

Guardian 301

Chapter 301 From Sunrise

After taking control, Darcy gained more confidence. Her words sounded more dignified than before. Samus' heart skipped a beat as he was frightened.

Deborah had her hands curled around Vincent's arm as she strutted over. "Darcy, you are in big trouble. Do you know what you have done?"

No one can save you this time."

"Enlighten me please, what did I do wrong?" Darcy sneered.

She knew Samus and Deborah well enough to know they must possess some evidence to be this arrogant. "You will find out soon," Vincent said coldly.

Then, hurried footsteps came from the corridor and a group of uniformed men entered.

The leader was a man in his early thirties. He scanned the room and ultimately locked his gaze on Darcy.

"Darcy Quint? I am Han Feyan of the State Economic Investigation Division and we are currently investigating a case of business fraud. Please cooperate."

All the executives in the meeting room were shocked.

The State Economic Investigation Division officers caused an uproar with their arrival.

The company was at its most important stage as the pre-sale of Passion Fragrance District was around the corner.

Why would the CEO be involved in a fraud?

If the matter was not solved in time, it would tarnish the company's reputation when the news got out.

Darcy was scared. She took a deep breath and said, "Commissioner Feyan, Quintessential Group will cooperate fully with your investigation."

Han nodded and waved at his men. "Bring her up."

Soon, a beautiful woman in cuffs was brought into the meeting room.

"Jean Lander, the secretary to Mr. Rudy Quint, the former CEO of this company."

The meeting room was in a tumultuous state. Other than the newcomers, most of the executives recognized the woman.

"I thought Jean resigned half a month ago and she almost ruined our pre-sale permit. What does she have to do with the business fraud?"

When the company applied for the pre-sale permit, Rudy told Jean to liaise with Ned Brooks of the Housing Department. However, before the permit was approved, Jean disappeared after she submitted her resignation.

Quintessential Group's progress was halted and the whole project was almost ruined.

Now that she was arrested, the executives were delighted.

Darcy breathed a sigh of relief.

Jean was Rudy's ex-secretary and even if she committed some business crime, it should not be related to Darcy.

She must have been arrested for the embezzlement of company funds.

It was great that the vermin was caught.

Though Darcy was confused. She decided to let Rudy off the hook for the embezzlement since it would strain the company resources even more to hold him responsible, so who reported Jean?

"Jean Lander, who ordered you to embezzle a million dollars from the company?" Han asked. Jean stepped up and pointed at Darcy with her cuffed hands.

"It was Darcy Quint. She promised me a million dollars and wanted me to leave Lilyrose right away after sabotaging the process of the pre-sale permit. I could only return when the coast was clear and she would make me her assistant!"

The meeting room was in a state of shock.

Darcy was baffled. Jean's confession stunned her like a bolt of lightning.

She did not expect Jean to point at her in front of the executives.

Rudy called Master Quint to the company and was outside the meeting room when Jean confessed.

Infuriated, he strode into the meeting room and shouted, "Darcy, it was you all along? You were the one pulling the strings behind the scene? Why do I have such a despicable granddaughter!?"

Chapter 302 Darcy Captured

"Grandfather, I didn't bribe Jean to sabotage the project!" Darcy looked at Master Quint, aggrieved. Deborah sneered, "If you didn't do it, why would Jean expose you and not us?"

"She's accusing me! She's slandering!"

Darcy pointed at Jean, shouting, "You better make it clear! Since when did I give you money to sabotage the project? Do you have any proof?" "You want proof? I'll give you proof!" Vincent scoffed.

If they were not prepared, the Hanser family would not dare to frame

Darcy.

He slammed several documents on the table.

One of them was Jean's bank statement. It clearly showed a million dollars credited to her bank account a day before she went missing.

The source was from the finance department of Quintessential Group.

There was also the invoice from the finance department and Darcy was the person who approved the transaction. Her signature was on the document!

Master Quint had a look at the documents and was infuriated. He tossed the papers in Darcy's face.

“What else do you have to say for yourself?”

Darcy picked up the transaction invoice and saw her signature on the paper. The stamp was also the one she used.

She was confused.

She had a great memory and swore she had never signed the approval before, yet the signature and stamp were of her own. Someone framed her using her signature and stamp!

“Grandfather, someone forged my signature and this document! | never approved the transaction!” she shouted angrily. She then glared at Rudy and his family. She finally knew who snitched.

