Chapter 461 Albert Hiden and Miru Scarlet

Amidst the discussion, Albert's jeep stopped in front of everyone.

A valiant young man in uniform with stars on his shoulders came out of the vehicle.

The guard wanted to help him put on the general's coat but Albert stopped him. He had no right to flaunt his ranks before Kaze.

Albert spotted Kaze right away. His eyes were overflowing with excitement as he strode over.

From the bottom of his heart, he respected the man who had completely changed his life. He stood in front of Kaze and wanted to lift his shaking hand for a salutation.

"Albert Hiden! Why the hell are you here?!"

Miru, who had been quiet for a while, suddenly spoke in a rude and frosty tone. The condescension in her tone was obvious.

She shocked everyone when she spoke.

Not only did she call Albert's full name, but she even disres him, the chief commander of South River Strategic Departme If the man was angered by her rudeness, the consequences wo severe.

To everyone's surprise, Albert was not angered or offended in any way.

He looked at Kaze apologetically and then turned to Miru with a bitter smile. "Miru, you are in trouble. Why wouldn't I come? I'm here to help."

"I don't need your help!" Miru retorted coldly without appreciating Albert's concerns.

"Miru, you and the chief commander..." Darcy was baffled.

Everyone could tell Miru knew Albert and the two of them seemed close.

"Ms. Quint, Miru is actually my cousin," Albert said respectfully.

He knew Darcy was Kaze's wife.

He was happy that his cousin was best friends with his exinstructor's wife.

Meaning, he was one step closer to the man he respected.

Everyone looked at Miru in astonishment.

Miru and Albert were cousins!?

Even Darcy was surprised. She had never heard of Miru's background because Miru never talked about it. The surprise lasted for only a second because no matter background, it would not affect Darcy's bond with her. Agnes, on the other hand, was thrilled.

Her daughter's best friend was from a powerful family and her became a general at such a young age!

If she could get closer to Albert, with his protection, no one would dare to take advantage of their family anymore..

With that, Agnes smiled and said, "Miru, the chief commander is here to help and he's your family. You shouldn't talk to him that way."

Miru simply nodded out of respect for Agnes.

Agnes then said to Albert, "Chief Commander Hiden, please don't mind her attitude. She must be shocked after what happened and is still recovering."

The way Agnes called him chief commander with such respect shocked Albert.

Agnes was his ex-instructor's mother-in-law, he would not dare to request Agnes to address him so formally. Albert immediately said, "Please, you can just call me Albert."

"Haha. You are as easy-going as Miru."

Agnes was over the moon. She thought Albert dismissed the formality because of Miru.

"Then I'll just call you Albert."

Agnes continued, "Albert, did you call in the soldiers to help Darcy and Miru?"

Chapter 462 Exposed

Prejudice blinds a man's eye.

Due to the prejudice against Kaze, Agnes did not fully believe that it was he who called in the soldiers. Even though Johnny saluted Kaze before her own eyes, it felt surreal.

When she heard Miru questioning Albert, she simply assumed it was Albert who called in the soldiers. "Uhm..."

Albert found himself in a difficult position. He turned to Kaze with a bitter look, requesting help.

If Miru did not contact him, he would not have known that she was captured.

It was not until Kaze gave the deployment order that he found out Miru was captured.

However, if he denied it now, he would lose the chance to fix the broken relationship with Miru.

Kaze saw Albert being put in a spot, so he stepped in it was Albert who called in the soldiers.”

“Yeah,

“Then why did you say you were the one who called the again!?” Agnes lashed out at Kaze again.

Up until this point, it had become an instinct of her to blame everything.

Albert did not know why Agnes would lash out at Kaze for not admitting that he called in the soldiers.

He dared not use Kaze to defend himself, so he quickly explained, ”

It's not like that. It's...”

Kaze stopped him before he could finish. “I asked Melrose Strategic Department for help. Albert got the news and he brought his soldiers. here. It isn't wrong for me to say that | called in the soldiers, right?”

His words made sense.

He managed to turn it into a misunderstanding.

Agnes was deeply disappointed. She really wished Kaze was related to some powerful figure in the military. Now, it seemed like she got it wrong.

With the misunderstanding cleared up, Agnes, whose perception of Kaze had slightly improved, looked at him with nothing but disgust.

