abides by but its knowledge about every being in the universe is unparalleled.

Draco can take a peek into that archive of information through the cosmic source that he stole. The only thing that can be hidden from him and the void universe is Legion's thoughts and memories. All of his actions and the state of his existence are laid bare.

"What do I do about this?" he mused to himself.

He knows why the Overgod came to inform him about Legion. The Overgod can't do anything to Legion yet because their state of existence is too far apart for interaction to occur.

But the Overgod is not willing to wait until he can move into action because Legion might become a bigger problem in the meantime. So it came to Draco who has a certain amount of influence on Legion.

Draco is also far beyond Legion too. He should not be able to do anything to Legion if not for the fact that a part of Legion is a true dragon. That gives him a channel to take action.

But he doesn't want to solve the problem for the Overgod. He is not a tool for the void universe. If he were, he wouldn't have stolen the Cosmic source.

It is especially a bad idea to be a lackey because of the anomalies surrounding Legion. So no, he won't be a tool. He wants to take advantage of the situation. He wants to get that strange orb that each clone of Legion possesses. It is the same orb that turned the dragon egg into a gestating godling.

Draco said proudly, "It was not a bad decision to have descendants. It took a lot of time and effort but it has paid far more than it cost to do so."

Then he focused on Legion and said, "If you will steal from me, then I can steal from you too."

If that strange orb can turn a dragon egg into a godling, then it might be able to turn someone born as a godling into something more powerful. Draco doesn't know for sure if it will work, but he is willing to find out.

-----Tribulation

Legion-5 knew it was coming. Legion-7 expected it and he anticipated it simply because they are about to do something that no one has ever done before.

Legion-7 was sure that it would come because he was sure that the void universe wouldn't let them have their way easily. He has been able to hide from the void universe within Legion-5. But the breakthrough to Origin god means that Legion -5 would become one with the void universe.

He would not be hiding inside Legion-5 anymore. Their existence would mesh when Legion-5 fuses completely with his seed of power which is his inner world. That means he would become exposed to the void universe from then on.

It is just right to expect that the void universe would try everything to stop them from becoming an Origin god who is part of its law matrix.

Legion-5 on the other hand expected the tribulation because he would be officially fusing the part of perfection, the path of divinity, and the power of demons together.

He would be using these three paths to perfect himself which the void universe might not be happy to see. In a way, his simple act of becoming an Origin god will offend the void universe twice so a tribulation is all but certain to come.

He has Origin essence to advance so all he needs to do is use the Origin essence to fuse his existence.

He is not using the tribulation method to advance. There is no need for tribulation to test his qualifications for advancement before he advances because he has Origin essence. But he is certain that tribulation will come to stop him.

They expect that the tribulation would cause a lot of disturbance so Legion-5 decided to find a way to escape from the Supreme Alliance. He is not leaving because a tribulation is strange. Other supreme beasts use the tribulation to advance to Origin god every time so no one would bat an eye at the appearance of a tribulation.

But a tribulation only appears for a Supreme beast after many Origin cycles of comprehending laws and the completion of the fusion of all their divine abilities. It doesn't appear less than an Origin cycle of birth so it would definitely draw unwanted attention when the tribulation comes for him.

He decided to leave since he was not willing to wait for so long when he could advance as soon as possible.

He met with his handler first. His handler, a female Origin god Supreme Beast considered his request and said, "So you want an assignment to earn points?"

"Yes." He confirmed.

"There is an opening for you in Hichtaku plane. They need some supervisors for the hatchery. You can sign up there. Here is the list of vacancies in the realm."

-----

A/N: I remember when someone in the discord channel was making fun of dragons and the dragon ancestor for fucking around. I wanted to stand up to defend Draco but I had to keep quiet not to spoil anything.

I have so much bottled within me. I don't think it is healthy.

Chapter 1399 Perfect Parents.

Legion-5 read through the list and decided on a plane. He made his decision known to his handler.

She said to him, "Here are the details of your posting. I will inform them of your coming."

He said, "Alright." Then he turned to leave.

His supervisor called after him, "I recommend that you get an escort for protection until you get to the plane."

"I'll do that." He said in agreement.

He lied. He doesn't plan to do that. He left his handler knowing fully well that he wouldn't reach his posting. His situation is pretty good here in the ancient battlefield. He can lay about doing nothing for many Origin cycles. That's the only option for him if he wants to stay here since there is nothing useful for him to do here.