Her uncle and cousins were behind this.

The company had always been under Rudy and his family's control. and many of his men were in charge of the different departments.

It was not difficult for them to forge a document to frame Darcy.

“Uncle Rudy, it’s you, isn’t it? You framed me! We are family! And I have never done anything wrong to you and your family! How could you do this to me?!” she shouted with bloodshot eyes.

“Darcy, it’s over now and you’re still acting innocent? Yeah, we framed you, the whole framed you, you are the only innocent one, am I right?” Deborah mocked her..

Samus scoffed, “Some people will do anything to gain power, and when it’s all exposed, they’ll say they’ve been framed. How shameless.

Darcy looked at Master Quint helplessly.

Armillion dollars was not a small amount. If Master Quint chose to believe her, he could use his identity as the company chairman to dismiss the charges, then Darcy would be fine.

To her disappointment, Master Quint did not even spare a glance at her. He impatiently said to Han, “Commissioner Feyan, our company.

investigation if she’s found guilty, punish her

He never liked Darcy being in power

Now that he found out Darcy bribed Jean to sabotage the project for the sake of power, he resented her even more. He did not even consider the fact that one might be framed Man looked at Darcy. “Me Quint, this way please.” Devastated Darcy gave in and followed them away.

Darcy on Darcy. You are no match for us. What you’ve done for the company, the investments that you’ve gotten, they were all for us!”

Body and his family wore a victorious smile on their faces

Samus went over to cam Master Quint down. He said, "Grandfather, now that Dangy has been arrested, we must elect a new person to lead the company"

Chapter 303 Over the Top

"Rudy can be the CEO. I've misunderstood him before."

Master Quint's words delighted Rudy and his family even more. However, the executives refused to accept it. "Mr. Chairman, Ms.

Quint is still under investigation. She might be framed. If you want to elect a new CEO, you would have to wait for the investigation result first!"

"Yeah! Ms. Quint is competent and we all know that! We believe in her!" echoed other executives as they voiced their support for Darcy.

Darcy might be new in the position but everyone saw the effort she put into the company.

They refused to return to the previous management where Rudy and his family were in control.

Calling them cowards and useless was an understatement.

"Who said that!? Get up!"

Samus went over to the executive who voiced his support for Darcy and slapped him in the face.

"You piece of shit! Darcy is arrested now and you are still defending her? Get out of here! You are fired!"

He punched and kicked the executive and threw the man out of the meeting room like a ragdoll.

Samus went over the top with his arrogance now that he had regained power.

The other executives were frustrated when Samus beat up the executive.

Most of them were recruited and promoted by Darcy, they refused to tolerate Rudy and Samus' disrespect and foul temper. All of them, including Fish and the project managers of Passion Fragrance District, resigned from their positions. "Leave if you want! The company will continue to operate even without you lot!" Samus shouted.

To him, the executives were all Darcy's men. Even if they stayed, they would not be loyal to him or his father, so it would be better to fire them all.

However, Master Quint voiced his concerns. If all the executives were fired, who else would work for them?

Deborah said, "Grandfather, don't worry. Now that our pre-sale is around the corner and with the two hundred million investment, everyone knows that our company is rich and bright. We can release a recruitment notice and there will be people lining up!"

They wanted to use this opportunity to reshuffle the company's hierarchy and remove Darcy's men from power.

Master Quint agreed.

Awhile later, more news came in.

Liben Radar and the other executives of Lilyrose Bank, who were beaten up by Kaze, decided to press charges against Darcy. The top three families were behind this.

However, when the news got out, the calm and peaceful company was pushed to the forefront of debate and criticism.

Darcy's arrest also made headlines.

"Mr. Chairman, the pre-sale of Passion Fragrance District is houses wanted to cancel and get their money back after learning what happened to the company and Darcy."

Master Quint was shocked by the news.

"I thought it was under control, how did the news spread so fast? How are we going to sell the houses now!?" he shouted. Regrets set in for allowing the State Economic Investigation Division to arrest Darcy.

He should have used this to threaten Darcy to surrender the position, kick her out of the company, and negate potential harm to the project, thus minimizing losses.

However, he was carried away by his anger back then and did not think this through. Now, it was too late for regrets. "Don't worry, Father. The sky won't fall on us," Rudy said confidently.