“Hmph! It’s because of Albert that Darcy and Miru are saved! Kaze just delivered the message and that’s all he can do!” Kaze had gotten used to Agnes’ unreasonable scoldings, so he kept quiet.

Darcy was fine and that was all that mattered to him

Kiev, who had planned to give up on Darcy, regained

The fear he had for Kaze was replaced by contempt.

If Kaze did not call in the soldiers, there was no point afraid.

Mes

The idea of snatching Darcy away from him was once again root in his mind.

In fact, his desire for Darcy grew even stronger.

Darcy's best friend was Miru, Albert’s cousin!

If he could win Darcy’s heart, he could use her relationship with Miru and move his way to Albert. Kiev already pictured a bright future in his mind. “Miru, I heard you got into some troubles at Lilyrose.”

Albert went up to Miru and said, “Don’t worry. As your family, I won’t just sit back and do nothing. I will not allow some bastard to take advantage of you!”

Miru did not appreciate Albert's kindness.

“Albert, I’m warning you to stay away from this. I have nothing to do with you, or your family! I owe you once this time and I will pay it back soon!”

Miru then dragged Darcy away, wanting to return to Lilyrose. The same went for Agnes and the rest of her family.

Kiev planned to take a detour to the capital, Sunrise City.

He wanted to inform his father about Albert and asked his father’s opinion about it. Kaze followed Darcy and wanted to go back with her.

Suddenly, Agnes turned around and glared at him

“You are no longer married to Darcy! Why are you us? Go

Chapter 463 Anyone Can Betray Me, but It Won’t Be You

Agnes’ words made the situation tense.

Albert looked at Agnes in disbelief.

He could not believe she would dislike Kaze to this extent.

He knew better than anyone how popular Kaze was with the ladies.

Back on the foreign battlefield, Kaze's unrivaled might and valiance charmed countless women. Princesses from other countries came and offered all kinds of treasures and services just to bear his children.

If Kaze agreed, he would attract tens of thousands of beautiful women with powerful backgrounds, all flocking to him like a swarm of bees to flowers.

It was all because he was the God of War! The God of War who could single-handedly rival an entire country. Countless countries offered him money, women, and power to extend an olive branch but Kaze turned them down. Agnes looked down on Kaze and made her daughter d

Albert felt bad for Kaze, but he could not intervene since family affair.

He did not know that it was his arrival that made Agnes look Kaze and caused all the misunderstandings.

"Mom, Kaze was framed. He did not kill Alan Cummingham. We wronged him. How can you say that to him?" Darcy spoke up to defend Kaze.

Even she was ashamed to face Kaze.

Kaze was already in trouble himself, yet he came all the way to Melrose just to save her. Even though it was Albert who called in the soldiers, Kaze still did everything for her. She mistook him for the killer and slapped him in front of everyone.

That slap must have hurt him so deeply.

He was accused and framed but he was unable to defend himself because no one believed him, especially her.

She had no idea how Kaze made it through mentally.

Darcy tasted despair before and she knew how terrible it felt. She said, "Kaze, let's go home."

"No freaking way!"

Agnes stopped her before Kaze could say a word.

"You've announced the divorce and you are bringing him home? What will the public think of you? | don't want to be the laughingstock! | don't want people to look down on you!"

She wanted Darcy to divorce Kaze for a long time now. Now that Darcy had announced the divorce, she had to use separate them once and for all. She even thought of bringing the two of them to the lawyers the divorce papers, putting an end to this ridiculous relationship.

Darcy's eyes widened in disbelief. She could not believe her moth would say that in her face.

"Mom, you are being unreasonable! You know it was not me! I didn't release the stupid statement! It was Grandfather and the others who released it using my name,” Darcy argued.

Her eyes even teared up. She did not want Kaze to think that she abandoned him when he needed her the most.

Kaze never ditched her when she needed him.

To others, Kaze might be a retard or a useless garbage, but in her eyes, he was stronger than anyone else she knew. When the world stood against her, Kaze would stand behind her, supporting her unconditionally.

She looked at Kaze as tears rolled down her cheeks. “Kaze, you have to believe me. I didn’t release the divorce statement.” “Darcy, I believe you. Anyone in the world can betray me, but it won’t be you.”

Kaze went over and brought Darcy into his arms.

Chapter 464 Escort

Agnes was fuming when she saw Kaze hug Darcy.