But he can't do that since he is already prepared to become an Origin god and he has gotten news that the era of conquest will start in less than an Origin cycle. There is no way he will allow himself to lag behind and waste time doing nothing.

The other option is for him to leave. Other Supreme beasts do this too. They work for the Supreme Alliance to get the resources needed for their breakthrough while also comprehending the laws they need and fusing their divine abilities.

Supreme beasts aren't like other Sovereigns. They are strong in the aspect of divine abilities but they are weak in the aspect of stats. They need a lot of life essence to strengthen themselves if they are to survive the tribulation.

However, they won't be able to get life essence easily if they aren't in the rite of passage anymore. If they need Life essence, they must work diligently for it. He is using that opportunity to work to leave the Supreme Alliance for a while.

He looked at all the Origin materials and weapons in his storage artifact that he has hoarded over the years and he couldn't help but smile.

"Talk about eating my cake and having it." He said as he packed away the things he might need.

He could have escaped without permission if he wanted to but he doesn't want to leave the Supreme Alliance completely yet. It is a case of being greedy.

The Supreme Alliance is rich, and powerful, and has been very good to him. They are almost like the parents he would have wanted. If only they would allow him to take everything they have without asking for anything in return then they would be the perfect parents.

Unfortunately, they are not the perfect parents. He can't just leave whenever he wants and he certainly can't become an Origin god without being questioned. He doesn't want to sever his ties with them so he has to prepare a way to return.

The Supreme Alliance made arrangements for his work and informed him of them. He went to the teleportation system that the Supreme Alliance has prepared to get him across to the planar portal of the plane.

He was surprised when he heard what they arranged for him, "They cuddle us too much so I can't leave."

Teleportation is very expensive but they are willing to allow it to ensure his safety. With Teleportation as a means of transportation, it will not feel as if he is going across the ancient battlefield. It would look like he is just stepping into his backyard. But even then, his handler recommended that he get some escort for protection.

The need for escorts for protection is on top of all the security at the teleportation checkpoints and the fact that they can track him through his identity mark. It shows just how much the Supreme Alliance cares for him. It also makes it painful to leave such a good life.

Just the information channel of the Supreme Alliance is more than enough to continue to stick with them. After all, no one else seems to have gotten the latest news about the impending era of conquest.

Apparently, the start of the era of conquest has been decided but only the Supreme Alliance, the realm lord, and Mother High Heaven know when it will start. He doesn't know how the Supreme Alliance managed it but it is undoubtedly impressive. Still, he has to leave.

Legion-5 left the Megastructure that is the headquarters of the Supreme Alliance. It is a building that almost rivals the Tower of Heaven in height. Legion-5 is sure that it is much smaller than the Tower of Heaven both in external size and internal size, but he isn't sure which has better service.

While the Tower of Heaven contains Origin energy in the highest concentration possible, the Tower of Supremacy caters to the luxury of its inhabitants.

They don't have the highest concentration of Origin energy in the Tower of Supremacy, but sometimes, luxury trumps practicality.

You can't have any race you want to eat delivered to you in the tower of heaven and neither can you have your whims catered to or be treated like royalty. That is more than enough for the Tower of Supremacy to beat the Tower of Heaven in his own book.

"I am going to miss you." He said as he took one last look at the magnificent structure.

The Tower of Supremacy stood in all its shininess. The materials that were used to build it enhance and reflect light perfectly. So light that strikes it is amplified before it is reflected. It makes the Tower of Supremacy very bright.

The constant daylight in the ancient battlefield makes it so that anyone looking at it with their eyes will be stung by the glare of reflection. Supreme beasts don't have eyes so they don't care. They live in luxury while punishing people who stare at their shining 100,000-floor building.

"This way please." A Sovereign said to him.

He nodded and followed the Sovereign to the teleportation circle.

This Sovereign is one of the numerous slaves created and nurtured by the Supreme Alliance. They are premium livestock.

Chapter 1400 It Worked And That's All That Matters.

They are fake sovereigns who became sovereigns by fusing with the seed of power of dead Sovereigns. This will ensure that they are weak and cannot become Origin gods without attending the trial of heaven.

The Tower of Supremacy is full of luxury slaves like them. They serve the Supreme Beasts with all their lives including their bodies. As long as Supreme beasts can pay for them, they can even kill one and eat it.