"It's normal that the market will panic when our company faces a problem. We have assigned the Hanser family to take care of the sales and management of Passion Fragrance District. With their involvement, the problem will be solved."

Chapter 304 Deborah Engaged

Rudy had made a deal with the Hansers to let them take over Passion Fragrance District and in return, they agreed to help kick Darcy out of the company and the rights to sell the houses in Passion Fragrance

District would be theirs.

Rudy agreed without a second thought.

Vincent would be his son-in-law soon, so he could use this chance to strengthen the bond between the two families.

With a first-tier family's support, Rudy's position would also solidify within the family. Master Quint would not be able to relieve him of his duty at will. He would have to think twice.

"No, we'll just delay the pre-sale and wait for the coast to clear," Master Quint disagreed. He was anxious but he managed to think straight.

He refused to give the Hanser family control of their core project.

"Grandfather, we cannot delay the pre-sale. The whole world thinks our company is having a problem and we must prove them wrong! Or else no one will buy our houses!" Samus said, trying to dissuade

Master Quint.

Debor

Grandfather, Vincent and | are getting engaged soon. the Hanser family yet? They played a vital role in arcy and her schemes.

told Master Quint how the Hanser family located Jean.

Only then Master Quint knew what the Hansers did a lot for them, but “Master Quint, I understand your concerns but the Hanser family means well. We just want you and your family to be better. Deb and I will be happier too,” Vincent said.

He added, “My grandfather said Deb and I can get engaged immediately and we'll announce our relationship to the public. You don't have to worry about our family having ill thoughts to take over. The most important thing to a family is reputation. Once the reputation is ruined, no amount of wealth can make up for it.”

Vincent was right.

To a family who wished to develop, reputation was more than -anything. If a family had no reputation, not even a union in marriage could save them.

The Hanser family would not risk tarnishing their reputation.

Master Quint was moved. He finally nodded. “Alright, then the Hanser family will be in charge of Passion Fragrance District's pre- sale and management, but you two must hold the engagement ceremony as soon as possible.”

Vincent was thrilled. “Master Quint, the pre-sale starts tomorrow afternoon. Deb and I can hold the engagement ceremony in the morning. It will surely make headlines! You don't have to worry!”

He then called his grandfather, Liam The Hanser family started preparations for the engagement ceremony. They even spent ten million to buy out the entire Dynasty Hotel.

Invitations were sent to everyone they knew in the city.

“Grandfather, the Hansers are serious about this. They spent that much money just to book the hotel for the engagement ceremony!”

Deborah almost passed out from the influx of happiness.

She was looking forward to the day she married Vincent.

Samus was thrilled as well. “Hahaha! Darcy is jailed and Deborah is engaged! This is a happy day!”

Master Quint was relieved knowing that the Hanser family spent a fortune preparing the engagement ceremony. As for his other granddaughter’s life and death, he did not care.

Meanwhile, at Horizon Mirror, the atmosphere was sulky compared to the joyous mood in the meeting room. Agnes cried her lungs out when she found out Darcy was arrested.

“Kaze, you have to save Darcy!”

Sky cried as he tugged Kaze’s arm and begged him to save Darcy.

Agnes shouted at Kaze, “You are useless! If you were capable, Darcy wouldn’t be arrested!”

Chapter 305 Surrender

Agnes knew Kaze had nothing to do with this but she vented her anger on him anyway.

Kaze did not say a word.

As a matter of fact, he had made the necessary calls to inquire about what happened.

Then, Miru came to the house.

“You can’t even protect your wife, what good are you?” she sneered at Kaze as soon as she saw him. She then pulled her phone out for a call.

“Mayor Brooks, I’m Miru Scarlet, goddaughter of Alan Cummingham. I want to know about the charges my friend, Darcy, faces. Can you do something about it? A million bucks is not a huge amount.”

She did not care if Darcy was framed or not, she just wanted to do whatever she could to get her out.

Johnson said, “Ms. Scarlet, I’ve been paying close attention to Ms. Quint’s case and I’ve ordered the chief of police to investigate. I’ve also used every connection I have to make things happen.

“But this case is handled by the state, and the state police are involved. The commissioner of the State Economic Investigation Division

, is a strict person. There’s nothing I can do to inform Mr. Lee about this, and tell him I am sorry.” understand why the mayor wanted her to deliver the age to Kaze.

She was worried about Darcy, so the question did not linger in her

“The state police are involved, not even the mayor could do anything about this.”