She desperately wanted to separate them, yet Darcy always stood against her will. “Kaze, come back with me. I’m not going to divorce you.”

Darcy did not care what her mother thought.

Kaze tapped her back and then looked at Agnes. He said, “I think you should go back with them first. Let’s wait for a while and when Mom is fine, I’ll come back.”

“Kaze, you don’t need to say all those things to flatter me!” Agnes grunted coldly, showing no appreciation for his kindness.

“Please don’t think that I am separating you two because I don’t like you. It’s all your fault! Why did Leo Lionel come after you? It’s because you messed with him! Leteria Group has many men working for them and you worked there before, you should know better than me how scary they are!

“When they sent their men over to our house, if even imagine what could've happened to us! It’ Leo is on to you and he will come after you! If y Darcy, you shouldn’t put her through all this! We ca in fear every day!” Agnes said coldly.

To her, Kaze was a menace.

for Kiev, I can’t ause of you!

“Mom, then we should let Kaze move back in with us. Le dare to send his men to Horizon Mirror anymore!” are about to live

Agnes’ words reminded Darcy of the scary encounter with Leo

Agnes glared at Darcy. “Are you out of your mind? What about your career? Are you planning to stay at home forever and do nothing?”

Darcy was silenced.

“Darcy, don’t worry. I’ll deal with Leo as soon as possible. You can go home with them first.”

Kaze finally released Darcy.

There was a hint of murderous intent in his words.

Leo was already dead to him.

“Let's go!”

Agnes dragged Darcy away before she could say anything else.

Kaze watched as Darcy and her family got into the car. He then said to Albert, “Send a team to escort them back to Lilyrose.” “Yes, sir!”

Albert then signaled Johnny, who was on standby further away.

Three jeeps with military number plates, carrying a full team of special operation soldiers, escorted Darcy and her far away.

One jeep was in front and the other two were at the b

The little motorcade could easily keep people away.

The cars that passed by them wondered who the jeeps were escorting.

“Miru, your cousin is really kind. He called in the soldiers when he learned that you were in danger and he now sent a team of soldiers to escort us. Why did you give him the cold shoulder?”

Darcy was slightly jealous of Miru. She believed Miru was not grateful enough for what she had.

Albert worried about her, and cared for her, but she did not appreciate it at all. She even embarrassed Albert in front of everyone and his men.

Even Darcy believed Miru did the wrong thing back there.

Little did she know that she was the one others would be jealous of.

Be it the Armored One Battalion or the escort, it all happened because of her. "Don't talk to me about him! | have nothing to talk about him and his family!" Miru looked outside the window.

Darcy pursed her lips and decided to put the topic away.

Back at the logistics park, Kaze asked, "What's with you and Miru?"

Chapter 465 Humanity

"Sir!"

Albert lifted his chest and looked up, saluting respectfully.

The training he received during Kaze's special training camp became a habit for him. Kaze waved his hand at him. "At ease. We are talking about private matters now." "Yes, sir!"

Albert relaxed himself and said, "Miru is my cousin. She's actually the daughter of the head of the family. After her mother passed, her father married another woman and she was unhappy with it. She and her father had a fallout and excommunicated herself from the family. She even changed her family name to distinguish herself from the family."

From the moment Miru left the Hiden family, she erased her name from their books and changed her name, hence cutting off all ties with her past and the family she disliked.

Miru's encounter was slightly similar to Kaze's.

"I didn't expect her to have such a humane side."

Kaze started to view Miru differently

He too was excommunicated from the Lee family, but Miru did her own.

When Albert was accepted into the special training camp, Kaze got chance to go through his background. He knew that the Hiden family was powerful, resourceful, and well-connected.

They were even more powerful than the Lee family, who were just nouveau riche.

Miru cutting her ties with the Hiden family would equal her giving up on massive support, relinquishing the wealth and fame that she was born with.

She had to start everything from scratch.

It was not easy, and not everyone had the determination to do it.

Albert hesitated for a moment and said, "Sir, I have a request but I don't know if I..."

"If you don't want to be clear, then don't say it at all. Since when are you like this? Man up!"

Kaze shot an impatient glance at him.

Albert nodded awkwardly.

Shane, who was still kneeling on the ground further away, saw the scene and was shocked.