He is certain of this rule because he confirmed it. He tried once but he decided it was too expensive to indulge in it no matter how delicious the flesh of a Sovereign is.

The Sovereign slave led him to the teleportation circle while others activated it. It is more of translocation since the space where he is in will be locked and swapped with the space at the target location.

The teleportation artifact activated and froze him including his surroundings. For a brief moment, it felt like he was in frozen tar. Then he disappeared from the headquarters as the artifact translocated him.

He should have appeared at the other end of the spatial tunnel. But something or someone stole him during the translocation. That something made him appear at a random plane in a location that just happened to be beside Soverick Ghastorix.

"That was very unpleasant." He complained as he stumbled.

He grumbled some more, "I thought I was going to die."

"I said it would work and it worked. That's all that matters." Soverick maintained. "You survived, didn't you?"

Legion-5 shook his head. "Your plan was crazy and dangerous. I am probably the only Sovereign who could have survived that without terrible injuries."

Soverick ignored his complaints. He looked up into the sky and said, "The tribulation will come. It is certain. I can see it and I can see your suffering."

Legion-5 and Legion-7 didn't like the sound of that. "But you can't see if we survive or not."

Soverick was silent for a while. Then he said, "No, I can't. It could be because it involves the Will of the void universe or because you died. Either way, all I can see is tribulation, suffering, and then darkness."

Legion-5 muttered, "Tribulation, suffering, and then darkness."

"Good luck. I am leaving. I have work to do." Soverick said.

Then he broke apart. His body would be remade in the inner world of Legion-1. The work he has to do is within Legion-1's inner world. It is quicker to have Legion-7 create a new body for him in Legion-1's inner world than to travel across space to meet Legion-1.

Legion-5 is also going to Legion-1. That is if he succeeds in becoming an Origin god. He only stopped here to deceive his trackers who will surely come to find him after he didn't appear where he should have. Legion doesn't want to lead them straight to Legion-1 so he came here first.

It took a while for Legion-5 to get himself together. The forceful interruption of his teleportation took its toll on him. It didn't help that Soverick's prophecy was not good news. It weighed heavily on his mind.

The first thing he did before flying up into the void outside the plane was to remove the mark of the Supreme Alliance on him. The Supreme Alliance can track him through the mark and he doesn't want that.

It would be nearly impossible for anyone other than an Origin god with a concept to remove the mark but he has Legion-7 who is in possession of a spark of consciousness. It was easy to discard the mark with the two of them working together to purge his existence of it.

Then he flew into the void and out of the realm tree completely. This is according to his plan to leave the realm tree and breakthrough in the void of the universe. Then he will meet up with the others if he succeeds.

He said in amusement, "Here is to hoping that I don't die during the tribulation."

Legion-7 was not so amused. "You can't joke about that. This is serious. I doubt the void universe will let me go if I fail."

Legion-5 had to agree. "I doubt that too."

His body and mind ached as he utilized his divine sense to propel himself upwards. It is the repercussion of interrupting a teleportation by teleporting to another location in the midst of the first teleportation. The experience was even worse because space had to be manipulated in two different states for him to escape the way he did.

Space is very strong. If it wasn't so strong, then reality would be fragile. It is strong so it takes a lot of energy to overcome its resistance and manipulate it. That's why teleportation is very expensive.

A single use of a teleportation device can be more expensive than the teleportation device itself.

Even an organization as wealthy as the Supreme Alliance would prefer to spend some time escorting their younglings across the ancient battlefield and pay Origin gods to keep them safe rather than activate the teleportation device many times.

However, the cost of transportation is not the only repercussion of the rigidity of space. If someone breaks a spatial tunnel created during a teleportation, withstands the backlash of such an attempt, then forcefully manipulates the shards of the broken spatial tunnel into a liquid state to teleport to an anchor that is present within another coefficient of space, then they should be ready to be taken through a blender of pain.

He was truly taken through that blender. His whole existence was pressurized and warped during the teleportation. Most Sovereigns would have been injured within an inch of their life. The fake sovereigns like the slaves at the Tower Of Supremacy would have died directly if they experienced what he did.

A dragon would have managed it with slight discomfort. He is not a dragon but a dragon is not better than him hence the slight discomfort. It was painful but at least his mind didn't break. It is only aching from the stress.