Upset, Miru glared at Kaze and asked, “Was Darcy really framed?”

“What else could it be?” Kaze replied nonchalantly.

The moment he got the news, he knew the Hanser family framed Darcy.

He already had evidence to clear Darcy’s name.

However, as Johnson said, the state police were involved in this. Kaze did not know if the state police were simply doing this out of duty or if someone was pulling strings behind it.

If it was the latter, his evidence would not suffice.

Besides, all cases handled by the police had a lengthy procedure.

Kaze could not forgive himself if Darcy had to spend even a minute behind bars.

With that in mind, he walked out of the house.

“Where are you going?” Miru asked.

“I’ll turn myself in and be with Darcy.”

Kaze went off without turning around.

Miru scoffed in disbelief. “Useless piece of shit, what can turning himself in do for Darcy?”

She knew Kaze was incapable of getting Darcy out and all he thought about were useless ideas. After Darcy was taken away, Liben and the other bank executives seized the chance to sue Darcy.

The state police filed the case and formed a special investigation unit, led by Han Feyan.

The special investigation unit even used one of the offices of the city police as a temporary base.

Darcy was being held there for investigation.

A police cruiser arrived at the state police's temporary office.

Don and two men came out of the car.

"Sir, Commissioner Feyan has given the orders. We must inform him of your arrival before we can let you inside." men

The officer at the entrance stopped Don and his and informed them of the situation.

Don and his men served the Lilyrose Police Department but they were temporarily transferred to the Economic Investigation Division, so they must take orders from their new superior.

"Then please tell Commissioner Feyan that I've brought these two here for the case. They turned themselves in at my place." Don did not give the officer a hard time and stated his intention. The officer looked at the individuals behind Don. "Who are you two? Why are you turning yourself in?"

One of them was Kaze. "I'm Kaze Lee, Darcy Quint's husband. | broke Liben Radar's leg. So | am here to turn myself in. Is that okay?"

Chapter 306 The God of War's Wife

"Of course."

Han came out after hearing the commotion. He signaled the officer and said, "Bring him in."

He then looked at the other man beside Kaze who looked flamboyant with the pair of shades. “What are you here for?” “I’m bored out of my mind, so I came here, turning myself in just to see how you interrogate suspects.”

“Nonsense! The special unit is here for investigations. It is a place where the laws are abided and justice is served, not a place for you to fool around!”

Han was furious when he heard Draco’s teases.

He waved at the other uniformed officers. “Toss this man out!”

However, the two uniformed officers did not move as if they were petrified. “Are you two deaf? Can’t you hear me?!” Han turned around and bellowed.

“C-Commissioner, t-that’s Chief Commander Lang!” said one of the officers. He had to muster all his strength and courage to spell Draco’s name and title.

“Chief Commander Lang? Which Chief Commander Lang?” Han frowned. He did not understand the officer.

Don then said, “Commissioner Feyan, the man before you is the Chief Commander of Lilyrose Strategic Department, Draco Lang.”

— BORE Chief Commander Draco Lang ?

Han was shocked. He immediately bowed and said respectfully, “Chief Commander Lang! Forgive me for my insubordination! You’re wearing shades, I wasn’t able to recognize you!”

Draco was two ranks above Hank, the same level as the governor of the South River State, Loid Farland, who was also the boss of Han’s direct superior.

Both of them were the regional commanders.

Han dared not disrespect Draco.

“You don’t need to apologize. My face is not on the bill, not everyone recognizes me.”

Draco waved his hand. He was not concerned about formalities and did not like to use his status to frighten others. Otherwise, he would not follow Kaze around in his shades.

Draco then switched his frivolous look to a serious one and said, “But there’s one thing that I need you to help me understand. Who gave you the authority to arrest Darcy Quint?”

Han felt unprecedented pressure before the regional commander.

Yet, he was able to keep a stern yet humble tone as he explained, Chief Commander, we are just carrying out the standard operating procedures. We received a call, so we filed the case and set up a special investigation unit to find out the truth.”

The Hanser family was well-prepared for this.

Jean was arrested by the state police in Sunrise City and the case was given to the Economic Investigation Division. Otherwise, they would have to go through the Lilyrose Police Han carried out his duty professionally and was not afraid of Draco’s questions.