The chief commander of South River Strategic Deparent behaved like an obedient little boy in front of Kaze. If Kaze was not the chief commander of Lilyrose Strate Department, then he could only be the God of War! Shane almost passed out when he realized Kaze's real ident

Albert said, "Sir, | have already found out about Leo Lionel ac Miru. | wish | could skin him alive with my own hands, but | am with my duties and | cannot attend to it myself. So | hope you can me a favor to settle this."

He then looked at Kaze with a pounding heart.

He raised the request because he used to train under Kaze, and he was using the relationship to fuel his courage just to make the request. He did not know if Kaze would agree to help.

Kaze smiled and said, "To be honest, if it's because of your self- righteous cousin, | wouldn't even bother to get my hands dirty, but she's my wife's best friend. Don't worry. Leo Lionel is already a dead man."

Albert's heart skipped a beat when he heard Kaze's calm but indubitable words..

He knew that once Kaze had announced the death sentence, Leo would be dead. It was just a matter of time.

"What else?" Kaze glanced at him.

Albert smiled and added, "And my inauguration ceremony?"

"I already said that I will attend. I will be there."

"THANK YOU, SIR! I know you won't forget about us!"

Albert almost jumped on the spot like a little boy.

"That will be all, sir. If there's nothing else from you, my leave now." ing

Kaze nodded. "Bring the soldiers back as well."

"Yes, sir!"

Albert then called the Armored One Battalion to retreat, leaving Re alone in Kaze's company.

Kaze then turned to Shane and said, "Why are you still on your knees?"

Chapter 466 Suspicion

Shane shuddered in fear.

Quaking in his boots, he said, "I won't get up until you tell me to, Mr. Lee."

He was trying to get in Kaze's good graces.

Kaze scoffed in disdain. "Get up."

Shane rose to his feet shakily.

Struck by an idea, he said ingratiatingly, "Mr. Lee, there's one more thing | need to report to you about Lefteria Group." "Speak," Kaze uttered with a blank face.

Shane responded, "On the night before Alan was poisoned to death, Dr. Anemo, the South River State's top doctor, met him in Lilyrose.

"Dr. Anemo disappeared when Alan died.

"My guess is, Dr. Anemo might be sent by Cronus."

Shane smiled grovelingly at Kaze.

He knew that Kaze would make those who set him up pa

Hence, Shane provided an important clue that was usef That way, he might obtain Kaze's forgiveness and even bef Shane believed he could be of service to Kaze.

Nevertheless, Shane soon realized that Kaze simply smiled sarcastically at him.

Kaze looked like he was looking at a clown. He was not at all impressed.

"| heard that you can find out about anything all across the South River State, Shane." "Don't flatter me, Mr. Lee. It's all rumors. | never said that."

Shane waved his arm to deny it, but his expression suggested otherwise. He was proud of it. "Don't try to be a wise guy."

Kaze added indifferently, "Dr. Anemo wasn't sent by Cronus."

He knew well.

Alan must have taken his advice and met with Anemo that night.

Then came the problem.

Anemo was not one of Cronus' men. Yet, he disappeared mysteriously after Alan died. Things were getting pretty interesting.

"I hope I'm another pawn in your game too, Alan."

Kaze murmured to himself as a cold glint flashed across his eyes, "If that's the case, you have overplayed your hand." Leteria Group was an open book to him.

Faced with Shane's puzzled look. Kaze had no intention of to him.

He said aloofly, "Just tell Leo that you've carried out his instru when he contacts you. Got it?" "Got it, Mr. Lee."

Shane was smart enough to take the hint. Kaze wanted Leo to think. that he got away with it.

The fatal blow would come when Leo got carried away.

The weight of despair was more unbearable than death itself.

“Take care, Mr. Lee.”

Moments later, Shane escorted Kaze into the God of War Palace’s aircraft which was bound for Lilyrose. A member of the special force escorted Darcy’s family until they were outside Skylar View District before leaving. Miru and Agatha’s family were about to drive into the district.

A figure appeared and blocked the two vehicles from moving forward.

An emotionless old man carrying a sword with a broken tip stood in their path.

Everybody’s blood ran cold.

“What are you doing, Miru? Don’t get out of the car.”

With Miru unbuckling to get out, Darcy stopped her.

“That’s Jeremiah, my godfather’s old pal.”

Miru said before getting off.

Her words did not put anybody at ease.

The chill in Jeremiah’s eyes was hard to ignore.

