

GREED 48

Chapter 48 Realm Racial Ranking And Potential.

The body, soul or consciousness, and the origin core are the three centers of power in the void universe. Every organism must have at least one of them from the largest creatures to the smallest invisible creatures and it is generally accepted that the Origin core is the most powerful center of power.

Creatures within the universe gain power by strengthening the body, followed by the soul, and finally the origin core. The path of perfection embodies this endeavor and aims to achieve perfection through the fusion of the three centers of power into a single entity.

Creatures with only a body can only achieve the mana body state of evolution. Those with a body and soul can reach the level of transcendent on the path of perfection. It is only those with an origin that can become origin gods and achieve true immortality.

Gehald doesn't know what perfection is or what kind of power can be achieved when it is achieved, but he does know that the space within the Origin core, the origin realm, is infinite.

"Could the end of the path of perfection be to become infinite too?" he thought. Then he shook his head. It sounded inconceivable and improbable.

"Wouldn't one become all-knowing and all-powerful then?"

The idea of such a power seemed ludicrous but he wasn't discouraged. He was pumped instead.

"If there is a small chance of achieving it then Legion will achieve it. I'll have the world at my fingertips. What's not to like?" He became lost in his fantasy.

His thoughts were also being transmitted to the other minds and they became lost in their dreams.

"I want it. I want it so bad. If it exists, it will be ours. It will belong to Legion." Legion two declared and the others echoed in agreement. He turned his attention to his body again. From his earlier scan, he had noticed fragments of laws. Two areas on his body even had traces of concepts of law, this is the power of Titans of law. Only titans of law have begun to grasp the power of the concepts of laws.

"This must be the bloodline." He mused.

"But it is too faint. I must have reincarnated into a body with an ordinary background. Just my luck." He shook his head, but he was prepared for this.

In the high heaven realm, there are different connotations for the various standings and strengths of a race. There are some races called divine races, this is because the members of that race possess a divine racial ability.

Most races, if not all races in high heaven, possess a racial ability, talent, or some sort of advantage unique to them. Survival of the fittest created this outcome, weak races have no chance of survival unless they are enslaved by others. Only then can they co-exist with a strong race.

For a race to be accepted as being divine is because their racial ability made them god-like in that time of inter-race warfare. Their ability put them well ahead of others in the race for survival.

If a plane doesn't have a divine race, mother High will determine if the races present have potential or not. If they are found wanting, the plane will be scraped and it will become inactive.

She has her method of evaluation which mostly consists of battle strength, wit, intelligence, growth over time, etc to determine the potential of a race.

But if a plane has a special race, with a unique and powerful ability, the plane will be spared from decline. It is a good thing and a bad thing. It is a bad thing for the weaker races in that plane because they would either be wiped out or enslaved. It is a good thing for all the races in that plane because they wouldn't be wiped out.

There is seldom a scenario where they are able to exist equally with the divine race, no matter what, the divine race will be the hegemon of the plane. Strength is the basis for an equal corporation.

Then there are royal races. For a race to become a royal race, it must produce an origin god. This is because an origin god means the appearance of a royal bloodline. A royal bloodline isn't something to scoff at.

An organism will start to change subtly from the very beginning on the path of perfection, sometimes obviously and other times drastically. This change makes an individual different genetically from the other members of his race until the level of a titan of law.

At this point, the person gains a body of law which makes the person unique in all of existence. But this uniqueness is not inheritable until the person finishes the path of perfection and becomes an origin god, then a royal bloodline is born.

It is called a royal bloodline because of its effect on a race as a whole. A royal bloodline affects the potential and talent of its offspring, and just like Dragons, those of pure bloodline all have the potential of reaching sovereignty. This means that the appearance of an origin god leads to a steady production of sovereigns, hence why the race becomes a royal race.

The effect of the bloodline is far-reaching, even after generations of dilution, it will still improve the talent of their offspring. The royal bloodline is eternal, it might lay dormant but it will never disappear.

You might expect less talented races to be able to catch up with other more talented races with the arrival of a royal bloodline but that isn't the case. This is because there is a high chance for divine races to become royal races ahead of other races, this makes their advantage even bigger.

Their abilities become exaggerated and their strength widens. Some of the divine races whose abilities have some weaknesses or shortcomings will have them fixed. This often leads to the races with a poor potential being wiped out, they aren't given the chance to reach their maximum potential at all.

So, even though a royal bloodline can increase the potential of a race to that of Dragons, for those that are already powerful, a royal bloodline gives them wings. Either way, a royal bloodline is always welcomed in any race.

Legion two looked over the law fragments. They are few in number and thin in quality. He is sure his bloodline is far from the purity required for the awakening of a royal bloodline.

A royal bloodline will express itself in the form of an incomplete body of law. The effect might be less than 1% of the real body of law but it will have the potential to grow into a complete one.

A direct descendant of an origin god might even have a seed of power within his origin core if the origin god puts effort into conception. That will mean the child will become a sovereign with time.

Even if the origin god doesn't put much effort into conception, the child should have a trace of concepts of law he mastered, which will be of great assistance to the child in becoming a titan of law and subsequently a sovereign. It will just take longer.

Legion two looked at the locations of the concept within his body.

"Should be the eyes. But it isn't from the bloodline."

There are cases where the offsprings of certain races possess a trace of concepts. These occur only in divine races. This trace of concept is the source of their divine ability.

While other ordinary races gain racial abilities through evolutionary advantage, divine races are lucky to have the laws of the universe taint them from birth. This occurs through the connection between the body and the origin core.

It is exceedingly uncommon for this connection to affect the body but in some rare cases, the origin core affects the body and the body gains a divine ability.

This is how divine races are born, their offspring gain their ability from birth.

In the case of the battle sage monkeys, the effect their bodies have when it is connected to the origin core occurs in their eyes. In the early stages, their eyes are only capable of tracking the tiniest movement and spotting the smallest change within their sight.

Then as they become stronger they become capable of predicting motion and when they dig into this ability using the power of laws they become able to see a little bit into the future.

They gain the ability of foresight or prediction. Their simple ability becomes something that helps them to see into the possible future for a short instant. It helps the really powerful ones to make favorable decisions, the ability to tell a position or negative outcome will become a gut feeling to them.

The members of the battle sage beast become terrifying when they become origin gods, it is then that their ability truly becomes divine.