Draco’s eyes narrowed coldly. “According to SOP? Well, according to SOP, the state police do not have the authority to arrest Darcy Quint. Even if you want to investigate her, you would have to get permission from the highest authority in the Lilyrose Strategic Department.”

“What?” Han was surprised. He found Draco’s words hard to believe.

Darcy was not someone special, and how would she be related to the military? Why did the state police have to get permission from the highest authority from the Lilyrose Strategic Department to investigate her?

Han suspected that Draco was trying to abuse his authority and take Darcy away.

He had seen many officers who abused their powers but no one was able to get past him.

He was known for being just and strict.

If Draco wanted to take Darcy away using his authority, then he would need to do it over Han's dead body.

Fortunately, Draco used to serve under Kaze and he would never abuse his power, which could only embarrass his boss.

Draco explained, "That's because she is the wife of the God of War. She's under special protection. In fact, not even the national police have the authority to arrest her, let alone the state police!"

Chapter 307 Prison Couple

Special protection did not equal special authority.

It was a special service that the Strategic Department set up for people like Kaze who was well decorated with honorable achievements on the battlefield.

People like Kaze had many enemies and they would try to hurt not only him but also his family, including but not limited to framing or temptation.

Therefore the Strategic Department set up the service to ensure his and his family's safety.

Before a special protection target was arrested by local authorities or law enforcements, the highest authority in the Strategic Department would intervene and verify the matter.

The Strategic Department would also be involved after the case was filed and would monitor the case without interfering. Darcy was Kaze's legal wife, so she was part of the protection service. Han was stunned like a bolt of lightning struck him. He looked at Kaze in shock. "Y-You are the God of War?!" He clearly remembered Kaze calling himself Darcy's husband. Draco mentioned Darcy was the God of War's wife, so Kaze's identity was self-explanatory. down," Kaze said, indirectly acknowledging his identity. matter of fact, he disliked exposing his identity. The more people « 25 BONUS mummy He was not afraid of the enemies but he had a family and must protect the people of this country.

His enemies were ferocious and vicious. Once they located him, they would eliminate him with all means necessary, even if they had to nuke Lilyrose City.

However, he could not hide his identity anymore since Darcy was arrested. "God of War! Sir! Don't worry, | will keep this a secret!"

Han saluted at Kaze. His eyes were already overflowing with respect. Kaze nodded. "Commissioner Feyan, can | visit my wife?"

"Please, this way!"

Han led the way and brought Kaze into the office.

They soon arrived at the room holding Darcy. It was modified to have cushioned walls, to prevent the suspects from killing themselves.

The room was small and there was only one bed inside.

There was a female officer outside the room, watching Darcy.

Darcy was crying on the bed.

Rudy and family framed her. She knew she could not escape this time and was ready to get behind bars. She was worried about her parents, Sky, and Kaze.

Once she was jailed, her family would lose the only source of income.

Her extended family hated her parents, so they would surely snatch her

'properties and cut all ties with them.

How could her family survive?

She wished her mother would not throw Kaze out as well.

While she was praying, the door opened.

Darcy thought it was time for her interrogation. She looked up and saw Kaze. "Kaze? What are you doing here?"

She was pleasantly surprised. Having been locked up in the tiny room. for an hour and she was already drowning in helplessness and loneliness.

She would feel better with anyone she knew around, let alone her husband.

Kaze inspected Darcy from top to bottom to make sure she was not hurt by Han and his men. If they laid a finger on her, they would all be killed!

Kaze glanced at the female officer.

Han then shot her a gaze and told her to leave.

The door was closed on his way out.

Kaze then embraced Darcy and teased, “How can I let my woman be in jail alone? If you are going to jail, then I’m coming with you. We can be a prison couple. I turned myself in so I could be with you.”

Chapter 308 Jean Lander

“Nonsense! The cells are divided by gender! You don’t know that?”

Darcy gave Kaze a tap full of love. She then looked him in the eyes. You turned yourself in?”

She broke down in tears. She hugged him tightly and nuzzled against his face.

“Kaze, thank you for being by my side. I know even if the world abandons me, you will still be with me.

Darcy was framed by Rudy and his family, and abandoned by her grandfather.

She was devastated.

She was not asking for much-not expecting Kaze to save her, but just wanted him to be by her side at a time of crisis.

After a long hug, Darcy released Kaze and wiped her tears away. Kaze, don’t turn yourself in. If they question you, don’t say anything. No one knows you are faking your mental disability, they can’t do anything to you.