Chapter 467 Miru’s Taken Away

“Miru, Leo has shown concrete proof that you’re the mole in Lefterial Group. What do you have to say for yourself?” As Miru got out of the car, Jeremiah raised his sword.

Miru took her time to close the door before turning to Jeremiah.

“The chief commander of Lilyrose Strategic Department lived next door to Horizon Mirror Mansion, Jeremiah.” She calmly added, “The twenty assassins sent here by killed.

“You're not doing yourself any favors by killing me here.”

Miru did not want to die.

ion were

Besides, she refused to take the fall for Leo. That was not the way to leave the world.

Miru spilled the information after getting out of the car.

to

She intended to discourage Jeremiah from killing her on the spot. So long as Jeremiah paused on the attack, she would ha persuade him and clear the air.

Jeremiah frowned. He glanced at the gate of Horizon M and picked up a faint stench of blood in the air. Sure enough, he put down his sword and said with a blank fa go elsewhere.”

“Alright.”

Miru nodded.

Jeremiah walked away, unconcerned that Miru would flee.

Miru did not intend to run away anyway. She kept up with his pace.

“Don’t go with him, Miru. You will be safe so long as you stay in Horizon Mirror Mansion,” Darcy jumped out of the car and cried anxiously.

“I can’t hide at Horizon Mirror Mansion forever.

“Besides, how am I supposed to avenge my godfather and catch the real mole by holing up there?”

Miru waved her arm without looking back as she left with Jeremiah.

Darcy stamped her foot.

She knew her best friend well. Like her, nothing could change Miru’s mind once she made up her mind. “What do we do now? The old man is clearly a bloodthirsty killer. Miru might be in danger by going with him. “Why is she so stubborn? She could have stayed in Horizon Mirror

Mansion.”

Back in the car, Agnes started to panic.

“We should contact General Hilden for help.”

Nevertheless, she did not have Albert's number, so t of reaching him.

way

Nelson, who was unconcerned about the Quint family’s far, said, “I’ll call my superior to get in touch with General Hi His superior was Vanik.

Vanik had learned about the incident in Melrose from Kiev.

It was a perfect opportunity to score points with Albert, so Vanik reported the situation to him right away.

Everybody returned to the villa and waited for an update.

“My superior has debriefed General Hilden on the situation, but the general merely acknowledged the matter without doing anything about it,” Nelson put down his phone and said with a bizarre expression.

The group exchanged looks.

What was up with Albert?

He sent his troops to surround the logistics park upon learning that his cousin was in trouble. Now, he did not seem to care anymore.

For all they knew, Miru could have pissed Albert off with her attitude.

Since nobody knew about Albert’s plans, they were clueless about how to help. Soon, they caught wind of the whole story.

Leo had shown evidence that Miru was the mole.

Miru was public enemy number one to Lefteria Group.

That was not the only thing.

Kaze had not been cleared of his suspicion.

He was labeled as Miru's accomplice, and the group revenge on him too.

Agnes sat on the sofa grimacingly for a moment before her phone to call Kaze. "Are you back in Lilyrose yet?"

"If you are, come back home now!"

Chapter 468 Divorce

When Kaze got the call from Agnes, he had just stepped foot into Draco's residence next door.

He was happy. Agnes called him personally to tell him to come home. He thought that Agnes was no longer mad at him. Kaze rushed over from next door.

"I'm back, Agnes. Have you eaten? | can cook if you haven't," Kaze said cheerfully and greeted Agatha's family. Alas, Agatha's family did not give him the time of the day.

"We're not eating anything. You and Darcy are heading to the family court, and I'm going with you."

Agnes took the stairs with a file in hand. She shoved the file in Kaze's hand.

Darcy asked in confusion, "Why are we going to the family court?"

Kaze pulled a long face without a word.

Agnes' intention was made clear when he saw their ma licenses, proof of residency, and forms in the file.

He received an update from Snow about Lefteria Group's return to Lilyrose, so he could understand Agnes' motivation. "What else? It's time to file for divorce."

Agnes glared at her daughter.

It dawned on Darcy that Agnes wanted her to sever ties with Kaze and shield the family from the fallout of his troubles. "I thought I made myself clear in Melrose, Mom. I'm not going."

Darcy put her foot down.

"That's not up to you to decide."

Agnes knew her daughter was stubborn, so there was no point getting her point across to her.

