

Guardian gods 171

Chapter 171:

Soon, once more, Flowua was surrounded with water, but not taking in the sensation of being surrounded with water, she looked back to see twelve huge water creatures moving towards her. At the head of each creature was a demon similar in appearance to the one she just killed.

Runes bloomed at the back of Flowua hands as two blue daggers appeared in it, on her scaled humanoid forms armies made of chilling ice adorned her whole body.

Looking at the approaching demons, their movement suddenly halted, they were all confused when all of a sudden Flowua figure descended on the lead demon and with two slices of her daggers the murloc demon was cut in half with its head gone.

Looking off into the distance, worry flashed in Flowua eyes, she knew now that the rumor about her kingdom being under sudden attack was probably spread by the demon "My brother is its main target"

"Hope you are alright brother" Flowua thought to herself as she dodged a dark ice pickle headed for her.

On the other side of the sea, Tide can be seen facing a huge looking unique murloc with four eyes and two huge horns. The scales on the demon's body looked unlike any other murlocs and to top it had a long tail wagging slowly behind it.

Unlike the army attack Flowua kingdom, this armies looked different with every soldier cladding an armor and none of their actions were random.

Tide sons and soldiers held their own, they were all moving like this was what they were born to do, but the opposite army Sean knew that so they took advantage of their bigger number to gang up on an elite soldier when the opportunity presented itself.

Tide looked at the demon before looking down off into the distance " Is your highness worried about your sister"

The demon deep voice spoke out to Tide who looked back at it but said nothing in return, the demon seeing that shook its head and said "This is our first time after all the secret battles over all the years, I honestly thought you would have much to say to me"

Tide eyes flashed before a Throne of ice appeared behind him to which he sat down and said, "if before I would be eager to learn about you but most information I need about your race has already been known by me"

The demon shook its head in mockery "it seem that I am the one not up to date then and making a mockery of myself"

"You know your action this time is pointless, the gods already have awakened so obtaining this world should no longer be something considered a possibility to you" Tide expression turned serious as he regarded the demon.

The tail behind the demon began wagging wildly before calming down as it spoke up "I will state the obvious that we both know your highness which is that the gods are currently helpless against us"

"Another being that you don't know much about like you think you do, maybe even the gods don't know as much as they think they do since the planet consciousness is their only source of information"

The demon body suddenly shivered as it felt the gaze of multiple powerful beings staring at it, Tide took note of that before the demon spoke up "the gods are here"

Hearing that, Tide shifted a bit in his throne before calming down "he knew that he was now the gods only way of communicating with the demon to understand what his current words mean"

"What do you mean about us not knowing enough?" Tide asked the demon who proceeded to ignore him.

The demon bowed to no one in the never ending sight of water "It truly is an honour for I Aska to be in the sight of the origin gods"

Looking at Tide, the demon said "some information isn't yet available to you but for the gods I will speak directly to the point"

"The abyss race has been there right after the birth of worlds so conquering of worlds is something we have been doing right from the very beginning"

Looking at Tide, the demon said "To your word on no longer having a chance at taking the world, is something laughable to me your highness"

"Planet consciousness usually avoids sharing this as it is something that usually doesn't happen. Also the first choice is better for them as they at least have a chance to take action themselves if the situation demands it, while the second choice takes away that freedom and chance from them" The demon smiled.

"Taking over a world doesn't always has to be through violence"

"We demons choose the violent path because that way it is more fun, engaging. Able to hear the sound of weapons tearing through flesh, devouring souls, I could go on forever on why we choose the violence path"

"However there comes a situation where violence isn't the answer so we had to adapt which is the second method, unfortunately you will have to find out that method yourselves as this world is already unfair enough for us demons"

The demon said but like a child who was so eager to show off it said "I can drop a clue?"

Tide leaned in closer "And what is that?"

"The clue is that for this method to work, the existence of all godling races in this world is no longer needed, so it is unwise for you to call my actions pointless" The demon said as its voice took on a serious tone.

Back in Ikenga realm, he looked away from the demon before thinking deeply on the demons words "I am surprised yet not that much at the same time, Nana is a sentient being who has shown to do everything to protect herself so her holding back on some words is something not that much surprising"

"Of course understanding doesn't mean that I have to like it" Ikenga thought to himself sighing "We gods need our own source for information and not believe everything we are being told"

Down in the underwater, an ethereal crown grew around Tides head and with him at the center a field grew around him and the demon.

Aska felt the field as it thought to itself "so not the same as his sister"

Tide spoke up "I would like to find out more on what is in that head if yours but I doubt you will do so willingly?"

"Of course not" The demon said as it hand lit up in red flames that began burning the surrounding water causing a constant steam leaving from his hand, yet for some reason the flames didn't go out.

Pointing at Tide, the Flames headed his way but Tide in his throne did nothing but only speak up "Come forth my sentinels"

Inside his field six blue portals opened up where a shark man but more elemental walked out from with each holding on to a weapon of its own. The shark sentinel holding a sword got in front of the flame wave as a cyclone began forming on the sword it was holding with it waved towards the flames.

The flames didn't go out easily but it could hardly move forward as the cyclone kept it circling in place. The demon raised an eyebrow at that as it snapped its finger causing the flames trapped in the cyclone to explode.

The water around began tumbling but with a wave of Tide hand from the throne, it stopped as the sentinel with a trident made of ice, swam out with fast speed appearing in front of the demon with its trident ready to poke.

The demon waved its hand but nothing happened causing it to look and raise a brow at Tide who also happens to be staring at him smiling, the trident was about to poke through the demon when its tail moved like it had a mind of its own as it struck the unsuspecting sentinel and sent it flying.

The demon pushed forward with its hand covered in flames as it cut through the water with high speed, it was about to grab hold of the sentinel it sent flying when an arrow concealed by the surrounding water hit him and unlike other arrows that aim to pierce through this one did as the demon one hit with the arrows felt it was hit by an unsuspecting wave of water pushing it back.

The sentinel with a sword held its sword behind it and once again it was surrounded by cyclone but instead of attacking like it did before it used it as a propeller closing in on the demon who still hasn't caught itself.

The sentinel appeared above the demon with its sword raised high to fall on the demon when the demon stretched its hand only for the sentinel to be steering at an eye, for some reason the sentinel found it couldn't move and the demon tail warped around its leg.