“When you get out, help me take care of my parents, and Sky. Grandfather and the others will go after my parents. You are my only hope now...” Darcy teared up as she spoke.

Kaze tapped her shoulder and consoled her, “Darcy, you’re thinking too much. It’s not that serious. I can bring you home right away. I’m just joking with you here.”

“But I am not joking with you,” Darcy said. “They are prepared this and they un nutyuny to stop un amor para.

“You said you were framed, so what’s there to be afraid of?”

Kaze continued coldly, “If you didn’t do it, you didn’t do it. They won’t be able to distort the truth just to put you in prison.” “Kaze, you are too naive. This world isn’t as simple as you think,” Darcy said with a disappointed look.

Her options were exhausted and she was hopeless. She did not believe she could escape this time.

Kaze felt bad. Darcy was affected badly by this incident, to the point her worldview shifted to one laden with negativity.

She was no longer the energetic and brave woman who believed in herself.

Kaze could not allow her to be depressed and pessimistic.

He wiped the tears off her face and said strongly, “Darcy, come with me. I’ll show you the bright side of this world.

He held Darcy’s hand and went over to the door.

“Open the door!”

The door opened.

Han saw Kaze holding Darcy’s hand and he had a bad feeling.

The female officer was still beside him, so he changed the way he addressed Kaze and said, “Mr. Lee, are you taking her away?” “No. I will prove that my wife is innocent before I take her away,” Kaze said.

Even though he could walk out with her and no one would dare to stop him, or question him, he wanted Darcy to see her name cleared and walk out as an innocent woman

Kaze said, “I want to see Jean Lander, to have a talk.” “I will arrange accordingly.” Han nodded and brought Kaze to the room where they held Jean. Unlike Darcy who was crying her lungs out, Jean was lying on the bed, fantasizing her beautiful future.

The Hanser family had everything arranged for her.

Her parents and brother would have a house, a car, and five million in cash. She was also promised the best lawyer in town to minimize her sentence.

When she got out of prison, she could work for the Hansers.

The rest of her life was planned out properly for her.

All she needed to do was testify against Darcy and that she actually did it out of her own will. If she relied solely on working, she would never get so much in a short period of time.

The door opened and Kaze brought Darcy in.

Darcy shouted at Jean the moment she stepped in.

“Jean! | never did anything wrong to you, why did you help them to frame me? Why did you lie!?”

Chapter 309 Stupid Beyond Redemption Jean was surprised for a moment before she jumped off the bed. She did not expect to see Darcy in person. “Ms. Quint, watch your words. | didn’t lie,” Jean said expressionlessly.

Darcy said coldly, “No? | have never given you a million dollars and made you leave the company! You lied! It’s false! How much did they give you to turn you against me!?”

Jean was a beautiful woman. She was also in charge of the company’s public relations, so she was good at inspecting people. She was not scared just because Darcy shouted at her.

She glanced at Han who was behind them and scoffed, “Ms. Quint, are you trying to get something out of me? Then let me tell you that | did it out of my own will, no one paid me or anything!

“You gave me a million bucks. You even signed the document and submitted it to the finance department. The evidence is all there! Just accept it! It’s not going to work!”

Darcy noticed Jean was confident in her words and she knew Jean. was another Joy. They were basically the same.

At first, they claimed that they were forced and could testify in court, but when they were bribed, they turned on Darcy without a second thought.

It was impossible to rely on Jean to clear her name now.

Darcy was devastated. Her hands and legs turned cold.

Kaze then said coldly, "Jean, do you truly want to go down this path? nou no noipmy une munavi

Have you thought through it? The price for this might be too heavy for you."

"You? You are trying to get me to talk? Stop dreaming. If you want to prove that your wife is innocent, then tell the police to investigate everything. Find evidence to prove me wrong!" Jean said confidently.

She might be scared if it was someone else, but it was Kaze and she was not afraid of him.

No one in the Quint family took him seriously. His words had not weight, so there was no way she would be frightened. "You are stupid beyond redemption. If you want to become the Hanser family's canon fodder, then I'll grant you your wish." Kaze looked at the woman coldly as he officially gave up on saving her.

Like Darcy, he had the same mind that Jean was forced by the Hanser family.

If Jean confessed and apologized, Kaze would grant her a chance at redeeming herself.

Now it seemed like she was asking for it.