Instead, she turned to Kaze with a sulky look. "Here's your chance to be a man, Kaze. Are you going to get caught up in the mess alone, or are you dragging Darcy into it?"

"I'm happy to take on all the bad things in the world just so Darcy could be safe," Kaze said firmly. Darcy's eyes welled up. "Don't say that, Kaze." "Shut up!"

Agnes interrupted Darcy and turned her head to say, "You should understand where I am coming from. Now, take Darcy to the family court."

"I told you, Agnes. I will sort out the issue with Lefteria Group. Nothing will happen to our family." Kaze shook his head and added, "We don't have to divorce."

"Do you think I will believe you?"

Agnes scoffed and pointed at the door. "If you're an there now, or I will disown her."

"You can't, Mom!"

Darcy looked at Agnes in disbelief.

She could not believe that her mother would threaten to disown just to get her to divorce Kaze. cy Agnes gritted her teeth and uttered, "Don't blame me, Darcy. As the head of the household, I need to consider the family's best interests. You will ruin us and Sky if you keep your relationship with Kaze."

Darcy was torn apart.

She could not let go of her family. However, she did not want to separate from Kaze either. Kaze was innocent. Yet, he had to bear the fallout of everything."

Enough. I'll take Darcy to the family court."

Before Agnes could finish, Kaze cut her off.

He glanced at Darcy. "I'll bring the car around. I'll wait for you outside."

Kaze walked out with the file in hand.

Once outside, Kaze pulled out his phone to call Snow.

There was no way he would agree to a divorce.

He only said yes to taking Darcy to the family court to appease Agnes. Otherwise, she would raise hell.
"Mr. Chairman."

Snow's respectful voice came on the other end.

"My mother-in-law demands that Darcy file for divorce heading to the family court now."

Chapter 469 Kiev's in a Rush

Kaze found it embarrassing to get his assistant involved in a personal affair.

Snow had the makings of a great assistant because she did not express an opinion. She said, "Got it, Mr. Chairman."

Kaze's phone received a call seconds later. It was from Johnson.

"Do you want the family court closed to delay time, Mr. Lee?"

“That’s right.”

“I have an idea. A new law introducing a mandatory waiting period is about to go into effect. It will require a one-month wait after filing for divorce before it can be finalized.

“But the new regulation only starts next year. We are months away. Given your influence, you could request the expedited implementation of the new law.”

The suggestion sounded reliable to Kaze. The mandatory waiting period could be a good thing for him.

He might be able to save himself this time, but Agnes insisted they get a divorce. The one-month waiting period was a problem.

is

Kaze said happily, “Get Draco to contact the God of War Pal and want that rule implemented right away, Johnson.”

As he put down the phone, Darcy walked out of the house tearing Agnes stuck close to Darcy in case the latter ran away. She even told her sister’s family to come along and keep an eye on Darcy.

Agatha’s family could not wait for Darcy to divorce Kaze. Kiev would stand a chance now.

They texted Kiev in the house about the news.

Kiev was on his way to Lilyrose from Sunrise. Upon learning the news, Kiev stepped on the gas and accelerated to 180 miles an hour. He acted as if Darcy would marry him after divorcing Kaze.

Sitting in the car, Kaze handed Darcy a tissue. "Here you go. You're smudging your makeup with your tears." "You must be happy to divorce me, Kaze."

Darcy took the tissue, feeling infuriated by the smile on Kaze's face. She was upset. However, the latter did not seem to care that they were about to separate.

"I don't want to divorce, but we're not divorced yet."

Kaze still looked jolly. "Maybe the divorce won't happen."

Agnes saw red.

She scoffed. "Won't happen? Dream on."

"The family court is several miles from our home. We'll take it back for lunch after they file for divorce."

No one took Kaze seriously.

Even Darcy believed Kaze tried to be optimistic so that she wasn't

The man was silly.

Landon, in the backseat, said sarcastically, "Once you get out of family court, we won't be related anymore. Maybe I'll be related to Kiev pretty soon."

Agnes was all smiles. Kiev was the ideal son-in-law to her.

There was no need for Kaze to stoop to the level of a spoiled brat, so

Kaze smiled without a word.

Soon, they arrived at the family court.

Kaze's group lined up to get their forms filled and take a number.

While they were waiting, Kiev arrived.

Kiev approached Kaze and said condescendingly, "You made the right choice to divorce Darcy, Kaze. "You are not good enough for Darcy. She's an amazing woman, and you have nothing in common.

"You contribute nothing to the Quints. If that's not enough, you keep bringing your problems home. Besides, your marriage is a mistake from the start..."

Kiev ranted for a long time before giving it a rest.

Sitting on the chair, Kaze looked up at him.

Kiev pulled back and raised his fists in defense, thinking Kaze would jump down his throat. Kaze simply smiled nonchalantly and said, "You sou hurry, Kiev."

Chapter 470 A Priority "What are you trying to say, Kaze?" Kiev scowled.

Kaze smiled pretentiously. "My wife and I are filing for divorce. Why the need to rush here when it doesn't concern you? Are you here to see my wife cry?"

"Don't make that false accusation. I'd never make fun of Darcy."

Kiev glanced at Darcy, who suffered in silence, and denied that fact.

"If that isn't your motive, why are you here?"

"I rush over to say something on behalf of Darcy."

Kiev smiled victoriously and said, "May you find happiness in your new life."

He believed those words marked the perfect end to their marriage.

"I have something to say to you too, Kiev."

Kaze grinned.

"Do tell," Kiev responded. Either way, Kaze could not see his marriage from ending today. Kaze said indifferently, "The divorce is not happening."

Kiev was taken aback at first, but he quickly let out a sneer.

"Are you kidding me, Kaze? You and Darcy are in the family court now."

He pointed at the counter. "They filed for divorce, and their divorce are finalized right away.”

“I said it’s not happening. Maybe the country doesn’t allow me and Darcy to divorce,” Kaze uttered with a smile. Agatha’s family burst out laughing.

“Stop putting up a fight, Kaze. What do you mean by the country won't allow you to divorce? Who do you think you are?” “Don't flatter yourself.”

Kaze’s words were met with skepticism and doubt.

They believed it was another of Kaze’s crazy rants.

Annoyed by Kaze, Kiev took out his phone. “I think we have all waited enough. I'll pull some strings to get your filing a priority. We should get this done and over it, so we can grab lunch after.”

“Yeah. It will be great if Kiev can get things moving. We have waited long enough.”

Agatha was the first to back Kiev up. She did not see a problem with Kiev pulling strings and seeking special treatment. Kaze smiled and did not stop Kiev. He even ridicule idiot in his mind.

“Hello, Caesar? I’m Kiev Clifford. We met during Mr. Oc That's right. I am at the family court in your jurisdiction. from you. “Oh? That’s great. Let’s have lunch together later.”

Kiev quickly put down the phone and told Kaze with a smile, “I talked to Caesar Braders, an administrator of Lilyrose family co Do you know what he said?”

“Caesar? I think I know him.” ‘b If Kaze remembered correctly, the man was a distant cousin of Don. He asked, “What did Mr. Braders say?”

Kiev responded smugly, “Mr. Braders is coming here. He will personally see through the process and get the divorce done. Kaze, do you still think the divorce isn’t happening?”

It took one phone call from Kiev to get the administrator of the family court here.

Agnes approved of him even more, and it reflected in her eyes. Agatha’s family continued to speak highly of Kiev. “The divorce is not happening even if the country’s entire administration is here,” Kaze uttered.

Everybody went quiet before erupting in laughter. They could not be bothered to mock Kaze anymore.

To think Kaze talked about the country’s administration. He sure lived in his own bubble.

These were people Kaze would only see on the news.

“Welcome, Mr. Clifford.”

Caesar, the administrator of the family court, rushed to everybody enthusiastically.

Kiev extended his hand to him. "You didn't have to rush her Braders. | was only asking for a favor. Thank you for making "It's only right that | come here."

Caesar smiled widely and asked, "Which of your friends is filing divorce, Mr. Clifford?"

"That's him."

Kiev pointed at Kaze and added with a smirk, "He refused to get a divorce, so | called you over to give him priority." Caesar looked in the direction of Kiev's finger. He was stunned at the sight of Kaze.

Why was Kaze there?

Caesar had seen Johnson, the mayor, suck up to Kaze.

He was only a family court administrator and not at a level to speak to Kaze. Yet, Kiev called him to the family court to force Kaze into a divorce. Kiev was trying to get him killed.

Caesar felt chills down his spine.