Jean did not take Kaze's words seriously. She simply assumed he was angry and scolding her.

She mocked him, "Kaze, now is your chance to scold me. When your wife is behind bars, you won't have any words coming out of that. stupid mouth of yours!"

Kaze did not say anything. He pulled his phone out and called Don," Bring him in."

Awhile later, an officer of the special investigation unit came in and said to Han, "Sir, the local chief of police brought another man in,

Jean was surprised before she was delighted when she heard the Officer.

Ned was the mayor's nephew and the former chief of the Housing Department.

Jean was responsible for liaising with him when she tried to get the pre-sale permit for the company.

As the discussion progressed to the last stage, with the help of the Hanser family and Ned, Jean vanished and her disappearance sabotaged and ceased the Passion Fragrance District project.

She also heard about Ned being beaten up because he used the pre-sale permit to force Darcy to sleep with him. Kaze went to the Housing Department to cause a problem and managed to stop it.

Now that Darcy was arrested, Ned came.

He must be here to sue Darcy for hurting him!

Chapter 310 Another One Surrenders

“Darcy, how does it feel when everyone turns against you? First you had Lilyrose Bank's Liben Radar, and now Ned Brooks, the former chief of the Housing Department! With that many charges on you, you are going to spend the rest of your life in jail!” Jean grinned viciously.

Darcy used to be the COO of the company and Jean was just a secretary. The difference in position was huge. Now Jean became Darcy's gravedigger, a job she was happy to do.

Darcy was devastated upon hearing Jean.

Ned was brought into the room.

He was crippled and his hand was hanging in front of his chest in a cast.

His injuries required at least a hundred days to heal and it had only been less than two weeks since Kaze wreaked havoc at the Housing

Department.

It was Johnson who dragged him out of the hospital and brought him here.

Han said, "You claimed to have important evidence? Let's talk in the other room." Ned looked at Kaze in fear.

It had been around two weeks but his fear of Kaze lingered.

"Commissioner Feyan, let him talk here."

Kaze then glanced at Jean. "I want to see if she can still laugh after listening to him."

Jean grunted arrogantly.

“Yes, yes! I'll confess here!” Ned nodded profusely.

He would do anything Kaze said. He would jump off a building in a heartbeat if Kaze told him to. Han nodded. “Then speak.”

“Commissioner, Mr. Lee, I am here to turn myself in.”

Jean was shocked when she heard Ned.

Turn himself in? What did he mean by that?

Even Darcy and Han were confused.

“Why is everyone turning themselves in today?’ Han grumbled inwardly.

Ned then explained, “Commissioner, when I was chief of the Housing Department, Quintessential Group came to us for the pre-sale permit and Jean Lander was sent to liaise with me. We actually got into a sexual relationship.

“I got carried away. In order to have Ms. Quint sent over by the company to liaise with me and for me to coerce her in the process, I agreed to help the Hansers and instigate Jean to leave the company.

“The Hanser family gave me a million dollars and I transferred it to Jean.”

Jean was stunned by Ned's confession.

Ned was beaten up by Kaze because of Jean. Should he not be suing her instead of helping her? Why would he expose his own wrongdoings just to help her?

Had Ned lost his mind?

Jean had no idea what Ned was thinking and she was losing her mind.

If what Ned said was true, then her testimonials would be overruled.

She was well aware of the consequences.

Darcy's name would be cleared and she would be charged for providing false testimonials.

She was prepared to be jailed but then she would lose all the rewards promised by the Hanser family.

The Hansers even got her family.

If their plan was foiled, they would surely go after her family.

“Ned Brooks! You stupid shit! Are you fucking crazy? Why are you turning yourself in?!” Jean got furious and anxious. She wished she could rip Ned’s mouth off his face.

“Jean Lander, calm down!” Han bellowed.

He then looked at Ned and said, “Mr. Brooks, please note that evidence is crucial in this investigation. We cannot simply take your word for it. If you used to serve the government, you should know how severe the consequences of providing false testimonials are.”

He had solid reasons to believe Kaze coerced Ned into confessing.

When Darcy was arrested, the mayor and Ned's uncle, Johnson, tried to use every connection he got to get her out. The people who contacted Han, requesting mercy, were all turned down.

Even if he knew Kaze was the God of War, he decided to stick to his principles and carry out his duty righteously. Ned took out his phone. "Commissioner, I have evidence in my